WINNIPEG MARKETS

WINNIPEG, May 3.—There is no change in the butter market. The cheese market is in an unsettled condition and the tendencies are for lower prices. Large supplies of fresh eggs are arriving but prices are steady. With the approach of warmer weather and the roads in better shape, receipts of eggs are expected to be heavier and prices lower. Lard prices are steady. Cooked and smoked meats show very little change under a limited demand. Hogs continue with a firm tone. The cattle market due to heavier receipts has developed a weaker undertone. The fish market is quiet with no change in quotations.

BUTTER MARKET STEADY

Winnipeg

BUTTER.—The butter market is ruling steady. Best creamery is quoted at 44c to 46c per lb. Supplies are light but there is a good demand.

EGG PRICES LOWER

Winnipeg.

EGGS.—Fresh eggs are arriving on the market in heavier volume. Prices are holding steady with a firm tone due to the big demand for consumption and the large quantities now going into storage. There is a feeling however, that within a short time lower prices will prevail. No. 1 candled eggs are quoted at 27c per doz. and 30c per doz. in cartons.

LARD PRICES STEADY

Winnipeg.

LARD.—The lard market stands firm with a steady feeling evident in the trade. Buying has shown some improvement but it is only for immediate requirements.

Parcels by Post Direct Between Canada and Italy

Ottawa.—Official announcement has been made by the Post Office Department that a direct exchange of parcels by post has been arranged between Canada and Italy. This will be in addition to the existing parcel post routes via England and via France.

Direct parcel mails from Canada will be made up at Montreal, during the summer and will be despatched by Canadian Pacific-Navigazione Generale Italiana steamers sailing direct to Italy. The rates of postage on parcels posted in Canada for transmission by this route will be as follows:—

2 lb.	48c.
3 lb.	59c.
4 lb.	70c.
5 lb.	81c.
6 lb.	92c.
7 lb.	1.03
8 lb.	$1.14
9 lb.	1.25
10 lb.	1.36
11 lb.	1.47

The regulations as to packing, customs declarations, prohibited articles, etc., will be the same as for parcels for Italy sent via France.

While the charges for the conveyance of parcels by the direct service are lower than for the service via England or via France, the direct service is less frequent and the choice of the route should be left to the sender. Persons wishing to forward parcels by the direct route should bear this in mind.

The first despatch from Canada will be made by the Canadian Pacific-Navigazione Generale Italiana S. S. "Montreal", sailing from Montreal on May 6th.

A Valuable Impression

A pleasing impression upon customers is of value. You can create one and at the same time save your goods from damage by spreading sheets of TANGLEFOOT in your show windows, especially over Sunday.

TANGLEFOOT will then be at work for you and will not only catch the flies, but attract the attention of people who pass your store to your efforts to keep your stock clean and fresh. For 1922 TANGLEFOOT has been considerably reduced in price.

Remember TANGLEFOOT catches the germ as well as the fly, and that poisons, traps or powders cannot do it.

What Does Experience Teach the Grocer?

That experience is the best of all teachers is familiar knowledge to the successful grocer.

He has learned many things about selling —but the most important about buying.

He hears lots about quick turnover. But he knows it's an empty phrase unless the sale of the goods he buys, as with Post Toasties, Grape-Nuts, Instant Postum and Postum Cereal is guaranteed.

Positive turnover, certain profits and interesting volume on Post Toasties, Grape-Nuts, Instant Postum and Postum Cereal are the result of an uninterrupted, year-'round advertising campaign.

The advertising policy on these products is as certain as taxes. It's not a fad, but a part of our business—which is your business.

Attracting Tourist Trade

Ten million automobile owners are hearing the call of the tourist trail. Hundreds, perhaps thousands who answer the call will pass your door this summer.

They are out for pleasure. They have money to spend. They are in a buying mood.

Can you get them to stop? Can you sell your goods to them? Can you attract tourist trade?

Yes—if you have a Wayne Honest Measure Gasoline Pump on the curb in front of your store. Tourists all need gas, and a pump, standing ready to serve them, will bring their trade to your door.

But be sure your pump is a Wayne Honest Measure Pump, for automobilists everywhere, desiring honest measures of filtered, water-free gasoline, prefer Wayne Pumps.

And the confidence which motorists have in Wayne Pumps will extend also to you and to the merchandise which you sell.

Let us tell you more about this way of stopping business at your door. When you write, ask for Bulletin 276-CG.

THE EXCISE TAX ON MATCHES

BEFORE THE DAYS of the Excise Tax matches were referred to in round numbers, such as 500's, 400's, etc., but with the placing of a Government Tax of 1c per 100 matches, it seems high time to cease generalities.

WHEN THE COMBINED INTERESTS of Bryant & May, Limited, (of Great Britain), Maguire, Paterson & Palmer (of Canada and Great Britain) and of The Diamond Match Company (of United States) joined hands in The Canadian Match Company Limited—they measured the situation;

WE FOUND some of the most popular brands were "overstamped:" that dealers were paying for 5c stamps when 4c stamps would be sufficient—that there was no strictly 500 count match in Canada.

CANADA WANTED a modern-day match and she wanted to pay to the Government its just and due tax. The Government wanted no more.

DEALERS WANT less of sizes, less unnecessary items—less duplication of stock—and more "turn-over." They want dependable merchandise—a fair selling price and a fair profit.

WE BELIEVE Maple Leaf offers the Match "user" more value—more satisfaction—less hazard—and far more "lights" than anything in competition carrying a 5c stamp, and should sell for no less. The one size should fill all "family" needs.

THE DIFFERENCE is the dealers' added profit.

Maple Leaf Matches are longer and stronger—greater care of every detail—and are protected in strong wooden shipping cases. They are non-poisonous—rats won't gnaw them. Your Jobber will be pleased to supply your needs.

The Most Popular Summer Beverage

EVERY grocer who displays the "Cold Drinks" sign is in line for a big season's business—particularly if he has the foresight to lay in a generous supply of McLaughlin's Ginger Ale.

McLaughlin's "Belfast Style" is one of the best sellers of all the "Hygeia" line—it's such an economical all-round thirst-quencher.

And as for "Canada Dry"—it's known throughout the Dominion as the highest-grade Ginger Ale made in Canada. Look at these prices—then send in your order without delay.

THE "WANT" AD.

The "want ad." has grown from a little used force in business life into one of the great necessities of the present day.

Business men nowadays turn to the "want ad." as a matter of course for a hundred small services.

The "want ad." gets work for workers and workers for work.

It gets clerks for employers and finds employers for clerks. It brings together buyer and seller, and enables them to do business though they may be thousands of miles apart.

The "want ad." is the great force in the small affairs and incidents of daily life.

ORIENTAL RICES FURTHER ADVANCE

Oriental cables show sensational advances in prices, particularly on Burmah rices, and while Siams and Saigons also showed extreme advances equal to Burmah they have reacted somewhat. Burmahs jumped virtually 2s per 112 pounds in forty-eight hours. Hamburg and London prices to some extent reflect the Oriental prices. Markets in the South are very quiet though strong, and it looks as if present prices will be maintained for the balance of the crop year.

Seven years of service for the

ICE MACHINE

Adams Grocery Limited of Lindsay installed a "York" machine, seven years ago

Mr. Adams says:—

"We wish to express our appreciation of your machine. With it we can absolutely freeze meats, fish, etc., and prevent any waste or loss from spoilage. We often think of the days when it took nearly all our staff probably an hour and a half, two or three days a week putting in ice, and even then it was impossible to avoid having meats spoiled."

THE other hundreds of users of YORK machines in Canada agree with Mr. Adams. Ask them.

The YORK is simple in construction and operation and is:

MACDONALD'S

"Baccy" was "Baccy" Once

Not so now. The (alleged) good old days are gone. No more is it possible to sell anything under the broad, general name of tobacco. Nowadays tobacco users look for the brand on what they buy. Which brings us to the point that more men are looking for the MACDONALD Brand than for any other—finding it, too.

There isn't a man in Canada who knows anything about tobacco who doesn't recognize the MACDONALD name as a guarantee of high quality and good value. And there isn't a MACDONALD dealer who doesn't know that there is more money—in every way, profit margin, turnover and "extras"—for the man who ties up with "the tobacco with a heart."

Eureka Refrigerators VS Hot Weather

Eureka Refrigerators and hot weather always work together, for the hotter the weather, the more you need a Eureka; and the hotter the weather, the better the Eureka will work and save your perishable foods.

Don't let this summer pass with your old ice box. If you do you will pay money out for perishable foods which need perfect refrigeration and you will also pay out money for ice, which when put into a faulty refrigerator will not give you value for your money. So therefore you are spending it for nothing.

It is real economy to purchase a Eureka Refrigerator —they are patented and fully guaranteed.

THE following news despatch on Canadian salmon in the Old Country is of interest to every packer. Note the value placed on this retailer's recommendations in the last paragraph.

PRODUCING COSTS MUST BE REDUCED

Sale of B. C. Salmon in Britain and Europe Dependent on Prices

Col. F. H. Cunningham, formerly inspector of fisheries in British Columbia, who has been representing the canning interests of that Province in Europe during the past year, returned to Vancouver recently. He reported that the sale of B.C. salmon in Great Britain and Europe depended on keeping the price down, and putting up a good class of goods. He has advised the canners to get their cost of production down to a basis of competition with the product of Japan.

"The Englishman is not showing any sentiment now," said Mr. Cunningham. "He is working against strong odds, if he buys Canadian fish at a higher price than his competitor has to pay for Japanese fish. But with prices and quality equal there is no question in my mind that the goods of Canada would be given preference.

"All producing countries are to-day putting their goods on the English market, and establishing themselves by direct representation and advertising. Australia and South Africa are very keen in this direction, and if Canada desires to participate, greater efforts must be made."

Col. Cunningham paid particular attention to the education of retail vendors on the matter of color. He believes the retail grocers are now in a much better position to explain things to their customers. He has found always that a grocer's recommendation is a great factor towards the increased consumption of the lighter colored salmon. Col. Cunningham's publicity work was carried on by means of lectures, moving pictures, etc. Marketing prices and overhead costs must be reduced to the minimum to allow British Columbia to compete in the United Kingdom.

LOOKING STRAIGHT AT THE FACTS

When we investigated conditions in the match trade in Canada we found that there was not a strictly fancy match on the Canadian Market, and that some brands of matches were being over-stamped. That a 5c stamp was being placed on boxes that required only a 4c stamp.

We determined to give the Canadian public a better match, longer sticks and stronger sticks, superior secret chemical treatment, superior workmanship, greater care of detail, and a true count with a proper tax paid.

WE THEN BROUGHT OUT
MAPLE LEAF MATCHES

You sell different grades of all lines—your customers want better matches, and only Maple Leaf can supply this demand.

If some of your trade want cheap matches buy them cheaply and sell them cheaply, but get your full margin on Maple Leaf and the match user will at the same time get better value.

Let The User Be The Chooser

Make a Maple Leaf display and suggest that these superior matches be examined and tested by the side of ordinary matches.

Business is Better

You find it so, don't you? Especially in Red Rose Tea, the sales of which with many grocers were larger in January than in any one month last year. February prospect for still bigger sales.

There is a better tone to business everywhere. The wheat market is again active; there is more lumbering in the Eastern Provinces than was expected; exports have picked up, and industrial conditions have improved.

Help make business better still by pushing well advertised lines. If you're low in Red Rose Tea, don't wait for a traveller, mail your order.

"I Will Give You $1 for that Copy"

So said a Toronto business man to one of our representatives who showed him a copy of one of last year's issues of THE FINANCIAL POST.

Recently another subscriber offered $2 a copy for several back numbers of THE POST required to complete a file. Because THE POST supplies much information that is to be had in no other publication many of its readers keep it on file for reference.

The City Treasurer of a large Western city had a special table built in his office to carry a complete file of THE FINANCIAL POST to which he refers nearly every day. There are many others like him who find THE POST valuable beyond the first reading.

It is because THE FINANCIAL POST is valued by its readers, is closely studied and is in many cases retained for reference that it offers the advertiser so much of those important qualities that advertising experts call "reader attention" and "reader interest."

The leading investors, business men, bankers, financiers, public officials in every community of Canada read THE POST. THE FINANCIAL POST gives the advertiser

How These Grocers View Price Cutting

Montreal Grocers Look With Suspicion on Goods Quoted Below Cost—Confidence in the Market Has Been Destroyed—Has Made Big Opening for Price Cutters—Public Will Want to Know Why Prices Advance Again When the Cutting is Over

By Canadian Grocer's Own Representative

MONTREAL.—After careful inquiry it is evident that the local retail grocery trade does not think much of the price-cutting that holds sway in this part of the province at the present time. As far as Canadian Grocer can determine, they are all unanimous in the opinion that business has been hurt and hurt badly by the recent developments in local quotations. Instead of stimulating buying, it has awakened a feeling of distrust and suspicion and purchases are only for small quantities. In some cases it resulted in the grocer avoiding the lines on which the prices have been cut. Here is what some of the grocers have to say aobut present conditions.

"No Speculation for Me"

"No speculation for me," said P. E. Dery of 471 Ontario St., east, Montreal. "I'm not going to be drawn into this price-cutting by stocking the lines in which other grocers are slashing prices. I am going to give my customers the best quality at a fair price and remember that it costs money to keep up my store. No one can tell me that it pays to give anything away. When a grocer sells goods at practically what they cost him, he is giving away his own money."

When asked if he did not think that some of the offerings were bargains at the present quotations he said, "Yes, but they lead to trouble. The wholesalers know that too and in many cases they too will shun those brands after the war is over. If by buying at this price the grocery trade could make a little extra profit, I would be all for it but it would only mean the cheap goods would move out and the more expensive stock, we are now carrying, would stand on our shelves."

Makes Public Suspicious

Henry Russel, of 847 St. Catherine St., west, Montreal, expresed the same attitude towards the price cutting. "The wholesale grocers.' he remarked, "have let the retailers down during the past month or so. We had just begun to feel that things were steadying up when prices were slashed and none of us knew where we stood. It now seems that the grocer who studies the market most carefully knows the least about how prices are going. I would not jump in and buy now. It is too risky. There is no telling how long the thing will last or how far it will go. The man who likes to make a splurge on cut prices is in his glory but the grocer who aims to serve the people and at the same time play fair with himself and customers is at sea. The public gets a wrong impression. They do not know why some prices are cut so low and naturally they think they are being 'held-up' by the grocer who does not partake in the scramble. If some wholesale grocery houses in this city are out to cut the heart out of the grocery business, there is no reason why they should attempt to murder the business for the retailer as well."

A Variety of Prices

"There is such a variety of prices quoted to the retail trade to-day that a grocer cannot tell how much lower his next door neighbor is buying the same goods as he is purchasing," said R. Roderique, proprietor of the Claremont Grocery, 4845 Sherbrooke St., west, Montreal. "The larger grocery stores have been hurt most. They have to put in a fair stock, particularly of canned goods. In reality they are the best customers that the wholesale grocery firms have. Yet when these prices are cut these grocers are left with high priced stock on their hands and the little corner grocery is able and willing to undersell. Just as soon as the wholesale price is cut, some one is willing to cut resale prices and another shade is taken from the margin of profit. It is all very well for them to argue that it is only in a few lines that the cutting is being done but each cut makes it just a little harder for the grocer who is not a 'cutter' to clean up his old stock."

Few Buying Any Heavier

Few grocers are apparently buying for the future and taking advantage of the cut prices. Everywhere in the grocery trade there seems to be an air of suspicion over the variety of prices quoted. Some have seized the opportunity but even they admit that the cutting has been determined to the trade and that it is only building up trouble for the future. When actual market conditions warrant a drop in price the grocery trade are glad to see it come but when prices are brought down temporarily and later forced to advance again, the public naturally become excited and want to know why. Undoubtedly price cutting of late has laid more trouble at the door of the retail grocer.

DEALING WITH CHAIN STORES

"The solution of the problem as far as the regular grocer is concerned is his decision as to whether he should buy from those wholesalers who sell to chain stores and such organizations, at prices that permit of lower quotations to the general public than the average grocer is able to quote," remarked A. E. Burns, secretary of the Wholesale Grocers' Association of the Prairie Provinces. Mr. Burns whose headquarters are in Winnipeg was in Toronto this week, and in discussing the grocery situation at the present time made the above remark to a representative of Canadian Grocer. "The wholesale grocer who is helping chain organizations and other 'price cutting' retailers to pursue a policy of price slashing is only building business for them that sooner or later is going to reflect on the wholesalers' trade. The wholesale grocery trade is the proper channel of distribution for the manufacturer, and it is up to the wholesaler to keep it so.

How Price Cutting in Corn Hurt Sales and Brand Name of Product

Retailers Fear to Buy at Bargain Prices—The Public is Suspicious of the Quality and the Future Of the Products is Damaged

MONTREAL, (Special).—Most retailers consider it is a mistaken idea that cut prices will stimulate business, particularly at a time when competition is as keen as it is at present. Locally many prices are much below cost of replacement and neither the wholesalers nor the retailers report any increase in the demand for these lines. One instance in particular illustrates the point. A local wholesale grocer offered a brand of standard corn at 90 cents a dozen. At first it sold fairly well, until the retailers began to make a feature of it. One grocer filled his window with it and quoted 10 cents a can. This was by no means picked up as the merchants thought it should be.

Price Caused Suspicion

One lady came into the store to buy corn. The grocer offered her this brand. She refused it and cautioned him not to send that "cheap" brand. Yet by actual test the corn, she did buy, was no better than the one offered her at the bargain price. She was suspicious of the quality on account of the low price. Some people with a gambling spirit did venture to buy the corn but the grocer admitted that no large orders were placed at first, although some repeat orders were for 6 or 12 tins. On the whole the bargain price did more harm than good to the brand name, for in the future it will be hard to sell that brand to the public at the regular price.

Retailers Refuse to Buy

Only one block further away, this same corn was offered to another retail grocer at the low price. He refused it on the ground that since the first grocer had stocked it and offered it at such a low price he would be unable to sell it to his customers for two reasons. First, because his customers knew that brand of corn could be bought for at least ten cents a tin and he was not prepared to sell it at that price and secondly, because if he offered it at a higher price than the other grocer charged, he would be unable to move it and so although the price of the corn was quite reasonable this grocer refused to buy.

Range of Prices

In another part of the city a retail grocer is selling this same brand of corn at 18 cents a tin. He did not buy it at the bargain price and he told a Canadian Grocer representative that he would not buy that brand in the future on account of the cut that had been made in it. He contended that since it had been offered to the public at such a low price at one time, unless it was always going to be sold at that price he was not prepared to stock it and attempt to sell it when the price would be higher. He too admitted that the quality was good for that particular grade and that it was good value for the money. As far as he is concerned the brand was put on the "black list."

Claims Pure Food Stores Are Not Owned by Wholesale Grocery House

Fifteen Stores and Good Will Are Sold for Fifty Thousand Dollars—Stores Are Now Under One Management and Wholesale Firm Denies Any Connection With New Company

Montreal.—On April 22nd, one of the Montreal newspapers announced the sale of the fifteen Pure Food Stores in this City, stating rather vaguely that they had been sold to some American interests, headed by M. Zahler, who has now taken an office in the rear of one of the stores at 924 St. Lawrence Blvd. Strangely enough, nothing was said about who sold the stores or how the deal was put through. M. Latsky of the wholesale grocery firm of Climan, Latsky and Schafran, wholesale grocers at 890 St. Lawrence Blvd., Montreal, however, admitted to a Canadian Grocer representative that Mr. Zahler had negotiated with them in connection with the purchase. Mr. Latsky emphasized the fact that from now on the wholesale firm which he represents will have no more to do with the chain of stores except that they expect to sell them all their grocery and produce lines.

A Queer Plan

Mr. Latsky admitted that the wholesale firm of Climan, Latsky and Schafran were responsible for the establishment of these stores in the first place, and he went on to explain the rather queer system under which the stores were operated.

"When we found a grocer who wished to establish a business for himself we told him that we would open up a Pure Food Store for him and start him out with a complete stock on the one condition that he deposit with them $1,000 as a guarantee of his account. He then started out to manage his own business just as every other retailer in the city does. He was free to buy from whoever he chose provided that we had the first chance to supply his needs at current prices. We encouraged him to seek prices from other wholesale firms, but when he quoted the price to us, we always endeavored to meet the prevailing market prices. For example, if one of the store managers heard of prunes selling at 14 cents a lb. and we were quoting 16 cents, if he called us and told us of the quotation, we would naturally quote 14 cents a lb. and if necessary lose something on it in order to supply the store. Our object has been to maintain list prices, but to meet all competition. The store manager makes the profit on his goods for himself and sets his own retail prices, or at least that was the plan up to the time when we disposed of the stores. The reason we were able to sell cheaper or at least the stores were able to sell cheaper, was that our system was cash and carry which eliminated the cost of delivery and enabled us to sell lower since we had the cash on hand as soon as the goods were turned over. You will understand that anybody can do business at a lower cost on the cash plan."

Mr. Latsky was anxious to establish the point that the Pure Food Stores had not been owned or operated by the wholesale grocery firm of Climan, Latsky and Schafran and that each store had been an independent unit up to the time the new concern had consolidated them. Yet it is strange that at one sweep all the stores, leases, stock rights to the name, etc., were taken over at the price, as quoted by Mr. Latsky of fifty thousand dollars. So far little can be learned about the present ownership of the stores except that Mr. Zahler will be the general manager and that American capital made the purchase.

"That certain wholesale houses are behind chain organizations in Western Canada," Mr. Burns declared, "was fairly well known. In Winnipeg and the Prairie Provinces the chain idea of distribution was not in vogue perhaps to quite the same extent as in parts of the East, but on the Pacific Coast the 'chains' were well organized. He believed the individual retail grocer should decide as to whether it is in his interests to buy from wholesale houses that were backing chain organizations."

Mr. Burns was east to Ottawa in connection with business not connected with the wholesale grocery trade, and returned to Winnipeg again on Tuesday evening of this week.

No Better Justification for Margarine

It is Common Experience Among Grocers That This Product Actually Keeps Down the Cost of Living—Prohibition of Sale of Margarine Would Not Help the Dairy Farmer a Whit in Raising the Price of His Export Butter

LET US preach a lay sermon on a text from an editorial note in the "Canadian Grocer" of last week:

"There is no doubt the dairy interests would .....boost prices of butter if it was not ..... because so many people would refuse to pay the higher price and use more margarine."

Could a better justification for the continued sale of oleomargarine be found? It is, according to evidence that is common experience among grocers, actually keeping down the cost of living. One may reasonably assume that this effect is most important in precisely those families where, under the present depression, every cent counts in the weekly budget. Naturally the greater number of such families is found in our towns and cities for the fact ought to be plainly comprehended by all Canadians that, however much it has been taught that Canada is an agricultural country, one-half of the population to-day is found in urban districts. It is a point on which people shall have to unlearn an old tradition if they are to understand. Perhaps not everyone in urban life is concerned in the economy which oleomargarine brings about. But it is reasonable to estimate that fully one-fourth of Canada's urban population and, consequently, one eighth of her total population in the Dominion, finds the economy worth considering. Now that makes roughly one million people to whom oleomargarine offers a food differing mainly from butter only according to their own preconceptions and prejudices, not actual food value.

The Grocer's Interest

The grocer and provision man have a direct interest in this matter. If oleomargarine were not available no more butter would be consumed. That is, the quantity of fat-yielding food would drop from the present total of sales by an amount represented by the difference in buying capacity of one-eigth of our population. The volume over the mass of consumers would drop. The turnover in the grocery trade would be less. Does any grocer want that contingency at present?

An article in these columns last week made it plain that the claim of the dairy interests about oleomargarine adversely affecting the price of butter in general is wrong. It showed that so far as consumption within Canada is concerned oleomargarine amounts to only four and a half per cent. of the production of butter. But. someone will say, here is a contradiction—can oleomargarine in such relatively small quantities steady the price of butter if it is only four and a half per cent. of production? It can, because the greater part of Canadian butter is produced for export and for a market which insists on a regular supply, where prices are set by the world demand, not by local conditions in the Dominion. Yet it is far otherwise in that portion of the butter trade which concerns the local market. That portion is as it were, the margin of the total supply. It is in the field that oleomargarine really plays its most important role in keeping prices of butter from soaring unduly.

Affects Domestic Butter Prices

Thus there is the singular position that while the prohibition of the sale of oleomargarine would not help the dairy farmer a whit in rasing the price of his export butter because it is as a drop in the bucket of world supplies, it prevents the domestic price running up to an undue height through, say, a local shortage or even a local "corner" of what is the margin of the much vaster trade.

In other words, the availability of oleomargarine has made it difficult for the domestic price of butter to run up and down wildly. Really this should be an advantage even to the dairy interests. It certainly is so to the grocer and the dealer who knows too well the difficulties and annoyances which follow fluctuation in their buying prices and readjustment of sale prices.

No Consideration of Poor

In all this there is no consideration taken of the vastly important point that even the poorest families in the land are not deprived of necessary palatable fats in their daily food. And all the world now knows what happened to the sixty-four million German people when in 1917-18 the Allied blockade cut off their supply of fats. Something to the same effect on a less acute scale would have happened perhaps to the families of the 200,000 workless persons in Canada last winter had oleomargarine not been available.

Seeks a Trade Route Between Canada and the British South Sea Islands

E. Jerome Dyer, a Fiji Planter, Interviews the Government at Ottawa—Says Tropical Fruits Could be Placed in Canada at Reduced Prices as Compared With United States and Central American Countries

OTTAWA May 8.—(Special).—With the object of establishing a trade route between Canada and the British South sea islands for the Canadian Government merchant marine and other shipping lines to the mutual benefit of both Canada and the islands, E. Jerome Dyer C. B. E., a Fiji planter, visited Ottawa a few days ago to interview the government. He was accompanied by Mr. Walsh, general secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Establishment of the proposed trade route would enable Canada to benefit by the 50 per cent. of preferential tariff adopted by the islands towards all British colonies, Mr. Dyer told the Ottawa representative of Canadian Grocer. This would place tropical fruit in Canadian Pacific ports at a greatly reduced price over imported fruits from the United States and Central American countries. Mr. Dyer stated that the South Sea Islands could sell bananas in Canada for 33 per cent. less than the present price charged by Central American planters. Canada to-day imported two million bunches of bananas annually at an approximate cost of over $12,000,000. Citrus fruits could also be sold at a lower price than Californian products.

The production of sugar on the islands is ever increasing and large quantities are being exported annually. The annual output averages around 100,000 tons. Cocoanut products, rubber, pearl shells for button manufacture and other products are available for export, Mr. Dyer stated.

The Accommodating Grocer

Pat went to the grocer to get an empty bottle. Selecting one that answered his purposes, he asked:

"How much?"

"Well," said the clerk, "if you want the empty bottle it'll be five cents, but if you have something put into it we won't charge anything for the bottle."

"Sure, that fair enough," said Pat, "Put in a cork."

Novel Ways of Increasing Seed Sales

Present Season Offers Grocers an Opportune Time to Stimulate Sales of Seeds—Some Ideas as to How Merchants Have Successfully Done This—Window Displays and Advertising Have Got Results

PUTTING sales effort behind seeds in the spring months is time well spent according to the experience of some grocers who have big sales every year in seeds, by catering to the demands of the amateur gardeners. Seeds are displayed in the windows, and well to the front in the store. One firm on the Pacific Coast in addition to displaying and talking seeds to the customers, advertised seeds in a way that meant a considerably increased volume of sales.

Spraying Chart on Dodger

Besides using generous space in the newspapers, both daily and weekly, this firm had splendid success with his direct mail advertising. He has built up a very valuable mailing list in the district of New Westminster and up the Fraser Valley to Chilliwack.

One of the pieces of mailing matter that have brought results is a "dodger" 12 x 8 inches. On this sheet—besides listing the various seeds with their price a chart was prepared for spraying. This chart is of such a practical character that for its sake the whole sheet is certain to be welcomed and retained.

Valuable Information Given

The various plants and trees and shrubs are listed; the next column lists the various pests to which each plant is subject; the next row lists what to use as a spray in each case; the next the dilution, and the fifth column indicates when the first spraying should be done as "immediately after blossoms fall" or "early in spring before buds are exposed," etc. The last column tells when second spraying would be most effective or warns when spraying must be discontinued.

In addition to this chart, which commends itself to every gardener, there is a table which indicates how much of each variety of seed is recommended by the experimental stations for seeding an acre or 100 feet of drill as the case may be.

The thought is then brought out that the logical place to buy the chemicals used in spraying is the Curtis store.

The seed list gains strength from the phrase "Government Tested."

The Friday market day, when the producers from miles around bring in their produce to the Municipal Market, is a weekly institution in New Westminster. This market is one of the most successful in Canada and has been in operation for many years. It makes Friday the big day for the retail trade generally and for that reason the larger merchants, use their biggest space in the papers on the Thursday. Aggressive tactics for this firm have kept the volume well up.

"It is necessary for the grocer to be alert to seize any opportunity for the addition of a side line that will be profitable," said this merchant, "and I can say that the seed business has responded well to our sales efforts."

Vine in a Candy Bucket

Another merchant who has been very successful in selling seeds in the spring months has some novel ways of doing things to increase turnover. One time he had an old shed with a sloping roof made from odd pieces of window sash, and this, with an oil stove going, served as a hot house. In it he would start a quick-growing vine, such as the morning-glory, perhaps in a candy bucket filled with rich soil. From the bucket would rise a bit of light lattice-work constructed in a fan shape and spreading at the top. The vine would be trained on the lattice-work, and, if he had any luck, he would have a flourishing vine long before anything of the kind was to be seen in neighboring yards or gardens. Then the outfit would be transferred to a sunny shop window. Piling empty cigar boxes around the candy bucket gave the base for a pyramid composed of packages of seeds. These envelopes were so heaped around the growing vine that it appeared to be literally springing from the packages of assorted seeds. The effect was startling in the extreme, yet it was simply obtained. Pedestrians would pause before that window, and many of them would buy.

Onions in Old Silk Hat

One spring this merchant raised a fine bunch of onions in an old silk hat; that is, he raised the onions in a hotbed and put them in the hat for display purposes. This particular exhibit he placed in the window with small card reading: "What a City Farmer Can Do." Then he scattered around packages of onion seeds. People would view this display with bulging eyes.

When early vegetables began to come in he would go to market and buy three or four bunches of fine radishes. Then he would fix up a shallow pan filled with earth, place it in the window, and arrange brown cloth around the pan. In one corner of the pan would be stuck a stick with a radish envelope on it, just as a gardener does it to mark his beds. The soil would be mussed up, a trowel inserted, and the radishes scattered around as if they had just been dug up. A few, in fact, would be peeping from the soil. The brown cloth would be trimmed with packages of radish seeds. The radishes would keep fresh for a couple of days. To people who came in he would hand one, also a knife, and tell them to try a radish with a little salt. About this time our local citizens would be ready to plant, and a view of actual radishes seemed to be very stimulating to seed sales.

"Gardening Means Health"

This astute merchant would get up a form and then have about three hundred letters run off on a mimeograph. To parents he would write something after this fashion:

Facts About Seeds and Possibilities

Merchant Must Watch Markets Closely

Grocer Giving Service of Delivery and Credit Finds it Necessary to Meet Competition of Chains and Cash and Carry Stores on Some Lines—Must Study Markets Carefully in Order to do so

"IT IS difficult for the regular grocer to meet the competition of the chain stores, and the cash and carry stores," remarked T. A. Macpherson, general merchant at Omemee, Ont., recently. Mr. Macpherson carries groceries, drygoods, millinery, boots and shoes, and he also has a bakeshop in connection with his place turning out about fifteen hundred loaves of bread a week. One side of the store is devoted to groceries, and Mr. Macpherson's turnover in these lines is in very good volume. Discussing the problem of the present day competition of the "chains" and the cash and carry idea, Mr. Macpherson declared that it was more necessary now than ever before for the regular grocer giving a service of delivery and credit, to watch the markets very closely. "The merchant today," he said, "must buy very carefully. He is practically forced to meet the competition of the chain stores on some lines. People only see the price, and are inclined to forget the accommodation of credit. One price and cash is what the trade should generally adopt. While our credit losses are not heavy—in fact they are the very minimum of loss—doing business on a cash basis certainly permits of beter prices. If people want credit they should be willing to pay for the privilege.

Turn Stock Over Once a Month

"We watch our stock very closely, and aim to turn the majority of lines at least once a month. It is only in following a plan such as this that the best results can be obtained. I aim to have nothing on my shelves that is not selling, and would rather sacrifice a line rather than have it lying on the shelf for too long a time."

Mr. Macpherson does not hesitate to introduce the new lines provided that he is convinced they are well worth while, and of reputable quality. This store in a village of eight hundred people has a well arranged, attractive grocery depratment. Equipment for the convenient handling of goods, and making for quicker service to the trade is to be found here. In fact goods are shown to the best possible advantage.

Conducting a bakery in connection with the grocery section is a good idea in a place the size of Omemee, according to the opinion of Mr. Macpherson. "We sell about 1,500 loaves of bread every week," he said. "It is the only bakery in the place, and while bakeries in the larger places such as Peterborough, ship bread in every day, we sell the bulk of the bread consumed here and in the country surrounding. We do a very large farm trade of course. Our bakery helps the sales of groceries, in this way. People coming in to get bread can very often be sold groceries, and too the fact of them coming for their bread they think they might just as well buy groceries too. Having the bakery and the bread supply gets them into the store."

This Enterprising Chinaman Advertises His Wares at Church

Vancouver, May 9.—The B. C. representative of Canadian Grocer was much astonished last Sunday, when on leaving the Presbyterian Church at City Heights, Vancouver, he was handed the following card by a beaming Celestial:

C. Y. HAPPY

Groceries, Fruits, Vegetables, Flour & Feed, Candies and Soft Drinks
4295 Main St., cor. 27th.

This enterprising Chinese grocer and his family were at morning service in full force, attending the mid-afternoon Sunday School and also evening worship. He passed out his cards at all services, advising all and sundry that he had now moved into their midst, would attend this church and hoped that all would deal with him.

There have been those unkind enough to suggest that certain regular church goers attended with mixed motives. It has remained for a yellow tradesman to have done with any pretense and show the possibilities along this line. The story is yet to be related of any Canadian retail merchants burning joss sticks to Buddah or Confucius and passing out their pasteboards on the same occasion.

1922 Coffee Crop in Brazil Will be a Short One

Montreal.—From present indications the 1922 crop of coffee in Brazil will be a short one. At a recent meeting of coffee dealers and roasters of the United States, the Committee in attendance from Brazil estimated the production from this district at about 8,000,000 or 9,000,000 bags. They based their estimate on personal knowledge from a trip through Riberrao, Preto in the Sao Paulo district. At that time conditions gave promise of an average crop, but the season turned out to be unfavorable and the conservative growers now estimate that the 1922 crop available for shipment through the ports of Santos will be between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 bags. A bag of coffee weighs 132 lbs. With the decreased production the average quality of the coffee will probably be high, with large, well-filled berries, the strength of the trees will go to develop only a fraction of the usual number of berries.

"Do you want your children to be healthy and happy? Teach them to do intelligent gardening. Gardening means health, anl I would rather sell you the ounce of prevention than the pound of cure. Teach them to plan, to plant, and to dig. From the ground they will dig health as well as corn, and the corn will come in handy, too.

Drop in and look over our line of fine seeds."

One letter in particular that went only to people who owned their homes, and it went through territory far outside of his own jurisdiction is recalled. It went on to say:

"I built a house once and later tried to sell it for $5,000, about what it cost me. No offers could I get. This was before my gardening days. The house stood on a bare and unattractive lot. I spent $60 for grass seed, flower seeds, and plants. The next year I sold the house for $6,500. There's an investment that showed a profit."

This letter made a remarkable impression. As a matter of fact, good plants and shrubs will greatly increase the selling chances of a house.

During the season his seed window would usually have pasted on the front pane clippings from some farm publication. These clippings treated of various topics—how to grow radishes and then plant carrots or turnips in the same ground, the care of strawberry plants, how to grow cucumbers in a barrel, and so on. Always there was something fresh and something out of the ordinary, but it was all practical stuff. The farm papers fairly bristle with these things. And all day long you would see people walk up boldly or sidle up furtively to read those clippings.

"Human nature can't resist that bait," the boss would say. "Put a live tiger in your window, and what do you get? Just a curious crowd. None of them will ever want to buy a tiger. But the chap who reads about growing extra fine tomatoes in a back yard, with a subsoil of tin cans and a topsoil of wire bustles—he goes away thinking. He's apt to start a garden and buy some seeds."

Almost 4 Per Cent on Sales in Bad Year

This Grocer Has a Record That Indicates a Fine Showing and Ability to Handle His Business to Make it Pay in a Supposedly Bad Time—Another Merchant's Statement is Analyzed

By HENRY JOHNSON, Jr.

ANOTHER thing about my correspondence which greatly interests me is that grocers who have in them the seeds of success are the very ones who write frankly and in the attitude of self-searching for faults. The men who are least capable, who therefore stand most in need of counsel, are the ones, apparently, from whom I do not hear.

Two excellent examples of this condition I use this week.

Pacific Coast, March 21, 1922
Henry Johnson, Jr., Canadian Grocer.

Dear Sir:—I have been a subscriber to Canadian Grocer for years and your articles have been of special interest to me. I have never gone to you with any of my troubles. There are so many things in the way of efficiency on my part, or I should say inefficiency, that I do not know on which line to start..... I began business fourteen years ago with $800. At the end of 1921 my books showed that I had made above my living expenses and after charging off all doubtful accounts, $31,000. I have two general merchandisise stores, $13,500 stock in one, $10,500 in the other, not including fixtures. I did $127,000 in 1921 and after taking the loss on decline, made $4,900 clear profit. First: Am I carrying too much stock? Second: Do you consider the business okeh?

I think this man is to be congratulated on the showing made. He certainly seems to know how to handle his business. He made just short of 4% on his sales last year—a record equaled by few merchants in any line.

Being without definite information, I guess his average margin at 20% and assume the average of stock for the two stores at $24,000 throughout the year. On this basis, the turnover is 4.233 plus. That is not bad for a general merchandise business. Whether he can better that, depends on how easily he can get supplies. Not being familiar with his location, I cannot judge of his accessibility to markets.

Merchant's Judgment Must Be His Guide

The best anybody can do in such circumstances is hint. The live merchant will be able to use his judgment to advantage. Improvement might be made by reducing stock and thereby speeding turnover, because it is astonishing how much business can be done on how little stock if it is watched, if the want-book is diligently used and the stock thereby kept active. On the other hand, many a merchant located in an inaccessible district owes his prosperity largely to the fact that he carries the goods the people want and has a supply all the time. So one factor must be balanced against others before an intelligent decision can be made, and I assume that this man is capable of making it.

I am glad he brought up this question himself. It is one of the most important any man can ask himself. I can illustrate its importance by a story.

Only a short time ago I waited to talk to a grocer and while waiting I noticed a strong, pungent odor permeating the store, and I recognized the smell of an exhausted coal-oil burner. It came from an oil stove on which the grocer was heating water in which to dip a bag of prunes which needed reprocessing. They were hard, bone-dry and sugared. I figured that he had bought them thus in the bag, unprocessed, for a lower price than processed prunes in boxes would have cost—undoubtedly figured he was making a "good buy."

Thus he was making one turnover in months—his good buy was really good-by to profits—he was out shrinkage, time, trouble, plus the strongest kind of probability that the prunes, even when reprocessed, would not give satisfaction. Would that man have been better off from every standpoint to have bought processed prunes in boxes in a quantity such as he could sell in 30 days, then bought again, sold and continued that way—even at a somewhat higher price? I leave it to you. Think it over and act on your conclusions.

A "Nut" That Needs Cracking

Middle West, March 22, 1922
Henry Johnson, Jr., care Canadian Grocer.

Dear Sir:—We always read your business facts and hard nuts to crack. You sure do bring out the goodies or show one the worm. We are enclosing a 1921 nut which I would be pleased to have cracked and tell me with all the criticism and advice that is at your command; and if you find a worm, I would be glad to have you help us poke him out.

THE NUT.

Mdse. inventory, Jan. 1st, 1921	$ 3,990.04
Mdse. bought and paid for, 1921	31,677.17
Mdse. beginning 1921 unpaid	36.39
Mdse. end of 1921, unpaid	791.69
Mdse. inventory end of 1921	3,279.13
Total cash-and-carry sales 1921	38,655.01
Total expenses 1921	5,586.43

The expense account may seem quite large to you, but therein I have included $1,800 for myself as manager—$150 per month; my wife as one clerk, $1,040, or $20 per week; and our 15 year old boy whom we pay $312, or $6 per week. We own the store building and have included in expense $228 or $19 per month for rent, which covers two-thirds of the building investment, all taxes, insurance and repairs. After deducting our wages and rent from total expenses, we have $2,106.43 which went for stock, insurance, freight, express, dray, sacks, twine, wrapping paper, floor oil, sweeping compound, coal, light, awnings, postage and all extra help at rush times and all incidental expenses pertaining to the business. I might add that my wife and I started 13 years ago with a capital of $1,750. For nine years we ran a credit and delivery service and for the past four years we have run a cash-and-carry; and now our capital consists of property worth $17,500. During that time we have lived well and run the stuffing out of two new Ford and two Dodge cars.

Yours very truly, Cash-and-Carry.

I think you can see why my conscience did not bother me a bit in leaving that man without much attention until now! I wrote him briefly: "It is evident you are doing business on the right basis, never fooling yourself as to the actual cost of operating."

And indeed, I can think of little more I can write now, except on one or two points. For this man is a success in every sense of the word. He is a success, I take it, too, largely because his attitude is and has been one of frank partnership with his wife. "My wife and I started with $1,750 capital," he writes; and, without belittling him in any way, I feel that because such partnership exists and has prevailed from the beginning, is one important—probably the controlling—reason why he is so successful. Men who are willing to be frank will, I fully believe, agree with me.

In fact, I seldom find a merchant who began small and is successful that there is not a loyal woman in the case.

"It Pays to Sell Only Quality Goods"

This Grocer Finds a Bakery Department Increases Sales of Other Lines—Turnover of $50,000 Last Year—Business is Chiefly on Cash Basis but Credit Customers Are All Good

"OUR bakery department is a big drawing card for our store," Israel Brubacher of Elmira, Ont. told a representative of Canadian Grocer recently. "We sell a lot of bread and all kinds of pastry here. We carry a special kind of bread, and handle the lines of pastry made by one concern, and there is a very good inquiry for the same. They are the means of selling a lot of other groceries for us. People come into the store presumably for bread or pastry, and before they go out, they have been sold a lot of other things."

$50,000 Last Year

Last year the turnover in this store was in the neighborhood of fifty thousand dollars. Elmira is the centre of a thriving farming community, and a large business is done by Mr. Brubacher in eggs. Hundreds of cases are handled annually, and are shipped out to the cities. All eggs sold from this store are stamped. Thus if any of them prove to be below standard, they can be traced to the producer. It is the endeavor of this concern to guarantee every egg that goes out.

"We carry only the best quality goods and find that it pays," remarked Mr. Brubacher. "A reputation for quality is one of the best advertisements a business can have. It means a steady, satisfied trade. Customers who are well pleased with your service and the class of goods you sell, will tell their friends. We have found our turnover has been stimulated in this way.

"Our business is conducted mostly for cash, although we have a number of credit customers. However last year we had no loss at all, as a result of bad accounts. Ninety per cent. of the people in this town own their homes, and their business is good."

Nine Cases of Dates in Two Weeks

Speaking of the value of display as an aid to selling in this store, Mr. Brubacher remarked that their window was selling goods for them all the time. Recently a display of a certain packaged date was made, and in two weeks' time they had sold nine cases. This turnover was accomplished through a window display backed with a selling talk on the part of the staff. Mr. Brubacher has a big turnover in chocolates and has a special display case for showing the same. Equipment of a type to assist in sales and service to the customers has been installed. "Patented bins are a great convenience in the conduct of a grocery store," Mr. Brubacher remarked. "Everything is at your finger ends, and we figure that they do the work of a clerk. We also have bins for displaying fruits and vegetables that are very valuable. Since we have displayed oranges where people can readily see them, we find that they are selling much better.

To Handle Meats

"We have not up to the present been handling smoked and cooked meats but intend doing so this summer, commencing in the course of a week or so. We have had installed a refrigerator case for showing cooked meats. We have a slicer too and are anticipating a good turnover in these lines, especially in the summer months."

4 PER CENT. ON SALES

stock at end, the cost of goods sold seem to be $32,388.08. Sales were $38,-655.02. Difference is $6,266.93. Deduct expenses of $5,586.43, and the net profit is $680.50. That figures around 1.08% on sales net. It is little, but it is known to be net—apparently. I say that because I have not taken into account what was owing on stock a year ago and now. If that be taken in there will be a loss shown—the difference between $755 increase in indebtedness and the $680.50 that now looks like net earnings.

The rent may be all right. The only question whereby that can be judged is to ask: For what could the building be rented to another for the same purpose? If you could get more for it, then it must cost you more. If you could not get as much, you still must bear all burdens because it is yours; but then it might be good business to look about for a purchaser and buy a location better suited to you. Probably that has all been thought out, however.

The expense ratio of a little less than 14½ per cent. does not look excessive to me—that is, not very excessive. Large chains of cash-carry stores in the West operate with a burden of around 12½ per cent. and probably an extra 2% is not out of line; but make sure on this. There is a great advantage in paying most expenses to yourself; but it is best to be right anyway. The gross earnings of less than 16¼% seem narrower than they need to be. I think that can be swelled a little—perhaps one per cent.

Freight, Express and Dray Not Expense

Here is possible confusion. This man says much of his expense is absorbed by freight, express, drayage. I have written many times that such items are not expense but portions of cost. Sometimes a man tells me that anyway he puts those things into cost. If he does, and if he also puts them into expense, I do not see how he can make his accounts balance. This man says he has read my stuff and apparently paid attention to it. I hope he will enlighten me on this, because if these items have been charged up double, that will make a big difference.

NOTE: Transportation items, including drayage, are to go into immediate cost and recovered on each sale of the goods. They have no more to do with expense than your invoice cost has to do with it.

THIS CHICKEN HAS 20-FT. TAIL

A remarkable breed of chicken with a tail 20 feet long has been on exhibition at a western poultry show. The fowl was developed in Korea and is known nowhere else in the world. For years it was limited to the coops of Korean royalty, but with the passing of that dynasty, the bird has been scattered to fanciers.

The fowl possesses a body similar to our own domestic chicken, and is covered with gorgeous plumage, with an immense tail. There are from 12 to 15 resplendent feathers to the tail piece, the central one terminating at least 20 feet from the body. In the sun the feathers shimmer in rich bronze, yellow, crimson and gold.

Food Prices in Daily Press

ONE OF THE most determined drives that the retail merchants have ever made in Victoria in association work is being directed against the publication of wholesale food prices in the market pages of the daily newspapers. It is contended, and justly so, that no other trade is so annoyed by the often inaccurate reports of wholesale food values published daily in the press. The clothing trade, the drug trade, the hardware trade—no trade is affected in this way to the extent that the grocery trade is.

It is well known to those who meet the public that the average voter thinks, that if he can learn the cost price of the article he is buying, his astuteness and perspicacity should be rewarded by allowing him to buy at that figure. The average housewife concludes that the merchants retain what she pays. This is unconscious, of course, but when butter, eggs, bacon, etc., are quoted at wholesale in the paper, the consumer looks upon the margin added by the grocer as an iniquitous impost—the amount for which the retailer is gouging him. Recognizing that the knowledge of wholesale costs is a reason for friction and controversy between the consumer and the retailer, the merchants of Victoria are calling upon the newspapers there to drop this feature.

Merchandising Schools

IN SOME AMERICAN cities, schools of merchandising are being organized, and the idea seems to be meeting with a fair amount of co-operation on the part of retailers. Some colleges have adopted a plan of inaugurating departments for the study of merchandising subjects, but the chief difficulty in this connection is the merchant's inability to get away from his business to attend. Short courses such as were conducted this past winter in the City of Winnipeg, have been valuable in assisting the retailer to solve many of his problems, but the plan being adopted in certain cities in the United States is one that can be readily adopted by any town or city of fair size, thus permitting of a wider scope of usefulness.

Specialized teachers in turnover, accounting, buying, selling, advertising, store management, educating clerks, knowing merchandise, will travel from place to place imparting knowledge to merchants and clerks.

In England merchandising schools have been in vogue for many years, and have a real educational value for the retailer and his clerk. In fact in the Old Land clerks cannot embark in the grocery business until they are fully capable of conducting a grocery store.

Merchants in all lines need a higher education in their business. Grocers can benefit by such courses. In the face of present day competition the grocer needs to be better equipped, better informed on merchandising methods. Courses such as it appears will be given in schools of this kind can hardly fail to be a real benefit to the retail grocer.

Another Co-Operative Fails

THE FAILURE of the Workmen's Co-operative Association Nanaimo, B. C., again proves that it is better to leave the business of retailing merchandise to the legitimate retailer. The experience of this co-operative venture is said to be no different in any way from that of similar organizations elsewhere, when the customers have been the employers, with an absence of any central authority. Too much interference, and lack of loyalty on the part of members have operated against the success of these companies.

If managers were chosen solely for their administrative ability and their grocery knowledge, a co-operative store could be operated as successfully as any other grocery store, provided those who subscribed capital understood about how much net profit a well conducted grocery store would yield, after paying the necessary salary to attract good management.

Where, as has frequently been the case, the public in being induced to take shares in a co-operative store were promised 10 per cent. saving on their grocery purchases, and interest on their investment as well, it is only logical to expect that as the truth dawned upon the members, their zeal for the enterprise and their custom at the store suffered a serious decline.

Too frequently, the management is composed of the organizers who may or may not have some retailing knowledge, and who may or may not have some executive and financial ability. In the latter case the end comes sooner.

About Depressions

ROGER BABSON, the statistician, has some wise things to say about depressions in business. Here are a few of his remarks on this subject:

> "Depressions are not caused by money stringency, as is popularly supposed. Depressions are caused by people trying to monkey with the multiplication tables and the Ten Commandments.
> "The condition of our business world depend upon three things: the integrity, the self control, and the inspiration of the majority of the people.
> "I put integrity first because honesty and confidence are necessary before we can build our business world. The cancellation of contracts, curtailment of credit, growing distrust between employer and employe and the general disease of getting all you can for a dollar instead of giving all you can for a dollar, break out in a period of prosperity and start things for the toboggans."

There are some ideas in the above worth while thinking over.

Add sugar gradually to stiffly beaten egg whites, add well-beaten egg yolks, add flavoring; roll in flour sifted with salt. Shape 4½ x 1 inch, roll in sugar and bake on tin sheet in moderate oven.

Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association Plan Convention for Next Month

Will be Held This Year at the Hotel Clifton, Niagara Falls, Ont.—12th, 13th and 14th of June Are the Dates Set

THE FOURTH annual convention of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association will be held next month at the Hotel Clifton, Niagara Falls, Ontario. The dates that have been chosen are the 12th, 13th and 14th of June. Secretary A. C. Pyke told a representative of Canadian Grocer that a greater part of a day will be devoted to a conference with manufacturers. The association feels that wholesalers' relations with manufacturers is one of the most important subjects for consideration at the present time. It is felt that there are many vital problems looming ominously just now, and their proper solution depends in a very definite sense, upon the very best combined thought that can be brought to bear upon them. Thus this convention promises to be a very interesting one from both the wholesaler's and manufacturer's standpoint.

The Queen Victoria Park Commission are making special plans to entertain those attending the convention. Arrangements are also being made for the entertainment of the ladies, and one particular feature for them will be a day in Buffalo. An outline of the programme will be given in a subsequent issue.

Founder of the National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio, Passes Away

John H. Patterson, an Outstanding Figure in the World of Trade and Commerce, Dies Suddenly on Train Bound for Atlantic City

JOHN H. Patterson, founder of the National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio and chairman of the Board of Directors, died suddenly on April 7, on board train bound for Atlantic City. The late John H. Patterson was an outstanding figure in the world of trade and commerce. It was his business integrity and knowledge of human nature that built up the National Cash Register Company from a small beginning to the present large factory. Its product is known and has been a blessing to retail merchants almost throughout the entire world.

It was in the year 1879, when John Patterson, together with his brother were keeping store in a mining district about eighty miles from Dayton, Ohio, that his attention was drawn to the cash register. At that time the Patterson Brothers were doing a big turnover, but the store was not making any profits owing to the many leaks. John Patterson's attention was drawn to the cash register from its use by the inventor, one John Ritty, a Dayton merchant who besides using it in his own store was endeavoring to put the machine on the market. Patterson bought the first machine turned out by this Ritty. Crude and clumsy though it was, the machine immediately turned the store's loss into a substantial profit. Mr. Patterson's commercial instinct told him that the new invention had unlimited possibilities. "What is good for our store is good for every store in the world," he told himself. He investigated the situation and in 1884 he bought out the Ritty business. The success of the cash register after that is pretty well known to the business world.

The close study of human nature has always been uppermost in the heart of John H. Patterson and to understand his workmen more he had his office installed in the center of the main workshop. His business was one of the first to adopt the profit sharing system with the employees.

A French Building at the Can. Nat. Exhibition

Toronto, May 9.—M. Emile Naggier, the French Consul-General for Canada, visited the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds last week, together with M. Rochereau de la Sabliere, Toronto Consul, and a party of representatives of the Exhibition, the Board of Trade and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

In the evening the visitors were the guests of the Exhibition at dinner in the National Club, when the subject of a French building was broached.

M. Nagier expressed surprise at the extent and beauty of the Exhibition Grounds, and approved the erection of a French national building. Speaking of trade relationships between France and Canada, he said he would be happy, indeed, to be instrumental in creating a treaty between the two countries that would be a "highly satisfactory one to both countries."

H. N. Cowan Is New President of Confectionery Assoc.

Montreal, May 10, (Special).—The fourth annual convention of the Confectionery, Biscuit and Chocolate Industries of Canada was opened at the Ritz Carleton Hotel here yesterday. In the absence of the president William Robertson of Robertson Bros., Toronto, who had to go to England sooner than anticipated, A. D. Ganong of Ganongs Ltd., St. Stephen, N. B. took the chair. A telegram was also read from J. Allen Ross of the William Wrigley Co., expressing his regret at his inability to be present, on account of pressing business on a Royal Commission as well as sickness in his home. The treasurer's report was read by Colin Currie of London, Ont. The financial statement showed a good balance on the right side. C. J. Bodley, Toronto, presented the secretary's report

Mayor Martin of Montreal extended a welcome to the visiting delegates and gave an interesting address on the relationship between employer and employee. J. C. Copping, Montreal, manager of the Christie Brown Biscuit Co., also extended a welcome to the members of the association to Montreal.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, H. N. Cowan, president of the Cowan Co., Toronto; vice-president, E. Littler of Walter M. Lowney Co., Montreal; second vice-president, Frank McCormick of McCormick Mfg., Co., London, Ont.; secretary, C. J. Bodley of C. J. Bodley Co., Ltd., Toronto; treasurer, Colin Currie of Perrins Ltd., London.

Canadian Grocer next week will contain a full report of the convention.

Epitaph

Here lies my little retail store—it cannot retail any more, but looks down sadly from the skies on growing skies that ADVERTISE.

This little business now is dead, the reason we can quickly tell, its owner had no business head, his window trimming looked like—nothing.

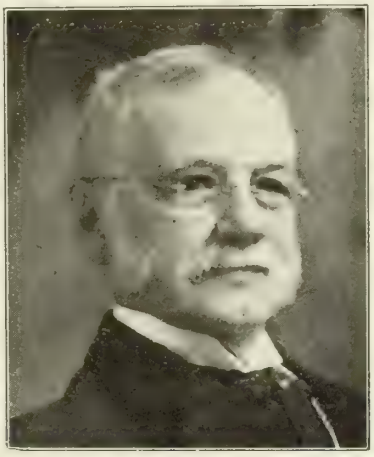
Under this store my business lies. It neither cries nor hollers. I didn't keep a cost account. I'm out ten thousand dollars.

My owner loathed competitors, and thought them men to fear, spent all his time in knocking them, and that is why I'm here.

Head of Chaput Fils, Cie, Limitee Celebrates 65 Years in Business

Charles Chaput, Veteran Wholesale Grocer in Montreal, Joined His Father's Business in 1857— Still Takes Active Interest as President

MONTREAL. May 9—Charles Chaput, president of L. Chaput Fils, Cie, Limited, wholesale grocers of Montreal, celebrates this month his 65th anniversary in the business. Mr. Chaput is now 88 years of age and takes a keen interest in the daily activities of the firm. Although his two sons, Emile and Armand Chaput have taken over most of the responsibilities of the firm, Mr. Chaput, Sr., firmly maintains that he is not a mere figure head in the business but the active president and manager of the financial end of the business. He is to be found at his desk every morning at 8 o'clock and states that with the exception of two months last year, when he was laid up with rheumatism, he has been constantly about the work of the business since the day he joined the staff as a packer and shipper in 1857.



CHARLES CHAPUT

Made His Own Bags

Mr. Chaput in reviewing the past history of the firm spoke with pride about the days when he wore a white apron in the back shop of his father's store and during the day packed orders and at night cut, folded and glued the paper bags for use the next day. In 1862 his father admitted him a partner in the firm and the same year the father moved his family from their residence above the store to their home in Notre Dame de Grace. At the time the firm occupied a small building on a lot which is now situated at the corner of St. Peter and Commissioner Streets in this city. They later built a larger building across the street and in 1889 the present site on De Bresoles street.

Started with Retail Business

Mr. Chaput is a gifted bi-lingualist and although born in a French family and brought up among Frenchmen in a French city, spoke in fluent English to a Canadian Grocer representative about the history of the grocery business in Montreal. Speaking of the early development in his father's business he said, "In 1842 my father started a grocery business which was mainly a retail store since there were only about 54,000 people in this city at that time. The character of the grocery store was much different to that of the present day and although the grocer did not carry the wide variety of specialty lines and delicacies that he does now, he dealt in almost as wide a variety of necessities. The grocer supplied everything from gunpowder to dried and salted fish and in fact he was the backbone of the community which was clustered below the south east end of Mount Royal. On Saturday night we would work in the store until 11 o'clock and then my father would call a cab and have me sent home to Notre Dame de Grace, a drive of a little over an hour. Frequently I was sound asleep before the cabman got me home but every Sunday morning for six years I got up and played the organ in the church in Notre Dame de Grace. When the business prospered and the city began to spread out we felt the need of a delivery and our first horse and wagon was purchased. We felt considerable pride in the fact that our wagon was rattling over the streets of the city bearing the name of the firm. From that time on with the growth of Montreal our firm grew and branched out as the population of the city and province spread out."

BAKING INDUSTRY PRODUCTS OVER SIXTY MILLION DOLLARS

The baking industry in Canada turned out products to the value of $61,800,633 in 1920, according to the report prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics covering the operations of 1,769 establishments. The amount of capital invested in the industry was $23,612,654. There were 9,940 employees receiving an aggregate of $11,522,456 in salaries and wages. Materials cost $38,239,135. There were 737 plants in Ontario and 599 in Quebec. This survey does not cover the biscuit and confectionery industry, which was dealt with in another report. It was difficult to make a line of distinction since many plants are engaged in both baking and biscuit-making. The establishments were classified, however, according to the most important line of products in each case.

Bread production was valued at $51,564,995; materials used included 2,396,800 barrels of flour, 2,167,864 pounds of malt, 3,576,149 pounds of yeast, 41,854 barrels of salt, 10,888,277 pounds of sugar, 501,914 pounds of butter, 6,613,809 pounds of lard, 387,227 pounds of glucose and 88,632 gallons of syrup.

HYDROGEN PEROXIDE IS SALEABLE IN DRUG STORES ONLY

Toronto, May 9.—Hydrogen peroxide in a deteriorated condition is dangerous was the verdict of the private bills committee in refusing to take this common remedy outside the pharmacy act to permit stores other than drug stores to sell it to their customers.

This decision prevents the sale of hydrogen peroxide in general stores throughout the country. Especially the Woolworth Company desired the bill to pass. The bill was introduced on the initative of the Woolworth Company on account of the decision of the courts last year that hydrogen peroxide could not legally be sold in the Woolworth stores. R. G. Ivy, legal representative of this company, asked for a change in the present act.

"Paris green, a strong poison, is sold in all country grocery stores. Why, then, eliminate hydrogen peroxide?" was the argument.

THE WEEKLY HALF HOLIDAY

IN many cities, towns and villages throughout the Dominion, merchants will be closing one afternoon each week and as in other years Canadian Grocer will again publish a list of the municipalities wherein there is a half holiday each week. It is important that this list be accurate and that every locality be represented as business houses have found this list a valuable one in assisting them to plan the trips of their representatives.

We therefore request merchants to fill in this coupon and return at their earliest convenience.

Window Displays Increase Turnover

Wm. Rowntree & Sons, Dundas Street, West Toronto, Make Window Display That Results in Greatly Increased Turnover—Value of Window Display Cannot be Overestimated in Stimulating Sale of Any Line

"WINDOW displays are selling goods all the time for us," C. H. Weeks, of Wm. Rowntree & Sons, Dundas Street, West, Toronto, told a representative of Canadian Grocer the other day. Mr. Weeks looks after the windows for this firm. They are changed every week and sometimes twice in the week. The windows are the best advertisement that can be got for anywhere near the money, this firm believes, and thus great importance is attached to the way in which goods are shown in them. The windows, in Mr. Rowntree's opinion are the eyes of the store, and through them people are attracted inside. And once they are in, it is not a difficult matter, this grocer claims, to sell them goods.

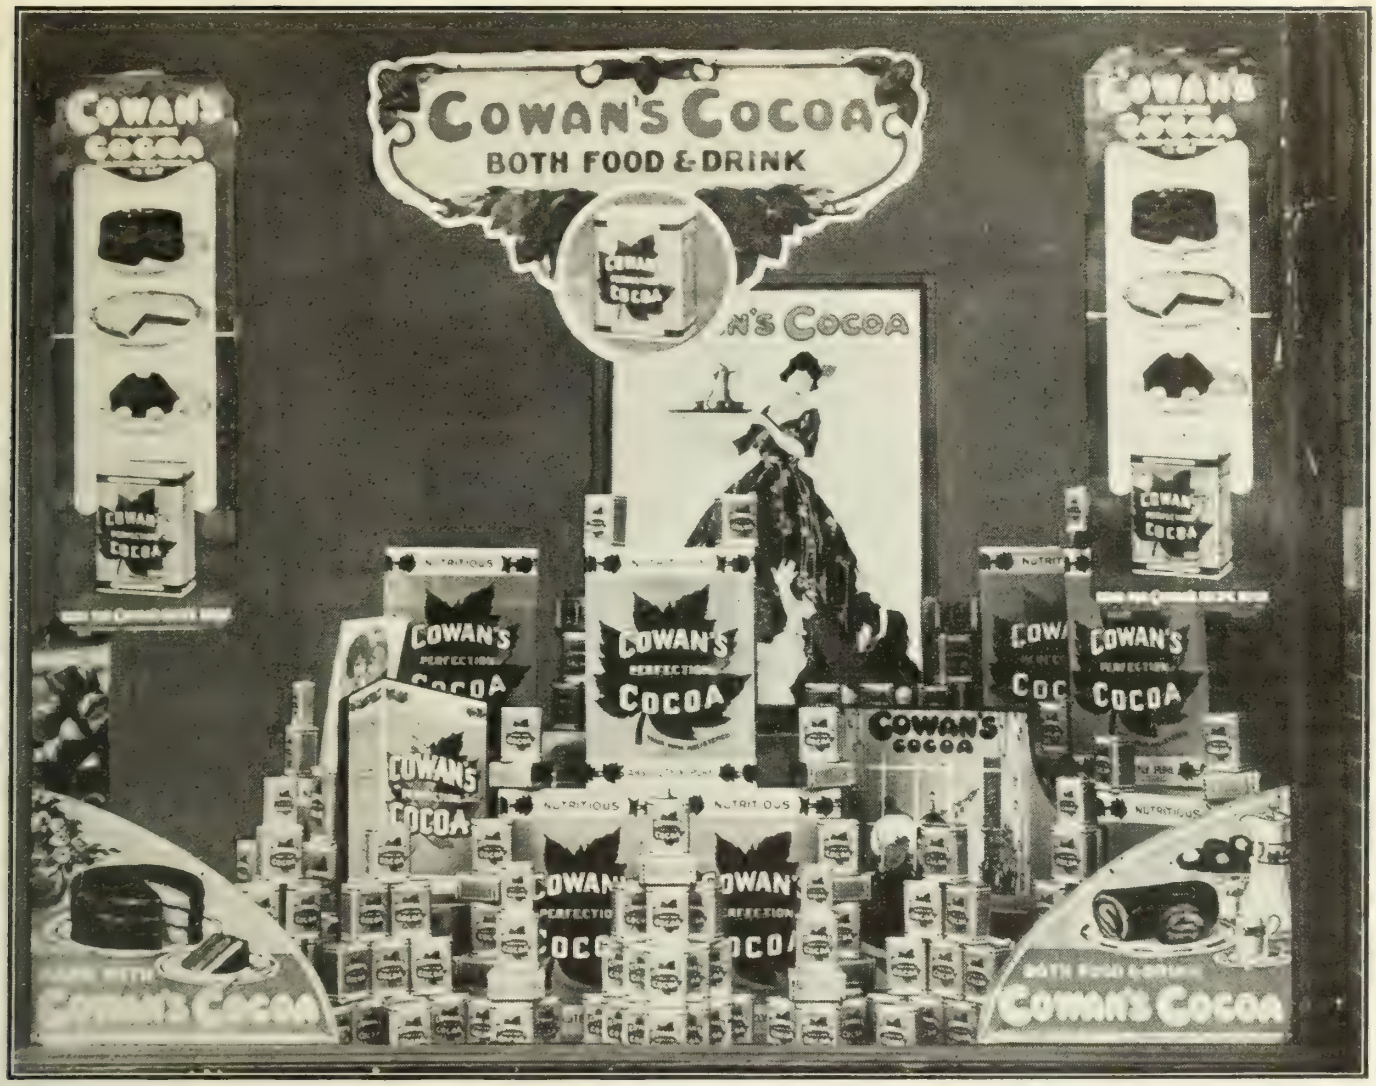
A Long Established Store

Wm. Rowntree & Sons have been long established in the grocery and butcher business in West Toronto. Their store is looked upon as one of the finest in the city, and the name Rowntree in West Toronto and the surrounding country is a household word. While the history of this business dates back for many years, this firm has not stood still but with the coming on the market of new facilities for the more convenient handling of trade, Rowntree & Sons have been quick to install them. Thus it is that their store to-day represents an establishment fitted with all the modern devices that go to make a grocery such as this, an attractive place in which to shop.

An Attractive Store Front

The Rowntree store is situated on a corner, but fronting on Dundas Street are two large windows. Presenting as they do a very attractive store front, they catch the eye of the hundreds of people who pass this way every day. Being close to the terminal of the Toronto Suburban Railway, they serve not only a large population in West Toronto but people coming from outlying villages and farming communities nearby. Thus in keeping their windows dressed all the time, they are drawing business to the store. One window is devoted to the grocery department, while the other serves to show the meats and other produce lines that are sold in the meat section. In this latter department the importance of display is not lost sight of, for not only is the window used, but there are long glass-enclosed counters, that are kept at an even degree of cold, through a system of coils that are connected with a central freezing plant in the basement. Under this long array of glass are shown tempting "cuts" of meats, vegetables and other produce lines.

Illustrating an interior view of the store of Wm. Rowntree and Sons, Dundas Street, West, Toronto—Since this photograph was taken, the partition at the back of the store has been removed and a fruit department provided for.



This very attractive window display featuring Cowan's cocoa was dressed by one of the salesmen of Wm. Rowntree and Sons, Dundas Street, West, Toronto.

Doubles Sales of Vegetables

During the week preceding Easter, special attention was directed to the sale of imported fruits and vegetables. The window was dressed with the choicest of the new strawberries, tomatoes, head lettuce, new cabbages, carrots and beets. Sales of these lines were more than double on the Saturday preceding Easter, than on any previous day. Five cases of lettuce, 20 cases of tomatoes, 3 hampers of carrots, and 5 barrels of cabbages were all disposed of on this day. Approximately 1,500 dozens of eggs were sold on the Saturday preceding Easter.

Extra Profits from Window Displays

"We are having evidences in the way of increased business all the time," Mr. Weeks remarked, when asked as to actual results from window displays. "Two weeks ago we had a display of Cowan's cocoa. Now we are very enthusiastic about Cowan's products. They are made in Canada, and the employees largely live in our own community. Thus in boosting their sale, we are not only selling a reputable line of unquestioned quality, but we are helping an industry in our own midst.

"For one week we had the window filled in an attractive arrangement of the tins of cocoa in various sizes. In addition to the window display, we also had a display on the counter, and on a table in the centre of the store. Every clerk was instructed to talk cocoa to customers, but we believe that the display in itself was quite effective in bringing about sales. People passing the store, as well as people who actually came into the store were caught with the display, and I am sure a great many were reminded to buy.

"As a result of the special effort directed towards Cowan's cocoa, we disposed of approximately ten cases of the half pound tins. We feel sure that the display not only increased the sale of this cocoa during the week that it was in the window, but it served to stimulate the continued demand for this article. Yes, the value of a good window display, coupled with the selling effort of the clerks cannot be under-estimated. It gets an article moving every time."

Cowan's Help the Dealer

When a merchant makes a window display of Cowan's products, he is not only urging the sale of superior goods, but he is connecting up his store with an extensive national advertising campaign. National advertising in magazines, newspapers and billboards stimulates sales and makes more profit for the merchant, and when a company like the Cowan Co., go even further and offer the most attractive window cards and display matter in addition to their general advertising, it creates an opportunity for profit that few aggressive merchants should overlook.

"Cowan's certainly help the dealer and their profits are well worth while."—(Advt.)

Grocers Will Discuss Many Problems

Retail Grocers From Various Points in Ontario Will Come Together in Convention in Toronto Next Week—Big Programme Will Engage Attention for Two Days

TORONTO, May 10.—Arrangements are being completed for what Secretary W. C. Miller declares, will be one of the biggest conventions of grocers ever held in the Province of Ontario. Grocers of Ontario will gather at the Prince George Hotel on Wednesday and Thursday of next week for a two-day convention. On this occasion problems of the greatest interest to the retail grocery trade will be discussed. An opportunity will be given for general discussions, and it is the earnest wish of those in charge that everyone present will avail himself of the opportunity to express his views on matters and problems that are engaging the minds of every retail-grocer to-day. From the programme given here, it is at once evident that the subject matter that will be covered at this convention is wide and of paramount importance to grocers generally.

Secretary W. C. Miller is looking for a very large attendance next week. Ottawa, Hamilton, London, Stratford and many of the other larger centres in the province are expected to send large delegations. W. J. McCully a grocer in Stratford, and chairman of the Ontario Provincial Board, R. M. A. will preside. Opportunities will be given the delegates for visiting many of the food manufacturing plants in Toronto. The Toronto retail grocers' section will act as a reception committee, and will do all in their power to make the occasion one of both pleasure and profit for the visiting grocers.

TURNING AN ACCIDENT INTO PROFITS

What happens when your clerk accidently breaks a glass jar or some other piece of display furniture around the store? Do you just scold or do you plan to make the new one increase sales and cover additional cost?

Not long ago a clerk in a Western Ontario store, in taking a can of tomatoes from a high shelf, dropped the can through the top of the silent salesman completely smashing the glass. The cost of replacing that piece of glass was going to cost the merchant a considerable sum of money. But he eventually hit upon a plan that not only put the case in good condition but also built up an extensive business on an article that was not enjoying as large a sale as it might.

In next week's issue this story is dealt with in detail and shows just how one merchant turned an accident into profits.

Improvement is General in Western Business Conditions

"Business is slowly but surely picking up in Western Canada," stated George H. Campbell of the George H. Campbell Sales Co., of Winnipeg, to a Canadian Grocer representative in Toronto this week. "Conditions are gradually improving and the improvement is general, all over the west right out to the coast," he added.

'To what do you attribute this improvement?" he was asked.

"To the natural spring optimism of the west; to the fact that in most of last year's dry belts they have had recent heavy snowstorms which will ensure sufficient moisture for a long time; to the good crops anticipated this year and also to the increases in grain prices."

Mr. Campbell spent most of the time in Toronto at the office of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., whom his firm represents in Western Canada. He returned to Winnipeg on Wednesday.

AN effective collection appeal is made by the following letter used by a retail grocery house. The success of this letter has been traced to the red ink used to emphasize the fourth paragraph. This paragraph—in this case it reads "Charles B. Blank, account overdue, $105"—is always typed in red letters.

Dear Sir:

Your name in red ink on our letter is something we want to avoid. You do too, I am sure.

Here is the way the account now stands:

"Charles B. Blank—bills receivable—$105."

But unless we receive a check by the 17th, here is the way our bookkeeping department will have to enter it:

"Charles B. Blank—account overdue—$105."

The bad feature about this entry is the effect is has on our credit man. But then your check before the 17th prevents all this.

Yours for good credit,

WESTERN CANADA NEWS

Mr. Copeland, representing C. and J. Jones, brokers, of Winnipeg, was a recent visitor to Vancouver.

Sainsbury Bros., have been appointed agents in Winnipeg for the Northern B. C. Fisheries Ltd. Vancouver, salmon packers.

Preston Harcourt Dilts of Cameron and Heap wholesale grocers of Regina was recently married to Miss Eunice Crawford.

Ward, Watkins, Lowe Ltd., Vancouver, packers of Crabs have appointed Sainsbury Bros., as their Winnipeg representatives.

Tees and Persse, Winnipeg, have been appointed representatives for Swans Down Cake Flour manufactured by Igleheart Bros., of Evansville, Indiana.

J. Angus Taylor, sales representative in Canada for Lea and Perrins, who has been covering the trade in Western Canada, spent a few days in Winnipeg with their western representatives W. L. MacKenzie Co.

C. T. Aver of the Cudahy Co., of Toronto is on a business trip to Winnipeg visiting their western representatives Donald H. Bain Co. Mr. Aver is going to cover Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia for his firm.

W. A. Bowron of Bowron Bros., Hamilton, who has been covering Saskatchewan and Alberta in the interests of his firm stopped off at Winnipeg and visited Stroyan-Dunwoody, their western representatives, before returning east.

H. M. Metcalf, general manager of the Grimsby Fruit Growers Ltd., is on a business trip to Winnipeg and other western cities. While in Winnipeg Mr. Metcalf called on the trade with their western representative, Stroyan-Dunwoody.

Matthew Snow of Winnipeg, recently appointed by the government to fill the vacancy of the board of grain commissioners of Canada, caused by the retirement of Commissioner W. D. Staples, has arrived in the city to commence his new duties. Commissioner Snow has been identified with the western grain business for years in a private capacity and latterly as secretary of the North West Grain Dealers' association.

A. M. Myers, Western Manager of Sainsbury Bros., Winnipeg has returned from the Pacific coast. While there he made a visit to their principals the Oregon Growers' Co-operative Association of Salem, Oregon. He states they are cleaned up in dried fruits and in discussing business conditions with packers, brokers, and jobbers at the coast reports that a much more optimistic condition now prevails and business is looking brighter all along the line.

WALTER ING

The new secretary of the Vancouver Branch, R. M. A.

New Secretary of Vancouver R.M.A. is Given Welcome

Vancouver, B. C., May 8.—A large and representative gathering of Vancouver retailers assembled around the luncheon board at the Grosvenor Hotel, Monday noon, May 1, to welcome the new secretary of the Vancouver Branch. Walter Ing, leaves the secretaryship of the New Westminster Branch to take up the Vancouver office left vacant by the resignation of R. H. Fairley.

The president of the Vancouver branch H. C. Wilson, was at the head of the table; "Bob" Millar the first Vancouver president of the R. M. A. was a speaker, and many of the Vancouver and provincial executives were present. The function was enlivened by "community singing" led by Roy Hunter, Coast representative of the Maclean Trade-papers. After Mr. Millar's remarks re the work still to be done before the retailer, as a class, will get the recognition to which he is entitled, the retailers rose, and with much enthusiasm sang, "I Ain't Nobody's Darling" the theme of which might possibly date back to the time when the "Board of Commerce" was "touring the Provinces."

Walter Ing, in his remarks, outlined to the merchants along what lines the future development of association work might follow. He made a plea for more membership and promised a 25 per cent. increase in membership by convention time in July. He gave great credit to the Westminster Branch and said that many of the plans followed there would be well worthy of emulation in the Vancouver association.

The appointment of Mr. Ing seems to have met with very general satisfaction among Vancouver retailers.

Former Manager of B. C. Grocery Meets Death In Launch Accident

William H. Moore of Burnaby, B. C., at one time manager of the East Burnaby Branch of the "Model Grocery," Matheson and Jacobson, lost his life recently when his foot became entangled in the anchor chain of his launch, and he was dragged by his anchor to the bottom of the Fraser River. By an accident, the hawser had not been attached to the chain, and there was no way in which he could be hauled back. On account of the depth and speed of the current diving was impossible.

"FROM PRODUCER TO CONSUMER" SAYS THIS CHINESE DEALER

"Lillooet Produce Co., from producer to consumer, direct from our own ranches." This is the legend on a Chinese vegetable dealer's window on Pender Street, Vancouver. The Oriental controls, it is stated, quite 90 per cent. of the Ashcroft district, and at least 50 per cent. of the Lillooet district. However it is sufficiently unusual as to be noticeable when one stresses this point of ownership on his window.

Western

Carders' Grocery, Vancouver, has changed hands. Mrs. D. F. Donaldson has sold to Margaret E. Hewitt. Mrs. Donaldson is opening a new business at Kerrisdale, B. C., under the name, Donaldson Handy Shop, at 3007 39th W.

Lack of water or fire protection of any kind in the village of Demaine, near Lucky Lake, in Saskatchewan, resulted in the better part of the business section being destroyed when fire from an unknown cause broke out a few days ago in a cafe. The estimated loss is $40,000.

The Overwaitea Co., which now operates retail specialty grocery shops in New Westminster, Nanaimo, Prince Rupert, Kelowna, Penticton, and Kamloops have moved its Vancouver headquarters recently to 1181 Richards Street, (near Davie). The new home is more spacious and besides a large free warehouse, a bonded warehouse has been established.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE raw sugar market was quiet during the week. Large offerings of Cubans were made at 2½c c. & f. New York, but did not attract a great deal of interest from buyers. Some business transpired at 2 3-8c c. & f. New York. Fairly heavy sales of Porto Ricos and Philippines developed at 3.86c and 3.88c, New York basis, total sales of which running to 16,000 tons.

There are 150 central factories grinding the Cuban crop as against 195 for the same period last year. The weather in Cuba continues very dry for the growing of next season's crop.

Canadian refined sugar situation in Canada is very unsettled. The official list is unchanged at $5.90 Montreal basis. In Montreal and Toronto this quotation can be considered purely nominal as wholesalers are entirely ignoring refiners' lists and quoting considerably below list prices. It is also rumored that certain refiners are doing business below the Montreal parity.

Opening prices are named on the new pack of Hawaiian pineapple which is higher than a year ago, with stocks strongly held and in small supply. New pack lobster is also in a strong position at higher prices than the last pack. Canned vegetables are moving in good volume with quotations generally unchanged and firm.

Rolled oats are firm while trading in bulk cereals is quiet and usually of a consumer character. Prepared breakfast foods are showing a better movement with market conditions fairly steady.

There are no new developments in the tea markets. The situation, however, continues strong with a likelihood for some further advances in quotations to the retail trade.

In dried fruits, prunes continue to show a good movement with prices strongly held. Currants are fairly steady while raisins indicate a weakness. Rices are firm but spot quotations are unchanged.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, May 10.—Although cutting continues in sugar, the attention of the grocery trade seems to be focused on that market and many retailers are speculating, buying fairly large quantities to put in reserve for the summer. Canned goods still show some price cutting. Canned fruits in particular are reduced, in many cases, in order to unload before the new pack is offered. Some wholesalers quote a ten per cent discount on jams to unload. There is a feeling that the opening price, which will likely be made known in June, will be easier. The rice market is firm but some wholesalers are cutting on Texas, Siam and Chinese rice. Molasses is unchanged but some of the special prices have been revised bringing up the price one and two cents a gallon. The spice market is unchanged. Strawberries are higher with smaller arrivals. The quality of oranges received is poorer and late Valencias are filling requirements in most cases. Many of the fresh vegetables imported are higher in price. New potatoes are easier but tomatoes have been forced up.

CANNED GOODS UNCERTAIN

Montreal

CANNED GOODS.—There is little or no change in the condition of this market. Prices are uncertain and cutting is still holding sway. In canned fruits prices are low and plums of standard grade are sold as low as 90c. per doz. Canned corn, peas, tomatoes and beans continue to be cut in price. Buying is only for small quantities even at the low prices and retailers have a suspicion that the opening prices on the new pack will be much lower than last year on account of the stand the wholesale grocers have taken in the past three or four weeks.

TEA DEALERS AWAIT BUDGET

WALNUTS HIGHER ABROAD

Montreal

NUTS.—The nut market in general is quiet with only alimited demand except in walnuts which show an advance in France. Cable reports state that sales have been made which show an advance of 125 francs. Prices locally have been much above import costs recently. This increase will have no effect upon this market apart from strengthening the local position. Other lines are unchanged in price.

SUGAR IS INTERESTING

Montreal

SUGAR.—Sugar market stands in a particularly strong position although up to the middle of the week there has been no change in the refiners' price. Cutting has been rampant in this market and retailers have bought sugar as low as $4.70 a hundred. The New York market for raws is strong and local refiners state that even at the price of 2⅜c. for raws c. i. f. New York it is hard to make purchases. One refiner stated definitely, that there would be an advance in the price of refined sugar this week. The retail trade seems convinced that this advance is to come and many have bought in fairly large quantities for the future.

STRONG POSITION OF RICE

Montreal

RICE.—The rice market is steady, locally, with a stronger tone evident in primary markets. Millers claim that available supplies will not meet the demand until the new crop is available and that higher prices may be expected. Local wholesale prices show no change and are below present cost of replacement. Prices on broken grades rule easy. Stocks of rice carried locally are fairly heavy and an advance is not expected in the immediate future.

MOLASSES ON FIRMER BASIS

Montreal

MOLASSES.—There has been no change during the past week in molasses. Prices showed a decline a week ago and seem to be on a fairly steady basis although there is a wide margin in the quotations made by the different wholesalers. Local dealers express the view that the present basis for molasses is a fair one since prices during the winter were higher than primary markets warranted. There is no change in prices of corn syrups. This market is steady with a fair movement.

MAPLE SUGAR EASIER

Montreal

MAPLE PRODUCTS.—A feature of the market for maple products was the weaker feeling that developed during the latter part of last week on maple sugar and prices showed a reduction of from 1c. to 2c. per lb., which is due to the increased offerings, and sales were made at from 15c. to 17c. per lb. for light grade. The market for maple syrup is steady.

STRAWBERRIES ADVANCE

Montreal.

FRESH FRUITS.—The feature of the fruit market is the poor quality of oranges arriving. There are some Valencias of fairly good quality but the average run is poor and prices remain firm. Grape fruit is steady in price with a good movement and strawberries show a stronger tone with some smaller supplies arriving. The price has advanced to 18c. and 20c. a pint basket and 38c. and 40c. a quart in crate lots.

TOMATOES ARE ADVANCING

Montreal

VEGETABLES.—Higher prices on most new vegetables are noted. New beets are up 25c. and wax and green beans are advanced to $6.50 and $7 per hamper. Green peas are a little easier at $5 to $6 per hamper. New potatoes are down to $11 per barrel but Mississippi cabbages are slightly higher. Cucumbers are lower but tomatoes are getting scarce and higher in price.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, May 10.—The sugar situation continues unsettled. Refiners' lists are purely nominal as wholesalers are quoting considerably below the list prices. Rolled oats are in a strong position with millers' quotations advanced. The movement of bulk cereals, however, is quiet due to the nearness of the warm weather. Prepared breakfast foods show an increased demand but market conditions and quotations are fairly steady. One brand of macaroni and spaghetti is quoted at a lower price. New pack canned pineapple is quoted higher while other fruits and vegetables are firmly held. Rices indicate some advances in the near future. Nuts are quiet on spot but foreign markets are inclined to be stronger. Dried fruits show little change other than a slightly lower price on certain brands of seeded raisins and Thompson's seedless in bulk. The local situation on teas continue to indicate higher values. Coffees are strong while spices hold steady. New fresh vegetables are arriving freely at easier quotations. Pineapples are lower while lemons are in a strong position and slightly higher.

FIRM BEAN MARKET

BEANS.—The market is firm with prices generally unchanged, although in some quarters a special price of $3.90 a bushel is quoted. Shipments of imported beans have not yet arrived on this market.

CANNED PINEAPPLE HIGHER

Toronto

CANNED GOODS.—It was intimated in these columns a few weeks ago that the new pack of Hawaiian sliced pineapple was likely to bring higher prices. The opening prices are now announced and are higher than the opening prices of last year and higher than the recent wholesale prices to the retail trade. Delmonte, No. 2 tins are advanced to $3.65 per doz.; Paradise brand No. 1 tins are quoted at $1.95 and Libby's No. 2 tins are $3.75 per doz. Canned vegetables are generally firmly maintained. Aylmer standard peas are advanced in some quarters to $1.85 per doz. but some wholesalers are quoting certain independent packs as low as $1.50 per doz. Golden wax beans are inclined to be firmer in price with some of the fancy packs quoted as high as $2.35 per doz. Fruits show little change in quotations but are moving freely.

ROLLED OATS STRONG

Toronto

CEREALS.—Trading in bulk cereals is quiet and usually of a hand to mouth character: both wholesalers and retailers preferring to carry light stocks now that the warm weather is at hand. RAISIN PRICES LOWER

Toronto

DRIED FRUITS.—Prunes continue to be the active article in the dried fruit list but there is practically no change in either the local or primary market conditions. New York prices on prunes are still below the parity of Coast prices, but there is more interest being taken and it is expected that prices there will soon be brought in line with Coast values. Raisins are still the weak feature in dried fruits. Local prices are lower this week; seeded in 15 oz. packages are down one cent while Thompsons oil dipped in bulk are also quoted lower.

QUIET NUT MARKET

Toronto.

NUTS.—Generally speaking, trading in nuts at the present time is dull and the business transpiring is mostly on a consumer basis. Primary markets, however, continue to indicate a strong situation.

TEAS FAIRLY STEADY

Toronto.

TEAS—The primary markets are fairly steady and the high level of values are generally maintained although there has been a slightly easier tone on certain grades. The local situation continues very strong chiefly due to the fact that present prices to the retail trade have never been in line with the higher values in primary markets. The reduction of 4d per pound in the British tariff, has had the effect of greatly stimulating the consumption of tea in Great Britain, especially of the better grades, but will have little effect on the situation here. The Japan market for the new crop is expected to open this month and already predictions are indicating even higher prices than last year. Stronger tendencies on green teas are manifested by the civil war in China and if it continues for any length of time there is a likelihood for some advances on greens.

SUGAR UNSETTLED

Toronto

SUGAR.—Refiners' official list contines on the basis of $5.90 Montreal, or $6.24 Toronto. Wholesalers, however are still cutting prices and are absolutely ignoring list prices and there are also rumors that certain refiners are also cutting list quotations. The wholesale quotations to the retail trade range from $5.80 to $6.10 per cwt. for standard granulated.

Ice cream pails, including paper bags are quoted as follows: ½ pints, $10 per M; pints, $12 per M; and quarts, $17 per M.

VEGETABLES TEND LOWER

Toronto

VEGETABLES.—New vegetables are arriving in fairly heavy shipments every day and prices generally show a reduction. Local asparagus is offered at $3.50 to $4 per basket of 2 doz. bunches. New green beans are quoted at $5 per hamper and wax beans at $5.50 per hamper. The potato market has a slightly firmer tone but there is practically no change in quotations.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, May 10.—Wholesalers and retailers report a decided improvement in business during the past week. Coffees in primary markets continue to show strength with local prices advanced. Canned vegetables and fruits are showing a good movement and it is generally considered that supplies will be well cleaned up and the new packs will come on practically a bare market. Opening prices have been named on Hawaiian pineapple. Prunes show a firmer tone while raisins are easier. Rolled oats are firmer with millers' quotations advanced. Rices and spices continue in a firm position. Fresh fruits are in fair demand while vegetables show little change.

ADVANCE IN COFFEE

Winnipeg.

COFFEE.—Santos and mild coffees have advanced 3c per lb. during the last thirty days This is due largely to a heavy European demand, the reported shortage in the growing crop and the improvement in exchange. Local importers have advanced prices on bulk coffee. 1½c per lb.

PINEAPPLE PRICES NAMED

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—Opening prices have been named on the summer pack of Hawaiian Pineapple. Extra is quoted at 50c per doz. and broken slices, 45c per dozen higher than last year. The demand for canned fruits has shown an improvement and although some lines are offered below level of opening prices, stocks are light and not more than sufficient to supply the demand. Vegetables continue to show activity and a firm tone is maintained on tomatoes, corn and peas. Indications are that these lines will be cleaned up before the new pack arrives. The canned fish market remains unchanged. English buyers have contracted for new pack sockeye at prices above last year's quotations. This is causing some anxiety to buyers here who claim they are having difficulty in obtaining stock.

RAISINS IN DEMAND

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS.—Prunes in primary markets have advanced slightly and the local market is showing a renewed interest. The prune crop in prospect if it matures as it now appears, should be the heaviest turned out in California. Raisins continue easy under a good local demand. Evaporated apples continue high and scarce. Apricots are practically cleaned up on the local market. Peaches are also in scant supply. Figs are showing an improvement in the demand.

CORN FLAKES LOWER

Winnipeg

CEREALS.—Local wholesalers are cutting prices on corn flakes and certain brands are quoted as low as $3.25 per case. With the approach of warmer weather the demand for light cereals are showing an improvement. Bulk rolled oats are firmer and millers have advanced their prices as they claim cost of milling is practically as high as wholesalers' quotations to the retail trade. Beans are showing a strong tone and new arrivals will be $4.15 per bushel. Lima beans have advanced ¼c per lb. making the price in bag lots 13¾c. Barley and peas show no change.

Provision Men View Proposed Changes in Cold Storage Act as Impracticable

Discussion in Senate Last Week in Regard to the Cold Storage Act Arouses Opposition—Suggestion to Have Goods Taken Out of Cold Storage Labelled is Not Approved of OTTAWA, May 9.—The discussion in the Senate last week over the Cold Storage Act of 1914, has aroused some opposition on the part of those involved. Objection is taken to any proposal to have goods removed from cold storage carry labels, describing commodities, the length of time in refrigeration, when put in and when taken out, and other detailed information as to the article. It has been pointed out that labels of this kind are highly impracticable, and such a regulation could not advantageously be put into effect. Provision men generally protest that the changes suggested are impracticable and that the regulations now in effect in the Act are sufficent to cover all contingencies.

Senator Bradbury seeks to introduce a bill to make such control by the federal authorities as will prevent both the distribution of food unfit for consumption, and hoarding for the purpose of producing a scarcity and increasing prices.

The bill was sent to a special committee of the Senate after a motion by Hon. George C. Foster to give it the six months' hoist was withdrawn. Senator Foster thought it was the wrong time to introduce a bill that would intensify the unrest in commercial and agricultural circles. A cold storage business was essential to every class in the country. There was just being completed in Montreal a cold storage plant, the finest in North America. More legislation would simply curtail business and make the conditions worse for all classes. Senator Webster, Brockville, speaking of the superiority of Canadian cold storage strongly objected to the compulsory labelling of goods. Other senators advocated further legislation, believing that there should be a more thorough system of inspection.

In regard to the point raised by Senator Bradbury that foods kept in cold storage for a long period of time are, as a consequence, deteriorated, is not the case in all instances, according to some authorities. On this question of cold storage J. A. Ruddick, Cold Storage Commissioner, says:

"With regard to the effect of cold storage on the quality of food products, I can only say that the very common belief that the quality is inevitably injured is not justified by the facts of the case. It is undoubtedly true that foods coming out of cold storage are frequently of inferior quality, but that only proves that the quality was inferior when they are put into cold storage. Cold storage will not restore the quality, and at best it can only be expected to preserve foods in the same condition as received, providing they are held under a proper temperature. In a general way it is true that the preservative effect of cold storage diminishes in proportion to the extent that deterioration has taken place before the goods are stored. It very often happens that goods are placed in cold storage only when the owner has reason to believe that there is immediate danger of them spoiling. This is, of course, very unfair to cold storage, and such goods should be refused admission.

Many Stock Foods Much Adulterated

OTTAWA.—The seed commissioner of the Dominion department of agriculture, George H. Clark, states that the adulteration of commercial stock foods is still prevalent, making it desirable that care and discrimination be exercised in purchasing them. While the bulk of the feeds on the market are as represented, there are still far too many, he says, that are fraudulent, or misleadingly named, or contain materials unsuitable for feeding purposes. The following four typical examples are given:

A feed recently offered for sale as barley meal at $4 a bag was found to contain no barley but to consist of ground corn, sorghum, bean meal and ground oat hulls. "Feed flour" at $4.50 per bag was found to consist of ground rice hulls, pulverized oat hulls, with some sorghum and corn. "Feed," the kind not specified, was found to consist of ground oat hulls, with a vital weed seed content of 1870 per ounce. "Ground Oil Cake" was found to consist of ground cocoa shells, a little linseed meal and barley flour.

Miscroscopical examination is necessary to determine composition of a stock feed, as the naked eye cannot distinguish the materials present, particularly when they are finely ground. The Feeding Stuffs Act, administered by the branch, is intended to stamp out fraudulent practices in this connection and to protect buyers. Samples of feed that show evidence of adulteration should be forwarded to the seed commissioner, Ottawa, together with all possible accurate information. The results, if need be, together with the information supplied, will be promptly issued for the special consideration and action of the inspector for the district where the article was made, manufactured or imported.

The capacity of the Ottawa feeding stuffs laboratory for the micro-analysis of feeding stuffs is about ten samples per day. The fee is one dollar for each sample examined, and entitles the sender to the analysis for his own information or for court action.

ALL FOR FUN

An Ontario farmer caught a young woman doing a "September Morn" on his property, and had her haled before the county magistrate.

"What's the charge?" asked his honor.

"Takin' a bath in the spring, your wushiip," said the constable.

The aged dispenser of justice consulted a dog-eared copy of the statutes and buried himself in its pages for several minutes; then, closing the legal tome and stroking his beard, he said very solemnly, "The charge is dismissed and the miss is discharged. I find that she has as much right to take a bath in the spring as in the fall."

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, May 10.—The feature of the produce market is the sharp advance in the hog market, due to the higher price and keener demand in England for Canadian bacon. This has resulted in a stronger market for bacon locally. Smoked hams are reduced and cooked hams have also advanced. Both the cheese and the butter markets are weaker, with a lower price in some instances. The egg market is steady and, although the production continues to show an increase, the demand for storage and consumption takes care of the supplies and prices are unchanged. Maple sugar prices are easier but there is no change in maple syrup. Brook trout feature the fish market with a wider variety of fresh lake fish at steady prices.

BUTTER MARKET EASIER

Montreal.

BUTTER.—The butter market has weaker tendencies. Receipts show an increase and the demand is steady, but prices are somewhat unsettled. The make of new creamery is coming in in excess of the same period of last year. Sales of finest creamery in the open market were made at 33½c. to 34c. per lb. which is a drop of ½c. on previous quotations. The demand for local consumption is good.

WEAK CHEESE MARKET

Montreal.

CHEESE.—An easier feeling has developed in the butter market with larger offerings at the country boards. The receipts of cheese during the past week show a slight increase on the previous week, but are much below the receipts of one year ago. Throughout the country the spring season is behind that of last year and has somewhat retarded the dairy industry. There has been some demand from over the cable for colored cheese and sales of a few lots have been made by shipment already from this port. Local wholesale prices stand at 19c. per lb. for white and colored cheese.

BACON LOOKS STRONGER

Montreal.

SMOKED MEATS.—The feature of the market for smoked meats is a weaker feeling in hams and prices have been reduced 2 cents per pound, owing to the somewhat limited demand and more liberal offerings. It is expected however, that the demand will pick up very shortly and that there will be a brisk movement with a stronger feeling in the market. The market in England for Canadian bacon, shows a stronger tone with an advance in price which has given a firmer feeling to the local market and it seems evident that an advance is due.

INDIA'S RICE CROP GAINS

The final general memorandum on the rice crop of 1921-22, issued by the Department of Statistics of the Government of India, the latter part of February, 1922, reports the total area planted to rice as 1,234,000 acres, or 3 per cent. more than last year, and the total production as 32,994,000 tons, or 19 per cent. over the previous year, according to a cablegram to the Department of Commerce from Consul General Weddell at Calcutta. This confirms the forecast made by the Far Eastern Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, published in Commerce Reports of December 12, 1921, to the effect that it was probable that the final forecast would report 81,000,000 acres and a yield of 33,000,000 tons, which estimate was derived from the information given in the first forecast of the Government of India, issued October 20, 1921, which gave the area as 74,132,000 acres, but contained no forecast of the probable yield.

Even Unto Death

"Yes," said the specialist, as he stood at the bedside of the sick grocer, "I can cure you."

"What will it cost?" asked the sick man faintly.

"Ninety-five dollars."

"You'll have to shade your price a little," replied the patient. "I have a better bid from the undertaker."

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, May 10.—Live hog prices held strong during the week with values up slightly. A steady market is looked for during the balance of the week. Cattle, sheep and lambs hold steady. In dressed meats the only change is in pork cuts which are advanced one half cent per pound. Although the tone of the butter market is considered an easy one, quotations show little change on account of the limited supply at the present time. Production is likely to be increased in a few weeks, and lower prices are looked for. The egg market is fairly steady. Lard and shortening show little change other than a firmness in the latter with certain packers who were quoting a lower price a week ago, now advanced to the general level. Cooked hams are firmer with prices higher in certain quarters. Fresh lake fish are lower while poultry continues quiet.

BUTTER HAS EASY TONE

Toronto.

BUTTER.—Supplies are none too plentiful. The quantity arriving is just about sufficient to meet the demand and to keep market conditions about steady. Dealers, however, are only buying in quantities to cover present requirements claiming that with the heavier production in the next few weeks that values are likely to recede. Best grades of creamery prints are bringing 37c. to 39c.

STRONG HOG MARKET

Toronto

FRESH MEATS.—Live hogs continued with a strong tone during the week and the majority of sales were made on a basis of a 25c. advance. The fed and watered basis being $13.50 to $13.75. The market looks steady for the balance of this week, but that will depend largely upon receipts. In the cattle section at the Union Stock Yards prices held steady under receipts that were just enough to fill requirements. In dressed meats, all pork cuts are advanced ½c. per lb. Other pressed meats are unchanged.

Double Results From Advertisements

Very often one sees newspaper advertisements clipped out and pasted on the window. These ads attract considerable attention and the dealer receives double value for his newspaper investment. An improvement over the usual method was recently noticed in a grocery store. A metal frame was suspended by an almost invisible wire from the ceiling of the window, bringing it near the glass and about level with the eye of the person passing on the street. The frame contained not only the advertisement, but this was mounted on a sheet of cardboard several inches larger each way. A red line surrounded the ad, and above in plain neat letters were the words: "To-day's Store News."

Accident is Used As a Selling Point

A runaway horse crashed through the large plate glass window in a grocery store. This window was trimmed with green vegetables and the enterprising manager hung a card in the window reading: "Our display of fresh greens looked so tempting he couldn't help it."

HAIL PROHIBITION!

Prohibition should be thanked for a real reform. A reform which has resulted in a vast increase in the amount of really good beer produced.

Beer, such as people are now making for themselves, is so good, and so much purer and better than the old commercial stuff, that millions who never cared for it before are now drinking it—greatly to their own benefit.

Formerly you had to walk a mile to get a really good glass of beer or ale.

Now you can have the very best in your own home. Home-brewed beer or ale is purer and more wholesome than anything that could be bought formerly. The dealer who gives his customers what they want and the best products obtainable is rewarded with a firmly established business and good profits.

If your customer asks for a pure, unadulterated, high-power malt, and fresh imported hops, sell him "Cream of Malt."

Influence of the Business Papers

The value of the business press was once more emphasized at the annual convention of the Canadian National Newspapers Association held recently. In an address to the members in attendance, Ontario's Lieutenant Governor, Col. Henry Cockshutt, speaking from his own experience as a successful business man, said:

"I believe that the influence of the business press will be one of the most important factors in re-establishing business conditions in Canada on a safe and sane basis. I make a distinction between the business newspapers and the daily press because I believe that your papers—the business newspapers of Canada—exert a greater influence than the daily press because of the greater confidence your readers have in them. People read the daily newspapers to keep abreast of the general news of the day. They are interested in what is happening around them and they read to satisfy their desire for excitement or interest or entertainment. What they read in the daily newspapers to-day is forgotten tomorrow.

"But this is not the case with the business newspaper. Business men need the service of these papers in the conduct of their every day business life. I have noted that they usually have a business paper or two in their pocket when they go home Saturday night. I do not say that they read them on Sunday, that I do not know, but I do know that they study them carefully, and that a great number of your readers, will come to their business on Monday with some clipping from your paper in their pockets. They will say to their associates, 'This is the situation, I can show it to you in this clipping.' For that reason, gentlemen, I say that yours is the greater obligation, because you are leaders, because you are helping to build up the business fabric of the country."

PASS IT ON

Do you pass your copy of Canadian Grocer on to your clerks and to your new friends in the trade?

Canadian Grocer will take them through the stores of dozens of successful merchants every week.

Markets, sales, advertising windows, the successful methods of hundreds of merchants reported for them.

Can you think of a more broadening influence and a more educative medium in which to get them interested.

The more your clerks know about the grocery business the more value they will be to you.

Pass Canadian Grocer on and if they want to subscribe, the price is $4.00 a year—(less than eight cents a week). Address

PERSIAN DATE OUTLOOK BRIGHT

"Considerable interest is being taken in bulk Persian dates," says Hills Bros. Co., New York. "The stock of Khadrawis in England was exhausted early in the year and owing to the demand from London stocks have been very much reduced and will probably be cleaned out within the next sixty days. Fards are going steadily into consumption. The latest reports from Basrah are to the effect that the coming crop of Persians is making satisfactory progress and everything looks favorable for the production of a large crop of fine quality."

This being a Biscuit Advertisement

We are going to say some nice things about our Molly'O Biscuit.

You'd do the same if you were in our place and we wouldn't blame you for Telfer Molly'O Biscuit is now famous in the biscuit world.

It was imitated but the progressive Grocer said "No, I will handle the original only."

There is now a steady demand for Molly'O Biscuits.

Are you still handling Molly'O and the rest of TELFER high grade English style Biscuits?

Remember—your customer will tell her friends about our lines and they have distinctive designs.

That's where you come in.

"Tout Passe"

(Everything Changes)

THE FRENCH have a proverb which begins "Tout passe" (Everything changes). This contains the germ of an idea which should be good medicine for the business man who is inclined at the present time when trade is quiet to rest on his oars and delay making preparations for the busy period until that period actually arrives.

Everything in this world is continually changing. Some philosophers even tell us that there is no present; there is only the past and the future; the past is gone and to-morrow, even the next hour, the next minute, are in the future. And in the future only one thing is certain, that is, change.

So conservative is human nature that the great majority instinctively assume that whatever conditions exist at the moment must continue to exist for some time to come. The direct contrary is, of course, the case. The philosopher knows that whatever else may happen one thing is certain, viz., whatever is, is not going to continue.

Why is it that only the few can make money in stock exchange speculation? Because the ordinary man waits until prosperous times appear to him to have become established and to have become a permanent institution before he buys. And in most cases he then finds he has bought at the top of the market. On the other hand, when things are at their lowest and he could buy with a prospect or almost a certainty of profit, everything appears to him black and he cannot see any likelihood of change. The shrewd operator, however, knows that when things look at their worst it is time for them to mend. This is the time he chooses for buying and when everything is booming is the time he picks for selling.

We may not be on the eve of a big boom, but one thing is certain, things are not going to remain as they are for long.

Now is the time when shrewd and far-seeing men are preparing for prosperous times. They are making preparations so that opportunity may not take them unawares. They see that now is the time to cultivate trade and make their products known so that when the tide of prosperity is on the flow they may be in a position to take advantage of it and reap the benefit of their foresight.

If anyone tells you we are in for several years of business depression, take heart and be assured that this is a sign we must be nearing better times.

In the spring of 1918 many well-informed men predicted three further years of war. The war ended that autumn.

In 1920 many business men spoke of three or four more years of prosperity. The prosperity wave was even then on its ebb.

These men like the great majority did not realize that everything changes. Are you going to place yourselves among their number, or are you going to rank among the minority and bear in mind the proverb—Tout passe?

45 Salesmen

Such as these are bringing to merchants all over Canada the opportunity of increasing business and profits through

DAYTON SCALES

Space prohibits the inclusion of our full sales staff on this page, but those whose photographs are shown herewith are typical of our Dominion-wide organization.
We felt that merchants would be interested in our Salesman's Pledge, which is taken when he is allotted a territory. Here it is:

Our Salesman's Pledge

1. To tell the Truth, and nothing but the Truth.
2. To respect his competitors as he would be respected himself.
3. To sell the merchant what will best fit his requirements.
4. To treat all merchants in his territory exactly alike.
5. To see that each merchant has real service.
6. To respect the Government Inspector, his rulings and judgment.
7. To adhere to the Company's policy of one price to all.
8. To make an honest and equitable allowance for any machine exchanged.
9. To carry no other lines and represent no other company.
10. To have no understandings with the merchant except it be embodied in the order which the merchant signs.
11. To remit promptly to the Company all collections received.
12. To render the Company daily reports of each visit made.
13. To see that each customer in his territory gets a square deal.
14. To be clean mentally, morally, physically, commercially and socially, and to stay clean.

HAIL PROHIBITION!

Prohibition should be thanked for a real reform. A reform which has resulted in a vast increase in the amount of really good beer produced.

Beer, such as people are now making for themselves, is so good, and so much purer and better than the old commercial stuff, that millions who never cared for it before are now drinking it—greatly to their own benefit.

Formerly you had to walk a mile to get a really good glass of beer or ale.

Now you can have the very best in your own home. Home-brewed beer or ale is purer and more wholesome than anything that could be bought formerly. The dealer who gives his customers what they want and the best products obtainable is rewarded with a firmly established business and good profits.

If your customer asks for a pure, unadulterated, high-power malt, and fresh imported hops, sell him "Cream of Malt."

How He Got His Man

A merchant in Montreal wanted a man to manage his store. He advertised in the daily papers and secured many replies. He also used an announcement in the Want Ad. page of CANADIAN GROCER and several replies were received. He chose his man from the latter. In fact, the only men who at all suited his purpose, were those who applied through this paper.

CANADIAN GROCER reaches business men in the trade. There are good men scattered all over Canada who read the CANADIAN GROCER and who are interested in such a proposition.

To get the man you want; to secure a position; a partner, to sell some used equipment; to buy second-hand equipment, use the Want Ad page of CANADIAN GROCER. It gets results.

CANADIAN GROCER

Vol. XXXVI. TORONTO, MAY 19, 1922 No. 20

Travellers on Commission are Cutting

Commission System of Paying Travellers, Declares Toronto Wholesaler, is Responsible for Much of the Present Day Confusion and Lack of Confidence in Wholesalers' Quotations—Sugar is Actually Selling Much Below Current List Price.

TORONTO, May 17.—For several weeks past there has been a great deal of price cutting among the wholesale trade, particularly on sugar. It is causing much confusion and lack of confidence. Although the refiners' list price delivered in Toronto is $6.24, wholesalers are entirely ignoring the list and are quoting considerably below it. Wholesale quotations show quite a spread, ranging from $5.85 to $6.10 per cwt.

"Who upset the sugar cart?" is a question that each wholesaler is asking and although every one on the street is participating in the price cutting, no one appears to be willing to take the blame for starting the game.

Commission System to Blame

One wholesaler claims it is the direct result of the "commission system" now in use by some of the wholesalers. This wholesaler points out that these "commission travellers" work on a basis of sixty and forty per cent. That is, the house gets sixty per cent. of the profit on their sales and the traveller gets forty per cent. The result of this system is, claims this wholesaler, that some of these travellers, becoming very anxious to get business, are inclined to cut prices and deduct the difference from their own share of the profits.

It is rumored also that there is considerable "back door cutting," that secret discounts are being made on lines where list prices are supposedly being adhered to rigidly. Another wholesaler stated to a representative of Canadian Grocer that the other day he received a 'phone message from a customer inquiring the price of soap, sugar and a certain brand of breakfast food. This wholesaler stated that list prices—with the exception of sugar—on these goods were supposed to be maintained, and yet when he gave the correct prices to the retailer he refused to buy because the "prices were too high."

Should Keep One's Word

"Business has got into a serious state when a business man's word cannot be accepted," said this wholesaler. "If we agree with a manufacturer to sell his products at a certain price, then we should all adhere strictly to it. If we cannot do that then I think we have no right to be in business."

"What is your opinion of 'commission travellers'?" asked the interviewer.

"I have no fault to find with the system," replied the wholesaler. "But I have reason to believe that some travellers are taking advantage of it, and by so doing are injuring the house they represent. Some of these travellers, unknown to the house, are offering a discount to induce retailers to buy. They will cut prices on lines that wholesalers have agreed to maintain. The cut of course does not appear on the order sheet, but the traveller takes it out of his own discount or share of the profit. It is these secret rebates that is the cause of so much distrust and unrest among the wholesale trade at the present time."

RETAILER MUST LOOK AROUND

"Price cutting as it exists to-day, puts the retailer in the position of having to shop around a bit, before making extensive purchases," a Toronto retail grocer remarked one day this week, when discussing prices with a representative of Canadian Grocer. "The wholesalers," he continued, "have brought this about, and competition to-day is such that I think I would be unwise not to buy where I can get the best price. If wholesalers want to sell under list prices it is up to them. Chain stores, and the cash and carry stores are getting special concessions, and special prices in their buying. Why should I not get the same? I am in business to get the best prices that I can possibly get. I feel sure I am entitled to as low quotations as the 'chains' and similar places.

Travellers Knock Prices Down

"Travellers are a big factor in the encouragement of this price cutting business. Many of them are now working on a commission basis. Rather than lose an order they reduce their original quotation, taking less commission themselves. For instance the present quotation on a certain breakfast food is $4.30 per case. The chain cash and carry store up the street is quoting this line at two packages for 25 cents. At $4.30 per case there would be no profit in this line at two for a quarter. Consequently they must be getting a special price on it, or else they are giving it away, which is not likely. I am buying this breakfast food at $4 per case. While I am charging more for it than the chains, yet I am told that I sell more than they do. On the other hand why should a customer pay me 14 cents a package when she can buy two of them for 25 cents. It is a case of 'baiting' around these days to get the best price from the grocer's standpoint, but it can be got.

"A traveller came in here this morning and quoted sugar at $6 per cwt. That was his firm's price, the traveller insisted, and he did not intend to quote anything lower. I did not buy any because I have been buying my sugar stocks at $5.80 per cwt. The list price however is $6.24.

"Where is all this cutting and slashing of prices going to end?" asked this merchant. "Unless the individual grocer, in his own interests, sees to it that he gets as good prices as the chain stores he cannot survive."

Is Paying List Price

Another service grocer farther down the street, stated that for this particular breakfast food he was paying the list price of $4.30. He was selling it at 15 cents per package, and declared that he would not sell it for a cent less. He does a credit business largely, chiefly over the telephone, and according to his experience, the presence of a chain cash and carry store, a few doors away, did not present any serious competition. In fact he had not noticed any difference as far as his turnover was concerned.

Will Tea Lose Its Import Tax?

An Ottawa Report Says That Removal of Duty Will Be One Feature of Fielding's Budget—But Many Tea Men Claim Government Needs the Revenue and That There is More Likelihood of an Increase—What About Coffee and Jam?

OTTAWA, May 17, (Special)—Hon. W. S. Fielding Minister of Finance, has declared that he will bring down the 1922 budget on Tuesday next, May 23. We will have a holiday next day to think it over.

What the budget will likely contain is occupying the minds of a good many Canadian business men to-day and those interested in food stuffs—manufacturers wholesalers and retailers—are looking forward with eagerness or anxiety, depending on how the budget may affect them.

There is a persistent report about the capital that the duty will be removed from tea. This now amounts to from 7 to 10 cents per lb. Those who think they know something about it make the point that the removal of the duty on tea would not cause much of a controversy. Tea is not produced in this country so there are no domestic interests to consider. The only people it would affect are those who have large stocks on hand upon which the duty was paid. Even then there is a possibility of a draw-back on the duty paid on these stocks.

Revenue From Tea $4,000,000

Then again it is argued that the Government can point out that tea is a necessity in this country, that it is the beverage of the poor man and it ought not to be taxed. In other words, the change would be a popular one and as the revenue received amounts to only approximately $4,000,000, a mere bagatelle when total revenue is considered—the reason is all the more for assuming that the government will either cut the tariff on tea or eliminate it entirely.

It is further pointed out that prior to the election the Liberals criticised more or less severely the duties on necessities of life so that now they must do something to justify their criticism of the previous administration. They cannot of course overlook the fact that revenue is still a most serious requirement, and if the duty is taken off any number of products, some method must be worked out to make this revenue up some other way.

And What About Coffee?

If the duty comes off tea what about coffee? While coffee is not so much a national drink in Canada as tea, yet it is not produced here and it is just a possibility that it too may be considered by the Finance Minister so far as removal of duty or part of it is concerned.

Tea Prices Exceedingly Firm

It is generally understood that tea prices in Canada should be higher if based entirely on import quotations. Tea packers, of course, are more or less loth to increase their prices unless absolutely compelled to do so, because in months to come there may be reasons for reductions and this would necessitate another change and the entailing of considerable loss. If therefore the duty should come off it is argued that packers might be able to retain their present prices as they could import from 7 to 10 cents per lb. less. If the duty should remain the trade could be expected to look for an increase in tea and this would not be very palatable to the consumer.

There has been a reduction in the English duty on tea by four pence a lb., so that our government will have a precedent if they decide to take the duty off here.

The Tariff on Jams

Not long ago there was a deputation of jam manufacturers in Ottawa interviewing the Finance Minister, with a view to having the duty on jam retained or increased. Their argument was that they have to pay a heavy duty on sugar used in the manufacture of jams in Canada, whereas outside manufacturers in most countries secure a rebate on sugar they use for jam for export business. It was felt at the time that this argument had a good deal of effect with the Finance Minister, and the lowering of the duty here, though possible, is not anticipated. But you never can tell.

The government will likely go slow in reducing the tariff on products that are produced or made in Canada but the impression is fairly general that on those produced outside of Canada and which are considered necessities of life may be subject to the pruning knife.

TEA MEN THINK DIFFERENT

Toronto, (Special)—In discussing the above with Toronto tea men one or two thought the duty might be removed but the majority say the necessity for revenue will make the Finance Minister think twice before wiping it off the slate. In fact one claimed if any change were made it would be in an upward direction.

MONTREAL DEALERS DOUBTFUL

Montreal, (Special)—There is much speculation as to what effect the new government's budget, which will be made known on the day of the 23rd, will have upon the tea market. In fact there are conjectures in connection with all imported lines and it has become an excuse for delaying many business transactions and has generally quieted the market. In connection with teas the local tea men are hesitant about saying anything with regard to the budget since, as one man said, "Any man is a fool to make any predictions about what the budget will do in connection with taxation. Anybody can make a guess but very few have any grounds on which to base their supposition."

Tea Tax Removed?

The manager of one of the local tea packing companies said to Canadian Grocer representative, "We know little about what change the Finance Minister contemplates. We only know that the present government favored a lower tariff and while we certainly do not expect any radical changes it is likely that something will be done to substantiate the platform. Tea is a product which is used by almost every family in the country and one on which any reduction in taxation would be most noticeable and appreciated. That alone is the only ground on which we can prophesy a reduction in tea taxation. The present tax on tea amounts to from 7 and 10 cents per lb. and since it has been taken up in the initial cost, the people of Canada have practically forgotten that it exists. Approximately 40,000,000 lbs. of tea are consumed in Canada every year and with a tax of 8 cents per lb. nets the government $3,200,000 a year, roughly. While this is small in comparison with other revenues it is certainly not to be disregarded or thrown away. Yet if there is to be a sacrifice, on the part of the government, it is reasonable to suppose that it will come in a line which would meet with the general approval of all the voters in Canada. Still, on the other hand, the government needs the money and if the $3,200,000 is to be taken off tea it is almost certain to be put on in some other form."

Another tea packer stated that while he did not even nourish the hope that the tax would be taken off, he did not feel that should it come to pass it would materially reduce the price of teas since present local prices were not as high as primary markets warranted and still prices were likely to go higher. When told that there were rumors with regard to reduction in the tax on tea this packer said, "I believe that in this case the wish is the father of the thought."

Parliament Votes in Favor of Oleo

Spirited Debate in the Dominion House is Followed by Defeat of Resolution Asking That Manufacture and Sale of Margarine be Prohibited in Canada—Majority in Favor is 26

OTTAWA, May 17—(Special)—The Dominion Parliament has voted on the margarine question by a majority of 26. The government decided in favor of oleomargarine, thus expressing its opposition to any prohibition of its manufacture and sale in Canada. It now remains for the House to make permanent the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine after September first next. It is likely that action along these lines will follow. The vote in favor of oleomargarine was 83 to 57.

Fielding Champions Oleo

Hon. W. S. Fielding and Hon. W. R. Motherwell took absolutely opposite lines. Mr. Fielding, with all his usual enthusiasm, landed right in to the centre of his colleague's argument and fought his way out on all four sides. Mr. Motherwell contended that there was as much right to limit what a man should eat, as to what he should drink, and apparently thought margarine one of the things a Canadian should not eat.

Mr. Fielding, in reply, said most people regarded whiskey as a poison, and, therefore, did not want it consumed but nobody ever thought of margarine as anything but a wholesome food and therefore, the argument of the Minister of Agriculture did not stand up. Hon. T. A. Crerar also opposed the prohibition of oleo.

J. L. Brown (Lisgar), one of the Progressives, was also opposed, declaring that protection of even this kind was not the doctrine of the party, and that the farmer must compete as they expected others to do. Most city members of all parties endorsed the attitude of Mr. Brown and his party. The dissenters were found among the Eastern farmers and dairymen of the old parties. Their cry was for the protection of the old dairy cow against the "packing companies," who made most of the margarine.

Hon. W. S. Fielding (Minister of Finance) speaking to the debate said, as reported in Hansard:

"Mr. Speaker, the resolution before the House deals with oleomargarine, not with manufactured butter, and I propose to confine my attention to the resolution.

"Once upon a time there was in this House a Liberal member who was a strong free-trader, representing an agricultural constituency. One day somebody suggested by resolution that encouragement should be given to the raising of hogs. My friend, the Liberal member, strongly supported the resolution, and after that he became known as the man who was a free-trader in everything except in pork. I am afraid that my good friend the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell) has disclosed himself to be a free-trader in everything except in butter. In most matters, especially those relating to agriculture, I defer to the views of my friend and colleague the Minister of Agriculture, for I know he is master of the subject, while I know but little about it. If I thought that the question at issue was that of the dairying industry I should not speak at all. But I do not think that is the question. I am obliged to follow in this matter not the leadership of my colleague the Minister of Agriculture, but the leadership of the ex-Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Tolmie), who, I say, made a speech to-day which, in my judgment, has not been and cannot be answered. If I thought the people of Canada for the most part were fools; if I thought they were lacking in intelligence; if I thought they were incapable of judging for themselves of what they wanted and where they should get it; if I thought they needed that tender guardianship which we provide for children and Indians and lunatics—why, in that case I would vote for the resolution; because this resolution simply says that the people of Canada are not to be trusted to decide for themselves whether or not they will buy a commodity which the whole world accepts.

"Canada is the only country in the world, so far as I know—the only country claiming to be civilized—which does not allow the use of oleomargarine. When I came into the government more than a quarter of a century ago there was no question about oleomargarine. It was on the prohibited list and there it remained until quite recently, during the war. In all that time nobody ever thought anything about oleomargarine, because so long as good butter could be obtained at a reasonable price, nobody wanted oleomargarine. And that is the condition to-day; the people of Canada will not buy oleomargarine so long as they can get butter at a fair price. If there has been a development of the oleomargarine business it simply has been because a very considerable percentage of our people have not the means to buy butter and they have bought oleomargarine rather than not have anything at all.

"The only question here is this: Is this a commodity which can properly be dealt with; is it wholesome and safe and clean. The Minister of Agriculture says: 'If you are going to admit the right on the part of the people to eat oleomargarine, you must logically admit their right to drink whiskey.' But if my hon. friend had had a good case he would not have used that argument, because there is all the difference in the world.

I think my hon. friend is one of those who regard whiskey not only as unwholesome, but as a poison. At all events, according to him, the great majority of the people condemn whiskey because it is unwholesome, because it is wicked to drink it, because it is damaging, morally, physically and every other way. Will my hon. friend say the same of oleomargarine? If he cannot do so, then where is the analogy? It goes to pieces.

"Do not forget that this is a commodity which the whole world uses. It is not a poison; it is not unwholesome. Perhaps in the early days of oleomargarine it was a cheap and nasty production, and there may have been good reason for putting it on the prohibited list. But to-day the conditions are different. My hon. friend himself admits that oleomargarine is manufactured under severe restriction and inspection which guarantees it cleanliness and its production under sanitary conditions.

"I do not think there is a sound argument used from beginning to end against oleomargarine. I deny that there is competition between butter and oleomargarine. They are two distinct products, and if you provide that the oleomargarine shall be distinctly marked and labelled—and the ex-Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Tolmie) showed us a sample to-day plainly marked, plainly labelled—there is no chance in the world of any one being imposed upon by getting oleomargarine in the shape of butter, unless he is very dull and wants to be imposed upon. Every shop that sells oleomargarine has to sell it labelled as such."

Hon. T. A. Crerar (Marquette) said: "The subject matter of the resolution under consideration by the House this afternoon and evening is not by any means a new one. Indeed, it is a hardy annual that has appeared every session since I came to the House five years ago; and I agree entirely with the view expressed by the member for South Waterloo (Mr. Euler) this afternoon when he said that he hoped we should be able on the present occasion to make a final disposition of it. I have a particular interest in this matter, Sir, because of the fact that the first job I had after I became Minister of Agriculture in 1917 was to draft the regulations—assisted, of course, by expert men in the department — covering the sale and manufacture in, and the importation into Canada, of oleomargarine. These regulations were passed at that time under the War Measures Act for the rea-

"Bigger, Better Business Lies Ahead"

President Wm. Robertson of Confectionery, Biscuit and Chocolate Industries, in His Address That Was Read in His Absence, Before the Annual Convention Last Week, Believes That the Turn Has Been Made Towards Better Things

By H. H. WEBB, Associate Editor, Canadian Grocer, Montreal

MONTREAL, May 12—The fourth annual convention of the Confectionery, Biscuit and Chocolate Industries of Canada was opened in the auditorium of the Ritz Carleton Hotel here on Tuesday morning, May 9th. Secretary C. J. Bodley opened the proceedings reading a telegram from the president William Robertson of Robertson Bros. Toronto, expressing his regrets that he had been called to England, sooner than he had expected and was unable to attend the convention. Mr. Robertson also extended his best wishes for a most profitable convention. A. D. Ganong of Ganong's Ltd., St. Stephen, N. B., was voted to the chair. Mr. Ganong, after expressing his regrets that Mr. Robertson could not be present, called upon the members of the convention to take an active interest in this year's gathering and endeavor to get the most out of the discussions for the good of all. "Under the present conditions," he said, "it is absolutely essential that we get together and stand together so that by understanding the problems of the industry as a whole we may benefit individually."

..."I believe strongly in trade papers," said G. V. Mathews of Huylers, Limited, Toronto, in his address to the confectioners in Montreal this week. "I believe that we all can benefit by reading them from cover to cover both editorials and advertising. There are suggestions there that will help even the best of us. The editors and advertising men make a specialty of studying trade conditions and the remedies for the little troubles that face us all. I have been educated to it by experience and I read every trade paper that comes to my desk. I even read the humorous page which some of them contain for they chase away the blues and brighten up a day that has begun with everything looking dark and disappointing."

President's Report

D. E. McVannell then read the president's report which Mr. Robertson had mailed to the secretary. "The past year has been a difficult one with us," Mr. Robertson pointed out. "Markets have changed. Buying has been done with some difficulty. Prices have fluctuated and price cutting has hurt the business. But the year has not been without its bright points. I can safely say that new markets, new opportunities have shown themselves with marked signs of development and I am optimistic enough to say that I believe that the corner has been reached and we are now marking the turn toward better things. We are on the swing upwards and with eager eyes we watch the signs of prosperity spreading over our country. Much depends on the crops in the west. It is early yet for any prediction but financial conditions show a mend. Already we have too many railways in Canada, but note some liquidation of the indebtedness of that part of Canada, and that is a splendid sign. A good crop will mean everything to Canada this year.

"Now with a united front our industry should go forward into this year with a determination to make the very best of every opportunity. Bigger and better business lies ahead and no better means of obtaining it can I see than by the stimulation and co-operation that comes through a convention such as we have now opened for its fourth year."

Welcome to Montreal

J. C. Copping, Montreal manager of the Christie Brown Biscuit Co., welcomed the convention to Montreal on behalf of the members of the association in this city. In expressing his welcome, he brought a laugh to the assembly by saying, " Many visitors look at a convention held in this province in an al-

Favor Higher Duty on Salted Peanuts

Confectionery, Biscuit and Chocolate Industries Approve of Higher Tariff in Regard to Salted Peanuts and Peanut Butter Coming Into Canada—Discuss the Matter of a "Biscuit Day" as well as a Candy Day.

THE second day of the Confectionery, Biscuit and Chocolate Industries, Convention was opened with the report of the nominating committee and the subsequent election of officers by an unanimous vote. The new president H. N. Cowan, president of Cowan's Limited, Toronto, then took the chair with E. Littler, managing director of the Lowney Company of Montreal, the new vice-president, and F. McCormick of the McCormick Biscuit Company, second vice-president, beside him. Collin Currin was re-elected treasurer. H. M. Challenger of Wm. Neilson Co., Ltd., Toronto, gave the first address of the morning on "Organization of Candy Factories." Mr. Challenger pointed out how economy may be effected by the arrangement and management of a candy factory and gave some hints as to the management of an up-to-date plant.

U. S. A. Industry Hard Hit

The next address was given by Clyde Murray, vice-president of Stevenson & Co., New York on "Candy Costing." Mr. Murray began his address by reviewing conditions in the United States and pointing out that price cutting and lack of knowledge of actual costs had hurt the candy business badly in the United States. He gave a number of examples where manufacturers were selling their products below cost, and trying to average up the loss on other lines. He also spoke of the failures of some manufacturers to study the retail market and know just why certain of their products are not moving. He strongly recommended that any such dead lines be cut from the market and all energy put on the lines that show life. Much interest in Mr. Murray's address was evident and after he had concluded, a number of the delegates asked permission to question him on certain details of candy costing.

In the afternoon the delegates of the Convention were guests of the Montreal Harbor Commissioners on a trip by boat around the harbor and down the river as far as the Maisonneuve wharf.

In the evening Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, addressed the Convention, assembled at the banquet table in the restaurant room of the Hotel.

A moving picture was presented by the California Raisin Growers' Association which showed the cultivation and packing of raisins in the Fresno Valley. After this the committee on resolutions made its report and recommended that the convention should act upon nine different suggestions of the committee. Some of the most important were, that the convention support the efforts of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in their tariff policy with regard to peanuts and peanut products, and that a letter to the tariff department of that association be sent emphasizing the need of a higher duty on salted peanuts and peanut butter coming into Canada, that the financing of Candy Day be left to the executive committee which would make a report through the secretary to the Convention on suggestion for the next Candy Day and a statement of the cost and assessment for each member. Thirdly, that the secretary be instructed to send a marconigram to the past president, Wm. Robertson, thanking him for his address and telling him of the success of the convention and that the convention discussed the matter of adopting a "Biscuit Day" for the spreading of propaganda on biscuits to stimulate their use. The other items dealt with the levying of fees upon members according to the number of employees in the service of each.

Trade Papers Help Manufacturers

D. E. McVannell, editor of "Candy," told the convention how in many ways the trade papers help the manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in any branch of trade. He quoted instances of how merchants had been helped in increasing their turnover by trade paper suggestions, of retailers who had redecorated and rearranged their stores as a result of trade paper editorials and pictures.

Must Develop Canada's Export Trade

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Tells the Convention of the Confectionery, Biscuit and Chocolate Industries That the Future of This Country Depends Upon the Development of Its Export Trade

By Staff Correspondent, Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL, May 12.—In his address at the banquet of the Confectionery, Biscuit and Chocolate Industries' Convention on the second evening in the banquet hall of the Ritz, Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, told the members that lopsided policies must be done away with. A broad and sound policy that will link city and country together must be followed to bring about a return of prosperity to the Dominion.

"I am very much impressed with the atmosphere of this gathering," he continued. "I believe it is not only an interprovincial assembly but international as well. During the past years we have heard much favorable comment upon the Province of Quebec both from our neighbors on the South as well as our many good friends in Toronto. All appreciate the spirit of liberty that prevails in this good old province which I hope will always continue to be the soundest and sanest province in the Dominion. I do not know whether the next annual convention will meet in Montreal, but I suppose if you can have as much fun in Toronto as here it would be well to alternate between the two. You are the judges in this respect.

"As an old miller, myself, I am somewhat familiar with your industry. It is something akin to the flour business. A good package will sell any material wheres an ugly and clumsy package will bring ruin and stagnation to the best qualities. It is a good thing to be alert in this connection and I notice that your business fairly excels in this department.

Why Has it Fallen Off?

"But there are a few things I would like to point out to you. The biscuit business in this country as well as the candy business has fallen off considerably, and as Minister of Trade and Commerce it is my business to promote industry and I am very much interested in what you sell abroad.

"Your industry last year paid out something like $10,000,000 in wages and has, therefore, rendered a great national service to the country. But how does it come that you have lost your export market abroad? I believe that a considerable amount of foreign business has been lost since 1920. I do not know whether the labor costs in Canada are too high or not, and I do not know whether the foreign markets have been up to the mark. The fish business, I am told, was jeopardised by the fish men holding their commodity too long, and now I would like to know how you are losing the export trade of your industry.

"In 1920 you exported to the United Kingdom $1,500,000. In 1921 a drop of $35,000 was noticed, a considerable reduction where it should increase.

"Some people claim that this business was a war business, but it was nothing of the kind. The war had ended three years previously and I submit to you Canadians that we should be able to compete and export these kinds of goods with any country in the world. It is not the tariff question that has caused the decline in the exports. The tariff was not interfered with. These are plain facts and you business men will understand that the future and hope of this great country of ours depends upon the development of our export trade. And not only does the export business look a little wrong but there is also noticed a drastic change in the import business.

Canada's Candy Imports

"In 1920 we imported $413,000 worth of candy from the United Kingdom. In 1921 an increase equal to $31,000 was noticed in this figure. I am bringing these facts to your mind in the hope that you will look into them. Not only have you lost your export business to the United Kingdom but you are allowing the United Kingdom to come in on your own business at home.

"The country that makes progress and develops, is the country that exports goods, and if Canada is to become a greater country we must make more goods, and compete with other countries in every market of the world.

"The question is, can Canada compete with other countries and pay war wages four years after the war has ended? Would it not be better for a reasonable wage to exist and all work, than for a few to receive high pay? Idle factory hands cannot buy butter and cheese and keep the wheels of industry going round. They only breed discontent and are of no value to the country, and the sooner we set theory aside and get down to business the better for the people of Canada and the better for the country.

"If we are to have growth in the country it will never come about by a lopsided policy. What use is it for the industrial workers of the city to produce goods if there is no one to buy them? The country and city are linked up together and we must have a policy for all that will cement the common ties of both and bring about a period of renewed prosperity.

Immigration Problems

"With regard to immigration and the railways. Sometimes we hear that we have too many railways in Canada, but your forefathers and mine who came to this country and lived and worked in the bush and swamp did not complain of too many lines. All that we require in Canada at the present time is courage and co-operation in and between all parts, and if we have sufficient of these requirements the future will be assured. I have great confidence in Canada, in its future progress and development, and with such men as I see around me, men of courage and zeal, there can be very little left to doubt. Let all work together in harmony for the common good of all."

Due to European Situation

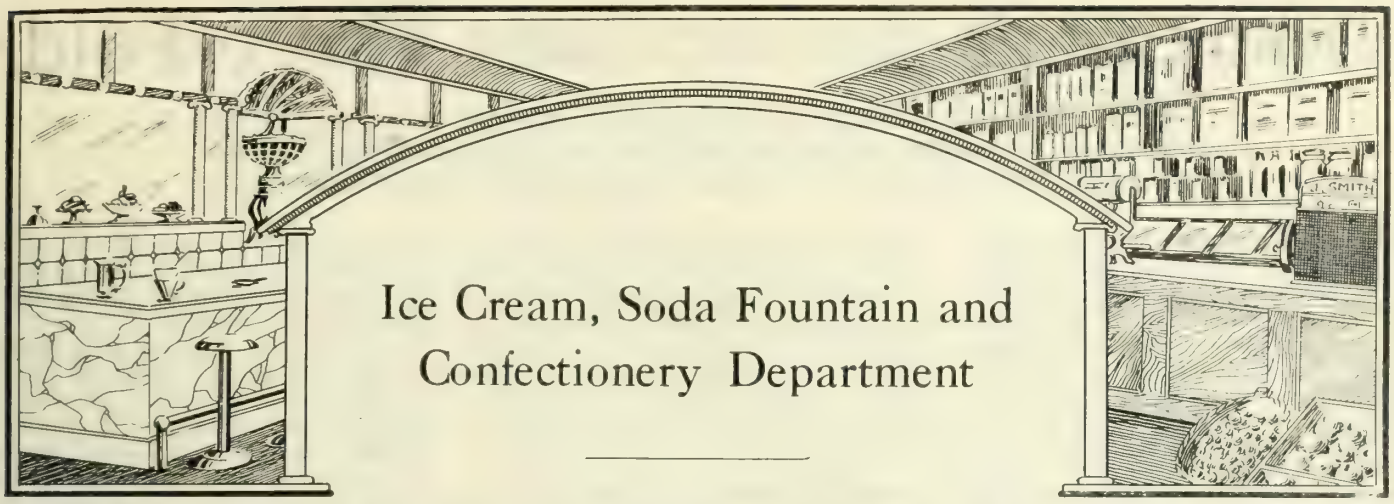
C. J. Bodley in a brief reply to the remarks of the Minister of Trade and Commerce explained the decline in the candy export trade. He declared it was entirely due to the situation which prevailed in Europe at the end of the war or shortly after.

"In 1919," he said, "buyers from Great Britain and the continent came in large numbers to Canada and purchased sugar and confectioneries at any price. Consequently the amount shipped during that year was very heavy. In fact the ports on the other side were not able to handle it all. Then followed the crash in the exchange. Prices went down rapidly and Canada was out of the market because European countries could not afford to buy. As far as the reputation of Canadian chocolates is concerned, they are able to compete with the best of the world."

A disadvantage which Canadian shippers experience, the speaker declared, is that the shipping rate from Great Britain to Canada was five times as cheap as from Canada to Great Britain. "There is no reason for this and with a Canadian merchant marine it is to be hoped that this difficulty will be overcome."

AN ERROR CORRECTED

An error occurred in the article from Montreal, on Charles Chaput's 65th anniversary in the wholesale grocery business, which appeared in last week's issue of Canadian Grocer. Mr. Chaput's age should have read 80 instead of 88. In speaking to a Canadian Grocer representative he asked that the impression given that he now arrives at his office at eight in the morning be corrected. In the last few years he has not come down to the office until nine or a quarter past in the morning.



Finds Sale of Ice Cream a Real Money Maker

This Grocer Sells on an Average of Fifteen Gallons of Ice Cream Every Day, in Addition to 36 Bricks and Dozens of Ice Cream Bars—Using Slips in Parcels to Advertise Ice Cream

"I AM now commencing my third year ice cream season and this fact affords me a great deal of satisfaction because with dull trade of the past winter months, I look upon ice cream as the one thing to make up my average volume of sales," stated Herbert Smith, Walnut Street South, Hamilton, Ont., to a representative of Canadian Grocer. "You will notice that our store is very small. In fact, it is so small that we can scarcely move without bumping into something or excusing ourself when having to step in front of customers, but nevertheless our turnover is nearly as large as some of the bigger stores. We handle daily upward of fifteen gallons of bulk ice cream, thirty-six bricks and several dozens of the individual chocolate coated ice cream bars. I often lament the fact that the store is so small because if it were larger I would not hesitate about installing a soda fountain to serve ice cream and drinks right here in the store. I am planning to have a larger store some day and when the time comes I intend having a regular ice cream department, because there is money in it."

Advertising Slips in Parcels

Mr. Smith has already made plans for increasing his sales of ice cream during the coming summer. He has had slips printed similar to the illustration. These slips measure four by six inches in size, are printed in red ink and are inserted in all out-going mail, besides slipped under the string of parcels when being delivered or passed over the counter. "That slip will bring me more business, I am positively certain and I am going to see they are distributed in this neighborhood," said Mr. Smith.

A Real Money Maker

The number of merchants who are selling ice cream as a regular line is steadily increasing. Investigation has shown that such merchants are now looking upon ice cream as a real proposition. Nor is the profit in ice cream only to be considered. It is the value it has in stimulating sales on other lines and in this Mr. Smith is no exception. He has found that people coming into the store for the first time to purchase ice cream have eventually become regular customers for groceries as well. Another coming to buy ice cream will notice something on display and invariably will go out with another article under her arm which she had no intention of buying when first entering.

Bottled drinks is another line that Herbert Smith finds a ready sale for every summer. His sales run to several hundred cases and he has found it profitable to keep these lines well to the front during the summer months.

"Lime An Excellent And Wholesome Fruit," Says Lancet

The Lime fruit is one seldom found displayed in grocery stores in Canada, perhaps because the trade and public do not appreciate its value. In a recent issue, the "Lancet," the British medical journal, gives some interesting information about it. It says in part:

"The Lime is not so well known as the Lemon, although from the point of view of flavour it is regarded by many as being even superior to the Lemon. According to an analysis which we have recently made it would appear that the Lime, although smaller than the Lemon, yields, weight for weight, a good deal more juice. Thus, the average amount of juice pressed from a Lemon was 37.50 per cent, of its weight whereas the Lime gave 59.00 per cent. Moreover, the Lime gives more citric acid but less sugar.

"The Lime yields a 'drier' juice and contains a third of the quantity of sugar present in the Lemon. While the alkaline salts amount to practically the same in both fruits yet the phosphoric acid is greater in the Lime than in the Lemon. It is probably owing to the richness in alkaline salts that the use of Lemon Juice, as well as other fruits is helpful in some diseases of the skin and in preventing eczema. The juice of the Lime is equally valuable in this respect if indeed, in regard to dietetic points it is not superior...."

Increasing Biscuit Sales Three-Fold

These Merchants Show What Results Can be Obtained in the Way of Turnover, When Extra Effort is Applied to Selling Biscuits—An Effective Window Display and Other Methods.

THAT the sale of biscuits can be greatly stimulated when extra effort is brought to bear, was much in evidence among several of the retail grocers in Brantford, Ont., recently. These merchants having in mind the value of window displays as a sales promoter trimmed their windows with a variety of plain and fancy biscuits and during the period the displays were in the window, sales were increased in some instances three-fold while all participating in the idea, state the sales were at least doubled. But not only were the sales increased during the period of the window displays but the window trims were the means of acquiring an increased demand for biscuits ever since.

The window of T. E. Ryerson & Co., was rather unique in that it was a little out of the ordinary. In the center of the window was placed on an elevated platform, a large computing scale. A couple of smaller scales were placed, one at each end. Around the scales were arranged small fancy plates containing a certain brand of shortbread. The idea was to convey to the passers-by that these biscuits were being sold in bulk by the pound. The result in sales during the week was to dispose of fifteen tins of the shortbread. At another time Mr. Ryerson put in a smaller display for a period of one week. This display only differed from the first by showing a variety of biscuits and resulted in selling thirty-five large tins during that particular week.

Sales Increased 3 Times

Winters' Grocery arranged a display of biscuits comprising not only a variety of kinds but also of various manufacturers. The bottom of the window was covered with crepe paper and each kind of biscuit was displayed on glass plates. In the center of the window was a neat show-card calling attention to the use of biscuits. During the week this display was in the window biscuit sales in the Winters' store increased three times over the average of any week during the past year.

The Cash Bargain Grocery, through the results of a window display of various kinds of fancy biscuits passed over the counter in one week twenty-five large tins of fancy biscuits. The arrangement of this window was similar to the others mentioned above except that full tins were used more freely to make up the display.

Another line which goes very well with a display of biscuits is jam. If the merchant is fortunate in having two display windows, one could be used for jam and the other for biscuits. Such an idea was used in the Ryerson store when the Canadian Grocer representative was there. The biscuit display as mentioned above was in one window, in the other a display of jam. Through co-operating this jam display with advertising and selling talk over the counter, Ryerson cleared out in one week's time fifty cases of jam, with the exception of about one dozen packages of different sizes.

A Candy Display That Gets Results

London.—A very successful plan for boosting candy sales is being tried out in the Scandrett grocery here. The store is the centre for a large number of housewives, the majority of whom while downtown shopping drop in to leave their orders for several days ahead. Usually these women are accompanied by at least one child, very often two or three. Believing that there was a chance to sell candy to both the women and the children the firm fitted up two very attractive glass showcases. Neither case is very large, and the two are placed at the very end of the counter where they will be seen when the women first enter the store and the last thing when they are leaving.

The display is very carefully planned. Only good candies are shown and care is taken to avoid extremes in price. Nothing more than fifty cents a pound is offered for the women and nothing under five cents for the children. Soft candies, such as marshmallows have proved big sellers and that the firm made no mistake by linking up something for the children in their display for the mothers is shown by the excellent sales that are being made. Usually a woman buys half a pound or a pound of candy for herself and five or ten cents' worth for each of the children.

There is another angle to the value of the display case also. Many women send their children over for little purchases they want in a hurry and usually give them enough to buy some candy at the same time. Indirectly these children are having it unmistakably impressed in their minds that Scandrett's is their favorite store. These boys and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow and many of them will develop into permanent customers.

Frequently when a woman has finished giving her order of groceries her attention is directed to candy by a polite inquiry as to whether she wishes to look at any of the lines that have just been received. In a great many instances she has already "sold" herself on the display while on her way into the store, and it is only a question of picking out the candy to close the sale.

This week the firm has a fine window display not usually seen in grocery stores, but which sold a lot of goods. The display consisted of scrubbing brushes, brooms, pails, soaps and galvanized wash tubs. These were attractively grouped and backed up by neat show cards bearing such inscriptions, "House cleaning time is here," "We have everything you need for your spring cleaning," and so on.

The display proved a real business producer and every line shown registered an increase in turnover.

He went on further to show that if in the broad field of the trade paper, only one more package of goods more per merchant in the year is sold by the influence of the trade paper, that it would prove a big boon to business. This he pointed out, was one of the aims of an institution that has rapidly grown to a place of national recognition in Canada in the last ten years. He asked for the co-operation of the manufacturers in giving important market information to the press so that its stimulating influence upon business may be imparted to the whole trade in Canada.

C. E. Bardouf, superintendent of St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries talked on the subject of "Sugar From Soil to Sack." He outlined in a most interesting way all the processes required to extract the juice from the sugar cane, crystallize i and later to refine it, and prepare it for its many uses. This was followed by another address by A. Eade of the Canadian Credit Men's Association on "Closer Co-Operation of Credit Departments."

In the afternoon, the members paid a visit to the St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries and there saw all of the many operations required to purify and crystallize sugar. After the visit, the St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries entertained the visitors in a royal style that was particularly appreciated by those outside the province. The grin on each face that looked upon the bountiful spread, told of how much the hospitality was appreciated. The company then visited the W. Lowney plant.

The delegates to the Convention were entertained at a theatre party at the Princess Theatre Wednesday evening as the guests of the Toronto Associate Exhibitors.

A Net Profit for Year of $826 on Candy

Grocer Decided to Devote More Selling Effort to Candy, and Finds it Pays—Has Only a Small Case for Display but Some Attention to This End of the Business Proves Profitable for This Retailer

"IT IS an ill wind that blows no one some good" is an old saying, but nevertheless in the opinion of Robert Kirby, Sarnia, a true one as evidenced by an incident which happened in his store some four or five months ago.

It appears that one of the clerks was reaching for a can of tomatoes upon a high shelf, when the can was accidentally dropped and a silent salesman happened to be in the direct path of the falling tomatoes, the top of the case was badly shattered.

"I had the top of the case measured for a new glass, but when I found that it was going to cost me $150, I hesitated to spend that amount of money as the case originally, some years ago of course, did not cost me much more than that amount," stated Mr. Kirby. "We drifted along for a week or two without doing anything in the matter, but it an eyesore, that case without a roof. One day a customer was in and I happened to mention about the accident and the cost of the new piece of glass. He suggested that I have a wooden top instead of the glass. This man was a cabinet maker and he said that if I would measure the top he would fit it up with a nicely pannelled top and he thought it would answer the purpose just as well. Packages could be piled upon the top without interfering with the value of the case as a salesman, because the sides and ends were of glass. I had this done, and a very neat job it was.

For Displaying Candy

"One day about a month after the new top was no longer new," continued Mr. Kirby, "one of my clerks suggested that the top of the case be used for displaying candy. We have always had a fairly good candy business, that is on certain lines, but this clerk became very enthusiastic about the candy side of the business and claimed that if we had more room to show it and a better assortment, there was no doubt we could sell a great deal more. I told her that if she would take the responsibility of the candy department, keep it always looking clean and the stock fresh, I would take a chance. She was quite agreeable. A week or two after that, I mentioned this to a traveller, and wondered if he could give me a suggestion as to the best style of a case to have built. He said he knew just the kind of a case I needed and promised to send around the representative of the firm who built the cases. In due time this representative called upon me, measured up the space and said he would built me a case for $150. I thought this was pretty high and more than I felt I wanted to pay. But he stated he would have a case built, come around and put it up and leave it there for three months. At the end of that time if I did not feel the case was worth the money, he would take it back, and if I was satisfied, I was to send the firm my check for $150.

A Net Profit of $826

"This seemed a fair proposition, so I told him to go ahead. In due time the case arrived. We filled it up with a nice display of candies and I want to tell you that if the sale of candies continues in the same volume, that it is at the present time, by the end of the year we will have made a net profit of $826."

Although Mr. Kirby, in his conversation with a representative of Canadian Grocer, laid much stress upon the value of the show case in increasing his candy sales, readers must also bear in mind that Mr. Kirby to get this business had also used other methods to co-operate with the display in the store. One plan has been to have a week-end candy sale. The window is dressed attractively, and as one clerk is responsible for this department, it is most carefully looked after. Some of the window displays are of a novel character. For instance a barrel of kisses was placed in the window. This was accomplished by simply opening the top of the barrel, pressing the contents fairly down, then cutting the hoops of the barrel and carefullly removing the staves. The result was that kisses stood up as a solid mass and when it was placed in the center of the window with the floor also covered with kisses, it made a very attractive display. A lot such as this was sold in three days.

Candy Shows a Good Profit

As so much has been said about the case, a little explanation of it might be advisable. The case is about six feet in length and nicely fits on the top of the silent salesman mentioned above. It is made from clear plate glass but no frame work whatever, the sides, ends and top being fastened at the corners with nickel clamps. The case is divided into several compartments and being open at the rear, makes for rapid selling.

In Mr. Kirby's opinion, candy should carry a good profit. On some lines it is possible to obtain a greater profit than others and he never allows it to run below forty per cent and more often it is fifty per cent. on the selling price.

VALUABLE KNOWLEDGE GAINED

"Well, Freddie," said his mother, "did you learn anything new at school today?"

"Yes'm," said Freddie.

"What did you learn new?"

" I got on to a new way o' gettin' out o' school fer an hour by sniffin' red ink up me nose."

Many merchants are increasing turnover by adding ice cream departments and during the summer months find it decidedly profitable.

This illustration shows how a merchant on the Pacific Coast arranged his window as a means of boosting ice cream sales.

Vote Favors Margarine

THE DOMINION Government has spoken on the margarine question. By a majority of 26, the Federal House voted against the prohibition of oleomargarine in Canada. The resolution to prohibit the manufacture and sale of this product in the Dominion, as put before the house on Monday night last, found champions only in the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, and certain representatives from districts where the dairy industry predominates. On this question all parties split, members of the government opposing each other in their views of it, as shown in the strenuous opposition of the Hon. W. S. Fielding to any arguments that the Minister of Agriculture put forward on behalf of the prohibition of margarine.

While the vote taken on this occasion is merely a negative one, legislation making permanent the right to manufacture and sell oleomargarine in this country after September first next, is now anticipated.

Canadian Grocer in its columns from week to week has urged the retention of oleomargarine in Canada after September first next, believing that the product is a wholesome article of food, and as such, should no more be banned than any other foodstuff. Thus it is with no small sense of satisfaction that this journal receives the result of the first vote on the resolution as brought forward by those who seek to ban the product. The contention that the continued manufacture and importation of margarine into Canada is throttling the dairy industry is entirely groundless, as has been shown in articles appearing on these pages in the past few months. That the consumption of margarine does not seriously affect the consumption of butter is proved. That margarine is a wholesome, nutritious food, providing a substitute for people who cannot afford butter, is also proved, and because of these facts there is no argument sufficiently worthy to bring about its prohibition.

The Secret Rebate

IN ANOTHER column in this issue are the views of a wholesaler on the question of price cutting which has become quite general with the wholesale trade. This wholesaler claims that a great deal of the cause of this condition is the fault of some travellers who, working upon a commission basis, make a special price to the retailer. In order to "cover up his tracks" the traveller pays the difference out of his own commission.

The system of placing travellers wholly upon a commission basis, in itself has been found to have many commendable traits. It places the salesman entirely upon his own initiative. If he is to make a salary and even a bare living one, he must be constantly on his toes and sell goods. This system has been tested by several of the large firms in the United States and generally has worked out satisfactorily. In Toronto the system is also in vogue and speaking generally the firms adopting the system, claim that this method of paying their travellers has resulted in a greater volume of sales. But it has one drawback. It leaves an opening for the too zealous salesman to trim prices by offering the buyer a "secret rebate." It is true that the special discount comes out of the pocket of the salesman, but what about the injury he is doing to the reputation of his house?

Usually the house is not aware of this practice because the transaction goes through in the regular way and the salesman "makes it right" with the buyer out of his own pocket as it were. It is a practice that should be discouraged. The proper way to stop the practice is for the buyer to refuse such discounts unless they come direct from the firm.

It is all very well for the buyer to say "that he has a perfect right to buy his goods as cheap as possible." But we answer that reply by asking another. "What is to prevent the salesman who offers you a special discount, from giving your competitor a still lower one?"

Making Showcases Pay

EVERY FOOT of the floor space in the store—whether it be big or small—represents a continuous outlay for rent, and every foot of it, apart from the space used for aisles, which, by the way, should be as roomy as the size of the store will permit, should be used to increase the volume of business and add to the revenue of the store. Yet it is no uncommon thing to see in the stores of dealers who pride themselves on their efficient business methods show cases that are not selling as much merchandise as they should.

Any merchant can make an interesting and profitable experiment at little or no outlay if he will open an account with each of his show cases, charging each a proportionate share of the rent of the store, based on the floor space it occupies, together with the cost of carrying the stock it contains and the time that an employe spends in arranging it. Then credit each case with the profit on all sales that initiate solely as a result of the display it contains. The result of a thirty days' trial of this experiment will convince any dealer of the necessity of keeping case displays as effective as possible.

The value of a salesman is generally estimated by the profitable business accruing as a result of that salesman's work. When the salesman fails to do enough business to make the wage investment in him profitable, he is usually released; yet the retailer will make a large investment in costly cases, in the rent of the space they occupy, in the merchandise to stock them, and in the wages of clerks to attend them, and will then accept, as a matter of course, any returns the quadruple investment may bring. With many using show cases whose maintenance—including rent, stock carrying costs, and attention—amounts to a very considerable outlay a year, it seems strange that so few have any definite knowledge of what returns the cases yield.

CONFIDENCE IS the greatest of all business builders, and the only way to inspire confidence in your trade is to give service, earnest, conscientious, cheerful, efficient service.

FACTORS IN increasing sales are knowing what is in stock, keeping track of new merchandise for the department, knowing when it will be in and listing the articles that are called for but are either out of stock or not carried. These are all important.

Do Not Allow Yourself to be Stampeded Out of the Correct Margins Because of Stories of How Cheaply the Other Fellow May be Selling—The Day of the Service Grocer is Returning

By HENRY JOHNSON, Jr.

THIS correspondence shows that every merchant must be awake to changing conditions if he is to continue to be prosperous. There is no stopping place on the upward climb.

Dear Mr. Johnson: — Herewith please find statements of my business for 1920 and 1921. Am not quite satisfied with my 1921 profit compared with 1920. Located in town of 1800, farmers' town, although most of my trade is city trade. Competition is keen—twelve stores handling groceries. You will notice about 50% of 1921 sales were credit. Outstanding accounts quite large though all considered collectable. Started three years ago with $300. Have enjoyed good trade in the past. Is my business going backward?

Yours, W. D. E.

Salary Reduced Yet Profit Less

The other statement shows that he drew $1,500 in 1920 yet had net profits of $2,088 left.

What this man needs is what many another must get down to if he is to survive future stresses—to hold back and work on the most conservative lines possible. When he started, three years ago, everything was on the upgrade. Like any number of others who started then, because of favorable conditions—so favorable that it required a genius at failure not to make good—he made money fast. Now we have struck conditions of re-adjustment. These conditions of gradually declining values are very certain to prevail for thirty years—say until 1950.

Henceforth, therefore, men must do business on skill and along conservative lines. That is very different from what these newcomers in business are accustomed to. But it is not necessarily a misfortune that things have changed, because by difficulties men are made stronger and into better merchants—but the conditions must be understood in order that you may cope with them intelligently.

The shrinkage in this man's business is not abnormal, everything considered, but because of that shrinkage in volume and values, the expenses have shot up more than one-third. It is well for men to note that effect of slackening business. Notice that a reduction of ten per cent. in volume under a constant overhead, increases that overhead eleven per cent. A reduction of 25% in sales under the same load runs the expense ratio up 33-1/3%. In this case: sales were $17,000 less in 1921 than in 1920, so, though expenses were run down $383.86, the ratio was approximately 12-2/3% in 1921 as against only a little over 9% in 1920.

Taking Less Himself Shows Judgment

He showed excellent judgment in cutting his own salary last year. Also he is to be congratulated that his entire salary list in 1921 was under 6%, excepting whatever must be taken into salary list from the delivery expense. He must dig into this problem because the salary list including everything in wages of all kinds, himself and everybody else, must not exceed 9% at any time and it should be kept down to 8%. Naturally, as much lower as possible than these percentages will be the aim of every good business man.

Every grocer must keep his nose to the grindstone on expenses every year, but from now onward more emphatically is this so than for several years past. Also the following are always excellent business rules, but are now things that must be practised unflinchingly by the man who wants to win out:

Buy from hand to mouth, in the smallest possible quantities. Avoid both quantity buying—no matter how strong the temptation nor how good the prospective "profits" may be—and futures. Buy goods as you need them.

Lastly, most important of all: Exercise all your ingenuity to increase your sales. Study how to move more profitable goods along profitable lines. Do not allow yourself to be stampeded out of your correct margins by stories of how cheaply the other fellow may be selling. Pass up a customer occasionally rather than cut your prices to pieces to keep her. Aim to please those who like your kind of dealing and are willing to pay you for your service. The day of the service grocer is returning. But the service must be rendered and must be worth what you charge for it. See that yours is given in full.

Is the "Old School Grocer" Passing?

I have another letter from the same general region as the above, but the tone of it is very different. This is from a man who refers to himself as "the retail groceryman of the old school." He writes that it's all right to know the margin, expenses, computations and all that, but asks what good that does him in conditions described as follows:

"Pinned in between and held firmly to this naked proposition: that his wholesaler's cash store, operated directly or indirectly by the wholesaler, makes his selling price also—regardless of overhead or anything else absolutely. Three cash stores here selling staples at jobbers' prices, brazenly advertising them every Friday and Saturday. And these are the most popular wholesaler's brands, well known for years, brands we retailers in many cases spent years to put before the public—the goods we depended on to get our living. So when thus limited, our overhead or underhead has nothing to do with it.

German Competition Reduces Sweden's Canadian Imports

TORONTO, May 17.—"German competition in Cweden is having a serious effect upon domestic business which at the present time is very quiet," remarked A. M. Arnheim of Stockholm, Sweden, and representative in Sweden for Sainsbury Bros., who for the past couple of weeks has been a visitor in Toronto. "This German competition has also resulted in imports from Canada and the United States being reduced fully seventy-five per cent. There are signs, however, that business will gradually improve and we expect by the time this year closes, that imports from Canada will be up to the usual amount.

In speaking of the dried fruit situation, Mr. Arnheim pointed out to a representative of Canadian Grocer that at the beginning of 1921 stocks of prunes in Sweden amounted to 40,000 tons and some of them had been held since 1918. This balance, he said, is now all cleaned up besides the heavy shipments which have been going to Sweden during this season. "The annual consumption of prunes in Sweden is around 250,000 tons," remarked Mr. Arnheim, "but we do not want any small sizes. The size we like the best is 30-40s and nothing smaller than 50-60s."

Head of Produce Firm in Montreal Meets Sudden Death

Montreal.—The many friends of the late Geo. Hodge, in the grocery and produce trade in Canada, will be sorry to learn of his sudden death on May 11th. Mr. Hodge had dined on the new trans-Atlantic steamer, the S.S. Regina, which had just been presented with a coat of arms of the City of Regina. He had an engagement at the church of which he was an active member and as he was not expected home till late, his family had not been alarmed until they were notified that his body had been found floating in the canal about two miles above the place where the S. S. Regina was docked.

An inquest was held, the coroner bringing a verdict of accidental death. Many of the deceased man's friends in the trade express the opinion that Mr. Hodge was the victim of foul play since his body was found at a spot much out of his way from the ship to the church or to his home.

Geo. Hodge was the founder of the produce firm of Geo. Hodge and Son of Montreal, and was in his seventy-second year. His friends speak of him as the friend of the poor and as one man said "he always had his hand in his pocket to help some one."

A large number of friends in the trade mourn the sudden death of a man who had won the respect and friendship of all with whom he had come in contact. The members of the Montreal produce exchange, of which the deceased was a member attended the funeral in a body.

Ontario

A. F. Choate, merchant, Warsaw, Ont., was a business visitor in Toronto during the past week. He expects to open his branch store at McCracken Landing summer resort on Stony Lake about June 15.

The death occurred on Friday last of Thomas Webb Edwards, of Toronto, manager for the Dominion Sugar Company of Chatham. The late Mr. Edwards passed away at his home 139 Geoffrey St., Toronto. He moved to Toronto thirteen years ago from Hamilton where he had been a salesman for the wholesale grocery house of Lucas, Steele and Bristol. He was a member of the Rotary Club, also of the Masonic order. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

Ontario Grocers Meet in Two Day Convention to Discuss Problems

Merchants From Many Points in the Province Are Convened This Week at the Prince George Hotel, Toronto—W. J. McCully Presides

TORONTO, May 17—(special)—Ontario grocers are gathering here to-day for a two-day convention at the Prince George Hotel. The president of the Ontario Provincial Board, W. J. McCully, of Stratford, is presiding. Addresses of welcome were tendered the visiting delegates by His Worship Mayor C. A. Maguire, of Toronto, J. P. Tweedell, president of the Toronto branch R.M.A., and Jerry Burns, president of the Toronto retail grocers' section.

Among the delegates registered during the morning of the first day were D. W. Clark, Toronto, C. A. Elsley, Campbellville, J. D. Wisdom, Allendale, Wilfred McCorvie and John W. Dyer, Chatham, T. Bowman, J. A. Walsh, Duncan Bell, J. C. Campbell, and E. L. Lamoureuce, Ottawa, Donald McLean, Toronto, E. Lyons, Toronto, James Hollins, Toronto, John Muir, Niagara Falls, Fred Mungford, Mt. Denis, J. C. Beaton, Oshawa, Jerry Burns, Toronto, T. W. Humble, Toronto, G. A. Babcock, Lindsay, and W. H. Edmunds, Vancouver.

Subjects of vital importance to the retail grocer will be discussed during the two days, and open discussions in which every grocer present may take part are planned. Canadian Grocer in its next week's issue will contain a full report of the two days' proceedings.

W. C. MILLER

The energetic secretary of the Ontario R. M. A., who is directing the proceedings of the Ontario grocers in convention this week.

Kellogg Appeal Case in September

Injunction Secured by Plaintiffs in Famous Case is Stayed by Defendants Agreeing to Certain Conditions Laid Down by Judge—No Cutting of Price and Security Bond Is Given

TORONTO.—(Special).—The judgment of Justice Middleton in the Kellog case was given recently in Canadian Grocer. The defendants at that time asked for an appeal and applied for a stay in the injunction granted the Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flake Co., of London, Ont. and Justice Ferguson has given his decision on this application. It is as follows:—

BATTLE CREEK TOASTED CORN FLAKE COMPANY, LIMITED,

vs.

W. K. KELLOGG CEREAL COMPANY and KELLOGG TOASTED CORN FLAKE COMPANY

(Two actions)

The first action was commenced in 1914 and partly tried in 1917. The second action was commenced in 1919 when the two actions were ordered to be tried together, and were tried by Mr. Justice Middleton; the trial of the two actions were completed by Mr. Justice Middleton in 1921, and judgment was pronounced by him on the 15th of April.

By his judgment, the defendants are restrained from manufacturing or selling in the Province of Ontario, Toasted Corn Flakes in competition with the Toasted Corn Flakes manufactured and sold by the plaintiffs, and were ordered to pay damages.

The defendants have appealed to this Court, and now apply for a stay of the injunction pending the hearing of the appeal.

On the defendants undertaking to speed the hearing of the appeal, so that the same may be ready for hearing in September next, and further undertaking that pending the hearing and final disposition of the appeal, there will be no cutting of prices or granting of bonuses so as to bring the prices below the prices of the plaintiff's goods, but that to the end that the standard price shall be maintained, the defendant shall not attempt by unfair or undue competition to take away from the plaintiffs their trade, and upon the defendants undertaking that in their advertising there shall be no matter reflecting in any way upon the goods of the plaintiffs or representing their own goods as being superior to the plaintiff's goods, and upon the defendants giving satisfactory bond in the sum of $50,000 as security for any damages or compensation the plaintiffs may suffer by reason of the stay of the injunction, and the defendants undertaking that as a condition of the stay they would keep an account and submit it to the Court, and submit to any order as to damages or compensation which the Court may be of the opinion the plaintiffs are entitled to by reason of the stay should the plaintiffs ultimately succeed, IT IS ORDERED that the injunction granted at the trial shall be stayed pending the disposition of the appeal, with liberty to either party to apply.

The undertakings hereinbefore given shall not interfere with the parties mutually agreeing upon bonuses or cuts in prices, and are given on the agreement that the plaintiffs will not, pending the hearing, cut prices or issue advertisements reflecting on the defendants' goods or their right to carry on business pending further order.

DID LITTLE DAMAGE BUT MADE A LOT OF NOISE

An explosive was thrown over the fence into the yard of the Montreal Biscuit Company, 100 Brewster avenue, near Greene avenue, Montreal, the other night, breaking several windows in buildings adjacent to the factory when it burst leaving, according to the police report, a hole a foot in circumference and six inches in depth. The view taken by the superintendent of the plant is that some giant fire cracker was thrown into the yard as a prank, or to frighten the night watchman. He was inclined to make light of it, feeling satisfied that there was in the affair no intent to damage the company property. Only a lot of noise, seemed to be the way in which he regarded the incident, the material damage in glass being, he said, easily covered by $25.

Catalogues and Booklets

H. J. Heinz Company have just issued a handy sliding scale to assist the retailer in figuring his percentage of gross profit. This is vest pocket size. The scale itself is a piece of cardboard which fits into a celluloid case with an opening at the top. The scale can be pulled out so that the following information is given about an article—cost per dozen, selling price each, percentage of gross profit on cost and on selling price. Cost prices per dozen are shown at .90c .95c, $1.00, etc., up to $9.50 per dozen. When an article costing .90c is sold at .10c each the percentage of profit on cost is shown to be 33 1/3 % and on turnover 25%. Any retailer may secure one of these profit sliding scales by applying to the Toronto office of the Company or to any other local office.

"CANADA FIRST"

A Canadian tourist, while traveling through Italy, saw Mount Vesuvius emitting smoke and lava.

An Italian proudly remarked that they did not have anything like that in Canada.

The tourist replied: "Well, we have a thing there called Niagara Falls that would put that thing out in 10 minutes."

Western R.M.A. Will Hold Convention Regina, June 6, 7, 8

Saskatoon, May 16.—Preliminary plans for the ninth annual convention of Saskatchewan Retail Merchants to be held in the City Hall Autitorium at Regina, June 6, 7 and 8, are now well in hand, according to F. E. Raymond, provincial secretary of the R. M. A. An industrial display, along similar lines to the display put on in Saskatoon at last year's convention, will be one of the features of the convention.

Among the speakers who have been approached and who have signified their willingness to address the retailers are J. A. Banfield of Winnipeg, Dominion president of the association: Premier Charles A. Dunning; Hon. S. J. Latta, minister of education; Dean W. J. Rutherford of the College of Agriculture, University of Saskatchewan, and Professor W. W. Swanson, of the University of Saskatchewan.

JACK WOOD

of Swift Current, Sask., president of the Saskatchewan R. M. A., who will preside over the meetings of the annual convention in Regina on June 6, 7 and 8.

Another feature of this year's convention will be the trade sectional meetings, inaugurated at the Saskatoon convention last year.

BIGGER AND BETTER BUSINESS

coholic light, but be that as it may, the Montreal members of the association welcome you here not for what we offer you to drink but for the benefit we may all derive from co-operation and social intercourse, both from the business and personal stand-point. We are well fitted here to offer you the best hospitality in many ways."

The secretary then read a wire from J. Allan Ross, of Toronto, expressing his regret that pressing business on a Royal Commission on which he has had to act and sickness in his home prevented him from attending the convention. The executive committee report, of which J. A. Ross is chairman, was read by the secretary and was unanimously passed by the convention. The treasurer's report was presented by Colin P. Currie, representing D. S. Perrin & Co., Ltd., London It showed a good balance.

Interest in Secretary's Report

Much interest was shown in the secretary's report presented by C. J. Bodley of Toronto. This report gave evidence of many undertakings of the executive during the past year. This sales tax and its enforcement had commanded much attention. Mr. Bodley told in detail of a test case in Ottawa in connection with the imposition of sales tax on retailers who manufacture and sell their own confections. The secretary was called upon to give evidence in three trials before it was finally established that a retailer manufacturing and selling his own confections should pay the sales tax in the same way as manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers must do. The report dealt with 41 different items that the executive had been called upon to attend to during the year.

Mayor Martin of Montreal addressed the members at a luncheon held in the grill room of the hotel. His topic led him to a discussion of the relationship between employer and employee.

One of the delegates of the convention asked that a resolution be passed, favoring a higher duty on salted peanuts and peanut butter coming into Canada. He pointed out that the present tax of 2c a lb. was the same tax on raw peanuts and considering the fact that there was already a high tax on oils required in salting peanuts that it was in the interest of the manufacturer that this extra duty should be imposed. This matter was referred to a later discussion in the convention.

Candy Day Discussed

A discussion of candy day was opened by G. W. Matthews of Huyler's Ltd., of Toronto. Mr. Matthews pointed out the advantages and opportunities of a national Candy Day. He suggested that there might not only be a Candy Day but also a Biscuit Day and a Chocolate Day in the year. W. H. G. McEachern, of McEachern - Greenway - Coutts, Toronto, bared the facts about last year's Candy Day and stated that in his opinion it had been a failure because the public had not been educated to it. He went on further to say that it took time and that now that the foundation had been built to make it a national institution, the pioneer work should be followed up and more time and forethought be devoted to make it a real success.

He pointed out that special days which had become national institutions such as Mother's Day, had behind them a sentiment which carries them to success. As a suggestion he mentioned "Sweetheart Day" as Canada's national day for candy. In this connection he mentioned the many advantages of the sentiment which connects candy with "affaires d' amour." A discussion followed this address and many members expressed their desire that a definite date and a definite name be set for Candy Day, so that the industry might work up to it and do the educational work necessary to make it the success that it should be.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THERE has been a decidedly stronger tone to the raw sugar market during the week under review. The price remained firm at 2 7-16c c. & f. New York for prompt shipment and 2½c for June shipment. Also sales reported for June loading at 2 3-8c f.o.b. Cuba.

Latest cables report heavy rains in Cuba which are no doubt good for the growing crop but have the effect of interfering with the grinding of the present crop. Since last advice, 23 central factories closed down, making a total in operation of 127 as against 194 for the same period last year.

Canadian refiners' list prices remain unchanged at $5.90 Montreal basis but this price appears to be merely nominal as wholesalers are cutting below this figure.

Rolled oats are stronger with some advances while other cereals are fairly steady and unchanged. Package cereals are also steady but there appears to be an increase in the demand for prepared breakfast foods.

Dried fruits show little change other than a continuation of the weakness in raisins. Shelled Bordeaux walnuts abroad are stronger under an advance but the spot situation remains quiet and unchanged.

A great deal of interest is manifested as to just how the reduction in the British tariff on teas will work out. This reduction has already resulted in stimulating buying in England and with any noticeable increase in the consumption developing, a stronger and higher market can be expected. Some interest is also noted as to probable changes in the Canadian tariff of which details will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Rices continue firm, whole spices hold steady with a more pronounced firmness to pickling spices.

New vegetables and fruits are arriving more freely and generally tend easier.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, May 17.—The grocery market is quiet this week with few changes. In many lines dealers seem to be marking time. The suspense in connection with the new budget is an excuse offered to defer buying in some cases, yet few have any definite predictions to make in as far as food-stuffs are concerned. The sugar market holds firm with a strong note at the basis of $5.90. Some retailers have speculated and are buying for the future. Few expect further reductions, yet the lack of ready money prevents a marked increase in buying. Molasses is more steady after recent reductions. Corn syrups are unchanged. Walnuts have been advanced abroad and at present prices orders locally are being placed for fall delivery. Candied peels show weakness with reductions in some cases. Smyrna raisins are strong with supplies short. The tea market is strong but fairly quiet. Dealers are waiting for the announcement of the budget. Coffee is strong but shows no advance locally. Canned goods are unsettled and prices continue to be cut. Many dealers look for lower prices in the fall and show anxiety to unload.

COFFEE MARKET FIRM

Montreal.

COFFEE—Local prices on coffee are unchanged. Primary markets are strong and have been gaining points for some time back but the demand is somewhat limited at this season. Local dealers do not expect any advance in wholesale prices but promise a firm market.

CANNED GOODS UNSETTLED

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS.—The canned goods market remains easy. In canned vegetables it is apparent that many dealers are expecting lower prices in the fall and are putting forward every effort to unload. Canned tomatoes are selling from $1.60 to $1.65 this week and some brands, prices are lower. Canned corn is easy, but choice and fancy grades hold steady. There are some outside brands of corn and peas offered at low prices. In canned fruits the whole market is broken up. Prices vary according to the stocks held by different dealers. Canned peaches in heavy syrup are down as low as $2.75 and in light syrup $1.90 and $2.00 per dozen. In some cases prices are lower than this since the stocks have been carried for some time and holders are eager to unload at a sacrifice.

CANDIED PEELS EASY

Montreal.

DRIED FRUITS.—Lemon and orange peel show weakness with a decline of 1c and 2c in some cases. The wholesale price is now 25c and 40c for citron. Reports state that only one thousand tons of Smyrna raisins are available and that these will not nearly meet the demand until the new crop comes in September. The best quality of Smyrna raisins are practically unobtainable. Evaporated apples are strong in price and scarce. California raisins show a little weakness and currants are firm. Other lines are steady with rather a quiet market.

TEA WAITS FOR BUDGET

Montreal.

TEAS.—The tea market is strong but shows no change locally. Local dealers are waiting anxiously for the Finance Minister's budget which is expected on the 23rd of May. While they have no definite opinion as to what changes the budget will bring there seems to be a feeling that tea will be affected. Some opinions are that the tax on tea will be removed. While the market stands in its strong position there is little hope that even a reduction or removal of the tax would result in a drop in the price of tea since primary markets warrant a further advance in local prices. Package teas in particular are on the verge of an advance in price unless the government's action will reduce the cost of importation.

Montreal

NUTS.—The feature of the nut market is an advance in the price of walnuts. In France the market has gained fifty francs, but no change is quoted locally since this market has been above the import during the last two months. The walnut market however, is strong and importers state that large orders have been placed during the past week for fall delivery at the present price.

MOLASSES MORE STEADY

Montreal.

SYRUPS.—There has been no change in molasses through the week. The market shows some weakness on account of lower prices on recent shipments to Montreal. The comparatively low price on sugar has had its effect on molasses which has been forced down in proportion. Local wholesalers expect that the price will remain about steady at the present basis. Corn syrups are unchanged in price.

SUGAR MARKET STRONG

Montreal

SUGAR.—The basis for refined sugar still stands at $5.90 per cwt. The market is in a strong position and the grocery trade is looking for an advance in price. Buying shows some improvement and some retailers are speculating on the prospect of higher prices during July, August and September.

BIG STRAWBERRY SHIPMENT

Montreal.

FRUIT.—The feature of the fruit market is the record shipment of strawberries that arrived in this city this week. Six cars were on track which were cleaned up at a price of 22c to 26c a box. The pint boxes are finished. Although the market is a little higher than it was there is a good demand for this fruit. Other lines are steady. Oranges are short in supply but there is only a limited supply.

LOCAL ASPARAGUS OFFERED

Montreal

VEGETABLES.—The feature of the market is the supply of local asparagus offered at $2 for qt. baskets. Cauliflower is scarce and advanced to $8 and $9 a doz. Florida lettuce is sold in baskets at $4 and $4.50. New potatoes are lower and offered at $8 a barrel. Local radishes are selling at 30c and 40c a doz. bunches. Old potatoes are a little stiffer in price.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, May 17.—Rolled oats are firmer under an advance. Other cereals are unchanged while flour is steady. Standard brands of canned goods are generally held firm, but there appears to be some price cutting on certain independent packs. Prepared breakfast foods are gradually taking the lead in the movement of breakfast foods, chiefly due to the approach of the warm weather; market conditions show little change. Prunes continue to be an active seller while raisins are quiet and continue to indicate weakness. New shipments of Sair dates are offered at a lower price. Nuts are quiet and unchanged. The feature in the local tea situation is the interest taken in how the reduction in the British tariff will work out. Price cutting continues in sugar. Pickling spice is showing a firmness while other spices are generallly firm with no change in quotations. A good movement is noted in vegetables under easier prices. Pineapples are arriving freely and it is considered that they are now at the best for preserving purposes.

ROLLED OATS HIGHER

Toronto

CEREALS.—The only item of note in the cereal market is the continued firmness in rolled oats. Quotations to the retail trade are advanced to $3.20 per bag and in some quarters $3.25 is quoted.

CANNED GOODS HOLD FIRM

Toronto

CANNED GOODS.—The situation in canned goods, generally, shows little change. Standard brands are firmly held while some of the independent packs are offered in certain quarters at a range of prices; for instance one brand of corn is offered at $1.15 per doz. Some renewed interest is being taken in a consuming way, in kippered herrings and herrings in tomato sauce, quotations for which range from $1.75 to $2.15 per doz. on No. 1s. Kippered snacks are also meeting with a good demand at $7.50 per case or 95c per doz. Maple Leaf brand of peaches No. 2 tins, are offered at a lower price of $2.40 per doz. Johnson's Bahama pineapple, No. 2 tins, sliced, is quoted at $2.90 per doz. No. 10 tins peeled pie peaches are quoted at $7.40 per doz.

ONE BRAND MACARONI LOWER

Toronto.

PACKAGE GOODS.—The warm weather of the past week created a larger demand for prepared breakfast foods, according to the wholesale trade, and this condition will no doubt become accentuated as the season advances. Market conditions show little change as compared with a week ago. Aunt Jemima's pancake flour is now packed 24 to the case and quoted at $4.75 per case or $2.40 per doz. Puccini's macaroni, cases of 30-16 oz. packages is quoted at a lower price of $3.40 per case less 10%.

SAIR DATES LOWER

Toronto

DRIED FRUITS.—Despite the fact that fresh southern fruits are now arriving freely at lower prices, the movement in prunes continues active. Prices are firmly held and according to reports from the coast and the New York market a tightening up in prune prices can be expected, mainly on account of the small stocks in holders' hands and the early clean up at the coast. Raisins continue to tend easy, while new shipments of Sair dates are quoted at a lower price of 6¾c per lb.

MORE INTEREST IN TEAS

Toronto

TEAS.—The local situation in the tea market continues strong. Much interest is felt this week among tea importers as to just how the reduction in the British tariff on tea will work out. This reduction became effective on Monday of this week and already it has had the effect of greatly stimulating buying in the Old Country. In the opinion of some tea authorities the reduction in the tariff will increase the consumption of tea in England and result in a stronger market and higher prices.

VEGETABLES MOVING

Toronto.

VEGETABLES.—New potatoes are easier at $7 to $8.50 for No. 1s and $6 to $6.50 per barrel for No. 2s. Florida celery is higher at $5.50 to $7 per case while tomatoes are firmer at $5.50 to $6.50. Spinach is lower at $2 per bushel basket. Local asparagus is arriving freely and prices are dropping. Other quotations tend easier under an active movement.

PINEAPPLES AT THE BEST

Toronto.

FRUITS.—It is now considered that pineapples are at the best for preserving purposes; prices are a little easier and it is not expected that prices will be any lower. Pineapples are quoted at $5 to $5.50 per case. Strawberries are lower at 23c for quart boxes. The first shipment of watermelons is expected to arrive at the end of the week and are offered at $1.50 for sizes running about 28 lbs. each. Oranges, lemons and grapefruit show little change.

DRIED FRUITS UNCHANGED

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS.—The raisin market continues weak with buyers interested as they are looking for lower prices. Evaporated apples are getting into small compass and indications are that prices will go still higher with the scarcity of supplies. Prunes continue steady and it is the opinion that prices will be higher just as soon as the market at the coast is cleaned up.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, May 17.—Refined sugar has declined bringing the price to $7.05 and $7.15. The coffee situation is firm and further advances are noted. Canned vegetables and fruits continue in active demand. All grades of peas with the exception of standards are closely cleaned up with standards also becoming in small compass. Some offerings of American peas have been made to the trade by Illinois packers. Cereals show no change. Samples of new pack strawberry jam have been shown to the trade but new prices have not been named. Latest advices from Spain state that this year's crop of olives is practically a failure and prices have advanced from 25% to 35%. Pineapples and strawberries have shown a slight decline. Cucumbers are slightly easier with tomatoes showing strength.

COFFEES ADVANCING

Winnipeg.

COFFEE.—The coffee situation is strong and further advances have been noted for prompt deliveries. Brazil shows no indication of selling future deliveries of either new or old crop except at higher figures and in some instances refuse to quote prices at all. Advances locally may be looked for.

ACTIVITY IN CANNED GOODS

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—An active demand continues for canned vegetables. Stocks on hand of most lines are light. Canned peas of the better varieties are well sold up but some standard grades are still obtainable. Offerings of the new crop of peas have been made to the trade by Illinois packers. Canned tomatoes are showing signs of scarcity, and as practically every canner is sold out there are only a few odd lots offered at gradually advancing prices. Canned fruits are showing and improvement in the demand. The canned fish market is holding steady.

NO CHANGE IN CEREALS

Winnipeg.

CEREALS.—Market conditions show little change and although there are no actual changes in quotations, in some quarters there is an inclination to shade prices, mainly due to the fact that some wholesalers are anxious to reduce stocks before the warm weather arrives. The bean market continues firm with quotations unchanged.

LOWER PRICES ON SUGAR

Winnipeg.

SUGAR.—Refiners' price on granulated sugar has been reduced to $7.15 per cwt. With the Dominion refinery quoting at $7.05. The market is in an unsettled condition and although refiners claim that they are selling sugar for export purposes at higher prices than they are quoting to the local trade, there is lack of confidence shown by wholesalers.

STARCH UNCHANGED

Winnipeg

STARCH.—There are no new features in the starch situation. Buyers are still showing little desire to purchase any large volume and as a result the movement is confined to small quantities at unchanged prices.

OLIVE CROP A FAILURE

Winnipeg.

SPICES.—Latest advices from Spain state that the growing crop of olives is practically a failure and as all the desirable old crop has been exported there is an advance in price of 25 to 35 per cent. on the new. The spice market is steady and firm with cloves showing easier tendency.

TEAS REMAIN STEADY

Winnipeg.

TEAS.—The tea market maintains its strength at primary sources. Some advances have been made locally which have affected the retail price of bulk tea and the opinion is that further advances are to follow.

STRAWBERRIES LOWER

Winnipeg

FRUITS.—Strawberries are quoted lower at $8 per case and with heavier shipments arriving the tendency is for lower prices. Valencias oranges are arriving in good quanties and are quoted at $7 to $9. Lemons and grapefruit are practically unchanged. Pineapples are in good demand at $7.50 per case.

TOMATOES HIGHER

Winnipeg

VEGETABLES.—Florida tomatoes have shown an advance and are quoted at $7 per case with Texas tomatoes at $4.50 per lug. Egyptian onions are arriving and are quoted at $8 per sack with Texas at $3.50 per crate. Rhubarb is in good demand at lower figures. Cucumbers are also easier and are quoted at $3.25 per dozen. Other lines show a slight decline.

FROM VANCOUVER, BY WIRE

Vancouver, B.C., May 16.—Strawberries dropped to $4.25: Walla Walla asparagus is scarce at $3.50: pyramid onions are quoted at $8 per crate: Mexican tomatoes are higher at $4.50: Cuban pineapples average $8 per case; rhubarb $1.50 per box: cabbage, 6c per lb.: cauliflower is scarce while lemons advanced $1 per case and oranges are up 50c per case. Best grades of butter are quoted at 45c. Eggs show little change. Soda biscuits advanced one cent per pound. Manilla paper declined ¼c per lb. Reports are coming in that the frosts have injured the tomato and sweet cherry crops.

sons stated by my hon. friend from Comox-Alberni (Mr. Neill) this afternoon. In 1918 another Order in Council was passed extending the regulations and in some respects making them rather more stringent than before. In the autumn session of 1919, when the power of the government to act under the War Measures Act had lapsed, parliament passed legislation extending the manufacture and importation of oleomargarine for another year; in 1920 parliament considered the matter further and again extended the period for another year; the same thing happened the following year, and now in this session we are once more considering whether or not this legislation shall pass out of existence or be continued.

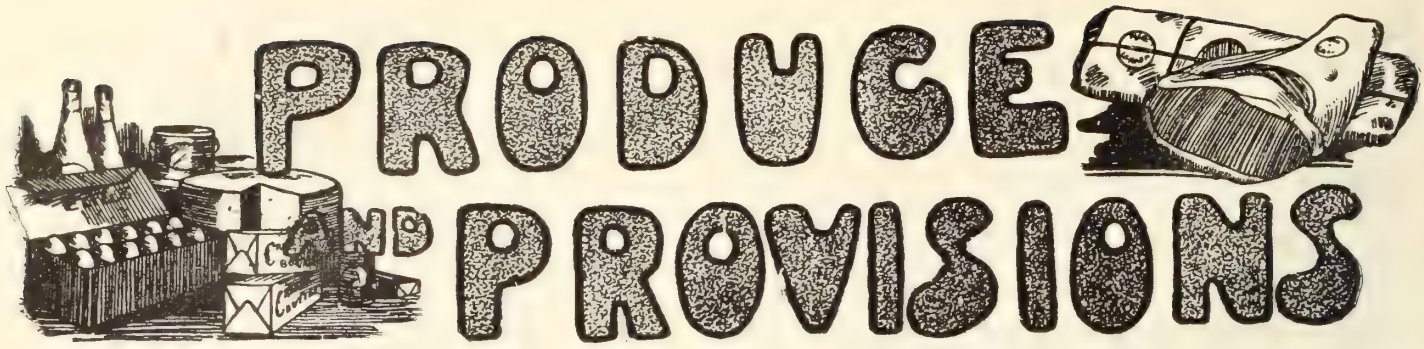
"I am opposed to the motion of my hon. friend from Comox-Alberni (Mr. Neill), and I am opposed to it for the very reason that my hon. friend from South Oxford (Mr. Sutherland) supports it. I believe I have stated before in this House that the gentlemen who believe in the principle of protection in fiscal policy could consistently believe in protection to the dairy industry in this way. I do not believe in the fiscal policy of protection, I do not believe in protection at all for that matter in trade, and consequenly I am opposed to the resolution.

"When we come to a consideration of the merits of this question, what do we find? It has not been successfully argued, nor can it be successfully argued in this House or out of it, that oleomargarine is not a wholesome food. The whole weight of evidence shows it is a wholesome food. It is made from animal fats, excellent foods in themselves, blended with vegetable oils that are also excellent foods in themselves, and no evidence of a reliable character has been adduced to show that oleomargarine is not a suitable and valuable food product. Now, if it is a food product of value, and if it can be secured a little cheaper than the higher grades of butter, why should any one in this House or out of it seek to deprive the people of a wholesome food by absolutely prohibiting the importation and manufacture of oleomargarine? That argument cannot be successfully substantiated, except as my hon. friend the Minister of Agriculture tried to do this evening by the most specious pleading that could possibly be attempted.

"If we take the history of this article throughout the whole civilized world we find there is not a country to-day but is using it—that permits its manufacture and sale. Now, I am convinced that if the various civilized countries are doing this, it is because oleomargarine has a food value. I have no belief in the arguments advanced that its continued importation and manufacture will destroy our dairy industry. Reference was made this evening to Denmark's position in regard to oleomargarine. What was her position? It was not, as my hon. friend, the Minister of Agriculture, stated, that Denmark has for hundreds of years been engaged in the dairy industry. If he will study the history of Denmark he will find that sixty, seventy or eighty years ago there was no peasantry in Europe more impoverished than that of Denmark, and that there was no country in Europe more backward in agriculture than Denmark."

Mr. Warner: "Has it been oleomargarine or butter that has helped Denmark?"

Mr. Crerar: "If my hon. friend from Strathcona had waited for a moment I would have satisfied his eager curiosity in that respect. Denmark built up her agriculture largely on her dairy industry. It is common knowledge that the average Danish farm is about ten acres in extent. Nowhere in the world has agriculture been carried on so intensively as in Denmark. They built up a splendid dairy industry. But if my memory serves me right, for the last thirty or thirty-five years Denmark has permitted the importation and manufacture of oleomargarine, and yet her dairy industry, now the finest in the world, has been built up alongside the competition of oleomargarine."



Stunt Of Slicing Bacon In A Window Sells Almost A Ton In A Week

Idea Attracts Hundreds of People Who Watch the Operation With Great Interest, Afterwards Going in and Coming Away With a Pound.

MOVING objects in a window display usually attract attention. People like to see things working and the smallest object, kept moving and placed in a window will usually result in many people stopping to look. This was quite in evidence recently in the window of the Duley Meat Co. store on Yonge Street, Toronto.

In one end of the window was installed a meat slicer mounted upon a pedestal. A clerk in a snowy white coat, cap, and apron, operated the slicer. In the window was also a table upon which was a small scale. As the operator sliced the bacon, he would weigh it in parcels of various sizes. This attracted so much attention that almost constantly all day long a throng of people were gazing into the window.

One had only to stop a minute or two to see the result of this stunt. One by one people would drop out of the crowd attracted by the window, go into the store and in a few minutes they could be seen coming out again with parcels under their arms.

A representative of the Canadian Grocer was informed by the manager that this idea worked out very satisfactorily and that sales of bacon for a week amounted to nearly a ton. To carry out the idea of buying bacon, a section of the display case near the front door was devoted entirely to the display of bacon. This bacon had previously occupied a position well to the rear of the store but to assist the window display it was moved near the front entrance. The bacon was displayed on white enamel trays and sliced. Between the trays were bits of green stuff such as lettuce and parsley which made it appear very appetizing.

France Has Been Big Buyer of B.C. Salmon In the Past Year

Winnipeg. (Special).—Francis Millerd of the Gosse-Millerd Co., of Vancouver, B. C., is on a business trip to Winnipeg calling on their western representatives, the Donald H. Bain Co. In discussing the salmon situation, Mr. Millerd stated that at this time last year there were eight hundred thousand cases in B. C., comprising all grades of salmon, whereas this year there are only one hundred thousand cases. France has been importing very heavily and over three hundred thousand cases were shipped by packers last year. This year from reports received they expect to sell twice as much again as they did last year. Pinks and Chums are selling well in France. Pink salmon will be higher, also Sockeye. Cohoe salmon prices will no doubt get more in line with the price of pink according to Mr. Millerd, as prices for Cohoe are not warranted when taking pink salmon into consideration. The position of salmon is decidedly firm.

Mr. Millerd stated that on his trip through the Prairie Provinces he found that retailers are believing more and more that profits are made on what they buy not on what they sell and so they cannot make profits on goods that have not got the support and quality of recognized lines. The retailer is now paying more attention to reputable brands.

TURNS $300 INTO $4,600 IN THREE YEARS

> The strictest economy and everything that promotes efficiency becomes secondary to the abuse as it exists here. Now what bothers me is to read so much about how to do this and that, to find your leaks, your overhead, etc., when what's the use? Conditions I have mentioned stop all rules, methods and systems."

But merchants everywhere have conditions more or less similar to cope with. There are variations, but men are meeting such circumstances successfully basically in two ways: They are curtailing expenses—needless to say that. Much more important, they are developing aggressive selling policies whereby they move a larger proportion of profitable goods.

All such sales effort is naturally put on brands not cut to pieces. It should have been done in my friend's town long ago, for where merchant effort has established certain brands, the same effort can establish others. The change should have been inaugurated the minute the jobbers began to desert their proper work. They should not have been allowed to gain a foothold on the new basis. I think there is lack of cohesion among merchants there. Probably my friend is as indifferent as the rest of them. They have preferred to "go it alone" so far and now that they need co-operation, they have to build the idea from the ground.

I cannot know all conditions and possibilities in each town, but inasmuch as men are meeting such conditions elsewhere, I feel sure there are ways to meet them there. If not, then the old grocer is going down and out. But in any event, it can harm nobody to know how to figure, to know where he is at. If conditions then appear to him to be alarming, he will have an advance notice of the probable extent of the trouble and the sooner call on his neighbors to join in concerted action. I cannot but think that it always pays to know.

One of the sorriest sights is a man who is permitting himself to be cast aside into an eddy of the tide of business, who fails to realize that the only salvation is to keep in the midst of the stream, swimming by his own efforts. A prime cause of such condition is the usual habit of men who have been in one calling long to think backwards instead of forwards. They wish for the "old times" and think back on "how much better things used to be." That attitude is fatal to progress.

The up-to-date merchant keeps his eyes on the future—he looks forward—he sees things as they are—he has no time to dream of what he would like them to be. Thus he is up and doing, ready to seize the opportunity or to fight for his rights. And that is the only spirit that will win.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, May 17.—The produce market shows a stronger tone throughout. The export market has opened up during the past week with fair prices offered for Canadian goods in England. A demand for bacon with a good price has enlivened the hog market and prices on light weights show an advance. The smoked meat market locally is quiet. Cooked meats are steady with a better movement. Butter is higher in price with a movement for export. The cheese market is the weak feature with a drop in both new and old make. This export market is quiet. Even for eggs there is an export demand and prices show an advance. The local demand for fresh eggs is good and the production is heavy. Fresh halibut and salmon are scarce with high prices but other lines are easy and on the whole is a buyer's market. Brook trout is scarce and prices hold.

CHEESE PRICES DROP

Montreal.

CHEESE.—Only a moderate amount of business was done over the cable last week for export, there being a steady demand for small lots and a fair demand for the local trade. The offerings at the boards in the country are larger but the make on the whole for May has not been as large as the previous season. Spring has been backward but the cheese business is expected to pick up from now on. Local prices, however, show a decline and new make is quoted from 16c to 17c per lb. and old cheese at 23c per lb. This shows a decline in both makes.

EXPORTING BUTTER

Montreal.

BUTTER.—The feature of the butter market is the demand that comes from England for Canadian creamery butter and the first shipment of the year was made last week from Montreal. This coupled with a steady demand from local and country buyers for supplies to meet immediate requirements has created a firmer feeling in the market and prices have shown ½c advance. Local prices show an advance of 1c, with the new make quoted at 37c in solids and 38c in prints. Other creamery butter is selling at 34c in solids and 35c and 36c in prints.

EGG PRICES HIGHER

Montreal.

EGGS.—The English market shows a good opening for Canadian eggs and an export trade has already started. This has created a stronger feeling in the local market and prices in the country have advanced 1½c and 2c per doz. with a corresponding advance in the city markets. A good demand for local consumption still continues.

HOGS ADVANCE

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS.—The market for lightweight bacon hogs shows an advance of 25c over the price of one week ago, and is quoted at $14.50 to $14.75 per cwt. weighed off cars. This is attributed to the better price offered for Canadian bacon in England and a keener demand for the same. Throughout Canada the packers are buying bacon hogs in larger quantities in order to have supplies to meet the demand abroad and this has strengthened up price.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, May 17.—The butter market continues firm while cheese is in an easy position with some reductions in quotations. Under a keen buying competition for storage purposes, eggs are in a strong position with prices advanced. Lard and shortening are fairly steady. Cooked meats are firm under some advances. Smoked, salt and barrel meats tend firmer with some advances in quotations. The live hog market was a shade easier during the week under heavy receipts while cattle, sheep and lambs show little change. Fresh caught whitefish and trout are lower with heavier shipments arriving. Poultry remains firm and unchanged.

BUTTER UNCHANGED

Toronto.

BUTTER.—The market held steady during the week. Production is still rather limited and until pasturage becomes better and the make of grass butter increases, little change can be expected. Quotations are unchanged.

FIRM EGG MARKET

Toronto

EGGS.—A heavy packers' demand is still a factor in the egg situation. Packers prefer the eggs gathered in the cooler months for storage and this fact together with a good consumer demand tends to make competition keen among country buyers. Dealers are paying one to two cents per dozen higher at country points and in consequence prices to the retail trade are advanced. Quotations now run from 32c to 33c per dozen.

HOGS SLIGHTLY EASIER

Toronto

FRESH MEATS.—The live hog market was slightly easier during the week, due to the heavier receipts and as packers were pretty well supplied they were able to put into effect a 50c cut, making the fed and watered basis $14. In the face of heavy receipts cattle values somewhat weakened, while calves, sheep and lambs held steady. Fresh pork cuts are up one cent per pound.

Bad Weather Curtails European Sugar Crop

A report from the U. S. Department of Commerce on the European sugar crop says: "Earlier expectations of a greatly increased European sugar crop will probably not be realized, as the sowings have been curtailed on acount of bad weather, labor shortage, and displacement by more profitable crops. There is a marked increase in sowings in Poland, France and Italy. The French beet acreage is 15 per cent. above last year, that of Italy 30 per cent. above the average for the five preceding years, and the chances in all producing countries in favor of better summer growing conditions than prevailing last year, when there was a protracted drought. Italy expects to provide for domestic requirements, but a surplus for export next season is not in sight. High potato prices have caused increased plantings in the Netherlands, Belgium and Denmark at the expense of beets. Germany's beet acreage will not exceed that of the previous year on account of the shortage of farm labor. It seems improbable that production will more than cover domestic needs, whereas three months ago a large export surplus in the next campaign was freely forecast. In general, farm labor is cheap and plentiful in France, Italy and Poland, but an unusual scarcity exists in Germany."

IRELAND IS ACTIVE BUYER OF CANADIAN FOOD PRODUCTS

Trade Commissioner G. B. Johnson writes in the current issue of The Commercial Intelligence Journal that there is a large demand for wheat in Ireland. The demand in Ireland in connection with Canadian flour is mainly for straight-run Manitoban and for high-grade Manitoban patents. Cheese, for which there is a good market, is practically controlled by Canada. A considerable quantity of dried and preserved fruits are imported. In gallon apples there is trade to be done for shippers who can supply a high quality of solid pack, carefully graded—that is a can containing six pounds of fruit and an ounce or two of water instead of four pounds of fruit and two pounds of water. Sugar, condensed milk, linseed cake and meal, barley, rye and oatmeal, are also in demand.

A BASELESS RUMOR

We, the Pure Food Products Co., Ltd., of Quebec, manufacturers and wholesalers wish strenuously to deny a persistent rumor which has lately been prevalent to the effect that we are not ordinary wholesale grocers, but that our shareholders are interested in the retail business in competition with our retail customers.

We hereby positively declare that we are not and have never been connected with the retail business in any way, that our shareholders are independent Quebec capitalists, entirely unconnected with the retail trade, that our business is wholesale only and that we are willing to prove this by submitting our books to the inspection of any one rightly interested.

We trust this declaration will effectually put a stop to the groundless report above referred to.

THE "WANT" AD.

The "want ad." has grown from a little used force in business life into one of the great necessities of the present day.

Business men nowadays turn to the "want ad." as a matter of course for a hundred small services.

The "want ad." gets work for workers and workers for work.

It gets clerks for employers and finds employers for clerks. It brings together buyer and seller, and enables them to do business though they may be thousands of miles apart.

The "want ad." is the great force in the small affairs and incidents of daily life.

Old Fashioned Apple Pie 45c.

A New York hotel charges 45c a cut for old-fashioned Apple Pie.

Whew ! ! If it costs that much to be old-fashioned, what must it cost to be up-to-date?

A lot of Grocers have a like idea about TELFER Quality Biscuits and their original specialty lines.

Bosh ! !

Our new lines are not high in price.

They're delicious—

They are not expensive—

They're immense.

Why, for 28c per pound you can buy such high class varieties as

DUPLEX CREAM
MILK CHOCOLATE SANDWICH
COCO CREAM
APRICOT CONSERVE
MIXED FRUIT
MARSH-MALLOW DESSERT CINEMA

GOLDEN CEREAL SOAP

You can make two profits by selling SAPON SOAP.

First—because Sapon offers a very generous margin.

Second—because it never remains on the shelf—it repeats because it is the only cereal soap on the market. It is a high class toilet soap made to sell at a popular price.

Try a little—your wholesaler can supply you.

Are You Losing the "Tail-enders"?

Keep an eye on the "tail-enders" in the waiting line at your rush hours. They determine whether your business is to grow or remain stationary. Are they dropping off and going elsewhere because your equipment is overburdened?

An Extra DAYTON SCALE will mean more business

Dayton Scales make your business grow. Women appreciate the way the Dayton visibly records exact weight and price, without error or uncertainty. Machine accuracy is so much better than the old fumbling and awkward figuring that wasted time and cut into profits. The real danger is that your original equipment of Daytons become overloaded.

Watch the "tail-enders"! Keep enough Daytons in service to handle increasing business. That extra Dayton will soon pay for itself in bigger trade.

Dayton Meat Slicers and Cheese Cutters are invaluable companions to Dayton Scales. Use them to save time and build profits.

Eureka Refrigerators
vs.
Hot Weather

Eureka Refrigerators and hot weather always work together, for the hotter the weather, the more you need a Eureka; and the hotter the weather, the better the Eureka will work and save your perishable foods.

Don't let this summer pass with your old ice box. If you do you will pay money out for perishable foods which need perfect refrigeration and you will also pay out money for ice, which when put into a faulty refrigerator will not give you value for your money. So therefore you are spending it for nothing.

It is real economy to purchase a Eureka Refrigerator they are patented and fully guaranteed.

There was a Grocer once who missed a good Bet.

When the Thermometer was hitting the Nineties and Thirsty Souls looked earnestly after Refreshment, he had nothing to offer except a bottle of Catsup. Many days did it happen so, until one evening he had an Idea. Far into the night he sat and lettered a Sign—and it read and the next morning he placed an Order for a Couple of Cases of McLaughlin's "Canada Dry" and "Belfast" Ginger Ale.

COLD DRINKS FOR SALE

But when the Goods were delivered Behold, there was a Beautiful, Colored Poster included—and the Merchant, who knew a Good Thing when he saw it, affixed it to his Window:—and the Cash Register is finishing this story now.

Are You Giving Your Salesmen A Chance?

THE salesmen who are getting the orders to-day—who are producing the business that is keeping your factory running—are not the non-essential order-takers of a few years ago. But a real, live fighting force—out on the front line fighting early and late for your house and your goods. They have been forced to use new methods, to work harder. They realize more and more that the influence of the progressive retail merchant behind your goods is the biggest factor there is to-day in modern merchandising.

But how much of their time is spent waiting for interviews, on introduction of goods, on explanation of plans, advertising policies, etc? The percentage of their time that is of the greatest value to you is when they are actually "in action" with the buyer.

Are you preparing the ground in such a way that they can use their time to the utmost advantage? Are you giving them a chance by throwing ahead of them a regular, consistent "barrage" through the merchant's business paper that prepares him for your goods and for your salesmen, and helps to keep the merchant SOLD when the salesman has GONE?

Let your advertising in Canadian Grocer perform this important service; let it pave the way for your salesmen out on the road; make it back up what they say to the buyer about your goods and your policies.

"Address some of your advertising directly to the retail merchant. If you invest all your advertising in getting your message to the consumer and ignore the retailer entirely, do not be surprised to have disgruntled dealers among your distributors."—Printers' Ink, November 17.

A Valuable Impression

A pleasing impression upon customers is of value. You can create one and at the same time save your goods from damage by spreading sheets of TANGLEFOOT in your show windows, especially over Sunday.

TANGLEFOOT will then be at work for you and will not only catch the flies, but attract the attention of people who pass your store to your efforts to keep your stock clean and fresh. For 1922 TANGLEFOOT has been considerably reduced in price.

Remember TANGLEFOOT catches the germ as well as the fly, and that poisons, traps or powders cannot do it.

Fifty Per cent. Increase in Sales Tax

Hon. W. S. Fielding Makes Budget Announcement in House of Commons—A Number of Reductions are Reported in Tariff—5 Per Cent. Tax is Levied on Confectionery—Soft Drinks and Mineral Waters also are Taxed

(Special Wire from Canadian Grocer Correspondent)

OTTAWA, May 23.—In his budget speech before the House of Commons this afternoon, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, announced an increase in the sales tax of fifty per cent. Heretofore the sales tax has been 1½ and 3 per cent. in the case of domestic transactions and on imports 2 and 4 per cent. In the new announcement these have been raised to 2½ and 4½ per cent. in domestic sales, and to 3 and 6 per cent. in the matter of imports. No further exemptions have been made in the list of commodities already exempt from the sales tax, and it is taken that it applies to the same articles of merchandise as heretofore. No change in the preliminary announcement at any rate is made in the manner of collecting, this feature remaining as heretofore. The grocery trade and retailers generally will view with satisfaction that the collection of the same is still left to the manufacturers and the wholesalers, and that it has not been made a general sales tax.

Five Per Cent. On Confectionery

Another feature of direct importance to the grocery trade is the proposel to tax confectionery five per cent. In the budget announcement of a year ago, the former government removed the luxury tax of ten per cent. on confectionery that had been in operation since May of 1920. It was removed by the late administration after great pressure had been brought to bear by the confectionery and chocolate industries of Canada, and its elimination met with general approval. While the imposed tax by the new government is fifty per cent. less than the former luxury tax, the levying of even five per cent. will no doubt mean somewhat higher prices for confections. Likewise a tax of 15 cents per gallon is also placed on ale and beer, and on sales of mineral waters and soft drinks a tax of 10 cents per gallon is levied.

Preferential Rates On Cocoa

Preferential rates of duty on cocoa, it is announced, are reduced. Sweetened cocoa is reduced ½c. per lb., cocoa in powdered form is reduced 5 per cent., and cocoa preparations are reduced 2½ per cent. under the preferential tariff. Heretofore the British preferential tariff on cocoa shells and nibs has been 7½ per cent., on cocoa paste or liquor and chocolate paste or liquor, not sweetened in blocks or cakes 4c. per lb. Cocoa beans, not roasted, crushed or ground, have been admitted free from British possessions. On cocoa paste or liquor and chocolate paste or liquor, sweetened in blocks or cakes, not less than two lb. in weight the British preferential tariff has been 4½c., on preparations of cocoa or chocolate in powder form 27½ per cent., and on preparations of cocoa or chocolate, and confectionery, coated with or containing chocolate, the weight of the wrappings and cartons to be included in the weight for duty, 1½c. per lb. and 22½ per cent.

More For Cigarettes and Cigars

On cigarettes running less than three pounds of tobacco per thousand the tax will be raised $6 per thousand, while between three and five pounds per thousand will pay $11. On tobacco the tax is increased, excepting the case or roll leaf, where to encourage the Canadian industry the tax will be held to twenty cents per pound. On cigars a tax is to be arranged on a sliding scale, whereby the better grades will carry the heavier tax. Those valued at not more than forty dollars per thousand will pay fifty cents per thousand; between forty and eighty dollars, three dollars per thousand; between eighty and $140, seven dollars per thousand; between $140 and $200, ten dollars per thousand and over that, sixteen dollars.

Stamps on Cheques

The stamp tax on cheques, heretofore two cents on each cheque, is to be two cents on every fifty dollars. On express money orders the tax will be two cents for every fifty dollars, instead of two cents for each order.

Bank overdrafts advance. Notes advance. Notes for every fifty dollars will pay two cents instead of for every hundred dollars. Stock transfers, five cents for every hundred dollars instead of two cents. On telegrams and cables the tax is raised from one cent to five cents.

Customs Act Amendments Off

The amendments made in the Customs Act last year are both repealed, one requiring that the fair market value, when sold for consumption, in the principal markets of the country, whence and at the time when the goods were exported directly to Canada, shall in no case be lower than the wholesale price thereof at such time and place, and that the value for duty shall not be less than the actual cost of production of similar goods at date of shipment to Canada, plus a reasonable profit thereon.

The other amendment that has been repealed is that relating to the valuation for customs purposes of foreign currencies. The amendment made last year required that foreign currencies should not be valued at less than 50 per cent. of par.

The repeal of last year's marketing act was also announced.

Contest For Clerks

WHAT IS THE BEST SELLING IDEA YOU EVER PUT ACROSS?

To the clerk sending the best selling story, Canadian Grocer will pay the sum of $5.00. The second best $3.00; and the third $2.00. All other stories that are used, will be paid for at the regular rates.

STORIES TO BE IN BY JUNE 20--WINNERS WILL BE ANNOUNCED JUNE 30 AN ISSUE DEVOTED TO RETAIL SALESMEN

This contest is open to every employee of grocery stores in Canada and Newfoundland. The style of story required is one showing the idea used to move a certain quantity of some particular line or brand of goods. Perhaps you have put in a window display that has turned the trick. If so describe the window carefully. You may have some particular method by which you suggest certain articles to customers that result in sales on articles that customers had no intention of buying when they first entered the store. Perhaps the store at some time or other was overloaded with an article and you assisted in cleaning it up. Things like these are happening in your store every day. Write and tell us about them.

CONDITIONS OF CONTEST

Every store must state the brand name of the article sold. The quantity sold and the length of time it required to sell it. The goods sold must show the merchant a fair profit. All the methods used to bring about the turnover must be mentioned.

In order to assist the judges to make a fair decision, each contestant must state plainly the population of the village, town or city in which the store is located. Errors in composition or grammar wiill not be considered. The object of the contest is to obtain the best selling stunt that has been carried out in a grocery store by a clerk during the past year.

"Retailers Must Oppose Double Policy"

A. H. Simpson, Wholesale Grocer in Guelph, Declares That Grocers To-day Must Take Firm Stand Against Manufacturers Who Do Not Treat All Retailers in the Matter of Price, on the Same Basis—Ontario Grocers in Convention Discuss Many Problems

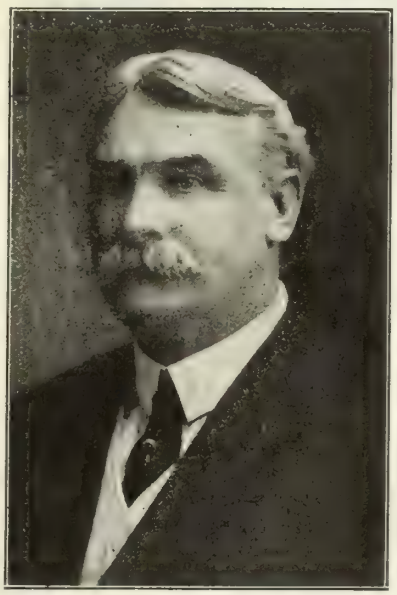
By Staff Representative of Canadian Grocer

TORONTO, MAY 17.—The annual convention of the Ontario retail grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association opened to-day. The convention was well represented from practically all sections of Ontario and the discussion of many topics was entered into with much earnestness and lively interest.

Grocers and representatives of manufacturing concerns attending the convention are as follows:

D. W. Clark, Toronto; C. A. Elsley, Campbellville; J. D. Wisdom, Allendale; Wilfred McCorvie and John W. Dyer, Chatham; T. Bowman, J. A. Walsh, Duncan Bell, J C. Campbell, and E. L. Lamoureuce, Ottawa; Donald McLean, Toronto; E. Lyons, Toronto; James Hollins, Toronto; John Muir, Niagara Falls; Fred Mungford, Mt. Dennis; J. C. Beaton Oshawa; Jerry Burns, Toronto; T. W. Humble, Toronto; G. A. Babcock, Lindsay; W. H. Edmunds, Vancouver; J. W. Paine, Toronto; A. L. Bickneli, Dunnville; M. H. Marchant, Toronto; R. B. Gallmuth, Milton; H. A. Campbell, Toronto; A. L. Morland, T. W. Collins, J. C. Allen, A. C. Kennedy, A. E. Kelly, J. G. McGuire, Ottawa; V. R. Maylor, Forest; Geo. R. Stevenson, St. Thomas; Lorne O. Pearson, P. L. M. Egan, St. Thomas; J. R. Robertson, Grimsby; Geo. Gibbon, Port Arthur; B. Fish, S. J. New, Geo. I. Wilson, Wm. Brooks, Toronto; A. B. Jackson, Proctor and Gamble Distributing Co. Hamilton; A. Turner, H. J. Dager, Toronto; J. A. McInnes, Chas. Bailey, W. R. Bowring, Toronto; J. Davison, The Welch Co., Ltd., St. Catharines; F. H. Bible, Toronto; W. R. Drynan, Hamilton; C. H. Parsons, Parsons Brown & Co., wholesale grocers, Toronto; T. Kinnear, T. H. Kinnear, wholesale grocers, Toronto; O. M. Cowan, John Sloan & Co., Toronto, Simpson & Co., wholesale grocers, Guelph; A. C. Pyke, secretary Canadian wholesale grocers, Toronto; O. M. Cowan, John Sloan & Co., Toronto, A. H. Simpson, Simpson & Co., wholesale grocers, Toronto; David Morton, David Morton & Sons, Ltd., Hamilton; W. J. Nicol, Geo. H. Thornly, J. N. Nettleton, A. G. Bush, M. Laccohoe, E. Towler, C. R. Cherry, A. H. Boyd, Toronto; M. Kirkpatrick, Lefroy; E. M. Trowern, Dominion secretary R. M. A., Ottawa; R. Burrow & Son and T. R. McCartney, Caledon East; F. W. McCarthy, Beeton; Thos. L. Leckie, Chief Food Inspector, Ottawa; C. E. Hanley, Orangeville; W. J. Spence, A. Dale, Waterdown, and Norman S. Jones, Hamilton.

In the absence of President W J. McCully of Stratford, the chair was taken by D. W. Clark, Toronto. On behalf of Mayor Maguire, who was unable to be present, the delegates were welcomed to the city by Controller Russell Nesbitt. "Conventions are necessary to every trade section," he said, "and particularly to the retail grocery trade as there are great changes now going on."



D. W. CLARK

Grocer on Avenue Road, Toronto, who was honored last week by his election as president of the Ontario Retail Grocers.

Jerry Burns, president of the Toronto section, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Toronto grocers. He likened a convention to a good house cleaning. At no time as at present in the history of the retail grocery business, he believed, was there as much need for the trade to get together for a good housecleaning, to discuss the multitude of subjects that are most vital to the trade. Even though the retail grocers were busy people it was a good plan to get around once in a while and see what is going on among fellow grocers.

NEW OFFICERS OF ONTARIO GROCERS' SECTION

The officers of the Ontario Grocers' Section elected at this convention are as follows: President, D. W. Clark, Toronto; First Vice-President, John Muir, Niagara Falls; Second Vice-President, Thomas Collins, Ottawa; Third Vice-President, W. McCorvie, Chatham; Treasurer, P. L. M. Egan, St. Thomas; Secretary, W. C. Miller, Toronto; Representative on Dominion Board, B. G. Crabtree, Ottawa.

Inspection of Foods

H. J. Daeger, Dominion Food Inspector, gave an address on the Pure Food Act and the inspection of foods. "Before the Act came in force in 1906," he said, "the various adulterants used in the mixing of spices, jams and canned foods, was most deplorable. I can recall the sweeping enforcement that caused great losses to manufacturers, but which no doubt were justifiable in their absorption of dishonest manufacturing methods."

Mr. Daeger dealt with the various amendments to the Act since then, of which the one of most vital interest to the retailer was placing the onus upon the manufacturer. "Previous to this amendment the retailer had to stand all the publicity and had to pay the fine when he was found selling an article that did not meet the requirements of the pure food laws," he continued. "The amended act now joins the manufacturer or importer in the action, placing the responsibility where it properly belongs."

Improper Labelling

The speaker laid particular stress upon the need for merchants to examine the labels attached to the various articles to see that the labels are properly worded in accordance with the regulations. He stated that just before lunch he dropped into a store for samples of extract of lemon. Out of the three samples collected, two of them were improperly labelled. He claimed that frequently he came across merchants who had goods on their shelves several years old, with the result that the old goods were not properly labelled. "This condition would not exist if merchants, would watch their stocks more carefully," he said. "This should not be. In the first place you are liable to hand to your customer, old goods and in the second place you are taking the chance of the inspector dropping in and finding you selling an article, the label of which is contrary to the law. If you find that you have goods on your shelves, the labels of which do not comply with the regulations, I would suggest that you take an inventory of them, and send to the manufacturer for new labels. He would be only to glad to send them, because by so doing he is protecting his goods."

In speaking of the trouble with the peddlers, Mr. Daeger said that the unscrupulous peddler was not so active this year, because the department was gradually weeding them out, and also on account of many prosecutions.

"If a retailer finds a peddler selling goods from house to house that are not fit for consumption he should notify the inspector in that district. I consider the retailer owes it to himself and to his colleagues in the trade to do this, because the peddler is infringing upon the rights of the retailer," concluded Mr. Dacger.

Wholesalers Are Present

A. C. Pyke, secretary of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association and several members of the wholesale fraternity were present to discuss various trade questions particularly the matter of distribution. A committee of retailers will later be appointed to attend the Wholesale Grocers' Convention in Niagara Falls, next month to discuss this subject with the wholesaler.

A. H. Simpson of Simpson & Co., Ltd., Guelph, in speaking of the wholesalers' policy in the matter of distribution stated that it was an established fact that the wholesalers believed that all goods should be distributed through the channels of the wholesale trade, and that no one person or group should get any more favorable terms than another. "If we could get a closer co-operation between the retailer and the wholesaler many of our troubles could be solved," he said. "Some manufacturers are selling certain buying organizations at special terms. This is not right. No manufacturer should supply any retailer on any more favorable terms than others. The retailer should take a firm stand on this point and not support any manufacturer who maintains this double policy, giving some retailers an unfair advantage over their competitors."

Speaking of the chain store competition, Mr. Simpson thought that the best way to overcome it was not to put the business on a price basis. The best policy to adopt was to give good service, sell only the better quality goods at a fair price, and to display them in the best possible manner. In conclusion, he declared that it was necessary for every merchant to keep an accurate account of his business, and to keep proper records. A close check upon expenses and watching every item of cost and particularly the small ones was very essential.

JERRY BURNS
President of the Toronto Grocers' section who on behalf of this body welcomed the visiting grocers to the convention.

Short address were also given on behalf of the wholesalers by Thomas Kinnear and C. N. Parsons of Toronto, both of whom declared that there were many troubles in the retail trade and that the wholesaler was passing through troubled times. They declared that much of this trouble could be smoothed over if the retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers would get together. The policy of selling in the chain stores at prices at which legitimate grocers could not compete was altogether wrong and should be abolished.

W. R. Dryman Speaks

W. R. Dryman, Dominion Canners, Ltd., Hamilton, in speaking on the canned goods situation, said that at one time it had been difficult to comply with the regulations because the government had changed its policy so frequently. He was quite in sympathy with the present regulations as he believed they gave protection to the producers, distributors and consumers. Mr. Drynan admitted that the retail grocer in Canada had his problems these days, but the retail trade in the United States he said, was equally in as bad a position. He spoke about the price competition of the chain stores and maintained that there was a future for the retail grocer if he would keep a nice store and sell quality goods.

David Morton of David Morton & Son, Hamilton, speaking for the manufacturers in the matter of distribution stated that the policy of his firm had been for the past forty years to sell the retail trade direct at one price and that no one obtained more favorable discounts than another. Speaking of the price competition now so prevalent, Mr. Morton claimed that the retail grocer had little to fear from the stores who advertised price if the retail grocer would sell the finest goods and give the best possible service.

The question "are the present methods of distributiin satisfactory?" was discussed with much interest among the members. L. O. Pearson, St. Thomas, stated that the present methods of some manufacturers were very unfair as they gave certain chain stores and departmental stores an advantage over the smaller grocer and that many times these organizations could sell goods at the same price as the small grocer had to pay for them. He thought that the way to eliminate this was for all the legitimate retail grocers to get together and not sell the products of a manufacturer who sold in this manner.

Mr. Pearson suggested that wholesalers would do the retail trade a lot of good if they would instruct their salesmen to figure profits on the selling price, and not on the cost as many of them do. He spoke also of price cutting. "If I buy an article at fifty cents, and my neighbor has to pay sixty cents," he said, "I could and would sell it at a lower price because I figure my profit on selling, and if my neighbor does the same, my price will naturally be the lowest."

W. C. Miller's Report

W. C. Miller, secretary of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association in presenting his report, in part, said:

"I have pleasure in submitting to you to-day, a report of matters of particular moment to the Retail Grocery trade and in so doing, I trust that the same may be of some service, and at the same time acquaint some of the grocers present, who are not as familiar with the functions of our organization as others, as to what our activities are in the interests of the retail grocer.

"The retail grocer, as well as other

Denounces Present Income Tax System

E. M. Trowern, Dominion Secretary of the R.M.A. Declares Against Any System of Taxation That Makes the Individual the Assessor—Thos. N. Leckie, Chief Dominion Food Inspector Talks to Ontario Grocers in Convention on Subject of Food Laws

By Staff Representative Canadian Grocer

THURSDAY'S session of the grocers' convention opened with an address by E. M. Trowern, Dominion secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association. At the outset he spoke of the history of the retailers' movement, from the time it was first started twenty-five years ago. The combined effort of all branches of retail trade, he said, had resulted in much good being accomplished for merchants generally. However at the last meeting of the Dominion executive it was decided to hold sectional meetings, where matters of direct importance to the various branches of trade might be separately discussed. Representatives from each province, in the respective trades, form advisory committees to deal with questions that are brought before them. In the grocery trade, B. G. Crabtree of Ottawa is the chairman of this committee. A similar committee deals with the problems of the general store merchant. But in matters embracing all sections of retail trade, all are united.

Important Legislation

Mr. Trowern spoke of the efforts of the Dominion executive in its fight for the retention of the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in this country. The retail grocer could see no reason why this commodity should be stamped out. This was learned through an exhaustive inquiry among merchants. Because of this, considerable pressure was brought to bear, to keep it in Canada, with the result as is now known. It is now expected that another bill will be put through making the manufacture of oleomargarine permanent for Canada. Other matters of legislation affecting the retail grocery trade, that are now before the House, and in which the Dominion executive is interested, include an act to regulate the manufacture, importation, and sale of matches, an act to regulate the sale and inspection of root vegetables, resolutions regarding the grading of eggs, standardizing berry boxes, the grading of apples, and the regulation of cold storage houses.

Speaking of the organization itself, Mr. Trowern pointed out that to-day there were employed in this work throughout Canada, 110 persons, but that number is not sufficient to carry on the work as it now exists.

Referring to the development of farmers' clubs and co-operative stores, the speaker declared that his objection to them lay in the fact that they seek to discredit the legitimate retailer. He cited the case in a particular section in the West where one of these farmers' organizations sent out circulars, making assertions that were decidedly abusive of the retailer. "We are making this particular club prove certain assertions in this circular, reflecting as they do not only on the merchants in this district but on the association as a whole," Mr. Trowern added. "No particular class should govern this country and it is up to the merchants to see that such is not the case. You can not hurt retailers all over the country and get away with it."

Mr. Trowern denounced the income tax system as "rotten." "Any system," he said, "that makes the individual the assessor, is only making liars of the people." He also condemned the census of industry form that has been sent out. "We as retailers should have a voice in our own affairs," concluded Mr. Trowern, "and recent conferences that your Dominion committee had with retailers in both the Commons and the Senate show what good results come from proper organization."

One of the interesting features of Thursday's session was the address by Thos. N. Leckie, chief food inspector for the Dominion of Canada. "We like to get your point of view," he told the grocers in convention. "When the inspector comes into your store, look upon him as your friend. The present food and drug act replaces the old adulteration act. The present one deals with principles, rather than with monopolies as was the case of the old one. In the act, as it is to-day, no article of food is mentioned. Food under the Food and Drug Act means every ingredient used in the mixing of food for the use of man. The sale of bad food is punishable under the criminal code. Any food that is considered unfit for human consumption can be confiscated.

"Misbranding under the present law s largely a matter of labelling. A package includes any receptacle in which any article is packed. The law does not compel the labelling of all packages. If an article is sold as a compound mixture it must be stated so on the label. The grocer can help the department in this way — by refusing to take goods from a manufacturer that does not comply with this law. The average merchant we find is trying to do the right thing, and such a man need have no fear. Prosecutions are only made as a last resort. Under this act foods are standardized As if often seen goods are advertised "up to government standards," it frequently would mean more if labelled "down to government standard." It has been shown that some come within the limits and that is all. It is possible for some manufacturers of certain products to use a certain amount of sugar without it being detected, but if they overstep the portion, it is very easily discovered. Recently an inspector brought in an article of food, and analysis showed that it was not up to standard. It turned out however that the sample that came from the manufacturer was all right, but the one the inspector procured from the wholesaler was below standard."

"Why is it New Zealand only permits a 5 per cent. standard in butter, and Canada has 16?" a grocer asked.

"Butter made to keep for any length of time does not contain more than 10 per cent. moisture," Mr. Leckie replied. "Sixteen per cent. is permitted but if you think it is too much have your association place the matter before the government."

Retailer is Responsible

"In the case of extracts, where many retailers have their own name on them, should the retailer be responsible, if they are not in complance with the laws?" another retailer asked.

"Yes, the retailer is responsible, and your only redress would be a civil action against the manufacturer who put them up."

IN ANSWER to a question as to the best method of combating the chains, and the cash and carry stores, John Muir, of Niagara Falls, who himself conducts a service store, declared that no grocer should be afraid to stand on his feet, if he is giving good service and good goods, and charging for them accordingly.

"Pay no attention to them," he counselled. "At the Falls we had a couple of co-operative stores, but they have both passed out of existence. One of them, too, only paid fifteen dollars per share of fifty dollars to its shareholders. One day a customer came into my store, and in the course of a conversation remarked about the competition of these cash and carry stores, and their lower prices. I only looked surprised and remarked that I didn't know they existed. That is the only way to combat them. Do not recognize the fact that they are in business. Keep on giving your service. Buy the best goods. Watch your buying, and your collections, and you will have nothing to fear from chain competition."

Fraudulent Advertising

DURING THE discussion on "Fraudulent Advertising" at the Ontario Retail Grocers' convention held in Toronto last week, one member stated that in his city he has frequently read advertisements in the daily press where the advertiser had apparently wilfully set out to give the wrong impression in regard to prices. He stated an instance where a merchant offered two packages of the same article for the price of one. But in mentioning the regular price of that article, this merchant had quoted a figure that was considerably higher than the article could be purchased for in any retail store. Then in addition, this member claimed that the store instead of supplying the costomer with the goods in a sealed container as the advertisement implied, gave the customer bulk goods.

Quoting articles at a higher price than the real market value in order to make a cut price appear lower than it really is, was carried on quite freely with a certain class of store a number of years ago. But thanks to the good work of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, this form of advertising has become pretty well extinct. In fact many of the larger retail advertisers have even gone further, and do not mention any regular price at all when advertising special prices.

There are many other forms of false advertising such as telling customers that a certain brand is of the finest quality when in reality it is only second, or otherwise misrepresenting the quality or value of an article in order to put over a sale. A sale may be made in the first instance but the merchant can be assured that the public will not be long in finding out the true metal of a merchant who stoops to such tactics. There is only one way to make a success of advertising and that is to tell the absolute truth and stick to the plain facts.

Another Business Paper Success

MISS CORA HIND, who has recently been very much in the public eye in the Canadian and English press as an authority on business taxes, is another success whose career began with the MacLean Publishing Company and who still continues a regular writer for the Financial Post and a special writer for several of the MacLean business newspapers. Lt.-Col. A. G. Campbell of our circulation staff, was sent to cover all points west of Port Arthur for Canadian Grocer about 1888 or 1889, with instructions to find a good correspondent in Winnipeg. He selected an old acquaintance of his from Flesherton, Grey Co., Ont., who was a clerk in the grocery department of the Hudson Bay Company. For several years she gave all her time to our work. She began as a specialist on general Western conditions, crops and trade outlook and continued this work for about ten years with such marked success that it attracted the attention of J. W. Dafoe of the Manitoba Free Press, who asked her to join his staff as a crop and business specialist. She reported the offer to us and she was advised to accept but to continue with the kind permission of the Free Press to supervise the work on Canadian Grocer market reports, and to do occasional specials. When The Post began she became a regular contributor.

Plea for Better Quality Jams

IT WILL BE a good thing for the trade in general when the poor quality, cheap jam disappears from the Canadian market. Canadian Grocer referred to the fact a few weeks ago that there was too much of this class of jam on the market at the present time, due to the fact that some manufacturers were sacrificing quality for price. The manufacturer is not the only class to blame. The retailer is in a large measure to blame himself. Some retailers have been encouraging manufacturers to sell them on a price basis regardless of quality and other manufacturers in order to get some of the business have considered that they had to conform to the same methods if they were to sell any goods. This naturally resulted in lower grades as well as lower prices.

On the other hand there are manufacturers who have consistently declined to get down to this basis. These firms no doubt have lost business temporarily, but eventually they are bound to regain it because in the long run quality will tell. Many retailers, too, have stayed with the firms that maintained quality and although they may have lost a little of their jam trade to competitors who were less careful about their reputation, they too must eventually win out with quality goods.

As previously reported a strong endeavor is being made to get the government and the jam manufacturers seeing eye to eye to remedy the situation. Undoubtedly a more rigid system of inspection will be carried out. One thing the government must certainly see to and that is that samples of manufacturers' products taken from retail stores should conform to the quality of those sent direct to the department for analysis.

Duplication in Income Tax

ONTARIO grocers in their annual convention in Toronto last week placed themselves on record as opposed to so much duplication in the matter of income taxation. As was pointed out on this occasion, there is in operation in many municipalities an income tax system in addition to the Dominion plan of taxation. Consideration of a similar measure on the part of the Province which has been rumored, would make three taxes on income. It is maintained and the point, it would seem, is well taken, that these taxes could all be collected by the municipality, and then apportioned to federal, provincial and municipal governments in their proper allotments. The expensive machinery employed in collecting these taxes would then be minimized, and the public generally would be better pleased.

The proposal recommends itself as a practical, economical, business-like arrangement that should meet with the general approval of retail merchants.

SIR HAROLD MACKINTOSH

Says Manufacturing Can be Done More Cheaply in Canada

Sir Harold Mackintosh, managing director and chairman of John Mackintosh and Sons, Limited, confectionery manufacturers of Halifax, England, was in Canada during the past week on a business visit. He went from England to Jamaica first, then to New York and later to Toronto. On his way back to New York he visited Montreal.

Speaking to the Canadian Grocer in regard to business in the Old Country, Sir Harold stated that while conditions are not all that could be desired they are gradually on the mend. The high priced sugar situation has been cleared up, and manufacturers are in better position in this respect. After studying conditions in Canada, he thinks, however, that manufacturing can be done more cheaply than in the Old Country at the present time.

Sir Harold took a prominent part in the Great War holding a commissioned rank in the R. N. V. R. engaged in patrol of anti-submarine work in the Atlantic. He is the son of the late John Mackintosh. Among his activities outside his own firm, is a directorship of the Equitable Bank and the Equitable Building Society. He has also been engaged in social and philanthropic work for a number of years. The knighthood recently conferred upon him was in recognition of the public service of both his father and himself.

ANNOUNCING THE WINNERS of the "O-Cedar Trade Paper Heading" Contest

The Winner of the $25 Prize

J. ROY McDONALD

Representing

THE SIMPSON COMPANY,
Guelph, Ontario

Heading Submitted: "Tell Its Uses—Boost Your Sales."

In an effort to secure the opinions of the wholesale trades sales force on our trade paper advertising, we recently offered $50.00 in prizes to those submitting the best headings for an O-Cedar trade paper advertisement, which appeared in a selected list of trade journals.

We offer sincere congratulations to the winning contestants in the O-Cedar Polish Trade Paper Heading Contest. The winning headings and those receiving honorable mention displayed keen thought and excellent judgment. Out of the hundreds of headings submitted, many were well worthy of honorable mention, but the lack of space prohibits our mentioning them all.

We take this opportunity to thank all who entered this contest for their interest in O-Cedar Products.

CHANNELL LIMITED, TORONTO

Just 7 words made a big crease in Sales of—

O-Cedar Polish

A prominent Hardware Dealer in Toronto—The North Toronto Hardware—has discovered very profitable possibilities in 7 small words.

In a recent O-Cedar Polish Trade Paper advertisement he read the details of an investigation, made among O-Cedar Polish users which revealed the fact that only 40 per cent. of those who knew of O-Cedar's merits were actually using it on their furniture.

This dealer also noticed the new O-Cedar slogan—and decided to put it to work. He makes use of it with every purchaser of O-Cedar Polish by asking, do you—

Use it on your piano with water?

Naturally a woman realizes that a Polish that is good enough for a piano is the correct polish to use on all fine furniture. So O-Cedar becomes the permanent brightener of all the furniture in the home, as well as the woodwork and linoleum.

Try these 7 profit increasing words for a month—and note the jump in O-Cedar Polish sales.

RETAIL PRICES:

O-Cedar Polish in Bottles 30c and 60c. In Tins $1.50, $2.50 and $3.50. O-Cedar Polish Mop, large size, triangular shape, $2.00. O-Cedar Dusting Mop, large size, triangular shape, $2.00. O-Cedar Polish Mop, small size, triangular shape, $1.25.

Does Not Believe In Loading Grocer

Tempting the Retailer to Buy a Bigger Quantity Than He Can Possibly Sell in a Given Time at a "Quantity" Price is Not Wise Says Lord Leverhulme, Head of One of the World's Greatest Mercantile Industries

TORONTO, May 20 (Special).—"I do not believe in loading a merchant with more stock than he feels he can sell in a given time," Lord Leverholme, head of Lever Bros., remarked to a representative of Canadian Grocer, in the course of an interview a few days ago. Lord Leverhulme was discussing selling methods. He did not see the wisdom of making a price attractive for quantity buying thus tempting grocers to buy more than they possibly could sell in a particular period. "In the Old Land we sell to the trade both through the jobbers and direct, but in either case it is the same price. Over there we have a system of deferred rebates. That is, at the end of the year we remit to merchants, certain percentages according to the quantities of soap that they have bought during the twelvemonth. We find this system is entirely satisfactory, and works to the mutual advantage of all concerned."

Single One-man Store is Unsurpassed

Commenting on the growth of the chain store movement in this country, this veteran industrial leader expressed the opinion that nothing could surpass the single "one-man" store. He himself began life as a grocery clerk in his father's store, and he declares unreservedly that there is no finer business training in existence. "These multiple stores, as we call them in the Old Country," he added, "must have able-bodied, clever managers in order to succeed, but even so, managers of this calibre cannot duplicate the family grocer, the man who has studied his customers, who knows their every whim. The grocer must always have the interests of his customers at heart. His great consideration must be for the public he serves. He must be able to call all his customers by name, to know the little things that please them, when there is sickness in their home, and all the little affairs of life that call for expressions of sympathy or pleasure. The grocer is the greatest student of human nature, and he knows that a smile or a word of friendly sympathy will do much to cement the ideal business relations that should exist between merchant and customer.

"Cutting Does Not Pay"

"I have never known a man to build up a substantial profitable trade by 'cutting' prices. The cutter seems to be impressed with the idea that people are always on the lookout for something cheap, and it is his business to give it to them. It is not so. The concern of the grocer should be to give the public value for their money. The consumer does not expect the merchant to give goods away. The latter is willing to pay a fair, reasonable price for an article. The retailer must always be more concerned about the public's profit, than about his own, but in doing this, he is also building profits for himself. Honest service and goods are always rewarded. Not an exorbitant but a fair, legitimate profit is the due of every grocer, and the retailer who is not getting it, is not building along the right lines.

"While the consumer who carries home her groceries considers she has saved herself money, I really believe if she stopped to think she would realize she hadn't. Her time should be worth something to her. I am sure the grocer can deliver her goods cheaper than she can carry them home."

Co-partnership Plan Succeeding

Lord Lelerhulme in spite of his advancing years, is remarkably active and keenly alive to present day conditions. His scheme of co-partnership among his employees is engaging a big share of his attention at the present time. He is a firm believer in this plan, and declares that it is working satisfactorily in his experience. The worth of co-partnership, he says, is not proved in years of prosperity but in years of adversity, such as the world has been passing through recently.

Lord Leverhulme was accompanied to Canada by H. G. Hart, and C. W. Barnish, directors at the centre of administration in England.

ly a local business compelled to comply with this law, as compared with the jam manufacturer doing an interprovincial business?" was another question.

"A jam factory doing an interprovincial business must be licensed under the Department of Agriculture, but the small manufacturer doing only a local business is not obliged to have such a license. A Dominion inspector however has a perfect right to enter the latter place for the purpose of inspection the same as any other factory."

"When asked for saltpetre, what would be given, nitrate of potash or nitrate of soda?" another grocer asked.

"Nitrate of potash in most instances, but Chili salt petre is nitrate of soda."

Wilson Graham Company, Limited, wholesale grocers of Ottawa have secured the agency for Ottawa Valley district for Maple Leaf Malt Extract, manufactured by the Maple Leaf Malt Extract Company of Montreal.

What is Your Opinion of Chain Stores?

ONE of the most interesting subjects in the retail grocery business to-day, is the question of the chain store. Successfully conducting a retail grocery store to-day is vastly different than it was a few years ago. Business has been going through many changes and some of these changes are due to the influence the cash and carry and chain store has upon the purchasing public.

That the chain store has come to stay, is the opinion of many hard headed business men. One thing that has assisted stores of this character has been the clamor of the public for cheaper goods and another has been the "buyers' market" which has permitted buyers to purchase goods at their own price and often far below the real market value. These "bargains" however are now becoming fewer and harder to find.

There are other things also that have assisted the chain store to get firmly planted. The principal thing, however, in the mind of the regular family grocer, is how to meet these changed conditions and the competition of low prices.

It is an interesting subject and one which will be dealt with in a series of articles in Canadian Grocer the first of which will appear in the first issue in June.

Where and When Stores are Closing

A List of Half Holiday Closing in Towns and Cities Throughout Canada Prepared From Information Supplied by Merchants—Demonstrating the Growing Popularity of the Weekly Half Holiday

THE setting aside of one half day in the week for a holiday has now become quite general across Canada. This weekly holiday, however, does not fall on the same day in every municipality and much confusion and time lost has often resulted with the travelling business man. With the object in view of assisting the travelling man, Canadian Grocer for several years past has published a list of the places enjoying a weekly half holiday. Every effort has been made to make the following list as accurate as possible. Merchants whose town is not listed are requested to send in their name and a further list of the places enjoying a weekly half holiday. Piggly-Wiggly-Quebec Ltd., Will Open Its First Store in Montreal Soon

Fifty Stores, it is Stated, Will be Opened Throughout Montreal as Soon as Business Warrants it—Company is Incorporated for Ontario and Quebec

MONTREAL (Special).—A charter was granted recently for the Piggly-Wiggly-Quebec, Ltd. The company is incorporated for Ontario and Quebec with a paid up capital of $1,200,000, made up of 70,000 shares of common stock at $10 par and 50,000 preferred shares at par value $10, being 8% cumulative.

The first store will open at 710 Mount Royal Ave. east, Montreal. The Board of Directors of the company has not yet been informed but it is known that J. A. Nadeau will be general manager of the Quebec concern. According to present plans the first store is to be opened this month and it is stated that fifty stores will be opened throughout the city as soon as business warrants it.

J. A. Nadeau has for years been sales and buying manager of Hudon, Orsali Co., Ltd., wholesale grocers of Montreal, and for some time was sales manager of Watt and Scott, grocery brokers of this city. Mr.. Nadeau was a partner in the firm of W. E. Forbes and Nadeau until January 1, 1919, when he sold his interest.

Big Chain of Stores Proposed

The Piggly Wiggly stores are more or less familiar to the trade in the United States as there are over 600 branches. Last fall they were to have started in Toronto but plans did not materialize. They are the type of grocery store known as "groceterias" and have a staff of from two to three in each branch. Each store in the system is equipped through a standard set by the head office of the firm in Memphis, Tennessee, with the exterior decorated in yellow and blue colors. The interior finish of the stores in the U. S. are in golden oak with a cashier's desk at the front and two turnstiles through the railing leading to two long aisles which are walled in by shelving six feet high. Each package, bag, or bottle, bears its own price and the customer takes the basket which is handed her at the door and gathers her purchases which are wrapped as she leaves. Adding machines facilitate the work of the cashier who collects the money for the goods before the wrapping is done.

Montreal Like Memphis

In "Forbes" Magazine, Clarence Saunders, who originated this type of store, tells the story of its beginning, which reminds one very much of the conditions now existing in Montreal. He said in part:—"There was a wholesale house (Memphis, Tennessee), that was being boycotted by merchants because it sold to a chain of grocery stores. I was offered an opportunity to go with them and I immediately set out to break that boycott. That was not easy to do but I immediately began calling on all merchants that had been boycotting the house. I realized that it would probably be useless to try to argue with them but on my visit I would now and then drop some suggestion for improving the looks of the store, some method to keep the vegetables in the stem from becoming wilted, some method of displaying goods to better advantage or arranging things for greater convenience. I would usually say something incidentally about an attractive price that I could make to the grocer on some lines of merchandise. It was not long before I began to get small orders, at least, from these grocers."

The wholesale house then offered him a position to organize the merchants who did not belong to the chain store system into a little organization of their own, to be known as the United Stores, Inc. He goes on to say that he was to start a store which should be the model for the rest and he was to do the buying for all of them. Each store was able under these new arrangements to do a larger volume of business because he could sell at lower prices and yet each merchant would still be the manager of his own business. This idea led to the foundation of the Piggly Wiggly stores under Mr. Saunders' management.

The Quebec Company recently chartered is according to the promoters, backed by Canadian capital and for the most part Montreal business men.

Piggly-Wiggly Ltd. Claim Patents On Turnstile System

Montreal, (Special)— Since the Piggly-Wiggly, Limited of Canada has been incorporated and the first stores in Montreal have been procured this company state they have taken steps to make secure their rights in connection with patents they hold both in Canada and the United States on the self-serve grocery system. In the name of Clarence Saunders, these patents have been granted, specifying in particular the turnstile and the uniform lay-out of the store which necessitates the customer passing up and down each aisle in order to find his or her way out.

Before this company was formed in Canada they were lax in enforcing their rights and a number of stores in different cities in Canada have adopted the turnstile system and many forms of the self-serve system. Canadian Grocer representative was informed by one of the directors of the Canadian firm that since they have begun operations in Canada they intend to uphold the rights of their patent which will allow only the Piggly-Wiggly stores to adopt this particular form of self-serve system.

* * * *

Interviewing the general manager of a chain of groceterias in Toronto the system of which is similar to that of the above mentioned chain stores so far as the turnstile is concerned, Canadian Grocer was informed that they have not been notified of any action being taken to prevent them from operating the turnstile system. "If the Piggly-Wiggly people think we are infringing upon their rights, let them go to it. They can rest assured that the Canadian laws will protect them."

Suggests An Annual Grocery Exhibition In Large Centres

Montreal, (Special)—In the past, England has furnished Canada with a large number of grocery clerks and grocery proprietors. These Englishmen have brought with them many practical ideas and something of a grocery art that has developed in that country through a thorough system of apprenticeship which has made the business a study. Almost in every grocery store is to be found a clerk who got his early training in England. Many of the clerks of five or ten years back now own their own stores.

Want Grocery Exhibition

In the past month or so many grocery clerks and proprietors have approached Canadian Grocer with the suggestion that in the different large centres in Canada, an annual grocery exhibition or pure food show be held with several objectives. In the first place, it has been suggested, that such an exhibition would interest the public in new food products and renew interest in old lines. It would cultivate more interest in the grocery trade in general and lend an art to the business that is sadly lacking in this country.

Grocery men who have come from England tell of the annual contest that is held for the purpose of granting cups to the best tea and the best coffee blenders among the grocery clerks. The clerk who wins the cup three years in succession becomes the owner of it. They also tell of speed contests in packing and wrapping. These contests, they say, have made the grocery clerks more efficient in their work, since they have a study of it. There is no doubt that in the Old Country the grocery business is made a study of and it has shown good results.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE raw sugar market during the week held fairly steady on the basis of 2½c c. & f. New York. Sales were not large, the market being rather quiet.

Canadian refined sugar is unchanged but refiners' lists remain merely nominal as wholesalers continue to quote irregular prices, below refiners' list.

Announcement is made of the opening of the Japan and Formosa tea markets. New crop Japan opened at seven to nine cents per pound higher than last season, but there are indications that the higher prices will not hold. The Colombo market is firmer and the buying in England for consumption continues in greater volume since the reduction in the British tariff. For the period from January 1 to April 30, shipments of tea from Great Britain to Canada amounted to 1,750,000 lbs.

Primary coffee markets remain in a firm position but the spot situation is unchanged and no immediate change is looked for. Bulk cereals are generally steady but quiet: the interest in this market at present being centred upon prepared breakfast foods.

Canned vegetables and fruits are steady with prices generally maintained although there appears to be some price cutting in quarters where stocks are being reduced.

Prunes remain in a strong position, while raisins continue to indicate weakness, due to the quiet market and large stocks. Dates are indicating a firmness.

Vegetables and fruits are freely offered and prices tend easier.

MONTREAL, May 25.—There is an optimistic note about the sugar market. The trade seems to feel that sugar is in a strong position and buying is, by statistics, heavier than it has been in past months. Prices are unchanged. Molasses is steady at the present basis. Canned goods continue to be cut and there is anxiety in the wholesale trade to unload canned fruits. Spices and rice are quiet without any change in either direction although Texas and California rices are strong. Walnuts are strong and shelled almonds have advanced. Currants are strengthening up. Sultana raisins are scarce with a higher price. The feature is dates. New York is now trying to buy Hallowee dates in Montreal and the market is advancing. Teas are uncertain until the budget proposal is known. The coffee market is firm but without any change. Cereals are steady but limited in demand. There is no change in package goods. Package prepared cereals are moving more freely.

CANNED GOODS UNSETTLED

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS.—The canned goods market is still unsettled with a wide range in quotations. Canned fruits in particular are cut, since all holders are anxious to unload. Canned tomatoes show a little firmer tone but cuts are still noticed. The new season's prices on jams may be expected about the middle of next month.

DATE SUPPLIES LOW

Montreal.

DRIED FRUIT.—Dates feature the dried fruit market. The London market is cleaned up and New York, during the past week has repeatedly endeavored to buy Hallowee dates in Montreal at an advance of one cent above local prices. This indicates a strong future for dates. Import prices have already advanced. Currants have advanced two shillings in Greece and New York quotes an advance of from 25 to 50c. Turkish sultana raisins are short and strong in price. Spot stocks are pretty well cleaned up. Evaporated apples are held in few hands and another advance would not be surprising. The prune market shows more strength with the New York market advancing after holding below quotations at the coast.

SHELLED ALMONDS ADVANCE

Montreal

NUTS.—The nut market is unusually active for this time of the year. In view of the rising market abroad, there is fairly heavy buying for delivery in September. Shelled almonds have advanced one cent in New York but the local market is yet unchanged. Locally walnuts are steady but in France the price has again advanced. The rest of the market is quiet but promises a good future since stocks here are well cleaned up.

TEA SITUATION UNCERTAIN

Montreal

TEAS.—There is an uncertain tone to the teas at the present time. Primary markets are strong and all influences bearing on this market tend toward an advance in price. The uncertainty comes in the expectations of some clause in the government's new budget which may affect teas. There is nothing certain in this point, however, but local wholesalers and tea men state that if the government do not make any reductions in the taxation on teas that tea prices may be expected to advance immediately.

PINEAPPLES AT BEST

Montreal.

FRUIT.—Pinapples are about ready for preserving. There is little hope that they will go below the present price. They are hard to get and are being brought by rail from Key West. Strawberries are coming in good supply with an eager market. Prices are unchanged. Everything now depends upon the railway service. Importers state that the service so far is good and that the quality is keeping up with comparatively small loss by freight. If this can keep up the prices will not advance. Some shipments come from Kentucky and Maryland by express. This makes the price a little higher. Oranges are small in shipment and poor in quality. California cherries are on the market but the price is high. Six and seven dollars a crate is asked.

VEGETABLES LOWER

Montreal

FRESH VEGETABLES.—Some easier prices are noted in fresh vegetables with a better supply in all lines. Cucumbers are lower and tomatoes are lower with better supplies but also a bigger demand. New potatoes are a little easier in price but the damp weather has caused an advance in Canadian asparagus. Green and wax beans are lower in price. Spinach is lower in price. New cabbage is offered in bigger supply with easier prices.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, May 23.—There are few changes in market conditions but there appears to be a slightly improved tone in business. Wholesalers report that country merchants are buying in heavier quantities and that many orders for drop shipments are booked. Cereals, both bulk and package, are steady with the firmness on rolled oats continuing. Lobster packers have withdrawn from the market. Nuts show little change other than an improvement in buying for future. New crop Japan teas, opened higher than last year while a firmer tone has developed in the Colombo market. Sugar prices continue irregular but there are no changes in refiners' lists. Spices hold steady to firm. Vegetables are lower under heavy shipments while oranges and pineapples are firm and slightly higher.

ACTIVITY IN LOBSTERS

Toronto

CANNED GOODS.—There has been such a heavy demand for new pack lobsters for export, principally to France and England, that packers have withdrawn from the market. Although none of the new pack has yet reached this market the price is comparatively high; halves will run around $4.90 and quarters around $2.80 per doz. Solid pack apples are now practically cleaned up from first hands. Crushed pineapple in No. 10 tins is offered at $9.75 per doz. Jutland sardines are quoted at a lower price of $6.50 per case. Gold Bar yellow cling peaches, 2½s, are quoted at $4.25 per doz. Tiger catsup, No. 15 bottles, is offered at $1.45 per doz.

PRUNE PRICES STEADY

Toronto

DRIED FRUITS.—The local market shows practically no change. The movement in prunes is fairly active, with prices steady. Raisins are almost at a standstill. The announcement of opening prices on prunes by an independent California packer has caused little interest in primary markets, as many believe that prices will ultimately be lower.

ACTIVITY IN NUTS

Toronto.

NUTS.—Business in shelled nuts appears to have a better tone with more activity in future buying. Although the market in France is still low it is the opinion that prices on shelled Bordeaux walnuts will advance when the fall demand commences, principally because stocks held abroad are considerably reduced.

JAPAN TEAS HIGH

Toronto

TEAS.—Information is to hand on the opening of the markets in Japan and Formosa. Prices on Japan teas are 7c to 9c per lb. higher than last season, and better grades will probably be scarce. The opinion among local tea importers is, however, that these prices are too high and that they will likely recede by the time shipments are due. The Colombo market is firmer and the stimulated buying in England created by the reduction in duty continues to such an extent that there have been large withdrawals of tea. The quantity of tea shipped to Canada from Great Britain from January 1 to April 30 amounted to 1,750,000 lbs.

HOG MARKET STEADY

Toronto

FRESH MEATS—The live hog market during the week held fairly steady on the basis of $13.50 fed and watered. Packers were endeavoring to put a cut of 50c into effect all week but owing to the small number of hogs offered, they were unable to do so and the majority of sales were made to ouside sources. Heavier shipments of cattle resulted in an easier market. The quality of veal is noticeably improved but there is little change in prices other than a closing up of the spread between the medium and better grades.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, May 23.—The outlook throughout the Prairie Provinces has never been better and a record crop is expected. The land is in splendid condition due to continued heavy rainfalls and with warm weather the prospects are exceedingly bright though the season is late. Business is reported quiet due to the unsettled condition and wet weather during the week. The tea and coffee market continues firm. Canned salmon is in good demand and the tendencies are for higher prices on pinks and cohoes. Dried fruits are in good demand and prices on 1922 crop prunes have been named by some packers but little interest is shown as it is expected that these prices will ease off before the new crop is ready. The feature of the cereal market has been the advance in price of bulk rolled oats. Barley is also showing a firmer tone. Jams are in good demand and new pack southern strawberry jam is offered to the trade for immediate delivery.

COFFEE MARKET STEADY

Winnipeg.

COFFEE.—The market has eased off slightly for immediate shipments owing to the improvement in excange. Coffee for future delivery is firmly held and the market has a steadier tone.

CANNED GOODS FIRM

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS—There is an improvement in the demand for canned salmon as present prices on pinks and cohoes are lower than quotations on the new pack. Imported sardines are in good demand and the tendencies are for higher prices for future arrivals due to the improvement shown in the rate of exchange. Domestic sardines are selling freely and it is not likely that there will be any change in quotations. Summer pack lobsters will be arriving in a month's time on a practically bare market and prices will be about 10 per cent. less than present quotations. Canned vegetables are moving in good volume with quotations unchanged and firm. There has been a recent advance in California canned fruits and with the approach of warmer weather an improvement in the demand is expected.

NEW PRUNE PRICES

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS—Prices on 1922 crop prunes have been named by some packers and the figures quoted are now creating much interest as it is expected these prices will ease off before the crop is ready for shipment. Raisins are in short supply. Stocks are getting low and indications are that the best selling grades will be absorbed before the new crop is available. Evaporated apples continue firm with upward tendencies. Some new arrivals of peaches are finding ready sale at higher prices. Figs are a popular seller as they are offered at reasonable figures.

ROLLED OATS HIGHER

Winnipeg.

CEREALS—The demand for bulk cereals is quiet as buyers are purchasing in small quantities to meet the necessary requirements. Wholesalers have advanced quotations on bulk rolled oats to $2.70 per bag, and the tendencies are for higher prices. Beans continue strong and barley is slightly higher. Peas are selling in limited quantities and prices are well maintained. An increased demand is noted for prepared breakfast foods. Quotations are steady with practically no change in market conditions.

NO CHANGE IN FLOUR

Winnipeg.

FLOUR—There is no change in the flour situation. Prices remain steady as buyers continue to purchase in small quantities.

JAMS CONTINUE FIRM

Winnipeg.

JAMS—Some packers are offering new pack Southern strawberry jam for immediate delivery at slightly higher quotations. The demand for jam is gradually showing an improvement.

SHELLED WALNUTS EASIER

Winnipeg.

NUTS—French bordeaux walnuts halves are slightly easier. Shelled almonds show no change. Spanish shelled peanuts are slightly easier. Brazils continue in good demand.

RICE MARKET STEADY

Winnipeg.

RICE—The rice market is steady locally with a firm tone evident in primary markets. Stocks of rice locally are fairly heavy and no changes in quotations are expected in the near future.

SUGAR LOWER

Winnipeg

SUGAR—The local market is in an unsettled condition. Refiners are selling sugar in Western Canada at approximately 40c per cwt. less than export price. Sugar is quoted at $6.90 to $6.95. There is a light demand.

SYRUPS UNCHANGED

Winnipeg

SYRUPS—There is no change in the syrup situation. Buyers are showing little desire to buy any large quantities and as a result the movement is routine at prevailing quotations.

STARCH STEADY

Winnipeg.

STARCH—All grades of starch are steady in tone, for while there is no large movement the trade is buying frequently as it is needed.

SPICES HOLD FIRM

Winnipeg.

SPICES—There is no change in the spice market. The demand is only for immediate requirements. The olive market is stronger as stocks are practically exhausted.

Markets By Wire

POTATO MARKETS BY WIRE

HALIFAX.—Potato market slightly weaker during the past week with a continuous tendency downward. 70c. per bush. is the ruling price, but sales have been made at lower prices.

ST. JOHN.—Potato market holding steady at $1.90 to $2 per barrel for best stock. Fair demand, but very few offering at river points.

QUEBEC.—Potato market very slow with no demand. 70 to 80c. per 80 pound bag.

MONTREAL.—Potato market weaker, arrivals heavy, best table stock Green Mountains or Quebec Whites $1 per 90 pounds carlot loose on track. Imported new potatoes $7.50 per 165 pound barrel.

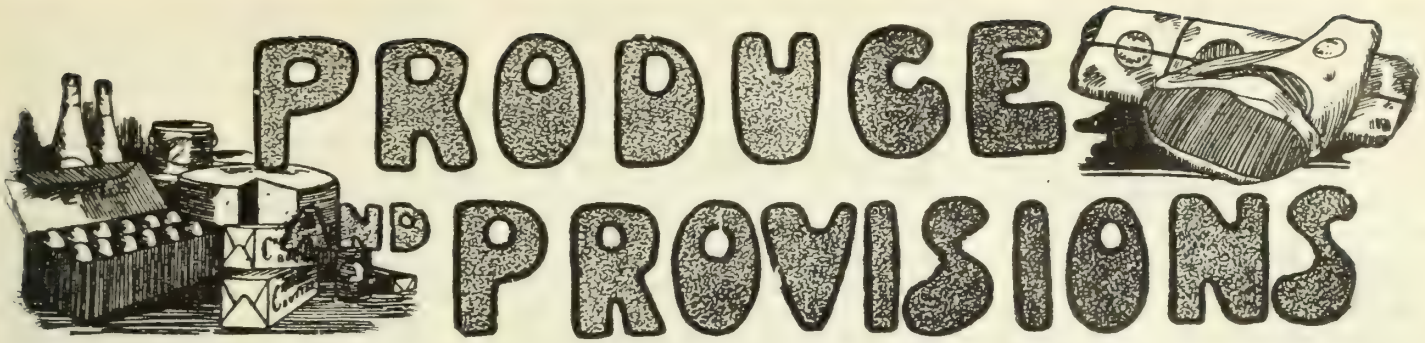
sections of retail merchants have been confronted with regulations and matters of legislation which have brought to the average retailer realization of the necessity of organization. This was particularly exemplified during the regime of the Board of Commerce under whose jurisdiction a number of obnoxious regulations were passed and which has been felt so far as to regulate the percentage on which grocery products could be sold and which resulted in the average grocer being compelled to sell sugar and other commodities at a heavy loss to themselves. The activities of our Association in opposition to these regulations are well known and the operations of the Board of Commerce are now a thing of the past. At no time, possibly, in the history of the retail grocery business has it been found so essential for the retail trade to be organized, more so than at the present time, particularly in view of the ever increasing number of distributing elements which are cropping up from day to day and which tend to entirely change the grocery business, not only in this province but throughout Canada. We are confronted to-day with co-operative stores, co-operative buying clubs, general stores on wheels, mail order competition, wholesalers selling direct to the consumer, district distributing warehouses, hawkers, peddlers, transient traders and other lines of unfair distribution, all of which are encroaching seriously upon the trade of the legitimate trader. I trust that at the conference which we expect to hold with the manufacturers and wholesalers some legislation may be accomplished whereby grocery products can be distributed to the consumer through the proper and legitimate channels.

For a number of years the retail merchants were subjected to unfair competition by peddlers and others who would sell farm products at various rates and measures and which resulted in our Association pressing for and securing legislation for standardizing the weights of all vegetables. The Association is also endeavoring to remove the fee for the inspection of weights and measures and have this charged up as a public expense and paid out of the public funds of the country instead of being levied on the individual retailer.

Your executive officers endeavored at the present session of the Legislature to secure amendments to the Factory and Shop Act, which would more clearly define the retail grocer.



Arguments for Margarine Effective

Discussion of the Question of the Retention of the Manufacture and Sale of Oleomargarine in Canada in Parliament Last Week Brings Out Some Interesting Points—Extracts From Speeches by Various Members on the Subject

DISCUSSION of the question of the retention of the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in the Dominion House last week brought out many arguments on both sides. The result of the vote was announced in last week's issue of Canadian Grocer, that is, favoring the continuance of the manufacture and sale of margarine. The remarks of the Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, and the Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the Progressives and a former Minister of Agriculture, have already been referred to at some length. Opinions of other parilamentarians on this subject are reproduced from Hansard this week, as follows:

HON. S. F. TOLMIE (Victoria city): "Mr. Speaker, I have listened with a great deal of interest to the remarks of the hon. member for Comox-Alberni (Mr. Neill) and to the compliments which he has paid to the manufacturers of oleomargarine. I think, however, that in one or two respects his statements are subject to correction.

"The hon. gentleman said that the spread between the price of butter and the price of oleo at the present time—in this city to-day the price of creamery butter is 48 cents; of animal oleo, 28 cents. and of vegetable oleo, 24 cents—was due to propaganda. Now, I know the gentlemen interested in the manufacturer of oleomargarine; they are reputable citizens, and I think the hon. member ought to have proof before he makes statements of that kind. This spread, as in the case of nearly all manufactured articles, is due largely to the cost of ingredients used in the manufacture, and to other business conditions which vary, as all know, from time to time.

"With regard to the cooking compounds, I may say that practically all these compounds are now made in Canada; the oils used therein are imported in their crude state, duty free. I might point out, too, that oleomargarine is not the only thing that is used to 'humbug the public'—if that is done. There are many other things that can be twisted about in the ordinary channels of trade to deceive the public. I do not think anything has been done in connection with oleo in that respect which is not done in other lines, as I hope to prove a little later.

No Closer Inspection

"The hon. gentleman has suggested that the English margarine is very much superior to that which is produced in Canada, due, as he says, to close inspection. I do not think that the English inspection can be any closer than that which is applied in Canada. The work is carried on only in certain licensed establishments under the close supervision of our Meat Inspection Branch, a branch of the Department of Agriculture which has established for itself a very high reputation. Every movement connected with the handling of all the materials used in the manufacture of oleomargarine is subject to the most careful inspection.

"If we were to follow out the desire of the mover of this resolution we would simply take away from the people of Canada the privilege of purchasing a wholesome food which is manufactured and sold in practically all other countries. It is a food that was used by our soldiers throughout the war, and whether it contains a high percentage of vitamines or a low percentage, certainly the Canadian troops did not lack 'pep' when they met the Germans. Moreover, the hon. gentleman would place entirely in the hands of the dairymen the manufacture of a material which is used as a spread for our bread and for many other purposes. Now, the dairymen are a very reputable lot of people; the dairy industry is one of the most important in the country; I am a dairyman myself. But I do not feel that the dairymen have the right to demand as much protection as is asked for by this resolution; I do not think the Canadian dairymen really need it. If the butter makers of the United States can make butter at a profit notwithstanding the sale of oleo in that country, surely the Canadian dairymen can do likewise.

No Question of Wholesomeness

"There is no question at all about the wholesomeness of this article, which has long since been accepted all over the world as a useful food product. The dairyman prepares his butter from milk products, and he has the right to color that product and make it look like June grass butter all the year round. The beef men should have the same privilege in the matter of marketing to the best possible advantage the oil obtained from the beef. I may say that the by-products of the ox play a most important part in the price paid to the farmer for the living animal. All farmers who are producing beef cattle will agree that the price of beef cattle has gone down very largely in late years, due to the fact that the by-products have fallen in value. If this resolution should pass and no legislation be brought down to extend the period during which the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in this country shall be permitted, then the oils obtained from some 600,000 head of cattle passing through our inspected abattoirs every year would have to find a market somewhere else. That is one reason why the manufacture of oleomargarine should be permitted in this country, under careful inspection.

Dairymen are Protected

"In connection with our regulations governing the manufacture of oleomargarine, the dairyman has been very carefully protected, as well as the consumer. In the first place, this article is not permitted to be manufactured except in licensed establishments where inspection is carried on. No coloring matter is allowed to be added in the manufacture of oleomargarine. No coloring matter is permitted to be sold or given away with packages of oleomargarine. No mixing of butter with oleomargarine is permitted by anybody without a license, which means that the business is confined to these establishments. They are not permitted to use the words 'butter,' 'creamery,' 'dairy,' or the name of any breed of cattle on the package or in any advertising. The labels and brands must be approved by the Minister of Agriculture. Here is one of the packages with the word 'oleomargarine' plainly showing. Here is another one in which the material is put up, and on the material itself the word 'oleo' is stamped in very large letters. Careful record is kept of all oleomargarine sales by all our wholesale dealers in this material. They are compelled to sell only in the original packages. The importation and manufacture of oleomargarine is entirely under the supervision of our Veterinary Director General and his efficient aggregation of inspectors. The Dairy Commissioner takes care of sales within the country and the use of oleomargarine.

"Let us see what have been the results from the enforcement of the law. We find that in 1919, there were eight convictions for infractions of the oleomargarine law, as against 111 for the sale of bad butter. In 1920 there were twelve convictions under the oleo law and 126 convictions for the sale of bad butter. In 1921 there were fourteen convictions for selling oleo against the law, and 126 for selling bad butter; showing that the producers of good butter have no reason to fear the manufacturer and dealer in oleo so much as the man who produces bad butter in competition with it. This indicates—"

MR. WARNER: "Could the hon. member give the number of firms that were selling oleomargarine alone compared with the number that were selling butter alone?"

Sell Both Butter and Oleo

MR. TOLMIE: "I could not give my hon. friends figures in that form. I presume in a great many of the grocery stores it is the usual thing—it is pretty usual in our country—to sell both oleomargarine and butter. The figures I have given indicate that it is much easier to control the sale of oleomargarine under the present law than it is to control the sale of butter produced in many establishments where constant inspection is not carried out.

"I quite agree with the previous speaker in one or two points. I think we should certainly impose a duty on oleomargarine coming into this country; and I think we might even go further and fix a standard for oleomargarine. I understand that some of the European manufacturers now deodorize the oil obtained from the British Columbia whale and use it in the manufacture of oleomargarine. I am told the work is done so completely that no fishy flavor of any kind attaches to the resultant product. In this country the manufacturers confine themselves exclusively to the use of the vegetable and animal oils obtained from our killing establishments throughout the country."

HON. CHARLES MARCIL (Bonaventure): "I should consider myself recreant to my duty if I did not vote against the continuance of this attempt to foist upon the country a product which I do not think the people want. It was allowed as a substitute during the war and there is now no further need for the manufacture of it. Those who can buy butter at any reasonable price do not care for oleomargarine. I do not think that any man going into a store would buy this article if he could get butter at a fair price. People had to buy oleomargarine during the war because the price of butter was very high, but now prices are reasonable and they can afford to get the genuine product.

"We should give the farmer every encouragement possible. The markets of the United States are now closed against him, and the farms are all suffering from an exodus of the rural population to the cities. Thousands of people have left my constituency, and the same is true of other places in Canada. We must make the conditions of rural life attractive so that these people may be induced to return to the farms. In the province from which I come particularly, there is no more promising industry than the dairy business, and I therefore feel it my duty to support this resolution."

Hon. W. R. MOTHERWELL (Minister of Agriculture): "Mr. Speaker, like nearly every other subject of debate, there are two sides to this question. I freely and frankly admit that at the outset, but I propose to take one side and try to show cause why the resolution prohibiting oleomargarine should be sustained. The history of oleo dates back to 1867, when an eminent French investigator discovered how to make cheap butter out of the natural fats and oils. Ever since it has been used as a substitute for butter.

"So long as we have in force another prohibition which is effective with regard to the production of butter in Canada, it seems to me that we should be making a mistake in permitting the importation and manufacture of oleo. I refer to a prohibition which was enacted in 1886 by the government of that day and continued in force in its earlier form until 1903. In that year the dairy industry—which was a struggling one in those days; it was not as well established as it is now—was given further encouragement in the prohibition of the manufacture and importation of renovated butter. The idea was to enable the dairy industry to get upon its feet, because it was not an easy matter to start that industry in Canada. Some people take the ground that dairying is an industry indigenous to this country. But it is not so indigenous to Canada as it is to many other countries with which we have to compete; not so indigenous as to make it unnecessary for the legislators of 1886 and 1903, in order to give it a fair chance, to prohibit the manufacture and importation of oleo as well as the renovation of dairy butter by mixing it with creamery butter, thus deteriorating the quality and discouraging the creamery industry. So long as that prohibition upon renovated butter prevails it seems to me we are moving in the wrong direction; we are putting the cart before the horse. Now, some people take the ground that renovated butter is objectionable, but not half as much objection can be urged against it as was urged some years ago against the introduction of oleomargarine.

How Many Would Take Oleo?

"We have heard of the poor man's butter and of the greater food value of oleo. I always used to hear it claimed that oleo was of lesser food value than butter, but let us suppose that it just evens up that there is an equal number of calories in butter and oleo. That depends, of course, on who takes the sample. If you have butter with a large water content, and oleo with a small water content, the analysis will show to the advantage of oleo, but if the samples are taken fairly and show an equal number of calories, that, after all, is only one factor in the analysis. It shows the energy, the heat property, but it does not show the assimilative power of the human system to make use of these articles. Everybody knows that butter is not only more palatable than oleo, but more easily digested and assimilated. There is no comparison between the two articles in that respect. How many of us here, if given the choice, would take oleo? Not one.

Compares With Europe

"I might say while I am on this subject that oleo has been used for many years in the Old Country as well as in Denmark and Holland. That does not mean anything to them except as a source of revenue. Look at the situation of those countries compared with ours. All that Denmark and Holland have to do is to put their butter on the boat, run it two or three hundred miles, or a little more, across the North Sea, and up the Thames, and they are right in the heart of Old England—one of the best markets in the world, in fact the world's market for butter—with practically no expense for transportation. And then in those countries you have an industry that was established hundreds of years ago, whereas we have practically only just started in this country. And then another thing, is that in Denmark and in Holland the people are frugal, thrifty and industrious, and for business reasons they choose to eat oleo and sell their high class butter. That is what a lot of our people do not even want to do. We used to do it fifty years ago, but it is not done to-day except to a very small extent. There is no comparison between the situation of dairying in this country and the situation of dairying in these European countries."

WILLIAM F. CARROLL (Cape Breton South and Richmond): "I do not personally like oleomargarine. I had

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, May 23.—The feature of the produce market is the lower price on new make of butter. Stocks are accumulating which is a factor in weakening the market. Cheese is steady after the recent decline. The hog market shows easier tendencies although the quotations are unchanged. The export demand for bacon has eased up and shows its effect on the hog market. Local smoked meat prices are steady with a fair movement of supplies. Cooked meats are in good demand and cooked hams show an advance. Lard is firm with a steady movement. Maple syrup is quiet but quotations fairly firm. Halibut is in better supply but brook trout is scarce.

BUTTER PRICES DROP

Montreal.

BUTTER.—Butter prices have been weakening and at the close of last week broke with the reduction of 3c. per lb. This is attributed to the increased production and a falling off in the demand from outside buyers. There is some accumulation of supplies and stocks of Canadian made butter are fairly heavy. Local buying is only for immediate requirements and prices for the new make are 33c per lb. in solids, and 34 in prints. The old make of butter is practically off the market.

Montreal.

EGGS.—Local wholesale egg prices are steady and unchanged, but the tone of the market is firm at the recent advanced price. The demand for supplies continues good and an active trade is being done with sales of select fresh eggs at 34 cents, No. 1s. at 32c. and specials at 36c. Stocks of eggs in Canada held in cold storage show a big increase over the same period of last year and also a large increase over the same week of last month. This, however, has not caused any weakness in the market since the demand for home consumption is large and there is a good market in England for Canadian eggs.

MAPLE SYRUP.—The trade in maple syrup and maple products is quiet but a steady tone is evident in the market. Prices on small lots remain unchanged at $1.75 per 13 lb. tin and $1.25 per gal. in 5 gal. tins. Maple sugar is steady in price and is quoted at from 15c to 17c per lb. for the dark and 12c to 13c per lb. for light grade.

SMOKED MEATS FIRM

Montreal.

SMOKED MEATS.—A steady feeling prevails in the market for smoked meats under a fair local demand and a good export trade. Cable enquiries are not as keen as they were a week ago, since heavy shipments of Canadian bacon have been laid down in England during the past two weeks and the market is more quiet. Local prices are unchanged but firm.

HARRY HORNE ADDRESSES BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB

Toronto, May 20.—Harry Horne, vice-president of the Parkdale Business Men's Association gave an interesting address on the effect of Spring cleaning under municipal supervision in cities and towns at the Queen Street West Business Men's weekly luncheon in the Duke of Connaught Hotel, with E. B. Westwood in the chair. There were over forty merchants present and local matters affecting the association were also discussed.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, May 23.—The butter market which has been showing signs of weakness for the past couple of weeks is more pronounced following the cut in prices at Montreal. The egg market is also weak with dealers sending out a lower quotation. Cheese shows little change, but the weakness continues. Lard and shortening are fairly steady. Cooked hams are in a strong position under recent advances. Smoked hams and bacon show a better movement in a steady market. Live hogs have a tendency for lower prices. During the week packers were endeavoring to put into effect a lower price on hogs but they were unable to do so on account of the light receipts: if heavier shipments arrive during the next week, the lower basis of values will be put into force. Fresh caught white fish and trout are again lower. Poultry prices are maintained but it is expected that receipts will be heavier in a week or two and it is likely that prices will be easier.

COOKED MEATS STRONG

Toronto.

COOKED MEATS—A fairly heavy demand is commencing for cooked meats and in consequence cooked hams are in a strong position under another advance. Last year it will be remembered cooked hams reached a high price due to the heavy demand and scarcity of supplies. There are indications at present that this condition will again exist this summer. Ordinary round boiled hams are quoted at 48c. and square pressed at 51c. per lb.

NIAGARA FRUIT CROP IS BUT LITTLE INJURED

St. Catharines, May 22.—The fruit crop of the Niagara district has suffered very little damage from the wind and rain storms which have visited this section of late, and the prospects for a bumper crop are very bright. Some slight damage was done to the cherries a few weeks ago by a sudden change in the temperature, but this damage, it is expected, will be overbalanced by a bountiful crop of peaches, pears, grapes and other varieties.

DUKE OF YORK LIKES CANADIAN APPLES

At the Canadian Club dinner held recently in London, England, in honor of High Commissioner the Hon. P. C. Larkin, His Royal Highness the Duke of York in the course of his address upon his impressions of Canada said that, "He had the good fortune also of spending three nights with Sir Arthur Currie at the Canadian Headquarters in France, and his most vivid recollection of that visit was the quantity and quality of the Canadian apples."

WINNIPEG MARKETS

WINNIPEG, May 23.—The feature of the produce market is the decline in the price of butter. The cheese market continues weak with little interest shown. Eggs are arriving in good quantities and the demand is improving. Lard has shown an advance but shortening remains steady. Cooked hams are slightly higher and an improvement in the demand is noted. Fresh pickerel and whitefish are arriving in good quantities. Live hogs continue strong and prices are well maintained.

BUTTER MARKET EASIER

Winnipeg.

BUTTER—The butter market has weaker tendencies. Fresh made creamery is arriving in good quantities. Dealers however are only buying sufficient quantities to meet their present requirements. Best grades of creamery prints are quoted at 40c to 42c per lb.

the misfortune of being obliged to eat it for some considerable time and I know something about it. As I understand the question before the House, however, it is not a matter of taste but a question whether or not we should permit the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in this country. I take the ground that a person who can afford to buy butter will buy butter, while those who are unable to buy it will buy oleomargarine. So that I fail to see the force of the argument that the manufacture of oleomargarine in Canada is going to injure in any way the dairy interests of the country.

Must Take Cheaper Article

The hon. member who so very ably presented the question to the House said that there was a great deal of sham and fraud about the manufacture and sale of this article. Well, we are all more or less in the hands of those who sell us anything we eat or anything we wear. For example, how many people out of the 8,000,000 or so who inhabit this country are able in the fall to clothe themselves in the very best woollens? A very small percentage. Indeed, very many people in Canada are obliged to wear underclothing which is not made of wool at all. No doubt they would like very much to be able to get the real article, but they cannot afford to pay for it, and because they are bound to get inferior clothing we might as well say that they are the victims of fraud and sham perpetrated by those who sell them the cheaper goods. Now if the people of the country do not wish to eat oleomargarine there is no duty whatever imposed upon them to eat it. If they can pay for butter they will certainly not buy oleomargarine; but if they are unable to buy butter and are perfectly satisfied with a substitute, why should they be hindered from procuring it? I do not see how they can possibly injure the dairy interests by buying oleomargarine when they could not buy butter in any case.

L. J. LADNER (Vancouver, South): "I suggest that the only proper way to determine a question of this nature is to consider, in the first place, what the functions of government are in relation to it. In my opinion there are two functions the government should bear in mind. First, they should make sure that oleomargarine is a pure food; that it is not a food which contains chemicals or ingredients that are injurious to health. The second, is that the government should make sure that the people will not be deceived, that when they buy this particular article they will know exactly what they are buying. To venture beyond this, Mr. Speaker, is to undertake an exaggerated form of paternal legislation."

HAIL PROHIBITION!

Prohibition should be thanked for a real reform. A reform which has resulted in a vast increase in the amount of really good beer produced.

Beer, such as people are now making for themselves, is so good, and so much purer and better than the old commercial stuff, that millions who never cared for it before are now drinking it—greatly to their own benefit.

Formerly you had to walk a mile to get a really good glass of beer or ale.

Now you can have the very best in your own home. Home-brewed beer or ale is purer and more wholesome than anything that could be bought formerly. The dealer who gives his customers what they want and the best products obtainable is rewarded with a firmly established business and good profits.

If your customer asks for a pure, unadulterated, high-power malt, and fresh imported hops, sell him "Cream of Malt."

Announcing The New BOWSER Piston Type Measuring Pump---Hand or Air-driven

The new Bowser Chief Sentry—the last word in good gasoline service—incorporates accuracy, speed, power drive, economy, separation of moisture from gasoline, safety, and, in addition, affords visibility of the flow of gasoline during service.

It has many new features in gasoline pump construction such as—dial indicators for both customer and operator, a tally bell which announces the completion of each gallon measurement—and a sight glass through which the customer sees the gasoline flowing into the hose and therefore knows that he is getting what he sees.

It is either hand or air driven. Hand crank can be attached instantly without removing air-driving mechanism. Pump is furnished with or without air-driving attachment as desired.

Write for booklet C-11 to-day. It tells how to speed up your gasoline service and build your profits bigger.

THE "WANT" AD.

The "want ad." has grown from a little used force in business life into one of the great necessities of the present day.

Business men nowadays turn to the "want ad." as a matter of course for a hundred small services.

The "want ad." gets work for workers and workers for work.

It gets clerks for employers and finds employers for clerks. It brings together buyer and seller, and enables them to do business though they may be thousands of miles apart.

The "want ad." is the great force in the small affairs and incidents of daily life.

An Out-of-Town Grocer who happened in between trains was surprised to see the volume of our sales.

"What's your system?" he inquired. "I can't understand why biscuits aren't moving quicker at home."

The system of ours, he referred to, can be defined in one single word —quality.

We recommend with confidence every line we make and we are continually bringing out new and original lines, that we know will increase your sales.

Clean Floors - Clean Goods

You can't have one without the other. Imperial Floor Dressing keeps both clean at all times. It holds the dust to the floor, where it is easily swept up and removed without any of it rising and settling on your goods, your counters or your display shelves.

Imperial Floor Dressing will not gum or evaporate. It prevents cracking and checking, and is a sanitary, efficient preservative of wood, linoleum or oil cloth. One gallon will treat about 700 square feet of floor surface and one application will last for weeks.

Stores, where the floors are treated with Imperial Floor Dressing, always present the spick and span appearance that attracts discriminating customers. Use it and display it. There is a large, profitable market in your territory. Our salesman will be glad to tell you about it.

NEW DAYTON SCALES CONTEST

$1000 in cash prizes to merchants and clerks

Come in and Win!

No entry fee! Nothing to pay! Turn your Ideas into Dollars!

Win a Nice Fat Cheque by a little Brain-work

THE record of the Dayton Automatic Scale has been a story of improvement after improvement. We've seen the Dayton grow, and we've told the story chapter by chapter as added features brought new time and money saving advantages to Canadian merchants.

Some of the most helpful opinions we have had on Dayton Service have come from merchants who use and know and live with the Dayton. Continually, our salesmen are hearing from satisfied Dayton users of new advantages attaching to the use of the Dayton, which had never come to our attention. We're always glad to hear and study the opinions of the merchant—in city, town or country. We regard these opinions highly. They're valuable to use—so valuable that we're willing and glad to PAY FOR THEM.

The present $1,000 Prize Contest will be in the nature of a Clearing House for the ideas of merchants and clerks. To make it worth your while to put down on paper a short statement of these ideas we are offering to distribute $1,000 in prizes.

You know the Dayton. You've seen it in action day after day. Just apply your experience and observations to this question which we give you to answer.

Here is the Question

If you were a Dayton Salesman what reasons would you advance to sell a Dayton Scale?

Here are the Prizes

2 Prizes for the best answers	$100 Each
4 Prizes for the next best answers	50 Each
10 Prizes for the next best answers	25 Each
10 Prizes for the next best answers	20 Each
15 Prizes for the next best answers	10 Each

This contest offers you a fine opportunity to try your hand on the writing of an advertisement—as we will be glad to have your reply in that form if you prefer it to a written article. The only restriction we impose is that statements shall contain no inaccuracies or exaggerations, expressed or implied.

SHARPEN YOUR PENCIL—YOUR WITS, TOO—BEGIN TO-DAY!

Here's the QUESTION Study it—we pay $1,000 for the best answers.

If you were a Dayton salesman what reasons would you advance to sell a Dayton Scale?

Rules of $1,000 Dayton Prize Contest

1. Contest will be closed June 30, 1922. No letter postmarked after that date will be accepted.
2. Write your replies on one side of paper only.
3. Contest is open to all merchants and clerks in Canada in stores wherein scales are used.
4. Each reply MUST bear the sender's name and address, and name of firm of which he or she is proprietor or employee. Should you be a prize winner this information is to be verified by someone representing that company.
5. You may send in as many replies as you wish.
6. A committee whose impartiality will be guaranteed by this Company will judge the replies and make the awards, such awards to be considered as final.
7. No employee of International Business Machines Co., Limited, will be eligible for the contest.
8. Address your Contest letters to Head Office (not to any branch) as follows:

The Government Reduces Tax On Small Boxes of Matches!

The new Government Budget reduces the tax on all boxes containing less than 100 matches.

For example, on a box similar to the Eddy Safety and the Eddy Sesqui, each containing approximately 50 matches, the tax is reduced from one cent to half-a-cent, or $7.20 per ten-gross case.

The many smokers and other consumers who find the small boxes of Eddy's so convenient will, therefore, benefit by this reduction in tax on these boxes.

Always everywhere in Canada ask for Eddy's Matches.

Look for the name on the box.

And the West singeth to the East its praises

OLDS, ALTA.

Mr. John Coates, manager of the U.F.A. store in Olds, Alta., is recognized by the wholesale grocers as being one of the smartest retail grocery managers in the business. He caters to the needs of his customers, sells only quality lines, keeps his stocks up-to-date and incidentally has placed his store among those of the Association showing the lowest operating cost.

He knows the flavor and quality of KILTIE Pink Salmon and one of his recent purchases included ten cases of it. Apart from its exceptionally nice flavor he recommends it to his customers because he knows they are getting the fullest value for their money.

OUTLOOK, SASK.

The town of Outlook, Sask., is a C.P.R. divisional point on the Moose Jaw-Macklin line.

Mr. C. P. Pring, manager of the Outlook fish store, sold a lot of KILTIE Pink Salmon last fall. He had never tried our KILTIE Pink Salmon until he saw a comparison made between it and a popular sockeye salmon. He liked the flavor of the KILTIE Pink Salmon much better. One of his customers, a C.P.R. man, came in and after trying both fish and being informed the price of KILTIE Pink Salmon was about one-third that he usually paid for other good quality salmon, immediately placed an order for half a case of KILTIE Salmon. He remarked he had not been buying much canned salmon nowadays as he had been under the impression all of the best flavored salmon was always the most expensive.

KELOWNA, B.C.

The McKenzie Co., Ltd., Kelowna, B.C., in the heart of the fruit-growing district in the Okanagan, cater to customers that demand the very best in everything and Mr. McKenzie certainly supplies their every need by handling quality lines that stand the test of discriminating people.

He opened a tin of KILTIE Pink Salmon and was so pleased with the flavor, color and firmness of the contents, he asked all of his clerks to see it and taste it. They found it one of the nicest they had ever tried and remarked they would certainly be able to recommend it to all of their customers.

CUT-KNIFE, SASK.

Mr. Paul Margot, of Cut-knife, Sask., one of the best bakers in that country, carries a very complete line of groceries and confectionery. He is a very busy man but always finds a few minutes for travellers, which makes him a very popular fellow with them. He saw a comparison made between KILTIE Salmon and a good quality red spring salmon. He much preferred the flavor of the KILTIE Pink Salmon. He is in a district where there is a lot of salmon sold every year and is now making new friends by being able to sell one of the nicest flavored salmon in larger quantities and at a cheaper price than he formerly did.

SASKATOON, SASK.

Mr. Hall, the manager of the grocery department in the new Hudson's Bay store, which was recently purchased from Messrs. J. F. Cairns, Ltd., of Saskatoon, is another enterprising merchant that is exceptionally well pleased with his sale of KILTIE Salmon.

When a man with the acknowledged experience of Mr. Hall makes the remark that if all of his staple lines sold as well and gave as much satisfaction as KILTIE Salmon, he would be very much pleased, it once again bears out our assertion that you will also be adding a quality paying line when you stock KILTIE Salmon.

The arrangements of the attractive displays of fresh fruits, meats and quality groceries handled and sold by Mr. Hall's competent staff of salesmen places this large store among the best in the province.

BROADVIEW, SASK.

If you are ever in the town of Broadview, Sask., and have a few minutes to spare, your time would be well spent if you would go into the store of Messrs. A. R. Colquhoun & Son. It is a large general store and the first thing that would impress you is the absolute absence of partitions. You can stand at the grocery counter or at any of the other departments and see every line of merchandise that is handled. The center section has bevelled plate glass show cases placed in the most efficient positions, set fairly low, which enables you to see at a glance every department in the store. You will certainly be impressed and obtain some new ideas as to interior arrangements and original ways of displaying merchandise.

Mr. Roy Jay, the manager of the grocery department, has built up a wonderful grocery business by handling quality goods that move quickly. He is very proud of his record sales of KILTIE Pink Salmon. During a sale he put on last fall he sold it by the dozen and by the case and finds it has given such satisfaction he has a good winter trade on it. Incidentally he finds all goods the packers are proud enough to advertise are his best sellers. The town of Broadview is proud of its curling accomplishments and Mr. Jay is one of the best and most enthusiastic "skips" there.

ESTERHAZY, SASK.

F. A. Clements, Esterhazy, Sask., has the largest general store on the Kirkella branch. It is a comparatively new store built of brick and cement, has large show windows, polished hardwood floors, counters and shelves throughout and kept immaculately clean.

This firm is also one of the biggest fruit distributors, buying as much as a carload of fresh fruit at a time.

They are situated in a district where there is a lot of good quality canned salmon consumed. KILTIE Salmon was soon added to their stocks and they now have a bigger demand for it than any other salmon.

HIGH RIVER, ALTA.

The High River Co-operative Lumber Association added a quality line of groceries to their already large stock of other merchandise. The manager is working up an exceptionally good trade with the town people and farmers of that district.

He is a very enterprising fellow and handles quality lines only. Lines that give the most value for the money expended. He tried KILTIE Salmon before he made his salmon purchases and found it such excellent flavor he has bought no other pink salmon but KILTIE and is finding the sale of it very profitable and satisfactory.

The above cut requires only modest space, and we will be pleased to mail one to any merchant whose policy it is to brighten up his newspaper copy and handbills with illustrations of the lines he is featuring.

Eureka Refrigerators vs. Hot Weather

Eureka Refrigerators and hot weather always work together, for the hotter the weather, the more you need a Eureka; and the hotter the weather, the better the Eureka will work and save your perishable foods.

Don't let this summer pass with your old ice box. If you do you will pay money out for perishable foods which need perfect refrigeration and you will also pay out money for ice, which when put into a faulty refrigerator will not give you value for your money. So therefore you are spending it for nothing.

It is real economy to purchase a Eureka Refrigerator—they are patented and fully guaranteed.

HAIL PROHIBITION!

Prohibition should be thanked for a real reform. A reform which has resulted in a vast increase in the amount of really good beer produced.

Beer, such as people are now making for themselves, is so good, and so much purer and better than the old commercial stuff, that millions who never cared for it before are now drinking it—greatly to their own benefit.

Formerly you had to walk a mile to get a really good glass of beer or ale.

Now you can have the very best in your own home. Home-brewed beer or ale is purer and more wholesome than anything that could be bought formerly. The dealer who gives his customers what they want and the best products obtainable is rewarded with a firmly established business and good profits.

If your customer asks for a pure, unadulterated, high-power malt, and fresh imported hops, sell him "Cream of Malt."

THE significant slogan "Toledo Scales — No Springs — Honest Weight" is not a happy phrase coined for mere advertising purposes. It is the identifying mark of a superior weighing machine and belongs on Toledo Scales as rightly as "Sterling" belongs on silver.

Your customers know that just as they depend on your buying judgment for the quality of your goods so do they trust the unfailing accuracy of your Toledo Scales which guarantee a square deal on both sides of the counter.

This is why merchants everywhere are displaying the sign of Honest Weight telling their customers of the advantage of trading with these particular stores.

This sign gives these merchants the full benefit of the favourable public opinion which Toledo Scales and their reputation for unfailing accuracy have built up. It lets everyone who enters your store know that their interests were considered when you installed Toledo Scales.

The sign itself is a distinctive addition to the equipment of the finest store. Ask us to tell you what it has done for others—and will do for you.

MACDONALD'S

"Baccy" was "Baccy" Once

Not so now. The (alleged) good old days are gone. No more is it possible to sell anything under the broad, general name of tobacco. Nowadays tobacco users look for the brand on what they buy. Which brings us to the point that more men are looking for the MACDONALD Brand than for any other—finding it, too.

There isn't a man in Canada who knows anything about tobacco who doesn't recognize the MACDONALD name as a guarantee of high quality and good value. And there isn't a MACDONALD dealer who doesn't know that there is more money—in every way, profit margin, turnover and "extras"—for the man who ties up with "the tobacco with a heart."

Vol. XXXVI TORONTO, JUNE 2, 1922 No. 22

How New Taxation Affects Groceries

Little Objection is Heard to the Increase of 50 Per Cent. in the Sales Tax, Some Opinions Asserting That it Will be More Easily Collected Now—Look Upon Tax on Cheques as Being Rather Heavy—Many Phases of Budget Are Discussed

AN increase of fifty per cent. in the sales tax, as announced by the Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, last week, is not meeting with any pronounced opposition on the part of the trade. Opinion generally expressed appears to be that the sales tax is as easy a method of securing money as any, and as long as the retailer is not made the collector, in the majority of instances, at any rate, there is no objection to it.

J. A. Banfield, Dominion president of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada commenting on the sales tax stated that it was all right provided the government guarded against it being made too burdensome. "We believe in the sales tax as long as they don't ask the retailers to collect it," he remarked. "We don't want to be tax collectors.

We do not mind assuming our portion of the burden and doing our share of the work but we do not want to be placed in the position of having to sell a tax in addition to our merchandise. So long as the tax is raised through the manufacturer or the importer and passed along to the wholesaler, the retailer and the public, it will be all right."

Better Chance of Collecting It

E. M. Trowern, Dominion secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association expressed the opinion that retail merchants generally approved of the budget as far as the sales tax is concerned. "It is in line with their advocacy. It will give more revenue to the country, and if confined to the manufacturer and the wholesaler, there is no objection to the tax. Under the new increase the retail price to the customer would have to be advanced. The retailer I believe will have a better chance of collecting the sales tax now with the increase."

W. C. Miller, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association for Ontario, did not think that retailers as a whole had any particular objection to the sales tax nor the increase in it. "As the tax is collected at the source and passed on through the various distributing channels, the taxes must be absorbed in the costs, and reckoned in the selling prices to the consumer. However, the tax is undoubtedly in many cases difficult to collect by adding to the retail price, and dealers have to bear it out of their own profits."

This Grocer Disapproves

"A grocer in Eastern Ontario just this week," wrote me, remarked Mr. Miller, "protesting against the sales tax." Commenting on the Government's action he said:—

"The Government has seen fit to not only continue the sales tax adopted by the last Government but to increase it 50%. Now I do not see why the retail merchants as a class should be singled out for extra taxes and the farmer for instance, get reduced taxes. This is very unfair. Why should we be discriminated against? It is hard enough to make ends meet in the grocery business without these extra taxes. Why should the Government not have the manufacturer pay the entire tax of five per cent. or whatever they require for revenue? It then could be included in the cost of their goods. In this way we could adjust our profits. While as it is now, it simply comes out of the retailer's pocket as it cannot be passed along to the consumer. I hope the Retail Merchants' Association will protest very vigorously and have it changed if possible.

"I am very much surprised that they continued such a tax and increased it, as well as continuing the Income Tax Law, both of which made the last government so unpopular, and had a great deal to do towards defeating it.

WHAT THE BUDGET DID

Increased the sales tax 50 per cent. On all sales and deliveries by Canadian manufacturers or producers, and wholesalers and jobbers, the tax is now 2¼ per cent., and the tax on the duty paid value of goods imported is 3¾ per cent. In the case of sales by manufacturers or producers direct to retailers and consumers, the tax now payable is 4½ per cent. and on goods imported by retailers or consumers the excise tax payable is 6 per cent. on the duty paid value.

Lowered the British preferential tariff on raw and refined sugars produced in the British colonies. Imposed a tax of 25c per 100 lbs. on all sugar produced from beets in Canada, testing over 46 degrees and not exceeding 75 degrees of polarization, and for each additional degree over 75 degrees, per 100 lbs. 1c. This tax is not payable on exports.

Reduced preferential rates of duty on cocoa. Sweetened cocoa is lowered ½c per lb., cocoa in powdered form is reduced 5 per cent. and cocoa preparations are reduced 2½ per cent.

Increased the excise tax on cigars and cigarettes.

Levied a tax of 10c per gallon on beverages, unfermented fruit juices and imitations thereof, carbonated beverages or aerated waters, and all other compounded or mixed soft drinks.

Confectionery which may be classed as candy or a substitute for candy is taxed 5 per cent.

Increased the tax on cheques in amounts exceeding $50. For every additional $50 or fraction thereof, a tax of 2c is now levied.

Reduced tax on boxes of matches containing less than 100 matches. The new tax is ½c per box. The former tax was 1c. The tax on boxes containing less than 30 matches is ¼c per box.

The exemption for income tax should be at least $2,500 for a married man. It is alright to tax the man with a large income, but a man who is struggling as the retail grocer, should have about $2,500 exempted. I don't think very many retailers in the past few years could clear any more than $2,000, and would do well to clear that amount under the conditions that existed."

Cheque Tax a Heavy One

"I don't think the wholesale grocers have any serious complaint against the budget," A. C. Pyke, secretary of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association told a representative of Canadian Grocer. "We would have liked to have seen the tax collected at the source, but this I believe is not practical in a great many instances. If it cannot be collected at the source, for the reason that is stated, namely that the source in a good many articles is hard to determine, we prefer to have it collected as it has been from its inception.

"The tax on cheques, I think is a fairly stiff imposition. The payment of an additional two cents for every fifty dollars or fraction thereof, over fifty dollars, will amount to a very considerable item in the conduct of most businesses."

Discussing the new tax on cheques, Hugh Blain, of Eby-Blain Co., wholesale grocers, declared that four cents on a cheque for one hundred dollars is a heavy tax. "It is too heavy for business to bear," he added. "I remember some years ago we had a tax on cheques on a sliding scale, but it was not nearly so heavy as this one." Mr. Blain expressed the view that the increase of 50 per cent. on the sales tax would overcome the benefit to the consumer of the reduction of 2½ per cent. in duties on certain commodities.

Thinks Taxes Very Reasonable

A. Bogart, manager of the grocery department of the Robt. Simpson Co., Toronto, looked upon the new taxes as very reasonable. He did not think the increase in the sales tax would affect prices to the extent of hampering trade. "It will mean a little more here and there to the retail prices," he remarked. "In the matter of imports the retailer now must pay six per cent. sales tax, and of course it must mean a little higher quotation to the consumer. The tax of 5 per cent. on candy with the sales tax really means a tax of 9½ per cent. on this commodity, but in the collection of this tax the small manufacturer making candy should also be made to pay it."

Mr. Bogart thought that the tax of one per cent. on bank circulation was a move in the right direction. The increased taxation on cheques might result in more payments being made in cash.

Duty on Original Price of Tea

C. T. Wolfe, manager of the grocery department in the T. Eaton Co., Toronto, commented upon the amendment to the customs act in regard to tea. This amendment provides that in computing the duty paid value of tea purchased in bond in the United Kingdom, the amount of the customs duty payable on tea for consumption in the United Kingdom, shall not be included in the value of such tea for purposes of affixing the Canadian sales tax. As was pointed out, a Canadian tea importer buying tea from Colombo for example, has it shipped through London. Supposing by way of illustration that the price of tea in Colombo is 22 cents per pound, the duty in England is 6d making the cost of tea 34c per lb. Under the new amendment the Canadian sales tax which to the retailer importing direct is now 6 per cent. is levied on the value of the tea less the duty paid in England, or as in this example on 22 cents instead of 38 cents.

In regard to the reduction of the British Preferential Tariff on sugar, Mr. Wolfe could not see that it would make any difference as far as the price of sugar is concerned. As to beet sugar the consumption of the same is comparatively light, and he did not look for any material effect on prices as a result of the tax of 49 cents per hundred pounds. As to the increase in the sales tax, it will now be harder for some firms to overlook it. The tendency on the part of some concerns has been to pass it up forgetting to include it in the price of the article. This will not be so easy now with the increase.

Must Add to Cost of Doing Business

"That cheque tax is a pretty heavy one," commented George Barron, of R. Barron, Ltd., retail grocers, Yonge Street, Toronto, in discussing the budget. "That undoubtedly will add considerable expense, and it will have to be included in the cost of doing business. The grocer who is sending out a number of cheques each month will certainly feel it, and it will have to be included in his list of expenses."

Discussing the repeal of the amendment made to the Customs Act last year, particularly in regard to the valuation for customs purposes of foreign currencies, Mr. Barron stated that as far as his firm was concerned, most imports came from England and France. The removal of this clause would not make much difference at the present time, since the value of the pound is practically par, and the franc too is worth more than it was a year ago. The tax on soft drinks coming at the beginning of the busy season would certainly be felt, and would amount to more than 10 cents on a case of one dozen pints.

Further Exemptions

Articles of food that are exempt from the sales tax are extended this year to include rolled wheat, buckwheat meal, pea meal, and salt.

Fewer Cheques and More Cash Will Be Used in the Payment of Accounts

Additional Tax on Cheques Appears to be Unpopular—Wholesaler Declares the Extra Tax is a Real Burden—New Regulation Comes Into Effect July 1

TORONTO, May 31.—The provision in the Budget which calls for an additional tax on bank cheques, is an unpopular change and has been the outstanding topic for discussion among business men since the Budget came down.

All cheques under $50 will continue to bear the 2c. tax but every additional $50 or fraction thereof will bear an additional 2c. Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers claim that this is a burden which they should not be called upon to shoulder, and in the opinion of some it will not work out to the extent that the Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, anticipates.

"The additional tax on cheques," stated one manufacturer to Canadian Grocer representative, "will mean that there will be fewer cheques and more cash used in the payment of accounts. The smaller merchant will be inclined to pay his bills in cash, instead of through the banks. Accounts that run between $50 and $100 will probably be paid with a cheque for $50 and the balance in cash. It will simply mean that business will be conducted more with actual cash and will result in less money in the banks."

"The extra tax on cheques is a real burden to the already over-burdened business man," said one wholesaler. "It means that in many instances the same money transaction will carry the tax two or three times. Business men will also bank less money and pay more accounts in cash."

Unworkable says Bank Official

"It looks to me to be very unworkable at present," said Sir John Aird, vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and second vice-president of the Canadian Bankers' Association. "Here's a man who issues a cheque for $1,000. He has to put on forty cents worth of stamps. There would not be much of the cheque left before he got through. It will be necessary for the government to issue new denominations of stamps, say twenety, forty cents, etc."

Sir John intimated the effect of the law might be to split payments and added: "People instead of depositing cash in the bank will keep it in the till and pay their accounts in cash."

Will Have no Effect on Prices of Sugar

Change in the Tariff as to Raw Sugar Above Number 16 Dutch Standard in Colour and All Refined Sugar is Unimportant for the Reason That There is Very Little Imported Into Canada—Beet Sugar Made in Canada is Taxed 49 Cents Per Cwt.

WHEN THE new 1922 Budget was first announced, some of the daily papers predicted that the reduction in the British preference on sugar should tend to lower sugar prices.

A careful study of the sugar item that the Finance Minister has changed will show that it will have no effect upon prices of sugar to the general public and very little effect if any at all on the quantity imported. The only item on which the change in tariff was made, was on sugar above No. 16 Dutch Standard in color and all refined sugar when not exceeding 88 degrees of polarization. The former preferential tariff was $1.50 per cwt. and this has been reduced to $1.33.

Will Not Lower Prices

There has been very little raw sugar above No. 16 Dutch Standard imported into Canada and during the past year we imported only about 5,000 pounds of refined sugar altogether. The change in the tariff does not affect the raw sugar imported by Canadian refiners of cane in any way.

The tariff on sugar changes with the polarization. Our refiners bring in raw sugar on which is paid a duty of about .85c. under the British preferential tariff and $1.69 under the general tariff. Most of our sugar comes in under the general tariff. For instance the total imports of raw sugar for the 11 months ending February 1922, were 18,773,497 lbs., of which nearly 13,000,000 lbs. came through United States ports, particularly from Cuba and the Phillipines, leaving a balance of less than 6,000,000 lbs. from British sources.

It will be seen from the above that the change in the tariff will not affect prices of sugar refined in Canada to the trade and the general public and that there will be little effect on sugar of any kind as only one item has been changed.

The placing of an Excise Tax of 49 cents per cwt. on beet sugar made in Canada is creating a great deal of interest among the trade. Just what effect it will have on prices in the future remains to be seen. Naturally however it will have a tendency to lessen the difference in price between sugar made from beets and that made by the exclusive cane refiners. The company that is responsible for practically the entire production of beet sugar in Canada, also refines cane sugar. In fact their plant only works from three to four months on the beets and the balance of the time on the cane. The Finance Minister has evidently taken it for granted that the beet sugar refiners have been making too much profit and so he added the excise tax. If such is the case and if he is correct these refiners would either have to take less profit or increase their price. The vice-president of the Dominion Sugar Company is quoted as saying that this tax will put their company out of business. He states he was hoping that the situation which was already difficult with his firm would be adjusted and that his company was not consulted about the matter at all.

Farmers who grow sugar beets for sugar making purposes are paid in accordance with the sugar content of their beets and the ruling price of sugar. Just what effect the tax will have upon the quantity of beets grown and the price to the farmer remains to be seen.

Let All Income Taxes Be Collected By Municipalities

In the resolutions that were passed by the Ontario grocers in convention recently the income tax and the prevalent freight rates occupied the attention of the delegates for some time, it being stated in connection with the former that if, as rumored, the province adopted a system of taxation upon incomes, the retail merchant would be compelled to pay three separate income taxes. It was the recommendation of the convention that all income taxes be collected by municipalities, and that the required amounts be paid by them to the Dominion and provincial treasuries. General indignation with the rates on the transportation of merchandise was expressed, and a motion was passed requesting representation on the Railway Board.

Among other resolutions passed by the convention were: that licenses to hawkers and peddlers be restricted; that retail prices should not be fixed by the manufacturers without consultation with the Retailers' Association; that application of the eight-hour day to the retail business should be made by the Dominion Committee; that in view of the increase in theft and burglary, representations should be made to the proper authorities; that prosecution of all cases of fraudulent advertising should be made by the Dominion Committee; that the holding of lotteries and guessing contests in an effort to sell merchandise should be discouraged by all reputable merchants.

New Tariff Rates in These Commodities

CHANGES in the tariff affect cocoa, sugar and cigars and cigarettes, lines in which the grocery trade is especially interested. The new rates of duty under the respective tariffs are as follows:

	British Pref. Tariff	Intermed. Tariff	General Tariff
20—Cocoa paste or liquor and chocolate paste or liquor not sweetened, in blocks or cakes, per lb.	3 cents	4 cents	5 cents
21—Cocoa paste or liquor and chocolate paste or liquor, sweetened, in blocks or cakes not less than two lbs in weight, per pound	4 cents	4½ cents	5½ cents
22—Preparations of cocoa or chocolate in powder form	22½p.c.	27½p.c.	35p.c.
23—Preparations of cocoa or chocolate n.o.p. and confectionery coated with or containing chocolate the weight of the wrappings and cartons to be included in the weight for duty, per pound	1½ cents	1½ cents	1½ cents and	20 p.c.	27½ p.c.	35 p.c.
134—All sugar above number 16 Dutch Standard in color, and all refined sugars of whatever kinds, grades or standards, not covered by tariff item No. 135, when not exceeding 88 degrees of polarization, per 100 lbs.	$1.33	$2.00	$2.00
When exceeding 95 degrees but not exceeding 96 degrees, per 100 lbs.	$1.49	$2.24	$2.24
When exceeding 99 degrees, per 100 lbs.	$1.59	$2.39	$2.39
142—Cigars, the weight, bands and ribbons to be included in the weight for duty, per lb.	$3.90	$3.90	$3.90
and	25 p.c.	25 p.c.	25 p.c
143a—Cigarettes, the weight of the paper covering to be included in the weight for duty, per lb.	$5.25	$5.25	$5.25 and	25 p.c.	25 p.c.

Protesting the New Tax on Soft Drinks

Dominion Wide Objection is Voiced Against the Tax of 10 Cents Per Gallon on Mineral Waters and Soft Drinks, as Announced in the Budget—Retail Grocers Think Tax May Affect Sales of Soft Drinks

MONTREAL (Special). — The Bottlers' Association of Montreal have signified their intention to fight the proposal of the government to tax mineral waters and soft drinks at the rate of 10 cents per gallon. A number of the local manufacturers have expressed their surprise at the government's budget in this regard. It came as a bombshell to the trade since with all the hints and suppositions with regard to the changes and additions which might be made by the new government in Federal taxation few, if any, imagined that aerated waters, in bottles, would be singled out for special taxation.

A Dominion-wide Protest

On Thursday of last week some of the Montreal manufacturers sent to other manufacturers of soft drinks throughout the Dominion of Canada, the following letter:

"We would suggest that, after testing the terms of the new government tax by application to figures of the year 1921, you telegraph your protest to Prime Minister King, Finance Minister Fielding and your local member.

"We estimate that the government is asking the trade to put aside from 15 per cent. upward of our total turnover before making 1 cent profit. We estimate the advance over prevailing selling prices to be 13 to 50 per cent.

"If you figure out each of your lines on a basis of 160 oz. to the gallon, we feel sure you will find the advance as stated.

"We see discrimination, though not necessarily intended, in ever so many directions. We cannot see the possibility of equitable application of the tariff tax. Ramification of what are termed soft drinks as between syrup distributors; retail of gas machines; soda water producers; and all sorts of compound distributors, are practically endless and are beyond the reach of the tax gatherer.

"When we pay full proportion of all other taxes why should legitimate bottlers be singled out for exceptional taxation? It looks serious to us. If it does to you, we suggest you stir up your confreres and telegraph facts as you see them in a full protest.

"We also suggest that you ask for the rescinding of the tax upon the basis of discrimination and the impossibility of just application."

This communication was signed by one of the leaders in the industry, as representing the Bottlers' Association.

The tax of 10 cents per gal. on mineral waters and soft drinks is a considerable amount, when it is understood that there is 160 oz. to a gal. and the popular bottle in the province of Quebec is 10 oz. or 16 oz. Which means that the tax will amount to 10c per doz. bottles. In all there are twelve or thirteen different sizes of bottles used by firms throughout Canada.

The mere fact that there are so many different sizes will make it exceedingly difficult for the government to equitably enforce the tax.

Doom of Five Cent Drinks

In a statement made by one of the local manufacturers to a Canadian Grocer representative, it was stated that the tax will sound the doom of the five cent drink. When the factors of equipment, refrigeration, washing, sales staff, waste and other incidentals of retailing beverages, are kept in mind and with the new tax applied it will be easy to see that as far as bottle drinks are concerned the five cent line must go.

Nor, in the opinion of many of the manufacturers, is there any hope that there will be a bottle on the market below the price of 10 cents, since a price between 5 and 10c would not be popular. It is also suggested that a new bottle might be put on the market which would hold the regular price but allow for the taxation. This, the manufacturer stated, would not be profitable since it would mean the discarding of large supplies of bottles which is a big item in the overhead cost.

Difficulty in Collection

There are in Montreal between 600 and 700 places where soft drinks are sold and of that number approximately 200 are owners of so-called "gas machines," devices used for carbonization. These places dispose of a considerable amount of flavored drinks and are classed as manufacturers to that extent. Such places as purchase cylinders from the manufacturer pay $2.50 for each 10 gal. container. The new tax will impose $1.00 on each such container plus the increased sales tax an addition of over 40 per cent. to the present cost. To collect a tax from each one of these small manufacturers of aerated water would be an exceedingly difficult matter and for that reason the larger manufacturers claim that the new taxation will show discrimination and be a hardship upon the legitimate bottler.

What Retailers Think

A number of retail grocers in the city have expressed their surprise and regret in the new tax placed upon soft drinks. Many of them have built up a good trade in soft drinks sold in case and dozen lots. The business was just picking up for the summer when the tax is imposed and, to many of the retailers, it looks as though the trade had received "a knock-out." One retail grocer said to Canadian Grocer representative, "The price of soft drinks is already too high but we have just built up a good steady trade in the line for the summer. Many of our best customers place their orders regularly for a case of ginger ale but I know very well that an advance of ten cents a dozen in the price will cut off the demand. The result will be that they will buy concentrated flavorings which as far as I can see, are not taxed. Why the discrimination, I cannot see."

The same attitude was expressed by a number of retail grocers who were approached. There was not one but felt that the trade in this line will be affected this summer.

SALES TAX ON TEA NOW LEVIED ON ORIGINAL VALUE

Toronto, (Special).—The new Budget provides that "the duty paid value of tea purchased in bond in the United Kingdom the amount of customs duty payable on tea for consumption in the United Kingdom shall not be included in the value of such tea." Previously the sales tax was collected on the value of the tea plus the British tariff, but under the amendment the sales tax is now based on the value only.

"The change in the method of computing the amount of the Sales Tax will make practically no difference in the cost of tea," stated one tea importer to a representative of Canadian Grocer. "If anything it will slightly increase the cost because any difference in computation is offset by the increase in the Sales Tax from 2½ per cent. to 3¾ per cent."

"To make this clearer we will say that tea costs 30 cents per pound in Colombo," continued this tea importer. "The old method of clearing the customs was to add the British tariff, which is 6d, on British-grown tea. This makes 42 cents upon which 2½ per cent. Sales Tax was figured, equalling 1 05 cents. Tax was figured, equalling 1.05 cents. ured on the value of the tea, say 30 cents per pound, which is 1.12 cents, or a trifle greater than previously."

Death Knell of the 5-Cent Bottle

TORONTO, May 31.—Manufacturers of soft drinks here are up in arms over the tax of 10c. per gallon on soft drinks and mineral waters. They claim that with the additional sales tax, it will mean the death knell of the five cent bottle. They point out that at present a case of two dozen bottles of ginger ale or other flavor, costs the retailer 80 cents or 40 cents per dozen. With a sales tax of 4½ per cent and the 10c. per gallon, the retailer will have to pay 94 cents per case or 47 cents per gallon. The family or quart bottle costs the retailer $1.20 per case of one dozen bottles. Each bottle contains 30 ounces or 360 ounces to the case, approximately two gallons. The increase in cost is therefore 20 cents plus 4½ per cent. Sales Tax, making a total cost of $1.47 per case an increase of 27 cents.

"The tax means that the five cent bottle will go off the market," stated one manufacturer to Canadian Grocer. "Retailers cannot sell an article for five cents that cost them 47 cents per dozen and especially such an article as soft drinks. The merchant pays extra for the bottles and of course charges them up to customers, but there is always some breakage around the store which the merchant pays for and that comes out of his profits. The price will therefore have to be six or seven cents, a price that is not popular. And on the other hand if the merchant is to charge ten cents, he will not be justified in making that profit."

Only on Bottled Drinks

Another manufacturer claims that there are loop holes in the ruling. He points out that the tax of ten cents per gallon is only on bottled drinks and does not touch the drink that is dispensed over the soda fountain, so that while the retail grocer would have to sell a bottle of ginger ale for six or seven cents, the customer could get the same drink at a soda fountain for five cents. This manufacturer also pointed out that certain kinds of drinks are coming in quite freely from the United States. These drinks come in in syrup form, the carbonated water is then added and sold out of a tank at summer resorts and soda fountains. In this instance the tax of 10 cents per gallon is not applicable. These drinks can therefore be sold at five cents discriminating against the merchant who sells bottled goods and because of the extra cost on account of the tax, must get a higher price.

Fielding Hears Manufacturers' Protest

OTTAWA (Special).—A deputation of manufacturers of various branches of mineral waters and soft drinks, throughout the country had a conference on Friday of last week with Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of finance at Ottawa, and asked for a modification of the proposed tax of ten cents per gallon on carbonated beverages, aerated waters and other mild drinks.

It was argued that the tax would be detrimental to business. It would wipe out the narrow margin of profit now claimed. In place of the ten cent tax as proposed, the deputation asked that it be levied on syrups entering into the manufacture of soft drinks. It was pointed out that a tax on syrups instead of on the finished product would be more equitably distributed between the trade.

A Hardship on the Public

The point was also stressed that the enforcement of the tax would cause an increase in the price of the beverages and therefore work a hardship on the public. Persons accustomed to paying five cents a bottle straight would probably forego the purchase and as a result considerable harm would be worked all round.

A prominent Ottawa manufacturer stated that the maintenance of the ten cents a gallon tax would work out at twenty cents on a two-dozen case of soft drinks, which would make it imperative for the retailers to raise the price.

Mr. Fielding, while not making any promises was very sympathetic and stated that the matter would be given serious consideration. Much pressure will be brought to bear on the government in this matter. The association has already sought the offices of the Retail Merchants' Association and is sending out a call to all interested parties in every part of the country to join hands in the fight.

The deputation included A. J. Kealey, Ottawa; William Koch, Toronto, secretary of the association; Samuel Wilson, Toronto, representing the firm of that name; M. Porter, Toronto and T. F. Alder, Ottawa, representing the Coca-Cola Company; Mr. Brown, Montreal, the Caledonia Springs Mineral Waters; Martin Walsh, Ottawa, the Tally-Ho Water Company, G. J. Mitchell, representing J. J. McLaughlin Co., Toronto; W. B. Murphy of Gurds Ltd., Montreal and J. McNamara, Arnprior, Ont.

LOWERS THE PRICES OF MATCHES

Under the new Tariff Budget it is provided that the excise tax on matches packed in boxes containing less than 100 matches is reduced from one cent to one half cent on each box. This means that on a case containing five gross boxes, the reduction amounts to $3.60 and on the ten gross case the reduction is $7.50.

Wholesalers Urge Care in Calculating Resale Prices

Montreal. (Staff Correspondent).—Loal wholesale grocers seem to view the additional sales tax with a meek stoical silence. They are not pleased with it for of the wholesalers interviewed by a Canadian Grocer representative, there was not one but felt that the increased tax was a hardship on the grocery business in more ways than one. As one wholesaler said: "It is just another opportunity for more failures in the retail grocery business. Some retailers have in the past overlooked the sales tax in making their re-sale prices and 'got away with it' but the increase of the tax makes that almost impossible. It must be recognized now and carefully taken into consideration."

A Warning to Retailers

Constant Gendreau, sales manager of the wholesale grocery firm of Lacaille Gendreau of Montreal, said, "I would like to warn the retail grocers that the new increase in sales tax is a serious matter and that it has already become effective. It is just as much a part of the invoice on goods as the item itself and in figuring the sales price he must include it if he wishes to avoid failure, let alone make money. Many of the retailers, in their eagerness to meet competition have disregarded the sales tax but with it now mounting up to 4½ per cent. on Canadian goods and 6 per cent. on imported goods, it cannot with safety be disregarded. As far as the wholesale trade is concerned we are anxious that the tax to us from the manufacturer be shown in the list price, otherwise it will be exceedingly difficult for us to do our accounting. Soaps, for instance, will be listed that way and we in turn will list them to our customers with the manufacturer's tax included in the list but our own as a separate item. It is a hard blow for the grocery trade. The increased cost lessens the buying power of the retail trade at a time when it is bad already. Then it will also cut down the consumption in some lines and hurt the movement of goods. It is evident that the country needs the money. We cannot shirk it and it only remains that we must see that it is paid with as little risk to the safety of the trade as possible.'"

New List Prices Issued

"New list prices will have to be issued at once by all the wholesale grocery firms," said Zeph. Hebert, president of Hudon Hebert Limited, wholesale grocers of Montreal. "It is an immense piece of work but it has to be done immediately. The tax is imposed. There is little use to grumble about it so we might just as well get to work quickly

Candy Sales Hurt by 5 Per Cent. Tax

Manufacturers Go To Ottawa to Protest the Imposition Of An Excise Tax in Addition to the Increased Sales Tax—If It Stands, They Declare it Will Wipe Out the Sale of the Small Lines

TORONTO, May 30.—Candy manufacturers are protesting the five per cent. excise tax on candy or substitute for candy. With the increase of 50 per cent. in the sales tax, too tax on candy is now 9½ per cent., or as one manufacturer stated, it is pretty nearly the old luxury tax. Representatives of the candy manufacturing industry went before the Minister of Finance to-day, in an effort to have this taxation re-considered. They want some relief from what they claim is unduly burdensome, asserting that these taxes will affect the industry adversely, at a time when it is already none too good.

"We do not object to the increased sales tax," stated C. J. Bodley, of C. J. Bodley, Ltd., Toronto, secretary of the Confectionery, Biscuit and Chocolate Industries of Canada, "but the five per cent. excise tax is a return to the luxury tax. This five per cent. tax has completely upset the candy industry. Why this industry should be picked out along with beverages, cigars and cigarettes as especially deserving of taxation, I do not know, particularly when such articles as cosmetics are not included."

Will Have Bad Effect

H. N. Cowan, of The Cowan Co., Ltd., Toronto, and president of the Confectionery Association, when spoken to in regard to the tax on candy, declared that its effect on the industry at this time would be very bad, resulting in serious losses to the industry. The small lines would be very badly affected. Every effort, he said, would be put forth to have the tax removed.

George Robertson, of Robertson Bros., candy manufacturers, Queen Street E., Toronto, told a representative of Canadian Grocer that should this tax of 5 per cent. stand, in addition to the increased sales tax, the sale of bars and the cheaper lines of candies for children would be practically wiped out. "At the present time," he said, "the retailer pays 90 cents for a box of two dozen bars. With a tax of 9½ per cent. added, the price to the retailer must now be 98½ cents, thus reducing the merchant's profit if he continues to sell them at 5 cents each, to 22½ cents on two dozen. A six-cent bar does not sell well as has been previously proved. The odd price even in the case of boxes makes a difference in sales."

Will Small Dealers Escape?

"Then there is the case of the small dealer who manufactures his own candy. He escapes without having to pay the tax, or he can, if he has to pay it, reduce the price of his candy from himself as manufacturer to himself as retailer, as low as he wishes. Consequently the amount of the tax that he would have to pay would be very small. This feature makes it very unfair for the larger manufacturer. A straight sales tax of five per cent. would have been preferable."

Cheap Lines Hurt Most

E. Littler, general manager of Walter M. Lowney Co., of Montreal, speaking to a Canadian Grocer representative stated that the 5 and 10 cent bars in particular were hurt by the new tax. The addition of 5 per cent. to the cost of chocolate bars would make it practically impossible for the retail trade to sell the bar at 5 cents. At the same time it is quite impractical to list it at 6 cents. Experience in past years has shown that the bars will not sell at 6c. If the delegation is not successful in getting the tax removed on bars, the manufacturers, so Mr. Littler intimated, will have to make the bars a little smaller.

Claim Discrimination

The confectionery manufacturers contend that there are competitive lines that have a splendid loop-hole to avoid the tax, fruit in packages and gum for instance.

"Little can be said until we return from Ottawa," said Mr. Littler. "We contend that the five cent bars in particular are a food for the children and a popular confection in reach of all the people and therefore an additional tax that will make it impossible will not only be a hardship on the people, a blow to the industry, but cut down the revenue of the government."

Colin Currie, of the D. S. Perrin Company, Ltd., manufacturers of biscuits and candy, London, stated that unless what is known as the five-cent or children's goods are exempted, he believed that the new tariff will be a serious matter for the manufacturers.

URGE CARE IN CALCULATING

and set prices to accommodate the increased taxation. To the retail trade I would say, 'the cost of all lines has been increased by the increased sales tax and new list prices are now in effect, just as though the cost of all lines themselves had advanced, so it behooves the trade to increase their retail prices to cover this advance for there is nothing mythical about the increase."

Mr. Hebert went on to say that it will hurt the trade in many ways but that it has to be shouldered and it might be done cheerfully as otherwise. Like Mr. Gendreau he emphasized the fact that the retailers must realize that the sales tax is a very real part of the cost of the different items and that it should be systematically added to the net cost of the different lines purchased in order to figure out the re-sale price.

Venezuela Wants Can. Foods Says Trade Commissioner

Montreal. (Special).—Venezuela is energetically looking for a bigger market for her produce in Canada and at the same time is endeavoring to make connections with Canadian manufacturers in order to import food-stuffs for her people.

This week Guillermo Todd the Venezuelan Trade Commissioner was in Montreal and called on Canadian Grocer. He said that the low prices on sugar had been hard on the people of Venezuela but that cocoa and coffee production has been good. The biggest shipments have been sent to England, but Canada offered a good market, although most of the buying was done through New York. Mr. Todd hopes that a direct and permanent shipping service may be established between Canada and Venezuela. The first vessel in this direct service leaves Montreal on June 28, one of the fleet of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine.

Mr. Todd wishes to say to the Canadian manufacturers of food-stuffs, through Canadian Grocer, that if any one desires to establish connections in Venezuela the government of that country will be pleased to publish free of cost in all the papers the names of those merchants or manufacturers and their products. Mr. Todd may be reached any time this month by addressing him care Canadian Grocer, MacLean Publishing Co. Montreal.

The food products Venezuela is particularly anxious to get from Canada are fish salted and canned, canned fruits and vegetables, flour, cheese, butter, bacon and lard. In speaking of the opportunity Mr. Todd said that, "In the past much of their flour had been obtained from the United States but they all know that Canadian flour is the best in the world. We are anxious to get the best. The great trouble in the past has been freight service and we now want your government to give us a regular service so that we can trade direct with Canada."

Cigars and Cigarettes Will be Higher

Some Merchants Already Are Quoting Increased Prices on These Lines—Some Lines of Cigars Will be 5 Cents Higher As a Result of New Taxation

MONTREAL. (Special).—The advance in the price of cigarettes as a result of the Hon. W. S. Fielding's new tax, is now a reality. A temporary scale of cigarette prices has been set by the manufacturers, but whether there is to be a further increase, depends upon the attitude the government takes towards the tax. The tobacco manufacturers are strenuously objecting to the tax on the ground that it will defeat its own purpose, which is revenue getting.

Advance in Force

In some cases the new prices went into effect on Sunday last in this city and in other cases did not advance until the middle of the week. In virtue of the temporary increase decided on, brands of cigarettes which have been selling at 18 cents will now be sold at 20 cents, temporarily. It was decided by the manufacturers that to impose the full additional tax of 3 cents and make the price thereby 21 cents would cause too much inconvenience and objection on the part of the buying public. In addition to the 3 cents additional excise per package of ten cigarettes, there is also a fifty per cent. increase in the sales tax to be met. Brands of cigarettes which have been selling at 15 cents will be retailed at 18 cents per package or two for 35. The manufacturers in sending their lists of new prices to the trade on Saturday last made it clear that such new prices are only temporary and depend upon the attitude taken by Mr. Fielding, that it would mean a new list if the minister did not cut down in some measure his new taxes.

Delegation to Ottawa

A delegation representing the manufacturers of tobacco products are going to Ottawa this week to meet the Minister of Finance and protest the heavy tax on tobacco products. When a representative of the Imperial Tobacco Company, Ltd., Montreal was asked by Canadian Grocer for some statement of the company's policy with regard to the advanced tax, he said: "We have nothing to say at present. We have adopted no definite plan but expect that in a day or two we will be able to make a statement."

A Big Undertaking

An official of another tobacco company pointed out what a big task lay before the cigarette people in quoting a new price that would cover the increased cost and yet not advance the cost of any more than was actually necessary. In the first place in the manufacturing and sale of cigarettes one item is of paramount importance, volume and speed of turnover. For that reason, the very fact that there is an increased tax will make it more difficult to show the same percentage of profit on the turnover since most manufacturers agree that an increase in cost will cause a decrease in consumption. Not only does the increased excise and sale tax on cigarettes have to be taken into consideration in making both a wholesale and retail price but the increased sale tax on all the raw products that go to make up the package.

Bigger Increase Than Apparent

There is a bigger increase in the initial cost than is at first apparent. The increase on sale tax on the cardboard cartoons and containers has to be added as well as that on the tin foil, the labels, the cigarette papers, etc. One man said that it was a three day job to make these calculations. The general opinion is that by the end of this week at least the temporary new scale of prices on cigarettes will be in force in almost all retail stores. In the meantime, the consumer is storing up a good supply of smokes in anticipation of an advance of three or four cents a package.

Excise taxes are levied on cigars and cigarettes as follows:—Cigars made from raw leaf tobacco:

(a) Valued at not more than forty dollars per thousand, per thousand 50 cents.

(b) Valued at more than forty dollars per thousand and not more than eighty dollars per thousand, per thousand three dollars.

(c) Valued at more than eighty dollars per thousand and not more than one hundred and forty dollars per thousand, per thousand seven dollars.

(d) Valued at more than one hundred and forty dollars per thousand and not more than two hundred dollars per thousand, per thousand, ten dollars.

(e) Valued at more than two hundred dollars per thousand, per thousand, sixteen dollars.

* * * *

The Inland Revenue Act is amended by chapter six of the statutes of 1914, and chapter twenty-eight of the statutes of 1918 by repealing sub-sections (e), (f), (g) and (h) of section two hundred and seventy-nine thereof and sub-section three of section three hundred and twenty-eight A., and substituting therefor the following:

279. (e) On cigars of all descriptions, made from raw leaf tobacco, three dollars per thousand;

(f) on all cigars when put up in packages containing less than ten cigars each, four dollars per thousand.

(g) On cigarettes made from raw leaf tobacco or any substitute therefor, weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, nine dollars per thousand;

(h) On cigarettes made from raw leaf tobacco or any substitute therefor, weighing more than three pounds per thousand, fourteen dollars per thousand.

328 A. (3) There shall be levied, collected and paid an excise duty of five cents per pound on all tobacco grown in Canada for consumption therein, except when such tobacco is taken into a licensed tobacco or cigar manufactory.

Relay System for Clerks Works Well With This Grocer

Montreal.—Charles P. Macklaier, proprietor of Macklaier's Provision Store, 211 St. James St., Montreal, has a system which has done much to ease the long hours for his clerks. It is imperative that the store be open at seven in the morning and remain open until half past six, which means that the clerks cannot get away until very nearly seven o'clock in the evening. This makes a long day and is the cause of much of the trouble in the grocery business.

Relay System Adopted

Mr. Macklaier has adopted a relay system. There are eighteen on the staff which is divided into shifts. There are eight clerks on the floor of the store. One group comes in on Monday morning at seven and leaves sharp at six in the evening. The other group comes in at eight in the morning and stays on duty until the store closes. These groups alternate through the week and so three nights each week each clerk is able to get away sharp at six. The clerks in this store are very much pleased with the system and think that many other grocery stores might adopt the same plan and make things more easy for their clerks.

Making a Window Display of Beverages

Dressing the Window With Ginger Ale, Soda Water and Bottled Spring Water, Charles P. Macklaier, St. James Street, Montreal, Increases the Turnover of These Lines—Sells in Case Lots

MONTREAL, (Special)—One point on which Charles P. Macklaier is insistent, is that the window displays in his store, at 211 St. James Street, Montreal, shall always be of seasonable and profitable lines, preferably with one particular line of merchandise predominating, with a view to stimulating its sale. Most often Mr. Macklaier dresses his own window but when he does so he takes the opportunity to give one of his clerks a lesson in the essential features of display.

Featuring Soft Drinks

Recently a window was dressed by Frank Weston of Macklaier's staff, featuring soft drinks. The arrangement was particularly good and ginger ale, soda water and bottled spring water were outstanding features. Allied lines, however, were mingled in the display which added sales value and emphasized the need for these cooling drinks in the summer time, incidentally suggesting an opportunity for making bigger sales by the combination. In the centre of the window on a pedestal stood a large glass bowl full of lemons, around the stand were syphons of soda, suggestive of cold lemonade perhaps, by a stretch of imagination, "John Collins." Tins of biscuits formed a background to the window and added to the selling value, while small cartons of fancy biscuits and bottles of lime juice and other concentrated food extracts lent color to the white base of the window. The whole display was artistically arranged and so well balanced as to be pleasing to the eye.

Mr. Macklaier pointed out to Canadian Grocer representative that something must take the place of tea and other hot drinks at afternoon teas, tennis parties and other mid-day functions. There is no limit to the assortment of tasty cold drinks which may be substituted and by displaying these the grocer may increase his sales during the summer time. "The more of these drinks that are in the home," said Mr. Macklaier, "the more will be used and therefore we push the sale in case and dozen lots. We have been very successful in developing these sales and a good proportion of our customers have got in the habit of ordering assorted soft drinks by the case lot. When a good supply is in the home and three or four bottles of these drinks are on ice continually the consumption is noticeably increased and we get a big turnover in this line. It is certainly one feature of the summertime trade which the grocer should keep in mind and keep to the fore if he would make the best of his opportunity."

Mr. Macklaier also pointed out that the grocer is well protected in this line. There is little chance for loss since the firms manufacturing the lines maintain a good service and even should the stock on hand be heavy most of the varieties have good keeping qualities.

THISTLE CANNING PLANTS TAKEN OVER

Montreal, (Special)—The Thistle Canning and Curing Co., of New Edinburgh, N. S., has changed hands. It has been taken over by the Frank E. Davis Fish Co. of Gloucester, Mass. The vice-president and general manager of the company is Royal C. Wells, who will have the general direction of the operations of the company in Nova Scotia and C. H. Thurber, the company superintendent of the plant at Freeport, N. S., will take direct charge of the newly-acquired Thistle plant.

A number of changes are being made in the factories which are located on St. Mary's Bay in Digby County. It is the intention of the new company to pack lobsters, herring and clams as well as haddies. Mr. Wells was in Montreal recently and appointed Tippet & Co. their sales agents for Canada.

Small Fruits Short in Lower Fraser Valley

Hatzie, B. C., May 31.—Raspberries, loganberries and strawberries have suffered severely by the length and severity of the past winter months and it is estimated that this year's crop of these small fruits in the Lower Fraser Valley will be only about half that of last season.

On the other hand experts state that gooseberries, black and white currants, plums, apples and cherries should be exceptionally heavy in yield.

At the present time the small fruit season is at least one month behind normal growth and maturity, but should warm weather and bright sunshine now continue, growth will move fast in the next two weeks and even the raspberries and strawberries may give greater results than anticipated.

Illustrating how Macklaiers, Montreal, made a display of summer beverages recently.—The window started the sale of these lines resulting in an increased turnover.

The arrangement of the window included an array of ginger ale, soda water and bottled spring water, with allied lines mixed in the display, the whole effect being one of strong selling value.

No Fear of Cash and Carry Stores

This Merchant Has Cash and Carry Store in the Same Block With Him But Finds No Difference in His Trade—Gives Service of Credit and Delivery and Believes it is the Best

LESS than one thousand dollars in bad debts during a period of 41 years, is a splendid record for any merchant. W. A. Munn, grocer at 235 Talbot Street, St. Thomas, Ont., does business on a credit basis largely, but his losses as a result have been exceedingly small. In fact in the last eleven years he has only lost $196. His trade is 75 per cent. credit, and orders are largely given over the telephone. Families in St. Thomas have dealt at this store for a long period of years. Their standing in the community is well known, and their trade, Mr. Munn considers, is as good as if they paid cash at every purchase. Some of these accounts are paid weekly, some fortnightly, and others monthly.

$50,000 Last Year

"Last year our business totalled fifty thousand dollars," Mr. Munn recently told a representative of Canadian Grocer. "We turned our stock a little better than eight and a half times during the twelve months. We have a cash and carry store in the same block in which we are situated, but I have not noticed any difference in my turnover. The cash and carry stores get the people who want to take advantage of lower prices and carry their goods home, but with my customers, it is different. Many of them never come into the store, they telephone their orders, which are delivered. The cash and carry idea has no attractions for them. We have been in the one stand here for the past thirty years.

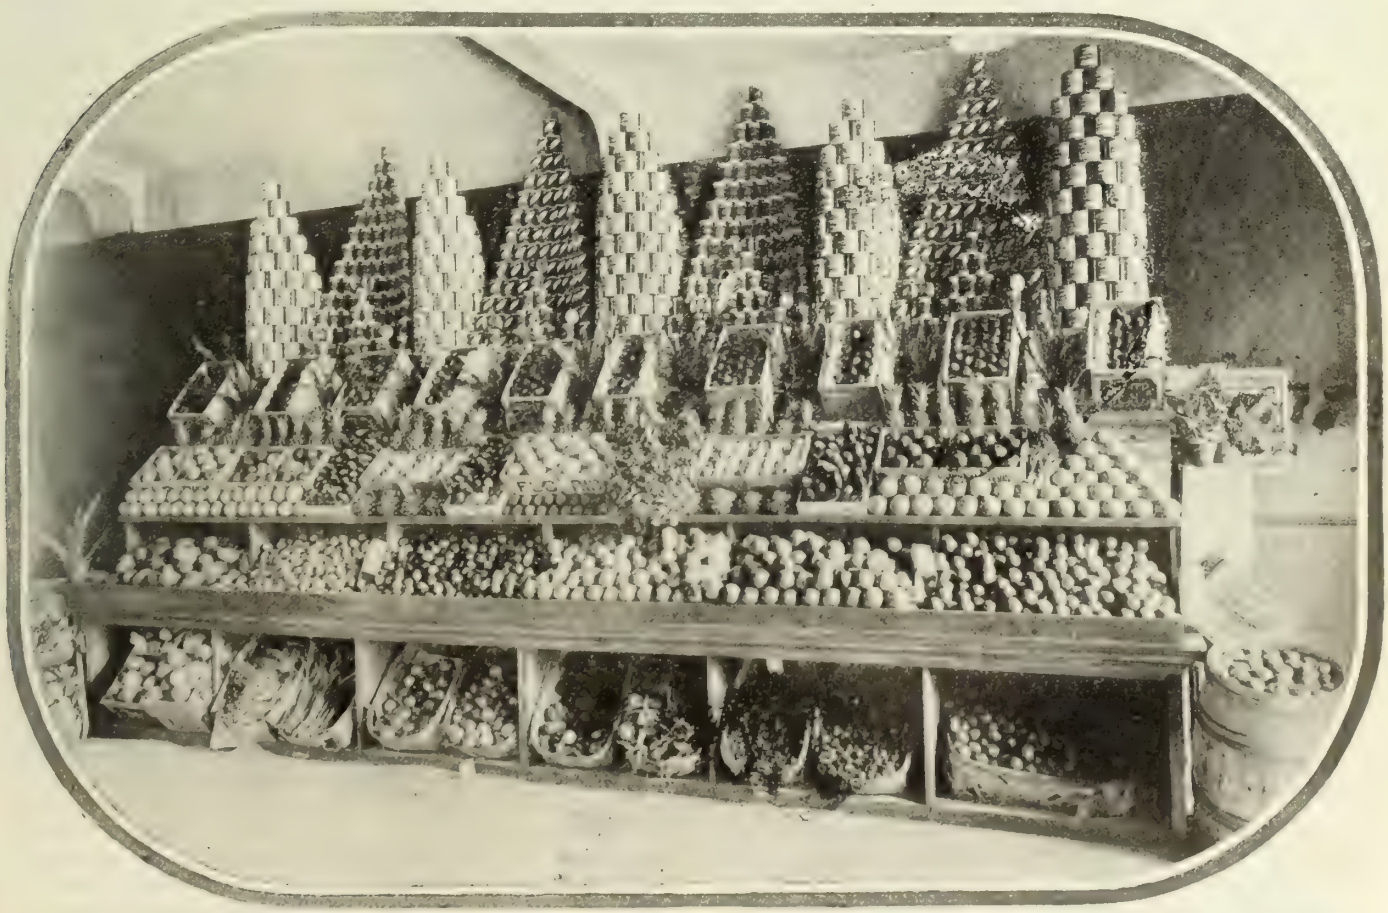
Get Some Catch Trade

"While our cash trade is only a quarter of our total turnover, we do attract a certain amount of business that might be termed 'catch trade.' We dress our window once and sometimes twice a week, and it is largely because of this medium that our cash sales are made. Display sells a lot of goods for us, but because of our well established family trade, we do not depend upon it to the same extent as other merchants. However, we do believe in making our store and our window as attractive as possible at all times. We check our credit accounts very closely, which no doubt is responsible for the fact that our losses are of such small volume. We have estimated that we could do another fifteen thousand dollars in business in a year, if we were prepared to take the chances that others do. We prefer to build more cautiously and to know to whom we give credit."

Carry Only The Best

In this store a reputation has been built for quality and service. Through a long period of time special attention has been directed towards maintaining a standard of quality that in Mr. Munn's opinion cannot be surpassed. "It pays to handle only the best," he remarked to the Canadian Grocer representative in the course of the conversation. "My customers feel that when they buy in my store they are getting first-class goods, and it is that confidence in a store that holds the trade. I think that reputation is worth a great deal and has meant much in maintaining business in our store at satisfactory levels at a time when there has been general complaint of slow business."

This store is situated a quarter of a mile from the business section of the town, but apparently this is not an adverse factor in its success.



An attractive display of fruits and vegetables—In this store special sales effort is always directed towards increasing turnover in these lines.

Sale of Temperance Beers

A BILL HAS just been introduced into the Ontario Legislature, known as the Ontario Temperance Amendment 1922. It seeks to give to standard hotels the exclusive right to sell malt products commonly called temperance beers. Any person who sells any malt products, contrary to the provisions of this subjection, should this Act come into force, shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars.

The Retail Merchants' Association is already taking steps to oppose the passing of this bill, feeling that the same would be an injustice to the hundreds of grocers and others who are now selling these temperance beers. Merchants throughout the Province of Ontario are selling these beverages and in the past few years, that is, since the advent of prohibition, have been finding them a legitimate source of profit. The retailer claims a right to sell them and does not look with favor upon any measure that will take them away, and confine the sale of them alone to standard hotels.

It is the intention of the Retail Merchants' Association to oppose the amendment when it comes before the committee and every effort will be put forward to prevent its passing. These is no apparent reason why grocers should not have the privilege of selling these temperance beers, and retailers who are selling them, will heartily approve of any endeavor to retain the sale of them in the trade.

Affects Canadian Exports

THE UNITED States Emergency Tariff Act has concluded its first year of operation. The Act was passed by Congress May 23, 1921, signed by the president May 27, and became effective May 28. Its effect on Canadian exports has been quite marked. This fact is gleaned from a study of the quantities and values of the articles exported in April 1921, as compared with those in April 1922—the eleventh full month of the operation of the act, and the quantities and values for the eleven months, June 1920 to April 1921, as compared with the corresponding period in 1921-22.

The total value of all exports to the United States affected by the Emergency Tariff, for the eleven months ended April, 1922 was $36,945,028, as compared with $164,857,423 in the corresponding period ended April, 1921.

Butter and its substitutes offer an excellent example of the manner in which exports have fallen off in some of the commodities since the Act went into operation. In April, 1921 we sent 41,951 pounds across the line, but in April this year exports amounted to only 485 pounds. For the eleven months ended April, 1921, our sales of butter and butter substitutes to the Americans totalled 5,170,386 pounds as compared with 2,969,074 pounds in the corresponding period ended April, 1922.

For the eleven months finishing April 1922, there was a falling off of ten million pounds in the quantity of fresh or frozen beef, veal, mutton, lamb and pork exported to the United States. For the eleven month period preceding the Emergency Tariff the exports amounted to 36,013,000 pounds compared with 26,225,000 pounds during the period which the act has been in force.

The imposition of a tax of thirty cents per bushel on potatoes also caused a considerable decline in exports of that commodity to the United States. We sent 273,419 bushels across the line in April in April, 1921, but only 158,642 bushels in April, 1922. Trading in this commodity fell from 2,540,625 bushels in the eleven months preceding the tariff to 1,555,-154 bushels in the tariff period.

Do Not Overlook Sales Tax

BY THE NEW schedule under the 1922 Budget, the sales tax is increased fifty per cent. Under the old schedule the tax to the retailer on Canadian manufactured goods, when purchased through the wholesaler was 1½ per cent. and when purchased direct from the manufacturer, the tax was 3 per cent. The new tax is therefore 2¼ and 4½ per cent. On imported lines the new tax is 4 per cent. when purchased through the wholesaler and 6 per cent. when imported direct.

The sales tax now amounts to a considerable sum when figured on the total turnover during the year and represents a nice profit in itself. It has been the custom with some merchants in the past to ignore the sales tax as being too small to figure, especially on articles, like soap for instance, where the resale price is a small amount. These merchants have been absorbing this tax, paying it out of their own pocket as it were. Another point is that certain wholesalers and manufacturers have been absorbing part, and sometimes all of the tax, instead of passing it on to the retailer. Now that the tax is increased there is little chance of this being done and the retailer who was only getting a portion of the tax will undoubtedly have the full amount tacked on to their invoices.

A retailer told the writer the other day that on cooked hams he was previously paying a sales tax of only 1½ per cent. This merchant purchased direct from the packer and according to the schedule should have paid 3 per cent. But in this instance the packer was absorbing part of the tax. Since the new schedule came into effect, the same packer charged the full tax of 4½ per cent., which increased the cost of the ham nearly three cents per pound.

Merchants who have not been considering the sales tax as part of the cost of the article are well advised to pay particular attention to that part of the invoice and figure it in the cost to the last fraction of a cent, or else some day they are likely to be asking themselves "Where have my profits gone?"

Editorials in Brief

The grocer who takes no interest in his own community life is no better than a mail-order house and deserves the treatment such a house is handed by discriminating patrons.

A close study of the first seven pages of this issue will give the grocer an intimacy with new taxation as affecting his trade, and as brought down in last week's budget, that will be decidedly valuable to him, in adjusting his business to the new regulations.

Statement as Here Submitted From Grocer Operating Six Stores on Cash and Carry Plan Shows Some Interesting Percentages—"If You Give Service it Must be Estimated at Its Real Cost and Charged for Accordingly"

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

I FORGET exactly how long this man has been in business though I wrote his story only a few months ago. But I know it is not long since he had only one store, that he ran it a while on the full service plan, that then he took up cash-and-carry of which he now has six. So he had no special advantages not open to everyone. He promises to send his full statement in detail soon. Meantime, here are his expenses tabulated for last year:

Expenses

Nov. 1, 1920 to Oct. 31, 1921. Sales:	$351,249.32
Attorney's fees-organization ..	.0008
Advertising	.0050
Auditing	.0005
Auto expense	.0012
Bad checks	.0002
Bags, paper and twine	.0083
Depreciation	.0031
Heat, light and power	.0025
Insurance	.0016
Ice	.0024
Miscellaneous	.0076
Office supplies	.0016
Preliminary expense, stores, ...	.0005
Rent	.0166
Telephone and telegraph	.0006
Taxes	.0013
Wages	.0719
Total per cent.	.1257

That statement will repay study. It will show that there is no magic about chain store management, but that there is a lot of watchfulness, system and common sense.

Advertising is shown at ½ per cent. which is modes, of course, on such sales that provides a fund of over $1,750. Such a fund is large for the grocery business and can be very effective. But 1 per cent. to 1½ per cent. is permissible for any grocer, and it is not a large percentage nor a heavy charge when we remember that advertising is not an expense, properly so called at all. It is "an investment in the future stability of the business." This man did not have $350,000 sales assured when he began this period, but he made them by having the enterprise to go after business persistently, consistently, by intelligent advertising. This is a job that must be regarded just as seriously and done as systematically as opening the store on time every morning if it is to count for anything.

Perhaps it would be as well for us all to notice that the pressure of intelligent competition is around us and that we must meet with intelligent management and work, or we shall not be able to stand against it. This back-fire of good advertising, which embraces all trade promotion, is the most vital work we can do. Shall we wake up and get busy? Or shall we content ourselves with saying such competition as promises to stir us into action is "unfair?" Shall we help ourselves, or shall we look to legislation to help us? I feel sure that self-help will be the only effective kind.

Rent in this business is normal at 1.66 per cent. but it is not lower than grocers generally can make theirs. No special advantage accrues, therefore, to this chain from rent. Wages you will notice run to 7.19—nearly seven and one-fifth—per cent. on sales. Not only is this usual and normal, but within the past few weeks I have reviewed statements from single-store grocers which show wage expenses less than this.

To sum up: The statement shows that chain stores are operating on around 12½ per cent.—referring, now, to stores that do not give service outside the stores and probably only a moderate amount of service inside. I have recently published many statements that show that single grocers in many localities are operating on little if any higher extreme ratios. Thus, on this expense question, chains and single grocers seem able to run on about the same basis for similar service.

Service Costs and Must be Paid for

Now two things more: If you give service, it must be estimated at its real cost and charged for accordingly. No man can do work for nothing. Nobody can give service and not be paid for it. No reasonable customer expects to get service free. Certain unreasonable ones refuse to see the logic of prices fixed at a level high enough to absorb charges. If you have experience with such unreasonable customers, explain things at sufficient length in detail enough to cover the ground. Take time and patience to do this. Then if the listener is not able to see the point, smile, turn away with a bow—and devote yourself to those who can see the justice of your position.

But the second condition is as important and as unavoidable as the first. It is that then you deliver service at the right cost. It is admitted that the service store is entitled to about 5 per cent. more than the non-service. That admits of 17½ per cent. as against the expense of the man under review, and 17½ per cent. is a big percentage for expenses almost anywhere.

Remember, in your estimates and in fixing prices for service, that an article advanced from 15c to 16c is advanced over 6 per cent. In your case, therefore, the article that is sold for 15c by the chain or non-service merchant may properly be priced at 16c, but it cannot be priced at 20c, nor 25c. If such figures seem exaggerated to you, I can say that precisely such differences are insisted on in many service stores—and neither economics nor good business will sanction such differences.

You can get enough. You can get too much. The old divisional markings of 10, 15, 20, 25c have got to be discontinued in these days of closer figuring. The divisions must come at 9, 10, 11, 12, 13; 16, 17, 19, 27, 29c and so on. Look over your stocks and prices with this thought in your mind, and you will probably find that both you and your customers can understand each other and both prosper—speaking generally and covering the bulk of conditions.

Quebec Merchant Figures Conservatively

April 4, 1922.

Dear Mr. Johnson:—Here is a copy of our balance sheet as of December 31, which we would like you to pick to pieces and say whether it is healthy or otherwise. This is for a period of sixteen months as we changed date for annual accounting to make a more convenient time, when trade is slack. Our sales for the sixteen months were $93,109.89. Purchases were $75,273.27. Expenses were $15,-197.13, made up as follows:

Labor, including partners' salaries of $125 per month each five help besides two partners	$9,731.49
Delivery, including drivers' Wages	1,356.96
Insurance	198.31
Interest, exchange & discount	148.44
Depreciation on Delivery car	340.96
Depreciation on rigs	45.30
Depreciation on Furniture & Fixtures	334.67
Charity	22.00
Sundry expenses, including Rent	3,019.00
Total	$15,197.13

At inventory time, 1920, values were taken at market, which was rising constantly—not at cost—and a month later, prices began to drop. At this last inventory prices were put at lowest possible point; where the market was lower than our cost, we took

Where and When Stores are Closing

PETERBOROUGH.—Stores close Thursday afternoon.

FENELON FALLS.—Stores close Wednesdays at 12 o'clock during the months of May to September.

BURFORD.—Stores close Wednesday afternoons during the months of June July, August and September.

WYOMING.—Stores close Wednesday afternoon, beginning May 17 and ending September 20.

FORT FRANCES.—In last week's issue it was stated that stores close on Wednesday afternoon. This was an error and should be Thursday beginning May 18 and ending September 14.

Ottawa is Ahead of Toronto in Matter of Early Closing

Ottawa, May 29, (Special)—That Ottawa is considerably ahead of Toronto in its observance of the early closing by-laws was the statement made by T. W. Collins at a regular meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, at which various phases of the Ontario convention were discussed. Mr. Collins stated that he, with other members of the association, while in Toronto, found the stores to be wide open at ten o'clock. He then discussed the necessity and feasibility of the local association having some merchants, such as fruiterers and restaurant keepers, properly defined, as they were not closing at the hours provided by law for grocers.

The report of the convention was read by Duncan Bell, and A. G. Moreland reported that the pure food committee, while in Toronto had visited over thirty manufacturers, and that fifty booths for this year's Pure Food Show at the Central Canada Exhibition had already been taken.

Satisfaction was expressed at the election of T. W. Collins, as vice-president of the Ontario provincial organization, and of B. G. Crabtree as delegate to the Dominion Board. In the absence of President A. E. Kelly, T. A. C. Kennedy was in the chair.

First Crop Report on Conditions in the West is Filled With Optimism

Heavy Rains That Have Fallen in the Past Fortnight Have Proved Very Beneficial—It is Stated That Initial Prospects Were Never Better

WINNIPEG.—According to the first crop report issued for 1922, by the Manitoba Free Press, covering thoroughly the grain-growing sections of the prairie provinces of Western Canada, optimism is generally expressed as to the prospects, the heavy rains which have fallen in the past fortnight proving very beneficial. It is stated that initial prospects were never better. With the advent of warm weather, growth should be very rapid.

Decrease in Wheat Acreage

On the other hand, a decrease in wheat acreage of five per cent. in Manitoba and fifteen per cent. in Saskatchewan is recorded, while Alberta is promised an increased acreage of five per cent. In Manitoba the decrease is due partly to the wet season, but more largely to the fact that coarse grains, fall and spring rye, have been sown instead of wheat in districts where wheat has been giving low yields. Little definite information as to the damage to seeded acres from the overflowing of the Assiniboine river has been ascertained. While, undoubtedly, hundreds of acres have been flooded in the Assiniboine valley and adjacent low lands, it is not generally thought to be as extensive as reported, as much of this land is marsh and grazing lands. In northwestern Manitoba, where the first floods took place, the water is now receding, and it is anticipated that much re-seeding to coarse grains will take place.

In Saskatchewan the decreased acreage is mainly due to the late season and the wet condition of the soil. It will be remembered that this province received two weeks of steady rain last fall, which seriously delayed threshing. Much of the Saskatchewan land was very wet with the opening of spring, which prevented, to a large extent, getting to work in the fields, and now the general rains of the past ten days have again delayed seeding operations. A corresponding increase in coarse grain acreage is anticipated. In Alberta the indicated increased acreage of five per cent, is credited to the splendid condition of the soil, due to very heavy snowfalls through the winter and early spring, which prompted many farmers to sow wheat who otherwise would have sown coarse grains.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the wheat acreage in the three western provinces in 1921 was as follows: Manitoba, 3,501,217; Saskatchewan, 11,523,202; Alberta, 5,379,574.

In the percentage of wheat seeded, Manitoba takes the lead with 95 per cent. finished. As this was nearly all in the ground before the wet period commenced, the greater proportion is up and reported as looking fine. In Saskatchewan the wheat acreage seeded is reported from 55 to 60 per cent., and the soil generally too wet to work, and a few warm days will be needed before seeding can be re-commenced over large areas. In Alberta, wheat seeding is 90 per cent. finished in the northern half, and fifty per cent. in the south.

Wholesale Grocers' Convention Has A Big Programme

Toronto, May. 31—The anuual convention of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' will open at the Hotel Clifton, Niagara Falls, on Monday, June 12, at two o'clock. The president, Armand Chaput of Montreal will preside. While the programme has not been definitely arranged, the first afternoon will be taken up with the reception of the president's, secretary's and treasurer's reports, and it is expected that I. F. Hellmuth, K. C., Toronto, counsel for the association will be present and give an address. On the evening of the first day, the Queen Victoria Park Commission is entertaining the delegates and their ladies to a garden party and dance.

The second day is to be given up entirely to a conference wtih manufacturers. Present problems in the trade will be discussed, and it is felt that this will constitute quite the most important feature of the convention. Subjects for discussion on the third day include drop shipment by manufacturers, the canned goods situation in 1922, different methods of paying salesmen. A committee from the Retail Merchants' Association will also confer with the wholesalers. An address will be given on the third day by H. E. Sloan, on efficiency methods in the wholesale trade. Other entertainment features will include a banquet on Tuesday evening at the Clifton.

Letters To The Editor

ALREADY OVERTAXED

Editor, Canadian Grocer:

No doubt a good many acts are framed up by those that do not know the conditions, and the class affected have to suffer. Look what the sales tax means to the retailers, and no chance of getting it back. In my little business it meant $500 last year; now it is suggested that 2% be collected on gross sales. Well Mr. Editor, that would spell ruin to the retail grocer. Any one of them will tell you the same, and we know what we are talking about. In my humble opinion there is only one fair and just way of collecting a tax of this kind, that is at the place of manufacture, then we all pay our share, which we have a right to do, but in the manner suggested it is a direct tax on the retailer. I would say we are already overloaded. Another order has gone into force, viz., the minimum wage act for female help in stores. This looks like class legislation. I am not saying it is. Here is the definition as given on the card sent out as follows:—

This order governs the selling force and includes cashiers, parcellers, messengers and other employees working with the sales force but not milliners, dressmakers, office workers or factory workers.

Now Mr. Editor, I think a merchant should have the right to decide what an employee should be paid, as he only knows what they are worth to him in his business and I do not think this is an opportune time to raise wages.

Would like to have expression from other retail grocers in the province of Ontario.

Yours truly,
A RETAIL GROCER.

SALES TAX IN EFFECT

Burkes Falls, May 30th, 1922.

Editor, Canadian Grocer:

Am receiving invoices from wholesalers with 4½ per cent. tax added. Are they justified in doing so before Fielding's proposed tariff passes a vote in the House? I never understood that any Finance Minister could make a law himself, without the law receiving the approval of a majority.

D. S. Litster.

Editor's Note:—Changes in sales tax mentioned in the new Budget are now effective. They came into effect on May 24. The wholesalers' sales tax as shown on their invoices to you will be 2¼ per cent., an increase of 50 per cent. over the former sales tax of 1½ per cent. If you as a retailer buy direct from a Canadian manufacturer the sales tax then is 4½ per cent. If you buy imported goods direct you pay 6%.

Thinks Canada is Making Remarkably Quick Recovery

Winnipeg, May 31.—R. J. Campbell, president of Campbell Bros. and Wilson, wholesale grocers in Western Canada, was on a visit to the West recently. Mr. Campbell at present resides at Finchley, in North London, England, and his visit to Canada at the present time comes at the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the company of which he is head. The business was started by Mr. Campbell in Winnipeg in 1882.

Although in Canada but a short time, Mr. Campbell expressed the opinion in the course of an interview, that Canada is making a remarkably quick recovery from the post-war depression—a quicker recovery than was the case of other countries.

Trade in the Old Land, he said, is very good, although people are not buying the luxuries to the same extent as before the war. The competition of German goods is manifesting itself to a very considerable extent. Conditions are gradually getting back to normal.

These Figures Are Not Representative of Grocery Stores in General

Percentages of Turnover in Grocery Department of a Large Departmental Store in the U.S.A. as Given Out a Few Years Ago Should Not be Taken as Standard To-Day

ABOUT three years ago Henry Johnson, Jr. (Paul Findlay) wrote an article for Canadian Grocer on the principal lines in the grocery department of a department store so far as percentage of turnover was concerned. This article showed for instance the percentages of about 65 food lines based on total turnover—sugar 13.6 per cent.; butter 12.9 per cent.; etc.

It has been published and re-published in various papers all over the world. Recently it got back to a publication in Western Canada which printed it as the standard existing in the United States among grocery stores. To correct this wrong impression Mr. Findlay writes to this western paper in part as follows:

"I was very much interested in your article, published in your issue of April 15, on "The Grocer's Principal Lines." The reason for my interest is as follows:

"Early in the spring of 1919 I went into the store of Duffy-Powers Company of Rochester, New York, and got a very nice story from them about their food department. Either at that time or a few months later, I got from them a list of the principal goods sold either in June of 1918 or 1919, segregated in percentages of the total turnover. I got permission to reproduce and use that tabulation and I wrote a story on it for my syndicated list of grocery papers, using Duffy-Powers name and carefully describing exactly what the entire schedule represented.

"A little later on a scissors-and-paste editor evidently thought it was pretty good stuff and, to avoid giving credit to its source of origin, he generalized it and indicated that it was a representative of the average grocer's proportionate sales. In that form it has been published and re-published all over this country and evidently is now finding its way around the world.

"This is a good illustration of how misleading misinformation can become, because this happens to be an analysis of the sales in the cash-and-carry food department of one department store for one summer month, and therefore, despite the similarity of some of the figures which you have noted, is not representative of grocery stores in general. Take for example the fact that tea stood alone in the original schedule, not combined with breakfast food, at 2.1 per cent. as against coffee at 1.9 per cent. In the ordinary grocery store in the U. S. the sales of tea do not bear any such proportion to total sales and the sales of coffee are very much greater than those of tea. These figures were as quoted in this instance because during that month a special drive had been made on tea of a special kind suitable for serving iced.

"I thought you might be interested in having these facts. Naturally, the principal thing is that grocers be started thinking about the facts and figures of their own business."

WHY PEOPLE CHANGE STORE PATRONAGE

Honor Buckley, speaking in Chicago recently, reported the analysis of the reasons influencing an average hundred persons to change store patronage:

Sixty-eight changed because of store indifference.

Nine because of better service elsewhere.

Three because other stores are more convenient.

Fourteen because of unadjusted grievances.

Five were influenced by friends to go elsewhere; and one died.

Vancouver Retailers in Important Offices

Vancouver.—In order to emphasize the position of honor and responsibility held in the community by the retailer, the retailers invited to their weekly luncheon the heads of several community bodies and the heads of the civic affairs. The line-up showed conclusively that as a class, the retailer was measuring up to the standard of good citizenship.

Mayor Tisdale is a retailer of sporting goods, the chairman of the finance committee is Alderman Owen, a retail hardware man, the chairman of the Parks Board, Alderman Shelley, a baker. The president of the Rotary Club is "Bob" Millar, a retail toy and crockery merchant, the president of the Kiwanis Club, G. Cunningham, retail druggist.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

CONSIDERABLE strength developed in the raw sugar market during the past week. Cubas advanced to 2⅝c c. & f. New York for second half of June shipment which figures to 4.23c duty paid. Heavy sales transpired, clearing the market of all sugars available at this price for late June shipment.

New York refiners in consequence of the strength in the raw market have advanced their quotations, which now stand at $5.50 to $5.60 per cwt. for standard granulated.

The Cuban campaign is closing rapidly. Thirty factories finished grinding during the week, leaving a total of 81 still operating as against 172 for the same period last year. Rainy weather continues in the Island which has interfered with grinding operations but is favorable to the growing of the cane for next year's harvest.

Canadian refined sugar situation has a stronger tone. Eastern refiners point out that prices are lower than they are obtaining for export and also lower than the New York market when freight and duty is taken into consideration. Considerable export business has transpired and with the prospect for a good fruit crop and consequently a heavier consumer demand, coupled with a stronger raw market, there is reason to believe that the situation will strengthen.

Teas continue to indicate strength. Advices from Colombo state that prices are again advanced. The Japan market opened several cents higher than last year and cables from there, state that natives are holding out for the higher figure.

Canned vegetables, fruits and jams continue to show a good movement at firm prices. There are indications that these lines will be fairly well cleaned up by the time the packing season opens, so that canners and jam manufacturers will not be faced with a large carryover such as last year.

Rolled oats hold firm while other bulk package cereals show little change.

Butter, cheese and eggs are easier. Live hogs are in a strong position while lard, shortening and cured meats have a stronger tone.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, June 1.—Although the new taxation bears heavily upon the grocery trade, increasing the cost of all lines, markets, as yet, show little effect apart from the 50 per cent. increase in the sales tax. Wholesalers emphasize the fact, however, that in the near future the increase in the sales tax will show in another way, an increase in the invoice price of food products, through the taxation on the sale from the manufacturer to the wholesaler. Little is said about molasses. The market is steady both in price and demand. Canned goods are still unsettled with cut prices endeavoring to unload spot stocks, particularly of fruit. Japan new crop teas have been bought at a lower price which will permit of sale here at the basis of 1919. On the other hand black teas are strong in price with the likelihood of a sharp advance in package tea prices. Whole nutmegs are advanced in price. Tapioca and sago are higher but there is no change in rices. Cereals are steady with only a limited demand. Reports on the new prune crop, although early, are not bright. Prices on spot prunes are strong and the coast reports stocks cleaned up. The nut market is quiet with little demand except some buying for fall delivery. Local vegetables on the market have broken prices and radishes, spinach and parsley are lower. New potatoes have advanced. There is no change in the coffee market. In package goods the only change is an advance in self-raising flour.

CEREALS ARE QUIET

CANNED GOODS VARY

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS.—The canned goods market is uninteresting. Prices are still unsettled and vary considerably. No change has been made by local wholesalers to cover the increased sales tax since they are all anxious to unload present stocks. Canned fruits in particular are cut and list prices are only nominal. Much depends now upon the fruit crop for this year and as reports so far are good there is a feeling in the trade that prices on canned fruits for next year will be lower. The same applies to canned vegetables.

SELF-RAISING FLOUR HIGHER

Montreal.

PACKAGE GOODS.—An advance is quoted on Brodie & Harvie's Self-Raising Flour in packages, making the price $4.50 per ½ doz. for the 6 lb. packages and $2.30 per doz. for the 3 lb. packages. EARLY REPORT ON PRUNES

Montreal.

DRIED FRUITS.—The dried fruit market is fairly quiet with some new prices on candied and glace peels quoted in England and in the United States but Canadian manufacturers have not yet quoted prices for this year. Reports from California on the prune crop are pessimistic. One statement says that in the Santa Clara Valley the production will only be 70 per cent. of last year. This, however, is only a prediction from the present condition of the buds. Present stocks are light and the coast reports all holdings cleaned up and New York has little to offer. Local prices are strong.

COFFEE PRICES STEADY

SUGAR MARKET STRONG

Montreal.

SUGAR.—Although there has been no change in the sugar market, there seems to be more confidence in its stability and many retailers are buying for the future. There is an improved export market for Canadian refined sugar and fairly heavy shipments are now being made to England

NUTMEGS ADVANCED

Montreal

SPICES.—The feature of the spice market is an advance of 5 cents per pound in whole nutmegs, one hundreds. In primary markets there is a somewhat feverish and irregular feeling but noticeably more active than it was. The continued strength of Sterling stiffens prices on China produce. There is a seasonal side to the spice and seed market which does much to stimulate the market and as this is not far off buying is a little more active for the autumn pickling and preserving. On the whole spices are quiet with no feature of note in any particular line in primary markets.

NEW JAPAN TEAS LOWER

Montreal

TEAS.—There is more and more talk about an advance and some of the branded package lines are likely to advance in the near future. On the other hand reports are that new Japan tea will be laid down in this market at a price equal to that of 1919 which is below 1921 price and much below 1920. This has a weakening feeling on the market for Japan tea and local dealers state that they expect the first shipment of the new crop in Montreal about June 15.

LEMONS IN DEMAND

Montreal.

FRUIT.—One effect of the new tax, so the fruit dealers say is to increase the demand for lemons, since the price of soft drinks is to advance. The price on lemons so far is firm but shows strong tendencies. Messina lemons are up to $5 a crate. Pineapples are a litt'e lower. Oranges are higher in price. Late Valencias are quoted at $10 and $10.50. Strawberries are firm in price with a good demand.

LOCAL VEGETABLES OFFERED

Montreal

VEGETABLES.—The advent of domestic vegetables on the market brings lower prices on many lines. Radishes are down to 28 and 30c. a doz. Local spinach is quoted at $1.50 a gin box and $2.50 a barrel. Green peas however have advanced to $8 and $9 a hamper. New potatoes are also higher. Tomatoes are in good supply and steady in price.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, May 31.—Markets for general grocery commodities show little change as compared with a week ago. Rolled oats are firm with some wholesalers quoting a higher figure. Canned vegetables and fruits are moving well under steady quotations. Jams are also becoming cleaned up and manufacturers are not expected to be faced with such a large carryover as they were last year. Coffees are firm but local quotations show no change. One brand of macaroni is reduced while package cereals of a cooked character are showing an improvement in the demand. Prunes continue with a primary markets in an easy position. Tea markets continue strong good consumer demand while raisins show little movement with with Colombo market higher and new Japans offered at a higher price than the opening market of last season. Spices and rices are quiet. The sugar market has a stronger tone. Vegetables and fruits are arriving in steadily increasing volume, with quotations generally tending easier.

ROLLED OATS HOLD FIRM

Toronto

CEREALS.—Rolled oats continue the feature in the bulk cereal market. The oat market has been in a strong position for some weeks past and although manufacturers had advanced prices there was some cutting among the wholesale trade. The majority of wholesalers, now however, are quoting the higher figure of $3.25 per 90 lb. bag. Lentils are quoted at a lower price of 12½c. per lb. in bag lots.

RAISINS EASIER

Toronto

DRIED FRUITS.—There is little change in the local dried fruit situation. Prunes continue to move freely at steady to firm prices. In the primary markets raisins continue to be the weak spot; prices are easier on the New York market with little inclination on the part of buyers to make purchases. With the approach of the end of the season and a prospect for a big carryover, the tendency is towards lower levels in order to move supplies before the new crop raisins are offered.

TEAS.—The market continues to indicate a strong position. Advices from Colombo state that the market there has again shown an advance. Reports from the Japan market continue to show a higher price than the opening last year and that the natives are holding out for full figures. Some local tea importers are offering new crop early pickings Japans, to arrive at 65 cents, an advance of two cents per pound.

SUGAR LOOKS STRONGER

Toronto.

SUGAR.—The Acadia Sugar Refinery announce an advance of 10c. per cwt., making the Montreal basis $6. Other refiners, however, remain unchanged on the basis of $5.90 Montreal. Refiners claim that present prices are about 25c. below export prices and lower than the U. S. refiners when duty and freight are taken into consideration. Considerable export business is transpiring at the present time and with a good fruit crop in prospect and a heavy consumer demand, there is a strong tendency for prices strengthening during the summer months. Dominion Sugar Refinery has advanced quotations from $5.90 to $6.18 less one per cent.

VEGETABLES EASY

Toronto.

VEGETABLES.—Arrivals of fresh vegetables are steadily increasing and prices generally show easier tendencies.

Green and wax beans dropped considerably during the week, the former is quoted at $2.50 and the latter at $3 per hamper. Hamper cucumbers are lower at $3.50 while the hothouse variety is bringing $2.25 to $2.75 per 11 qt. basket. Tomatoes are in a strong market at prices from $5.50 to $6.50 per 6 bkt. crate. New Florida potatoes are quoted at $7.25 for No. 1 and $5 for No. 2. Carolina potatoes are offered at $5 per barrel. Old potatoes continue in an easy position with quotations showing little change as compared with a week ago.

MIGHT BE IMPROVED

"What do you think of the army as far as you have gone?" inquired the sergeant of a new recruit.

"I may like it after a little, but just now I think there is too much drilling and fussing around between meals," was the reply.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, May 31, 1922.—There are few changes in the grocery market this week. The raw sugar market is showing a stronger tone but local quotations remain unchanged. The coffee market continues firm and spot stocks are becoming scarce. Rolled oats are stronger with upward tendencies while other cereals are steady and unchanged. Dried fruits show little change, with figs moving freely. New pack strawberry jam is expected shortly and prices will be slightly lower. Rices continue firm and spices are holding steady. New vegetables and fruits are arriving freely and generally tend easier.

CANNED GOODS UNCHANGED

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—The situation in canned goods, generally shows little change. The demand for salmon, more especially pinks and cohoes is showing an improvement and indications are that quotations on the new pack will be higher. New pack lobsters are expected on the local market shortly at lower quotations. Canned vegetables are firmly held. Canned fruits show no change.

FIGS IN DEMAND

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS.—There is practically no change in the dried fruit situation. Figs on the local market are meeting with a good demand. Certain brands of raisins are scarce and indications are that the best selling lines will be absorbed before the new pack arrives. Evaporated apples are showing a firmer tone and indications are for higher prices.

Reduction of Duty On Tea in England of 4 Pence Per Lb.

The tea market apart from the possibility of the Canadian Government taking off the duty, presents some important features which the trade should carefully study. There is, for instance, the reduction of the duty in England of four pence per pound. This will tend towards greater consumption on the part of the public of Great Britain, which is now by far the largest tea consuming country in the world. This increased demand will tend to raise the present abnormally high market, and an increase in cost of teas throughout the world may be expected.

In 1920, so much more tea was produced than required throughout the world, that the market dropped to a very low level. The situation was so serious for the growers that they agreed to reduce their production 20% during 1921. Consumption, which has increased tremendously, and the production of tea being curtailed, has resulted in the highest prices for tea in years.

passing I was in it when Kilgour Bros. first introduced the satchel bottom bag, which every grocer appreciates. When I look back and note the many changes, some for the better, some for worse, we cannot help thinking that we lived easier in the old days. We had no income tax, no sales tax, minimum wage, etc., and we took stock in our humble way and we knew just where we stood each year. We are now told that our system in those days was all wrong—perhaps that is true—but I know that I can still get my net worth under the old system, with one-third the labor. To my way of thinking the retailer is hit harder to-day than any other class.

I think you will agree with me when I say there is no other line of business that gives the service to the public as the retail grocer does, for the profit he gets in return. Yet we meet civil servants who will tell us what huge profits we are making. These same people never had any experience in the business, and I will say that they don't know what they are talking about.

RICE YEILDS 39 BUSH. TO THE ACRE

Rice produced in the four principal rice growing States of Louisiana, Arkansas, California and Texas in 1921 totaled 35,105,000 bushels, according to the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates. The number of acres planted to rice in these four States was 896,000 and the average yield was 39.18 bushels. This year's production is less than the average for the last five years of 37,189,000 bushels. Arkansas led in the average yield per acre, with an average of 53.5 bushels, and was second in total production. With 125,000 acres planted to rice, the State produced 6,688,000 bushels. Louisiana led in the number of bushels produced with 16,656,000 bushels on 480,000 acres for an average yield of 34.5 bushels per acre. California was second in the yield per acre, producing 5,880,000 bushels on 120,000 acres for an average yield of 49 bushels per acre. Texas produced 5,596,000 bushels on 155,000 acres for an average yield of 36.1 bushels per acre.

Prices For Canadian Eggs for Storage Are Higher Than Foreign Egg Quotations

Canadian Packers Claim That Prices Being Paid for Eggs for Storage Are Too High—Production Unusually Heavy Early in the Season

MONTREAL. (Special)—The situation of the egg market in Canada at the present time is abnormal, and the surplus production is going into cold storage at prices relatively higher than elsewhere in the world. Canadian cold storage people are troubled over the situation. The Egg Reporter, an American trade paper, which deals with world-wide egg markets, says: "If the storing of May eggs is commensurate with the storing of April, and it generally is above from 5 to 7 per cent., it would mean a surplus of May eggs for storage of something near 4,000,000 cases. This would mean that stocks of about 9,000,000 cases would be in storage by June 1st. Last year the total stocks at the peak were 7,613,000 cases, according to reports given for August 1st. The same article goes on to say that the higher the price for storage eggs in the spring, the surer we are to have a sufficient quantity to break the market and break it badly in the fall."

Canadian Prices High

June delivery of current receipts in Chicago are now selling at 22½c a doz., while our buying price in Canada for current receipts at the present time runs from 28 to 29 cents a doz. to the farmers. A recent cable report states that Irish eggs are being taken at a price of from 10s 6d to 11s per hundred, which would be equal to 23½c to 24½c per doz. in Ireland, while European eggs on the Mediterranean are selling at from 3 to 4 cents per doz. less. It is evident then that Canadian eggs are going into storage at a much higher price than foreign eggs and that there will be a break in the market when the tide turns from in-storage to out-of-storage. Canadian eggs for storage are now costing from 20 to 25 per cent. more than they are on competitive world markets.

Forced by Circumstances

One Canadian packer explained the Canadian situation by the statement that production of Canadian eggs showed an increase much earlier this year than in other years. The increased production came before prices were reduced. Dealers were forced to accept supplies from the farmers in order to hold their trade. If one cold storage firm refused to take the supplies from one of the producers with whom he had dealt for many years back he would lose the farmer's good-will and his trade for the future. For this reason cold storage men accepted stocks during the past three months at a price which was higher than that quoted to producers in other markets. The result is that Canadian prices have remained high while others have dropped and now produce dealers are faced with keen competition in price for fall sales.

Foods in Cold Storage Show a Marked Decline

Ottawa, May 25.—Considerable declines in the quantity of food commodities in cold storage and in process of cure the first of May, are noted in the monthly report of the Internal Trade branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The most noteworthy decline is shown in connection with beef, there being 12,063,055 pounds, as compared with 18,210,165 pounds at the beginning of April. In fresh frozen beef (included in the above figures) there was a difference of 6,616,948 pounds.

A considerable drop is also noted in regard to creamery butter, there being 1,008,046 pounds in cold storage May 1, as compared with 2,226,157 pounds on April 1.

The eggs reported in cold storage at the beginning of May, 4,099,323 dozen eggs, compared with 444,395 dozen from the first of the previous month.

Barrels of apples had dwindled from 9,540 the first of April to 2,397 the first of May, and boxes from 34,308 to 27,649.

Poultry registered a drop of 780,218 pounds the figures being: April, 3,462,143 pounds; May, 2,681,925 pounds.

THESE CHAINS OPERATE

at market, where our cost was lower than market, we took at our cost. That was not giving 1921 a square deal, but that plan was followed to be perfectly sure there was no water in our balance. We followed the market when it was going up and also as it came down—taking our loss as we took our gain. Here is our balance sheet.

Yours very truly,

I do not copy this last document because, while clear and complete, I have no figures of 1920 with which to compare it. My friend has not sent me any information by which I can tell how he has actually progressed.

That is the sane way to run a business. It makes no particular difference in actualities if your accounts show only moderate gain, but it makes you more careful. It is a great thing to avoid any misconception of your progress.

Wages expense here is somewhat high. If we figure that $868.51 of the delivery expense is wages—a figure I take merely to make the total even—we shall have total wages of 19,600 and that figures .1138 per cent. plus on sales. That figure should go down by three to three and a half per cent. because around eight per cent. is about the right ratio in that locality. Thereby about $3,000 more would be added to the profit account.

Increased Sales Always in Order

Naturally, this condition may be remedied by increasing sales with the same load of wages expense, but at best that is a slower process than making direct cuts, and conditions now favor the curtailment both in numbers and rate of payment. Much can be accomplished by cutting stocks down, not merely to curtail invested capital but to avoid the expense of handling excess merchandise.

Another thing I think might be altered to advantage: Current bills payable amount to almost 90 per cent. of the stock carried. That should be changed. Also, the bank is owed some $1,200 while a balance of nearly $1,400 is carried in bank and some $360 on hand. I should pay off the bank, cut that interest charge, thereby put myself in better position—and still have ample money on hand. Otherwise this business is well in hand.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, May 31.—The feature of the produce market is the advancing market for smoked meats, as a result of the better condition of the export market and the higher price offered in England. The domestic price has advanced. For the same reason hog prices are firming up to an advance with a keen demand for light weight bacon hogs. Cooked meats too have advanced. The butter market is weak under a decline with a likelihood for a further decline. Cheese is weak. The egg market is in a peculiar situation. Local dealers report an advance of one cent on special selected fresh eggs while storage eggs are declining in price. Storage supplies are heavy and a slump in price is likely. The lard market is weak with a decline of a fraction of a cent in some instances. There is no change in the fish market.

BUTTER DECLINES

Montreal.

BUTTER.—The feature of the butter market is the continued weak feeling and a decline of 1c. per lb. which makes a net reduction of 4c. in the last two weeks with prospects of a further reduction within the near future unless the market is given some support from outside sources, as supplies are now coming forward considerably in excess of local requirements. The demand from local buyers has only been fair and principally for small lots to meet immediate requirements. The new make of creamery butter in solids is now selling at 33c. and prints at 32c.

WEAKNESS IN CHEESE

Montreal.

CHEESE.—There is no change in the cheese market. Owing to the improved pasturing throughout the country and the more favorable weather, production has shown a sharp increase, although it is much behind the season of last year. Local prices show some weakness on account of a lack of an export market, but the situation promises an improvement in the near future.

EGG MARKET WEAK

Montreal.

EGGS.—A weaker feeling prevails in the egg market and prices have decined in Ontario but in Montreal they show a slight advance, particularly in selected eggs. Specials are now quoted at 37c. and selects at 35c. and No. 2s at 32c. This situation however, is not expected to last since the Canadian market is at present abnormal. Lower prices on eggs may be expected even later this week. The advance in the Montreal market is not a true indication of market conditions since storage eggs are particularly weak, but selected lots have been in such demand that the market firmed up in that line.

STRONGER HOG MARKET

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS.—The trade in live hogs was more active during the past week, owing to an increased demand and smaller offerings. A firm feeling prevails in the local market for select hogs with $14.50 per cwt. quoted for light weight bacon hogs, weighed off cars. The demand for heavy weights is slow at $12.50 and $13.00 per hundred pounds. The general trend of the market is strong on account of a better price offered for Canadian bacon in England. The beef market is steady with supplies sufficient to meet immediate requirements and prices showing no inclination towards a change.

PRICES REDUCED IN OLD COUNTRY

In an interview with F. W. Field, H. M. Trade Commissioner at Toronto, in regards to foodstuffs in the Old Country, he said:

"Trade generally is still very restricted in the Old Country, but overseas enquiries are coming forward in increasing numbers, and although the volume of business is not large exports are on the up grade. The home demand is far below normal on account of the large number of workers still unemployed.

"Prices in a number of staple lines have recently been reduced and manufacturers are now woking on a smaller percentage of profit with a view of stimulating demand."

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, May 31.—Throughout the week under review, the live hog market maintained a strong tone with prices advancing. Indications point to a steady to strong hog market for some time to come. Fresh pork cuts are also advanced. Butter is in an easy position with prices showing a reduction as compared with a week ago. Eggs are easier with a likelihood for lower prices. Lard and shortening hold firm with quotations on the former advanced. Cooked meats under stimulated consumption, are in a strong position with boiled hams tending upward. Smoked bacon and hams following the trend of the live market, are strong. Fresh caught fish are quoted lower. Receipts of poultry show an increase which together with the fact that there are still fairly large stocks in the coolers, has resulted in prices on live and fresh poultry being reduced.

BUTTER PRICES DROP

Toronto.

BUTTER.—Quotations on butter dropped 3c. to 4c. per lb. during the week. Heavier receipts and the fact that storage operations have not commenced to any extent is the cause for the decline. Quotations on No. 1 creamery prints range from 34c. to 36c.

LIVE HOGS MOVE UP

FRESH MEATS.—The strength in the hog market continued throughout the week under review. Packers were endeavoring to buy on the basis of last week but under lighter receipts and a brisk demand, they were forced to pay an advance of 50c. making the fed and watered basis $14. It is the opinion among the larger shippers that the supply of hogs in the country to come forward is not large and if that is the case a strong to steady market can be looked for. Fresh pork cuts are advanced one cent per pound.

NEW ZEALAND IS MAKING NEW FOOD, MEAT FLOUR

Auckland, New Zealand.—Considerable interest is being manifested throughout the dominion as a result of the "invention" and manufacture of a new food product, known as "meat-flour," which according to the more enthusiastic press reports, gives promise not only of developing a large industry, but also of revolutionizing in great measure the food processes of the world.

The Australasian Trade Expansion Company, Ltd., of this place, of which Alan McK. McNeill and William J. Abbott are the principals, is handling this new flour, the manufacturing of which was discovered by W. F. Remus, a farmer in this province.

"Meat-flour" is what its name indicates. It is flour made from meat in the same manner that dried milk or milk powder is made from fresh milk. It is the lean meat of sheep and cattle reduced by a special process to a fine flour or meal. It is the exact reversal of meat-extract. It is claimed for "meat-flour" that "all the moisture, but none of the nutriment is removed."

TO CUT OR NOT TO CUT

To cut or not to cut, that is the question:
Whether 'tis not better in the end.
To let the chap who knows not worth,
Sell the goods at cut-throat prices, or Take up arms against this competition,
And, by opposing, cut for cut, end it.
To cut—and by cutting put the other cutter
Out of business—'tis a consummation

Devoutly to be wished. To cut—to slash—
Perchance myself to get it in the neck—
Aye, there's the rub: for when one starts
To meet the other fellow's prices 'tis like as
Not he'll find he's up against it hard.
To cut and slash is not to end confusion.
And the many evils the trade is pestered with Nay, nay, Pauline: 'tis but the forerunner
Of debts and mortgages such course portends.
'Tis well to get the price a thing is worth,
And not to be bullied into selling it
For what so-and-so will sell it for.
Price-cutting doth seem unseemly
And fit for the man who knows not
What his goods are worth, and who, ere long,
By the very stress of making vain comparison
'Twixt bank account and liabilities,
Will make his exit from business.

PASS IT ON

Do you pass your copy of Canadian Grocer on to your clerks and to your new friends in the trade?

Canadian Grocer will take them through the stores of dozens of successful merchants every week.

Markets, sales, advertising windows, the successful methods of hundreds of merchants reported for them.

Can you think of a more broadening influence and a more educative medium in which to get them interested.

The more your clerks know about the grocery business the more value they will be to you.

Pass Canadian Grocer on and if they want to subscribe, the price is $4.00 a year—(less than eight cents a week). Address

NEW TUNA FISH LIKELY HIGHER

Prices on 1922 tuna fish are not expected for some little time, as packers and fishermen have not been able to get together on a price basis. As the indications point to the payment of more money than in 1921, canners think opening prices will be above the level of last year.

THE "WANT" AD.

The "want ad." has grown from a little used force in business life into one of the great necessities of the present day.

Business men nowadays turn to the "want ad." as a matter of course for a hundred small services.

The "want ad." gets work for workers and workers for work.
It gets clerks for employers and finds employers for clerks. It brings together buyer and seller, and enables them to do business though they may be thousands of miles apart.
The "want ad." is the great force in the small affairs and incidents of daily life.

Good papers furnish A.B.C. reports to their advertisers.

CANADIAN MILK PRODUCTS LIMITED
TORONTO MONTREAL

These are the largest KLIM months

KLIM Powdered Skimmed Milk is a year round seller in almost every good grocery store in Canada, but the largest sales are always to be found in the summer months when people begin having trouble with milk spoilage.

These are the months when thousands are going away to the country, too, and take KLIM along for their milk supply.

Prepare for the summer KLIM demand. Look over your stock and let your jobber know your requirements.

The Future of SUNSET

"24 Reasons Why Women Want SUNSET DYES."

This is the title of a new folder which is full of pretty convincing stuff. A post card will bring it to you by return of mail.

Have you received our card, "The Season's Colors"?

In the past SUNSET has proved itself more than just a money-maker, it has been a business builder and creator of goodwill for every dealer who handles it. SUNSET performs everything that is promised by all other dyes combined—and then some!

The Future of SUNSET is a bright one because our methods of merchandising are untrammeled with offers of absurd profits, which in themselves are an admission of inferior quality.

You will eventually handle SUNSET because the insistent demand of the trade is for a real, modern, fast dye instead of inferior dyes which have little if any repeat value or goodwill quality.

Write us today for literature which will show you how you can share in the successful Future of SUNSET SOAP DYES.

The Buying Public likes a Square Deal.

Aggressive Sales Methods With Quality Backing

When you question the quality of any product just ask the salesman this one question: "Is it advertised, and if so, how extensively?"

If the answer is "Yes, in all good advertising mediums everywhere," all quality questions are answered. No manufacturer would dream of putting the name of his product and company prominently before the public unless he knows that he offers quality which substantiates every claim.

The enormous volume of Palmolive selling publicity would be a boomerang unless every cake produced by the mammoth Palmolive factories measured up to each statement made.

This publicity which assures quality sells Palmolive for you—it moves off your shelves without effort on your part. Every cake sold means a satisfied customer who comes back for more.

Palmolive is a home product, produced in a big, busy factory in Toronto. The growth of business, the astonishing increase in sales volume, has necessitated expansion, and we now have established branches in Winnipeg, Montreal and Toronto.

If you value quick turnover, and the sales volume which writes big figures on the profit sheet, make Palmolive your soap leader. Get in touch with a Palmolive salesman or ask your jobber today.

HAIL PROHIBITION!

Prohibition should be thanked for a real reform. A reform which has resulted in a vast increase in the amount of really good beer produced.

Beer, such as people are now making for themselves, is so good, and so much purer and better than the old commercial stuff, that millions who never cared for it before are now drinking it—greatly to their own benefit.

Formerly you had to walk a mile to get a really good glass of beer or ale.

Now you can have the very best in your own home. Home-brewed beer or ale is purer and more wholesome than anything that could be bought formerly. The dealer who gives his customers what they want and the best products obtainable is rewarded with a firmly established business and good profits.

If your customer asks for a pure, unadulterated, high-power malt, and fresh imported hops, sell him "Cream of Malt."

'Eureka Refrigerators vs. Hot Weather

Eureka Refrigerators and hot weather always work together, for the hotter the weather, the more you need a Eureka; and the hotter the weather, the better the Eureka will work and save your perishable foods.

Don't let this summer pass with your old ice box. If you do you will pay money out for perishable foods which need perfect refrigeration and you will also pay out money for ice, which when put into a faulty refrigerator will not give you value for your money. So therefore you are spending it for nothing.

It is real economy to purchase a Eureka Refrigerator—they are patented and fully guaranteed.

Chief Saving Will be in the Sales Tax

Repeal of Amendment Made in Customs Act a Year Ago, Affecting Countries With Depreciated Currency, Whereby Duty and Sales Tax Was Levied on 50 Per Cent. of Par Value Will Mean a Reduced Sales Tax on Certain Foreign Foods.

INVESTIGATION as to the effect of the removal of the amendment made to the Customs Act a year ago whereby importers in Canada, importing from countries where there is a depreciated currency had to pay duty and sales tax on 50 per cent. of the par value of such currency reveals the fact that the greatest saving to the Canadian buyer of foodstuffs will be in the matter of the sales tax.

"Practically no foodstuffs come to Canada from Germany, where the mark is worth so little at the present time," one of Toronto's big buyers of foreign food products told a representative of Canadian Grocer the other day. "The countries with a depreciated currency chiefly involved in the way of foods are Turkey, Portugal and Italy. These countries have a very low valuation of their currency just now, very much under fifty per cent. of the par values. Austria too is another such country, but practically the only foodstuff that came from Austria in the past year was beans. Shipments of white beans from this country last year were received in Canada in fair volume, but as beans are not subject to the sales tax, and the rate of duty is a specific one, the repealing of this amendment is negligible as far as this commodity is concerned. Almost without exception, foodstuffs from Europe are subject to a specific duty. It is in regard to merchandise where the duty is an ad valorem rate, that will benefit most from the removal of this regulation.

Will Save in Sales Tax

"However, in affixing the sales tax, even with the increase of 50 per cent. in the same, on goods from such countries as Turkey, Portugal and Italy, the sales tax will not now mount so high. For instance, large quantites of nuts and figs are brought from Portugal. The Portugal escudos is worth normally $1.08. Today it is worth 7.68 cents. Previous to the repeal of the amendment, a shipment of goods invoiced at 1,000 escudos, for the purpose of reckoning the sales tax, would be valued at half the par value of the escudos. Half the par value of the escudos is 54c. and one thousand times 54 cents, is $540. Today the escudos is worth around 7.68 cents. With the repeal of the regulation, the Canadian buyer pays sales tax, in the example of the above shipment, on one thousand times 7.68, or $76.80. The sales tax now on imports is 3¾ per cent., amounting on $76.80 to $2.88, as compared in the former method, with $13.50, a saving of $10.62."

Greek Drachma Worth Only 4½ Cents

Consignments of currants from Greece are arriving from time to time, but these are affected under the new ruling only in the matter of the sales tax too. The Greek drachma is normally worth 20 cents, but its present value is only 4½ cents. The sales tax, like in the matter of the Portuguese escudos, will be reckoned on the actual value of the drachma rather than on 50 per cent. of its par.

With the par value of the Italian lire 19.3 cents, it is worth today in New York only 5¼ cents. For customs purposes half the par value of the lire is 9.65 cents. A Toronto importer who buys considerable quantities of nuts in Italy stated that with the lire at its present valuation, a direct saving will result in the purchase of these products. Importers paying sales tax on 50 per cent. of the par value of the lire, namely 9.65 in the past year, now only pay on the actual value of the lire, 5.25 cents. The sales on a shipment from Italy invoiced at 1,000 lire, will now be $1,94, as compared with $2.46 previously. In the case of olive oil where there is an ad valorem duty of 20 per cent. shipments direct from Italy will be brought into Canada very much cheaper. However, to avoid increased costs on this account, importers have been purchasing through London and New York.

Turkish Currency Much Upset

The Turkish situation is somewhat different for the reason that exchange in that country is very much upset. Some shipments are invoiced through, in English currency, the pound sterling being the basis, while on other invoices it is the Greek drachma. Of course, where it is the former, there will be no change as the English pound is worth slightly over $4.50.

On goods coming from Norway and Sweden, the difference the repeal of the amendment will make, is not important. In Norway the par value of the kronin is 26.80 cents and it is quoted in New York at the present time at 18.29 cents. The Swedish kronin is almost par at 25.82 cents the par value being 26.80. There is a slight advantage in the matter of shipments from France, as the franc is not worth quite 50 per cent. of its par value. It is quoted in Canada at 9.25 cents. Its par is 19.3 cents.

Restores Direct Trade

With commodities subject to an ad valorem duty, coming from these countries of depreciated currency, the reduction in the cost of the same will be of some account. However, since the amendment went into force a year ago, Canadian importers, it is pointed out, have been buying through New York, England and Holland. The withdrawal of this regulation restores to Canadian buyers the business of buying direct from these countries. The Holland florin is practically par, and consignments from that country are unaffected by the change.

Where It is Hard to Collect Sales Tax

Retailers Find It Impossible To Increase Their Prices On Some Lines to Absorb the Sales Tax—A Fractional Tax is Also Difficult to Figure—Would Have Preferred One Tax And At The Source

"WE all must appreciate the necessity of raising taxes to meet the heavy obligations of the country, with as little disturbance as possible to the consumer, on whom the burden of taxation largely falls, in its final application," commented A. H. Simpson of the Simpson Co. Ltd., wholesale grocers in Guelph, in discussing the recent budget.

Fractions Entail Much Figuring

"We are bound to give the government our best co-operation, although it does seem that the tax is somewhat vicious, in that it entails a large amount of work, expense, disorganization, and distress to business, not only every time a change is made, but in its general working out. The fact that some articles are exempt increases the amount of labor necessary to ascertain the taxable portion of the invoices, and the fact also that the percentages are in decimals or fractions, entails much added figuring. It would greatly simplify matters if the sales tax were placed on all articles and made a straight 2 or 3 per cent. as the case may be.

Unable to Include Sales Tax

"There are many cases where manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers are unable to include this sales tax in their price, because of the fact that the retail or wholesale price could not be conveniently increased without affecting the consumption of the article, so in the case of a manufacturer who is endeavoring to put an article on the market at a popular price, say to retail at 10, and reduce his profit to a minimum, in order to arrange a 90 cent price through wholesaler, the 2¼ per cent. sales tax, if absorbed by the manufacturer, would in many cases make the line uninteresting, and as the retailers would not care to pay more than the one sales tax charged by the wholesaler, the wholesaler in many cases is compelled to absorb the sales tax to make the line interesting to his customers. Likewise the retailer in many cases, finds it impossible to increase his price in accordance with the increased sales tax, he is compelled to pay, because on articles retailing at 10, 15, 20 or 25 cents, which are popular prices, the sales tax is a hard thing to apply to the consumer.

"We feel sure, therefore, that this sales tax in many cases interferes with the government procuring as much as they otherwise would on incomes from individuals and corporations. There is no doubt that the multiplicity of taxes on articles of consumption is a very serious burden to the consumer, because of the fact that profit has to be charged on the investment, not only in the goods, but in the taxes.

Believes Revenue will be Disappointing

"With reference to the further increase of excise taxes on tobaccos, and other articles, we believe the government will be disappointed in the revenues anticipated from these sources. We must take into consideration that the public pocket book is the final analysis on all these questions, and as salaries, wages, and incomes are shrinking, it does not seem reasonable that consumption can be maintained on these articles at such increased prices. Consequently the result will be no increased revenue to the government, a decrease in demand for raw tobacco products, a curtailment of consumption and lastly of labor demand.

Curtailed Buying

"We understand during the past year a falling off of eighty million cigars was the result of the curtailed buying power of the people. A further reduction of two and a half million per month is now being realized, this coupled with the fact that the producers of tobacco are not receiving a fair remuneration for their efforts. The manufacturers are compelled to pay lower prices, in order to market their products at reasonable figures, when the heavy taxes are added, in order to insure consumption of their goods, and last but not least is the fact that the business men, in many instances, are held in disrepute by the consumer, because of the big spread between the manufacturer's prices, and the consumer's price, due to so many intermediate taxes.

"I hope the day is not far distant when the business man will be in the happy position of not being the tax collector for the government."

Difficulties in Passing Tax On

W. J. Hobson of Hobson & Co., Limited, Hamilton, in expressing his opinion on the increase in the sales tax, remarked that he could not see under present conditions of competition where the increased sales tax is likely to be passed on to the consumer unless the volume of the tax exceeds a certain minimum. "For instance an article costing from $2.25 to $2.40 a dozen usually sold at 25 cents. The additional sales tax would not warrant adding 5 cents and if some dealers asked 26 or 27cts. other competitors would continue selling at 25 cents and eventually all would sell at 25 cts.

"The only equitable economical way to collect the sales tax is to tax the manufacturer, this 2¼ per cent. from manufacturer to jobber, and 2¼ per cent. from jobber to retailer or 4½ per cent. from manufacturer to retailer is a duplication of work, involves additional labor and is absolute foolishness.

Collect it From Manufacturer

"I am strongly in favor of the sales tax for revenue. Make it large enough for all purposes but collect it from the fountain head—the manufacturer.

"The extra tax of two cents on cheques for every fifty dollars will mean that less cash will be deposited in banks and more accounts will be paid in real money. Why should I deposit cash and then issue cheques to pay salaries for instance?"

At Source of Production

"The proper source of collection of the sales tax is undoubtedly at the point of production," remarked Thos. Gammon of A. H. Gammon & Son, Sarnia, when discussing the new taxation as brought down in the budget. "In my own judgment, the government could have easily secured five per cent. which in turn could have been passed along as an actual item of cost to the consumer, where it unquestionably should end. As it has been and will be, the only result, I think, is that it will be another added burden to the retailer, and must be absorbed from his profits.

"Until the retailer awakes to the present unfair justice of this tax, and realizes that unity in fighting the same is absolutely essential, I am of the opinion we shall have to contend with it."

Little Hope Of Relief From Tax On Beet Sugar

Ottawa, June 6—(Special)—Beet sugar manufacturers and sugar beet growers united in complaining to Hon. W. S. Fielding last week that the new excise duty of 49 cents a hundred pounds on the product of their joint labors would deal a deadly blow to one of the important industries of southwestern Ontario. For the manufacturer, it was stated, that, even without the burden of the excise duty, beet sugar production had not been profitable. For the farmers, it was asserted that the new duty could not be borne by them and would cut the acreage under sugar beet cultivation in two. It was further explained to the Finance Minister that the sugar beet growers are themselves contemplating becoming sugar manufacturers, that they have subscribed about half the capital necessary for the establishment of a sugar refin-

Will Tend To Disorganize Candy Industry Throughout Canada If Tax Is Enforced

H. N. Cowan, President, and Other Officers Of the Confectionery Chocolate and Biscuit Industries of Canada Wait on Government But Little Encouragement Is Given Them in the Way of Less Burdensome Taxation

OTTAWA, June 6—Members of the confectionery, biscuit and chocolate industries of Canada waited on the government here last week in an effort to have some relief from the taxation imposed upon the industry in the budget announcement. Little hope of any change was held out to them by Finance Minister Fielding.

In further endeavor to stress the effect on the industry of such taxation, H. N. Cowan, president of the association and C. J. Bodley, secretary, are here to-day again interviewing the government. They seek to have chocolate bars and the cent lines exempt, if there is no possibility of having the tax removed altogether.

"The candy manufacturers have never objected to the principle and application of the sales tax when applied to all industries alike, and do not object to the sales tax now," stated H. N. Cowan of The Cowan Co. Ltd., Toronto. "What we do object to, however, is having this extra tax of five per cent. levied on our industry when real luxuries, such as foreign fruits (of which $11,000,000 were imported last year,) expensive clothing, furs, jewelry, toilet articles, etc. pay only sales tax."

Keep Industry Alive

Mr. Cowan laid considerable emphasis on the need for keeping alive and vigorous the industrial plants and activities of the country. This could not be secured by picking one or two industries for class taxation. "Business is quiet now," he said. "What do you think the effect on our sales will be when we ask our customers to pay 9½ per cent. tax instead of 3 per cent. that they have been paying? The public won't stand for the increased price which this will mean," declared Mr. Cowan with emphasis. "The manufacturers cannot absorb the tax. Reduced business has wiped out working profits. Does the amount to be realized by this special tax warrant the further disorganization of the candy industry throughout Canada? Lessened sales will affect thousands of working people many of whom will find themselves out of a job."

Is Not a Luxury

M. Neilson of Wm. Neilson, Ltd, Toronto, pointed out that in order to adjust or reduce the size of small priced packages it would be necessary to import many thousands of small moulds which are exceedingly expensive and which probably could not be purchased in France or Great Britain for delivery within less than six months.

Should this become necessary it would impose an additional burden on the business which the representatives of the Canadian manufacturers contend is already too great to bear.

Mr. Neilson added: "Candy is certainly not a luxury. It is a food. Seventy per cent. of confectionery sales are to children and young people, the large proportion being in small packages, which retail at five and ten cents, as well as the one cent lines. We ask for an even deal. We want no favors; we want equality, not discrimination. Why should candy pay a tax which is not required when hundreds of other articles have not been included."

Packaged Teas Show Sharp Advance Following Higher Markets Abroad

Higher Prices Do Not Come As a Surprise in View of the Tea Situation Now Ruling for the Past Year or More—Reduced Production in 1921

TORONTO, June 7 (Special).—Announcement was made on Monday last by the Salada Tea company of an advance in the price of Salada brown label tea. The price to the consumer is advanced ten cents per pound and the price to the retailer by nine cents per pound, making the new price 54 cents as against the former of 45 cents.

John Sloan & Co., announce an advance of four cents per pound on Minto tea bringing the price to 59 cents per pound.

Lanka tea is advanced 8c per lb., making the price to the trade 53c per lb. and 54c per lb. for half pounds.

These advances did not come as a surprise to those who have been following the tea situation for the past year or more, and the only surprise that has been expressed is that they did not come sooner and many believed the advance was due several months ago, following the steadily advancing markets abroad. As Canadian Grocer goes to press, other package teas have not made any change in prices but it has been intimated that advances will be announced at an early date.

Overstocked Markets in 1920

The trade will remember that early in the year 1920 the tea markets of the world were overstocked by millions of pounds of tea, much of which was carelessly plucked and badly manufactured. This was the result of the high prices ruling during the war period and the year following. The withdrawal of Russia from the markets was also a factor in accumulating tea stocks as previous to the world war, Russia purchased annually upwards of 150,000,000 pounds.

Then followed the slump in tea prices and planters in every tea producing country were faced with heavy losses as teas were being sold below the cost of production. The Indian and Ceylon Tea Associations then agreed to restrict the production to about eighty per cent. of a normal crop, and by the end of the year 1920 this reduction was well under way.

The markets under this reduced production commenced gradually but steadily to advance, and by the end of the year prices of Japan, Ceylon, India and Java teas had in many instances almost doubled in values.

Reduced Production in 1921

The total output of India, Ceylon, Sumatra and Java teas which for the year 1919 amounted to 694,000,000 pounds, in 1920 to 643,000,000 pounds, in the year 1921 only totalled 519,000,000 pounds, showing an average reduction of 140,000,000 pounds, while for the previous three years the consumption had increased 28 per cent. Throughout the present year the markets continued to steadily advance and each month gave evidence of a greater shortage in production than at first estimated, which at present amounts to over 212,000,000 pounds.

The Indian market closed this year several months earlier than for many years owing to the fact that the whole output was closed out. The London auction is also closed awaiting the opening of the Indian market some time during the latter part of the month of June.

The Japan market opened a few weeks ago with the new crop offered at figures much in excess of the high prices of last year and just what will develop in the markets for the new crop Indians and Ceylons will do, remains to be seen, but in the opinion of many tea authorities, the future for tea for some time looks equally as strong as the situation prevailing during the past six months.

Business men on Roncesvalles avenue, Toronto, to the number of 100 joined in a parade held by their association on Monday evening of this week. When some distance down Roncesvalles avenue the parade was drawn up and the small children were given presents. The idea is to encourage shopping by the people of this district, in this district.

Grocers' Indifference Helps "Chains"

"Independent Retailers Have Been So Slow In Getting Together for Their Mutual Interest That the Chain Stores Have Gone Ahead With Considerable Success, But the Reaction is Soon to Come."

An address given by DR. PAUL N. NYSTROM before the United States Chamber of Commerce

Second of Series on Chain Stores

"INDEPENDENT retailers, in common with all other masses of people, learn by degrees and costly experience. One reason why chain stores have been so successful in the immediate past is because the independent retailers have been so slow in gettign together for thei rmutual interest. The reaction is soon to come."

The above testimony ought to make the retail grocers sit up and take notice. It is extracted from the recent address of Dr. Paul H. Nystrom before the United States Board of Commerce. Dr. Nystrom's views as to the way chain stores are being met and combated by the "independent" retail grocer, and the outlook for competition, are interesting and worth considering. In part, his address as reported in the New York Journal of Commerce runs as follows:

"A reconsideration of the points on which chain store success rests leads to the conclusion that the so-called essentials of chain store success are no other than the essentials of success in any type of retail institution. Any retail store that is poorly located with reference to its prospective customers must have an expensive uphill climb to continue in business.

"Any store laboring under the difficulties of an unsuitable building, displeasing appearance, difficult entrance-ways, poor fixtures, inadequate displays and selling aids is certain to lose possible sales and consequently have a higher proportion of overhead expense than it should. It is a truism to assert that poor sales people can ruin any retail store. Everybody knows that but mighty few concerns outside of chains do anything really worth while about it.

"The attitude of retailers toward chain store competition is both interesting and instructive. Certain groups and associations of retailers attempt by 'definition' to draw distinct lines around wholesalers and retailers and argue strongly for a differentiation in price based, not on quantity, but on function. According to these, wholesalers are entitled to lower prices than retailers regardless of quantity purchased.

"Under this logic these groups strongly urge that chain stores are retailers and are not entitled to wholesalers' margins, and the pressure applied to prevent deviation from this rule in some cases amounts to boycott of manufacturers who presume to sell to chain stores at less than retailers' prices.

"In several instances compromises have been made by defining chain stores as 'semi-jobbers' and allowing them a part but not all of the jobber's margin. In so far as the quantities purchased by chain stores are as large as the quantities purchased by wholesalers, and where no more service is required by chain stores than by wholesalers, there seems to be very little economic justification for the attempt to maintain this trade custom. It is most certain to break down. The recent decision of the Federal Trade Commission in the Mennen case, ordering the Mennen company to sell to all who offer to buy at the same prices for the same quantities, probably sounds the beginning of the end of this economically indefensible trade practice.

"Another method followed by independent dealers of meeting the competition of chain stores is the organization of co-operative buying groups. The purpose of such groups ranges all the way from collective purchasing of a few staple lines up to owning wholesale organizations co-operatively.

"Such buying organizations are now to be found in practically every line in which there are retailers. They are particularly numerous among grocers and druggists. In a recent compilation of successful co-operative wholesale drug companies I find twenty concerns listed. There are several in hardware, notions, clothing and furnishings. In the ready-to-wear garment trade there are retailers' buying associations of very considerable size and strength.

"In most cases such buying organizations arise through the efforts of retailers themselves. In other cases they come into existence through the promotion of outside organizations who see the need and opportunity for co-operative effort among dealers. All of these organizations operate in the direction of securing advantageous prices as purchases in quantity for cash or on guaranteed credits will permit.

Why Buying Exchanges Fail

"The reasons why such co-operative buying associations of independent dealers do not grow faster are, first, because with all the progress of the chains the competition has not been enough to cause the dealers to unite in self-defense; second, because most dealers are individualists by nature, possess but little experience in co-operation and dislike sacrificing their personal preferences to the interests of the group in which each is but one with his fellows; third, it takes considerable effort to get and keep a group together. The co-operative movement grows only under necessity and then only as far as may be necessary.

"The inexperienced retailer who goes into one of these organizations is very likely to suffer a keen reaction after his first contact, when he learns that the whole margin gained by quantity purchases cannot be transferred into net profit. In other words, the group of independent retailers purchasing together encounters precisely the same problems as the chain does when it goes out for goods in large quantity.

"By that very act they immediately begin to take on some of the functions of the regular wholesale dealer, and nothing has so far been devised by which to eliminate the wholesaling expense. In spite of these obstacles, however, through this channel lies the way to a certain amount of gain which may in turn be made effective in competition with chain stores through lower prices to the public or in the form of profit to the owners.

The Research Movement

"There is a type of co-operative organization which seems to possess several advantages over hitherto established methods of group activity. I refer to the work of the Retail Research Association. This is an organization of nineteen department stores owned and operated co-operatively. Its control is democratic rather than autocratic.

"Its functions are divided into two main divisions. The aim of the one is to carry on studies and research in the field of store operation with the purpose of increasing the efficiency of the stores in this regard. To illustrate: during the past year intensive studies have been made co-operatively, using the services of executives and employes within the stores themselves, with the assistance of experts employed by the association in accounting, office methods, delivery methods, advertising, store upkeep and personnel, leading to economies which have, according to the reports of the stores themselves, resulted in the saving of many thousands of dollars.

"In the other division the stores unite in buying in such lines as are selected by the stores and their buyers themselves. The aim in this organization is approximately the same as in the chain stores, viz., the development of efficient management and securing the best possible through quantity purchases.

"Through the nineteen department stores, each with from fifty to a hundred or more merchandise departments,

Sugar Industry Shows Improvement

Figures Covering Raw Sugar on Hand Indicate That the Refineries Have as Much Now As a Year Ago—Canadian Sugar is Still Filling a Heavy Export Demand

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

MONTREAL. (Special).—Figures in connection with the sugar refining industry of Canada as recently announced by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics indicate that the market for sugar is much improved over that of last year. During the period from January 1 to April 22, 1922, the shipments by Canadian refineries amounted to 278,322,290 lbs. as compared with 226,097,383 lbs. for the similar period of 1921 an increase of over 52,000,000 lbs. or 26,000 tons. During the period of four weeks ending April 22, 1922, there were shipped 73,331,114 lbs. as against 58,415,465 lbs. during the similar period of 1921, an increase of nearly 15,000,000 lbs. or a little over 7,000 tons. A large portion of this increase undoubtedly is due to the heavy export business that is still going on for Canadian refined sugar with Europe.

The figures covering raw sugar on hand show that the refineries have about as much now as one year ago. For the first three months of last year they found themselves stocked up very heavily with raw sugar at a very high price, and they spent the most of last year getting rid of these supplies at a heavy loss. On April 22 of this year the stocks on hand of raws amounted to a little over 86,000,000 lbs. as compared with 75,000,000 one year ago. On January 1, 1922, there were only 14,000,000 lbs. on hand as compared with 167,000,000 at the beginning of January, 1921. On the other hand during the four weeks ending April 22 last there were purchased by Canadian refineries 133,360,337 lbs. where one year ago the purchases were only 29,180,930 lbs.

The difference in buying of raw sugar for the first four months of this year as compared with last is shown in the fact that the figures for this year amount to 395,383,668 lbs. as against 110,503,502 an increase for this year of the large quantity of 142,500 tons of raws purchased, over last year. It must be remembered, of course, in dealing with last year's figures that the refineries were engaged in getting rid of their raws instead of selling.

Coming to the question of refined sugar it is seen that the plants have a tendency to accumulate this during the past few weeks as on April 22 there were on hand in the refineries 77,377,793 lbs. where one year ago there were only 58,841,771. That is from the first of January this year the refineries had accumulated 34,000,000 lbs. where in the same period last year they reduced their stocks by 15,000,000 lbs.

In the four weeks period raw sugar was manufactured to the extent of 81,616,475 lbs. where in the similar period last year the manufactured only amounted to 58,161,297. The difference between this year and last is much more pronounced when the period from January 1 to April 22 is taken into account showing manufactures of 282,679,102 lbs. as against 185,170,086 in 1921 indicating that in the first four months of this year there were manufactured in Canada nearly 100,000,000 more pounds of sugar than one year ago or 50,000 tons.

Sales Show a Big Increase

There is something significant about the accumulation of sugar, both raws and refined, as shown by the blocks in the accompanying chart. There is about 63,000,000 more pounds of sugars now held by the refiners than one year ago and at that the sales show a big increase over the same period of last year. Sugar has been comparatively low in price during the last six months and judging by the firmness of the raw market and the accumulation of stocks in the refineries, the market is of special interest to the buyers. One year ago the refiners were left with heavy stocks of raws with a declining market. They disposed of these and learned a lesson, but figures show that stocks are again accumulating even though on a smaller scale. Evidently there must be some good cause. One at least is that there will be a big demand for sugar during July, August and September, for preserving.

Sugar Situation Develops Much Stronger Tone

Toronto, June 7.—The refined sugar situation has developed a decidedly stronger tone, reflecting the higher and strong market for raws which has been prevailing during the past month. The price cutting which has been quite freely participated in by all wholesalers appears to have ceased and refiners' lists generally prevail.

A couple of weeks ago the Acadia Sugar Refinery advanced prices 10 cents per cwt., which was followed by

The Stamp Tax on Cheques

OPPOSITION to the increased stamp taxation on cheques appears to be pretty general, business and financial men pronouncing it unworkable and altogether too cumbersome. Expectation of a new pronouncement in this regard is not considered unlikely. The new regulation does not come into effect until July first, but pressure is being brought to bear upon the government to modify the tax to some degree. The suggestion is being made that if an increased stamp tax is necessary, a plan be adopted by which the stamp tax should be four cents instead of two cents on each cheque, as at present, or two cents up to $50, and four cents over that amount. The cumulative method, it is claimed, is too burdensome. Last year the Canadian people wrote 150,000,000 cheques and paid $3,000,000 in stamp taxes to the Dominion Government.

As a retail grocer points out in an interview in this issue, the merchant who has always been accustomed to meeting his accounts with cheques and drafts will revert to payments in cash in a great many instances where it is an easy matter to do so, and in the course of a year will reap a considerable saving.

Some modification of the regulation as at first announced, it would seem, is advisable, if the proper working out of a stamp tax on cheques is to be carried out with the least possible hindrance to business. Further consideration of the matter on the part of the Finance Minister, it is hoped, will result in some changes being made that will meet with the more general approval of business and financial interests.

Chain Store Competition

IN AN ARTICLE in this issue, the question of the chain store is dealt with in an interesting way by a man who has given some close study to the subject. He claims that the reason the "chains" have been so successful in the past is because the "independents" have been so slow in getting together for their mutual interests. However he expresses the opinion that the reaction is soon to come.

A reconsideration of the points on which the "chains" rest, he states, leads to the conclusion that the so-called essentials of chain store success are no other than the essentials of success in any retail institution. Any store laboring under the difficulties of a poor location, displeasing appearance, poor entrance ways, poor fixtures, inadequate displays and selling aids, is certain to lose possible sales and consequently have a higher proportion of overhead expense than it should. It is a truism to assert that poor sales people can ruin any retail store.

The superior service, delivery, personal interest, and fancy lines of the average individual store offer something that few chain stores do. The latter do not attempt to give these advantages, and it is up to the "independents" to make up in service and good merchandising, advantages that the public will always appreciate, what the "chains" give in somewhat lower prices.

Methods of successfully combating the chain stores are dealt with in this article, including co-operative buying associations, etc., and the view is expressed that buying advantages are almost certain to be equalized between chain and independent retailers through the gradual development of associated efforts of the independent dealers themselves.

Serving Children

ONE IMPORTANT customer that the average grocer often overlooks is the child. A large percentage of purchases in any store are made by children. These children of course in most instances have a list and explicit directions from their mothers as to what goods they should buy, but they are more than order givers. They are potential buyers and as such are worthy of as much consideration and courtesy and service as are others who buy.

What mother wouldn't be influenced by the desires of her small son or daughter in making certain purchases? What youngster at one time or another hasn't wanted to buy some article which possibly was not on the original list?

One of the heads of one of the largest chain store organizations was at one time an independent grocer. He made it a point to go out of his way to be considerate to the youngsters who came into his store to buy. They remember every bit of friendliness.

Treat them like grown-ups in your business relations. They appreciate it and don't forget it. It is seemingly a small thing but will count.

Tourist Trade is Profitable

THE TOURIST TRADE is an outstanding factor in Canada's summer business. Cross-country travel has grown to dimensions that warrant the statement that towns and cities lagging in providing facilities for the tourists are depriving themselves of revenue that would make the wheels of trade go round.

The travel initiated by Canadians alone is of sufficient volume to beget activities in trade circles. To this add American tourist travel and here in Canada we have a great incentive to place ourselves in the very best possible position to cater to the needs of the tourists. Attractive scenery, good hotels and dining rooms, and smooth roadways will bring added wealth to all communities.

The day is here, with tourists—local and foreign—taking those routes where adequate provisions have been made for them. Motorists will stop in the towns and smaller cities that hang out the welcome sign—and there they will spend their money freely.

The grocer has a splendid opportunity for getting close to the pocket-books of the spenders within the gates.

The place to exceed the speed limit is inside the store and not on the truck.

Enlist the co-operation of your clerks in the conduct of your store, by asking them for their ideas. You will be surprised at the results sometimes.

320 Per Cent On Capital In Four Years

Story of This Merchant in Western Canada Leads to the Conclusion That the Grocery Business is Still as it Always Has Been in the Past, About the Best Business a Man Can Enter With a Small Capital

By HENRY JOHNSON, Jr.

SPEAKING of peculiarities, as ol' Irv Cobb would say—when nobody said anything about them, by the way: I notice one that characterizes Canadian grocers. They write or print the names of their towns, but seem to be serenely oblivious to the fact that Canada is divided into a lot of Provinces. Hence, if I mail anything to them in an envelope with a return address on it, the cat is certain to come back with a pencil notation: "Province?" on it.

'Tsall right boys, y'understand, to write Montreal, Toronto, maybe even Moosejaw; but how's a man to know where to find Fulton, Nain or Hebron? Better use a little more ink and stick in the Province!

I am moved to write specially thus this time because the merchant who wrote this interesting letter tells me he wants an answer but cautions me against revealing his location—and then omits the Province. Quite a bit of detective work was necessary before I could learn how to address my reply. Get the idea? But you will agree that he has a message worth sending:

Canada West,

Dear Mr. Johnson:—While reading some of your articles lately I wondered if my performance would interest you. My business comprises groceries, patent medicines, confectionery, small stock of dry goods, such as overalls, shirts, neckwear, work and dress pants, no suits, rubbers, boots —and a few sundries. I started here four years ago in a vacant store with a total personal capital of $350. I borrowed $500 more and moved in. I had all my fixtures to buy and soon after I had to buy the building or get out. I borrowed $600 to apply on building as first payment and during the four years period I have built another building, a pool room and barber shop. To-day my stock is $4,320.-05, which is turned over 6½ times yearly, and my statement reads as follows:

Stock	$4320.05
Buildings	3400.00
Elect. Light Plant	900.00
Fixtures ..... (both bldgs.)	1790.00
Book Accounts ..	2600.75
	13010.80
Liabilities	1800.75
		$11,210.05

I would like to know if you think this is fair progress. I had no previous experience in the detail business and made many mistakes on the start. Some of them I uncovered and some I suppose not! Of course, I have had my living from the business, married and two in family.

Business Record Certainly Good

This is the kind of story that leads directly to the conclusion that the grocery business is still, as it always has been in the past, about the best business a man can enter who has small capital. If he has common sense, does his own thinking and is careful, he can hardly fail to make a respectable showing.

In one way this man's tale recalls that of Wrigley, Jr. Wrigley started business for himself, as probably you have heard, with total cash capital of $32. Knowing perfectly well that to start any business on $32—anything bigger than a peanut stand, that is—is impossible, I once asked Wrigley just what that meant and how he went about the commencement of operations on $32.

"I borrowed $5,000 from the banks," he answered. "How could you get $5,000 from the banks when your total tangible resources were only $32?" I rejoined.

"Because I was working," he answered. "Everybody 'on the street' in Chicago knew I was always on the job. The banks knew it. They all knew I never let a minute pass that I was not hustling."

Therefore, Wrigley did not start with $32. He had $32 plus Wrigley's own reputation and character! And so it is with this man. He had $350—more than ten times the money with which Wrigley started—but he was able to borrow more than 142 per cent. of his cash capital at once with which to open his store. And it is quite evident that those who loaned him the money did not lose anything thereby.

To-day, after four years, he shows his original cash capital multiplied 320 times, plus acceptable living for himself and family in the meantime. He shows this without whatever cash he may have lying around—for his statement mentions no cash. Therefore, though he gives me no comparative records whereby I may gauge his progress and I have no detailed statement by which to judge of his methods in segregated figures, I feel that he needs little help from anybody. If he keeps on as he has done so far, he will set a pace anybody should be glad to be able to follow.

If a Grocer Why Not a Groceress?

Little Canadian Town, April 6, 1922

Dear Sir:—I am keeping a small grocery store and trying to keep books as best I can. Will you be kind enough to tell me if I am going the right way? My system is as follows:

For February

Goods on hand 1st of month	498.00
Goods bought during month	180.00
Total for February		678.00
Sold during month	257 00
19% gross margin	48 83
Cost of goods sold	208 17
Deduct cost of goods sold from total stock		208.17
Goods carried forward to March		469 83

The 19% is arrived at by extending the gross margin into next column after cost of goods has been entered in ledger. For instance:

Three bags flour $12. to $1.50 margin. At end of month goods bought are added, also margin and total of margin divided by total of goods bought, which gives me gross margin earned during the month. By above system, if I am doing right, I know every month about what stock I have on hand. As for expenses, I know I am safe as it only costs me about $40 per month to live. Your valued reply will be appreciated.

Yours very truly .....

I can see nothing wrong with this system. It enables this "groceress," as I think she is entitled to be called, to know exactly where she stands each month. I was at first misled by her figures on flour into thinking she had miscalculated her 19% margin. The flour alone pays only 11.11% plus; but evidently this applies only to flour in her store, the same as it applies to flour, sugar and other heavy staples in all stores, for she checks back her figures at the end of each month.

Her system is not all revealed, she actually counts up her stock each month. This I suppose she might do, but she does not state.

I cannot pass her last remark without emphasizing it: "As for my expenses, I know I am safe as it only costs me about $40 per month to live." Verily, that is safety, security and independence—the ability to be content and to want little!

Dominion Stores Limited have opened a second store in St. Thomas.

E. F. Reid of Brantford, has purchased the general store in Stratford formerly conducted by L. H. Reesor.

Edwin A. Kellaway, who for some time has conducted a grocery business at Bridge and Everett Streets, Belleville, has now opened a second store at Dundas and Church Streets.

A man operating in the east end of Toronto has been disposing of maple syrup in a unique way. People were asked to purchase the syrup from this man on the pretext that it had been ordered by some neighbors, but the latter were not at home, and would they take it over and pay for it until they returned. On taking the syrup to the supposed buyer they learned that it had not been ordered.

Joseph Worden, a grocery merchant in Preston, was held up at the point of a gun on Saturday night last and relieved of the day's receipts as he was about to leave his store. The grocer had locked up, when a rap came to the door. He unlocked again and a stranger asked for a package of cigarettes. Worden went to get the cigarettes for the man, and when he turned around he was ordered to put up his hands. After obtaining the money, amounting to considerably aver $200, the bandit made a hurried exit, and jumped into a waiting motor car.

Business men in the Todmorden district, met in St. Andrew's Hall, Pape Avenue, Toronto, and organized an association the other evening. Issac Pimblett, president of the East Danforth Business Men's Association was in the chair. The following officers were elected: President, John Warren; vice-president, Edward Dyson; secretary-treasurer, Walter J. Hubert; publicity secretary, Amos Allpress; executive committee, F. Cameron, C. H. Macdonald, P. Bramwell, R. G. McKibbon, Wm. Pugh, Harry J. Macdonald and Dr. R. H. Fleming.

LITTLE HOPE OF RELIEF FROM TAX ON BEET SUGAR

ery and that they fear they will be compelled by the new impost to abandon the project. In view of their contentions, Senator A. B. McCoig, of Kent, suggested to the Finance Minister that at least he might defer the levying of the new excise duty for a year pending a thorough investigation of the condition of the beet sugar industry.

Given Little Hope

The deputation, however, got little encouragement from Mr. Fielding for the hope that their plaint would result in the withdrawal or postponement of the new tax. The Finance Minister promised to give the representations made to him careful consideration. He said the Government had carefully pondered its budget proposals before introducing them, and that if it found it had made a mistake in any particular case it would be prepared to remedy that mistake. He had to consider, he said, whether the beet sugar industry had sufficient protection or excessive protection. He argued that the cane sugar refiners' protection amounted to the difference between the customs duties it paid on its raw material and the duties imposed upon imported refined sugar. Drawbacks on raw material, he pointed out, were only granted when the finished product was exported. The cane sugar refiners' protection, he calculated, amounted to about 70 or 80 cents a hundred pounds.

Letters To The Editor

WHERE IS VICTORIA?

A merchant on the Pacific Coast, writing to Canadian Grocer comments as follows:

"There is an apparent haziness in the mind of Eastern Canadian manufacturers as to where Victoria is.

"First—it should be noted that Vancouver City is located on the mainland. The Capital, Victoria, is situated on Vancouver Island. This is, in itself, slightly confusing, perhaps, but it is well to have this explained once to the mailing clerks and shipping clerks who persist in sending mail and shipments for Victoria merchants, addressed to Victoria street numbers, but sent to Vancouver. This happens with sufficient frequency to warrant notice being drawn to it. Apart from the delay and disappointment that such a mistake entails, when an ever-so-slight feeling of friendly rivalry and jealousy exists between neighbouring cities, such mistakes are particularly exasperating. As one merchant said in anger, "Don't those people in the East know that there is another city in British Columbia besides Vancouver."

the Dominion Sugar Company with an advance of 29 cents. On Saturday last Redpath sugar advanced 10 cents per cwt. That other refiners will follow with an advance, seems almost certain when it is taken into consideration that refiners' prices in Canada are considerably lower than the price they are getting for export, and lower than the New York quotation when freight and duty is taken into consideration.

Another factor in the situation is that refiners claim that the reason sugar dropped to the low point was the result of competition brought about largely by the lack of consumer demand, and in an effort to increase consumption. This competition by refiners is now practically eliminated and with a good fruit crop in prospect which will increase the consumer demand, there is a tendency for a stronger market with advancing prices.

President Favors Drop Shipments

Wholesale Grocers' President, Armand Chaput, Declares The Practice of Drop Shipments Must Not Be Curtailed Nor Hampered — Says Every Wholesale Grocer Should Be At Convention Next Week

MONTREAL, (Special).—"If I could but speak personally to every wholesale grocer in Canada and impress each one with the importance of the coming convention, there is much I could say that I cannot adequately express on paper," said Armand Chaput, president of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association when asked by the Canadian Grocer for a pre-convention message to the wholesale grocers.

"In the first place, never before in the history of the grocery trade has there been a more urgent need for conference and co-operation. The problems that face each of us are common to all and our individual interests can be best served by solidifying the grocery trade throughout the Dominion. In fact there are problems that demand immediate and serious consideration. There is no wholesale grocery business so localized that at this time is not affected by Dominion-wide conditions.

"The presence of every wholesale grocer is needed to give the convention power and attention, consultation and opinions of every member are imperative to get the best results. Every wholesale grocer in Canada who feels that conditions are not just what they should be, should for a few days relinquish his own private business, come to the convention and lend his thoughts and energy to working a solution for the fundamental problems of the grocery trade.

ARMAND CHAPUT
President of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association, who will preside at the annual convention at Niagara Falls the first three days next week.

Drop Shipment Problem

"With something of boldness, I dare to mention one question which is to be threshed out for a second time and venture to make public my stand in this connection. I refer to the question of 'Drop Shipment.' I must say that, as president of the Wholesale Grocers' Association, with thought for the best interests of the grocery trade in our Dominion, not only wholesalers but retailers, for only as the retailers succeed can we succeed, the practice of drop shipments must not be curtailed or hampered. I have made myself plain in this regard before, and I announce even before the convention that this year I have by no means changed my mind and go to Niag-

Contest For Clerks

WHAT IS THE BEST SELLING IDEA YOU EVER PUT ACROSS?

To the clerk sending the best selling story, Canadian Grocer will pay the sum of $5.00; the second best $3.00; and the third $2.00. All other stories that are used will be paid for at the regular rates.

STORIES TO BE IN BY JUNE 20 — WINNERS WILL BE ANNOUNCED JUNE 30

This contest is open to every employee of grocery stores in Canada and Newfoundland. The style of story required is one showing the idea used to move a certain quantity of some particular line or brand of goods. Perhaps you have put in a window display that has turned the trick. If so describe the window carefully. You may have some particular method by which you suggest certain articles to customers that results in sales on articles that customers had no intention of buying when they first entered the store. Perhaps the store at some time or other was overloaded with an article and you assisted in cleaning it up. Things like these are happening in your store every day. Write and tell us about them.

CONDITIONS OF CONTEST

Every store must state the brand name of the article sold. The quantity sold and the length of time it required to sell it. The goods sold must show the merchant a fair profit. All the methods used to bring about the turnover must be mentioned.

In order to assist the judges to make a fair decision, each contestant must state plainly the population of the village, town or city in which the store is located. Errors in composition or grammar will not be considered. The object of the contest is to obtain the best selling stunt that has been carried out in a grocery store by a clerk during the past year.

B.C. Board R.M.A. Will Meet in July In City of Victoria

Vancouver, June 5.—The annual convention of the B. C. Board Retail Merchants' Association of Canada will be held in Victoria on the 12th and 13th of July next. Speakers at this convention will include Dr. W. J. Hindley, the educational director of the Washington State Retailers' Association and Johnston Stewart, secretary of the Seattle Retail Merchants' Association. Many subjects of vital interest to retailers generally will be discussed at this convention.

Speaking to the retail merchants at their weekly luncheon the other day, Daryl Kent, treasurer of the B. C. Board took occasion to comment on an assertion that he stated had been made, to the effect that the work of the association in the past few years had been too negative.

"In some measure the statement that our work has been negative, is true," he said. "We have passed, however, through some unusual times. It would have ill behooved us to rally round and devote all our time and effort to stimulate buying, and speed up business when over-buying and too high speed business was the basis of our troubles. We deprecate the policy of always and everlastingly taking exception to the government's action, but in our opposition to the luxury taxes and such things we felt that the greatest good would be served—and it has been.

"Now times have changed; matters that sadly needed attention on the part of the Government are in the way of having attention, and I hope to see more constructive, positive action on the part of our association."

Retail Merchants of Cumberland, B.C., Form Association

Cumberland, B.C., June 5. (Special).—At a meeting of the retail merchants of Cumberland on Friday May 26, under the chairmanship of A. McKinnon, it was decided to pull away from the Comox Valley district organization and to form a separate branch of the Retail Merchants' Association. Mr. McKinnon was appointed provisional president and John Sutherland, secretary. Delegates will be sent to the Provincial Convention in Victoria in July.

At Courtenay, the previous evening, with W. Booth, Jr., in the chair, the Courtenay and Comox district branch was formed taking in Union Bay and other centres. Field representative B. H. Peeps remained in the district and will assist in the completion of organization. At both meetings Provincial Secretary Geo. S. Hougham told of the activities of the R.M.A. dealing with the main issues which had recently come before the public.

Talks On Retailers' Place In To-Day's Economic Order

Vancouver, B. C., June 6—(Special)—At the weekly luncheon of retail merchants in Vancouver recently, Miss Christabelle Pankhurst spoke on the retailer's place in to-day's economic order. She congratulated the retailers of British Columbia on the excellence of their windows, and, speaking as a tourist and traveller, stressed the advantage to the cities, of the splendid displays of the merchants.

A feature of this week's luncheon was the community singing in which the proponents of cash and the defenders of credit stated their case to the tune of "Its a Long Way to Cash and Carry."

Chris. Spencer, and his squad of "lusty larks" sang in this wise:

Its a long way to Cash & Carry,
Its a long way to go.
If they still want to have delivery,
They will pay for it, I know.
So it's "good luck" cash and carry,
I hate night work myself.
You can bet your boots I got the money,
Or the goods on the shelf.

To which Ernest McTaggart and his "melodious merchants" responded:

Its a long way to cash & Carry,
Its a long way to go.
For the folks seem to want delivery,
And they can't phone in their dough,
So it's "Good bye" cash and carry,
We will all agree,
That there's FRIENDSHIP every day in business,
In the SERVICE gro-cer-y.

After the foregoing harmonious debate the pianist struck up the tune of "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag" and all the retailers sang with whole-heartedness:

Ring up the sheckels in the old cash till and Smile, Smile, Smile.
When they've collected on a past due bill,
Smile, boys, that's the style.
What's the use of worrying—
It never was worth while—Oh!
You'll get your balance if the folks don't die so

ara Falls determined to see the question satisfactorily solved.

"Developments in the past year in the grocery business must have impressed upon the wholesalers that we are entirely dependent upon serving the retail trade and safe-guarding the retailer. Anything that will increase the cost of food products unnecessarily for the retail grocer lessens his margin of profit, makes selling more difficult and hampers his business. I maintain that to abolish the principle of drop shipments, increases the cost of merchandising and discourages quantity buying, a thing that is good for everybody.

"Sorry as I am to see this question brought to light once more, it will serve a good purpose if it only stimulates interest in the convention and brings every member to Niagara Falls ready to voice publicly his opinions, not on this question alone but on all.

Good Time Assured

"The social side of the convention, surely is only a minor part of the inducement but from what I know of Niagara Falls, its gloriously cool and picturesque surroundings and the programme of the entertainment committee, every member will have a most enjoyable and profitable visit. But again I want to emphasize the fact that the business that is to come before the convention demands more than usual attention and is the paramount feature of the convention."

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE raw sugar market maintains a strong tone at a slight advance over last week's quotations. While Cuba raws were offered freely at 2¾c c. & f. New York, there was no disposition shown to sell below that level.

One Canadian refinery announced an advance of 10c per cwt. This makes two refineries now quoting $6, Montreal basis, while others remain at $5.90. The situation has developed a decidedly stronger tone reflecting the strong condition prevailing in the raw market for some time past, and as the heaviest consumer demand is at hand there are tendencies for higher prices in the near future.

Cereals show little change other than a continued firmness in rolled oats under advances in some quarters. Rices are unchanged under a quiet demand, but Southern markets continue with a firm undertone.

Dates show a strong tone, while evaporated apples are rapidly cleaning up with prices advancing. Prunes are fairly steady with quotations well maintained under an active demand. Raisins are weak with a prospect for reductions.

The tea markets continue to show strength and there is a strong tendency for spot stocks to show advances in the near future. Some brands of package teas are higher, effective in Ontario and Quebec.

Canned vegetables are moving steadily toward a bare market when the new packs are available. Some brands of new pack strawberry jam are offered with prices about the same as last year's opening.

The hog market maintains a strong tone while cooked and smoked meats reflect this condition. Butter, although dropping in price as compared with a week ago, has a steadier tone chiefly due to the fact that storage operations are now well under way, taking up the surplus production and offering a keener competition. Eggs are weak with lower prices in prospect.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, June 7.—The sugar market shows marked signs for an advance. Two refineries advanced their price 10c per cwt. early in the week and others are likely to follow. The New York market for raws is strong with corresponding strength for U.S. refined. Molasses is steady in price and there is no change in corn syrups. One firm has announced a new price on strawberry jams. Clarks quote some lower prices on corned beef, roast beef and pork and beans in tins but an advance in boneless chicken and peanut butter. Coffee is quiet and prices are steady. Teas are strong and may advance further. The general feeling is that the market is on a firm and steady basis, except for some quotations made by firms who have not yet followed the market upwards. Salada brown label tea is advanced 9c per lb. Split peas and pot barley are slightly advanced. Kraft loaf cheeses are reduced.

SOME NEW JAM PRICES

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS—The new season's price on strawberry jam have been quoted by Raymond Jam Co., 4s, are quoted at $11.75 a doz., 13 oz. glass, $3.25 a doz., 22 oz. glass $4.70 and 30 lb. tubs at 23c a lb. Clark's corned beef in tins is reduced to $2.90 a doz. for 1's and other sizes accordingly. Boiled beef and pork and beans are also reduced, making the 3's pork and beans $2.40. Welch's grapelade No. 2, is reduced to $4.25 a doz., No. 1 is also lower. Clark's peanut butter and ox tongue are advanced. Boneless chicken of this brand is also higher. In general the canned goods market is quiet awaiting the new prices. Buying is only for immediate needs and some cutting is still noticed but this is in order to unload stocks.

BARLEY AND PEAS HIGHER

Montreal.

CEREALS—An advance of 15 cents a bag in pearl barley features the cereal market. This line is now quoted at $3.25. Split peas are advanced to $6.75. The price per pound on split peas is unchanged and stands at 7¼c. Other lines of cereals are steady with a limited demand.

DATES GO HIGHER

Montreal

DRIED FRUITS—New York has bought dates in Montreal, Halifax and Hamilton at an advance on general market prices. This will mean a sharp advance in local quotations. Hallowee dates have advanced to 14c. Evaporated apples are advancing rapidly; one cent a day is the average and dealers predict that the price will go well over 25c inside the next week.

SOME ADVANCE IN SUGAR

Montreal

SUGAR—The sugar market is showing considerable strength. Canada Sugar Refinery and the Acadia Sugar Refineries are quoting $6 per cwt. while Atlantic, is still quoting $5.90. The wholesale cutting in sugar is practically over. Throughout the trade there is a feeling that sugar is due to advance in the very near future. The New York market for refined sugar quotes $5.70 and raw stand at 2¾ cents.

PACKAGE TEA ADVANCED

Montreal.

PACKAGE GOODS—The feature of the package goods market is the advance of 9c per lb. on Salada brown label tea. This makes the price 54c per lb. in pound packages and 55c in half pound packages. Some of the wholesalers have not yet advanced their price, since they have some supplies on hand and are giving the trade the benefit. Naturally buying under these circumstances has been stimulated. Kraft loaf cheese has been reduced in price; cream cheese is down to 27c and pimento is reduced from 32c to 29c per lb. Force food has been reduced to $4.00, a drop of 25c.

BEST JAPANS LOWER

Montreal

TEAS—There are contrary opinions about the state of the tea market. Some direct importers state that Japan teas will be sold at a price equal to the basis of 1919 while others say that the price will be quite as high as 1920. The general opinion is that the medium grade Japan teas, when the price is known in ten days or two weeks, will be a little lower than this last year's prices. It is however established that the finer grades of Japan teas are from 8 to 12c lower than last year.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, June 7.—There are few actual changes in prices other than a small advance on certain lines to take care of the increase in the Sales Tax. Rolled oats continue in a strong position with a higher price quoted. Canned tomatoes are showing signs of scarcity and some enquiry for corn for second hand sale is noted. Stocks of peas are not overly large but there appears to be some price cutting. Some package teas show an advance while the market for bulk teas has also a stronger tone with a likelihood for some advances. Raisins are easy but other dried fruits show little change remaining fairly firm. Nuts are quiet and spices are steady under a good movement. Refined sugar is decidedly stronger with one refiner quoting a shade higher and the price cutting has apparently ceased. Syrups and rices are steady. Vegetables are moving freely under easy prices. Lemons are stronger and higher. Flour is easy under a recent reduction.

CEREALS STEADY

Toronto

CEREALS.—The market for bulk cereals is fairly steady. Rolled oats, however, continue strong under the advance of a week ago with the majority of wholesalers now quoting $3.25 per bag of 90 lbs.

TOMATOES GETTING SCARCE

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS.—Some signs for scarcity on canned tomatoes developed during the week when enquiries for stock of a second hand nature materialized, indicating that stocks are becoming small in certain quarters. One brand of standard peas is offered at $1.47½ per doz. The offering of this brand at the low figure has resulted in upsetting prices on peas and consequently some of the better known brands are being offered at nearly the same price to meet the competition. Corn is held fairly firm and some enquiry from second-hand sources was noted during the past week. Barataria shrimps is quoted at $2.40 per doz. Delmonte spinach, No. 2 tins is quoted at $2.25 per doz. and Booth's No. 10 spinach is quoted at $8.50 per doz. Pumpkin, 2½s, is slightly higher at $1.90 per doz. Hygeian Wax beans is offered at $2.25 per doz.

RAISINS EASY

Toronto

DRIED FRUITS.—Spot conditions show little change in dried fruits. Raisins appears to be the one doubtful line in the whole list that is showing any degree of uncertainty. The New York market for raisins has been weak for some time past with holders appearing anxious to reduce their stocks but buyers not inclined to make purchases at the high basis of values. The result has been a weak market which is reflected on the local situation and in some quarters quotations are slightly shaded this week. Sair dates are quoted higher at 7½c. per lb.

PACKAGE TEAS HIGHER

Toronto.

TEAS.—The local situation has a decidedly stronger tone with importers and wholesalers intimating that quotations will be higher within the next week. Salada, brown label has advanced 10c. per lb., and Minto is up 4c. per lb. Other package teas are expected to follow shortly. The London tea auction is closed, awaiting the opening of the Indian market about the end of June. The general opinion is that opening prices for the new crop will be equally as high as at present.

STRONG SUGAR MARKET

Toronto.

SUGAR.— A considerably stronger tone prevails in the refined sugar situation, so much so that a general advance in prices by all refiners would not be surprising. The Canada Refinery advanced 10c per cwt. on Saturday last making the Montreal basis $6. Price cutting which has been quite freely participated in by all wholesalers has apparently ceased and the majority are now quoting on the basis of $6.24.

VEGETABLES MOVE FREELY

Toronto.

VEGETABLES.—The first car of Mississippi tomatoes packed in flats of four baskets, has arrived and are quoted at $2.75 per crate. New local beets are offered for the first time at 90c per doz. bunches. Asparagus holds fairly steady at $2.75 to $3 per 11 qt. basket. Radishes are freely offered at 25c per doz. bunches. Spinach is bringing 75c per bushel box and cucumbers are quoted at a lower price of $2.75 per hamper.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, June 7.—There are few changes in market conditions, but there appears to be a slightly improved tone to business. New pack summer lobsters are reported scarce, but supplies are expected about the middle of the month. Evaporated apples have advanced. Prune prices are fully maintained as higher quotations on the new crop have strengthened local prices. Rolled oats have advanced and the tendency is for higher prices. Coffee, spices, rices and teas show no change. The sugar market is in a stronger position and some refiners have advanced their prices. Other refiners are expected to follow shortly. Strawberries are arriving in large quantities at lower prices. Vegetables are lower under heavier shipment.

COFFEE UNCHANGED

Winnipeg.

COFFEE.—The local situation is unchanged and although primary conditions are strong under firmer prices the opinion is that no immediate change is likely.

LOBSTERS SCARCE

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—New pack summer lobsters are expected on the local market by the middle of the month. Sardines are finding a fair sale with no change in price. Quotations on new pack sockeye salmon will be about $1.50 per case higher than last year: pinks will likely be $1 higher and other lines in comparison. Stocks of salmon are low and new pack will be coming on a large market. Canned vegetables show no change with an improvement in the demand noted. Tomatoes are quoted at higher figure.

EVAPORATED APPLES HIGHER

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUIT.—Evaporated apples are quoted higher at 20½c per lb. with wholesalers' stocks becoming rapidly depleted. Peaches are selling in fair quantity at unchanged prices and limited stocks. Prune prices are fully maintained and recent quotations on the new crop have strengthened local prices. Raisins are firm and prices are fully maintained until the new pack arrives when lower prices are expected.

ROLLED OATS ADVANCE

Winnipeg.

CEREALS.—In sympathy with the oat market, rolled oats have advanced to $2.80 per bag. Millers' quotatioons are higher and as soon as present contracts with wholesalers have expired prices will advance in accordance. No changes are noted in quotations on package cereals. Interest in this line is mostly centred upon the lighter breakfast foods.

NO CHANGE IN FLOUR

Winnipeg.

FLOUR.—The flour situation shows no change. Buyers continue to purchase in small quantities at steady prices.

JAMS HOLD STEADY

Winnipeg.

JAM.—Early prices named by some manufacturers have been withdrawn and apparently 1922 pack will be sold at or around to-day's prices. There is a fair demand locally.

QUIET NUT MARKET

Winnipeg.

NUTS.—Trading continues quiet and is mostly of a consuming character. The market in France for shelled Bordeaux walnuts has developed a firmer tone with quotations slightly advanced.

RICE HOLDS FIRM

Winnipeg.

RICE.—Primary markets continue firm but there are no changes in the local situation.

NO CHANGE IN SYRUPS

Winnipeg

SYRUPS.—The market is steady with quotations unchanged. Glucose has shown a slight advance.

HIGHER PRICES ON SUGAR

Winnipeg

SUGAR.—Sugar advanced 10c per cwt. There is a general strengthening in the raw as well as refined. Two refiners have recently advanced their prices and it is expected that others will follow shortly. It has been intimated that an advance of 50c per cwt. will take place before the end of the month.

Peaches in Niagara Peninsula Promise As Big A Crop This Year As In 1920

Early Prospects For Fruits in This District Look Good, With the Exception of Sour Cherries and Raspberries Which Will Likely Be Light

GRIMSBY, June 6—(Special)—Early prospects for fruits generally in the Niagara district are fairly good, with the exception of sour cherries and raspberries. They promise to be very light. Shipping of strawberries has already commenced, and indications point to a fairly heavy crop. The sleet storm of last February did not damage fruit buds to any material extent, but in some sections of the peninsula considerable damage was done by way of broken limbs and branches. The strawberry crop throughout the peninsula and in the Burlington-Clarkson sections gives promise of a good yield.

Sour Cherries are Hurt

Sour cheries throughout the peninsula will be unusually light. There was a heavy bloom on both Richmond and Montmorency varieties but the low temperature of April 20th appears to have done considerable damage. In the districts of Fonthill and Burlington sour cherries look better. Raspberries also promise to be light. Old patches look particularly so. Gooseberries and black currants promise well and a full crop of these fruits is looked for.

Plums promise a heavy yield, although it is a trifle too early to make anything like an accurate estimate on plums. Much will depend upon developments of the next week or ten days.

A Heavy Crop of Peaches

Peaches will in all likelihood be a very heavy crop this year, and growers are predicting a crop equal or heavier than 1920. In fact it is stated that if they continue to hang on as they appear at present, it will be necessary for the growers to do some extensive thinning, otherwise the quality is likely to be of a small variety.

Duchess pears are almost a total failure throughout the Peninsula. Bartlett and other varieties promise a light to medium crop.

Most varieties of apples look exceptionally well and promise a fair crop, with the exception of Baldwins. This variety in most orchards will be light.

Apples Look Well in N. S.

Kentville, N. S., June 6—(Special)—Although too early to give an accurate pronouncement upon the apple situation, yet so far as indications go, it would seem as though Nova Scotia is about to have one of the best crops in its history. The blooms on the trees this year have been as fine as were ever seen.

Mexico Is Again Entering the Banana Market

Montreal.—American fruit interests are planning to enter the banana industry in Mexico on a large scale. The plantation will be in El Hule in the State of Vera Cruze. The fruit from these districts is considered of much better quality and also better for shipping than that from Tabasco. The first shipment of bananas from Vera Cruze since 1910 was made on March 4th this year and consisted of 3,848 bunches. It is estimated that fruit shipped from El Hule to New Orleans can be placed on the market in Chicago or in some parts of Canada in six days.

An American firm are now shipping bananas from Tabasco to New Orleans, and New York is making shipments from El Hule via Salina Cruze and from there up the Pacific coast to San Francisco and Vancouver. Previous attempts have been made to export bananas by this route but the fruit did not reach the market in good condition. The distance between the two ports is over 1,800 miles and unless it is possible to load on faster ships than now in the service it is doubtful if such shipments will prove successful.

320 PER CENT. ON CAPITAL

a delusion. Mostly they state margins on cost. Only a few months ago I saw one issued by a wholesale grocer wherein all prices were based on cost with the given percentage added to that cost. An article priced at $1 wholesale, for example, was priced at $1.20 retail and the margin—always called "profit" of course— was said to be 20%. Any well posted merchant knows that is 16 2/3%. It certainly surprised me that, in this day and age, a wholesale grocer would let such a document go out under his signature.

But now I have a Profit Percentage Book, wherein margins are stated correctly. The only fault is that the word "profit" is retained, but that is a minor fault so long as the figures given are actually correct. The selling price invariably is given correctly to include the margin aimed at.

This book is laid out in a set of tables which show costs from 3c each, 36c the dozen, up to $2 each, $24 the dozen, so the range is wide enough to cover practically all grocery items. Then prices are figured out to exact fractions on the customary margins of 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 33 1-3 and 50%. The type is large, the paper substantial, the binding strong, so the book may be kept on anybody's desk ready for the constant reference it deserves.

This section of the book would be improved I think, if the 5% table were omitted and one of 16 2-3% substituted.

Other Useful Items of Information

There is a tabulation which shows cost of grain per bag—or feed of any kind—when price per ton is known—there are some other hints, of which I copy a few most useful and pointed:

"Far better not to sell goods than sell them below cost of doing business. The bustle caused by selling goods without profit is empty sound. Some day there may be a law to require merchants to show cause for being in business. With only those in business who could show good cause, business would be an earthly heaven compared with now. And most important: Sell your goods at a profit. Don't wait for your neighbor to raise. He may be waiting for you. In profit there is success. In loss there is only failure."

A. C. Pyke, secretary of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association is attending the annual convention of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association of the United States in Chicago this week.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, June 7.—The produce market is quiet. Cooked meats and the smoked meats show an advance. This advance comes as a result of a keen demand on account of the hot weather with light supplies held by packers. Hogs are unchanged in price but hold firm. Fresh killed hogs are steady. Lard prices are easy with only a limited demand for small lots. Eggs are steady with a firm tone to new laid eggs but a weakness in storage eggs. Butter shows no change but has a weak tone. The same applies to cheese with a dull export market and yet there is a comparatively small make for this season. There is no feature of note in the fish market.

BUTTER PRICES UNCHANGED

Montreal.

BUTTER.—There is no important development in the condition of the butter market. An easier feeling prevails. After the drop in prices during the early part of the week there appeared to be a firmer tone but this did not develop to any extent. There is now a steady feeling in the domestic market for new make of creamery butter and a fair trade is passing at 33c per lb. for prints and 32c for solids.

CHEESE PRICES STEADY

Montreal.

CHEESE.—The feature of cheese is the quiet state of the export market, which lends a weak tone to Canadian cheese. On the other hand there has been a fairly good demand from American buyers for cheese which has resulted in a fair amount of business coupled with much smaller offerings than a year ago at this period. This has offset to some extent the weak feeling and prices are holding steady.

STORAGE EGGS WEAK

Montreal.

EGGS.—There is no change in the egg market. Prices are fairly steady with a firm tone and a good demand for strictly new laid eggs. There is a weaker tone however, to storage eggs with every likelihood of a decline in price. The production is keeping up and very heavy supplies are now in storage.

FRESH MEATS.—There is no change in prices on live hogs. Bacon hogs, weighed off cars are quoted at $14.50 and heavier are about one cent per pound lower. Fresh killed hogs are selling at 21 and 22c per lb. There is no change in quotations on beef. The market is quiet and prices are steady. Fresh meats are in general off during this season and supplies on hand are not heavy so that prices remain fairly even.

COOKED MEATS HIGHER

Montreal

COOKED MEATS.—The law of supply and demand has forced cooked meats up one cent a pound early this week. Supplies held by the packers are light and the summer weather has brought a keen demand which is responsible for the advance.

LARD MARKET WEAK

Montreal.

LARD.—There is weakness in the lard market due to the limited demand. The sales are only for small lots to meet immediate requirements and only a small export. Prices are unchanged.

BACON ADVANCED

Montreal.

SMOKED MEATS.—The demand for bacon is heavy during this season and like cooked meats the price has been forced up by the demand. Coupled with this there has been a fairly good export market for Canadian bacon. Packers are only carrying light stocks and the market is strong even at the advance. Smoked meats are advanced one cent a pound all round.

Anticipating a Big Demand for Lemons In Hot Months

Montreal.—Many buyers are asking about the prospects for the lemon market this summer. Fresh in their memories is the shortage that forced the price of lemons up last August to $15. a case. It is interesting therefore to note that a report from Greece states that the number of lemons cut this year amounts to 31,000,000 as compared with 29,500,000 last year. These lemons generally come on the market about the time of the biggest demand and therefore such a shortage may not be expected again unless there is a delay in shipments. So far the tendency in price is easy and large supplies of lemons are coming to the market.

Dealers Expect Big Demand

The wholesale fruit dealers expect a big demand for lemons this summer particularly on account of the new tax on soft drinks which will very likely force the price of bottled beverages up. The supply of lemons on the market is good but the demand has already shown an increase and many dealers and even households are putting a supply aside in case of an advance in price.

There is an impression among many retailers that lemons will not keep for any length of time. Wholesale fruit merchants say that Verdelli lemons will keep well from now until fall in cold storage. One dealer said that many homes were now buying lemons in fairly large quantities, extracting and bottling the juice with some sugar so that it will keep for use in cooling drinks in the hot weather. The general impression is that lemons will advance during July and August but not on the scale that they did last year.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, June 7.—Production of fresh made grass butter is steadily increasing with prices dropping during the week. Storage operations have commenced which is likely to hold butter values steadier for the balance of the month. Cheese continues weak while eggs are also in a weak position with a likelihood for lower prices by the end of the week. Lard and shortening are fairly steady. Boiled hams are again moved upward in a strong market. Live hogs held steady during the week on a slightly higher basis of values which is the highest since about the first of the year. Smoked meats occupy a strong position with advances on hams and bacon. Fresh pork cuts are also higher. In the fish market there is little change other than a slightly lower price on fresh caught mackerel and a shade higher price on trout. Poultry is easier under heavier receipts and a limited demand.

BUTTER STEADIER

Toronto.

BUTTER.—Another drop in butter prices occurred during the week making the best grades of creamery prints 33c to 34c with second grades around 32c. The market at the present basis of values has a steadier tone, and it is the opinion of many in the trade that prices are about at the bottom. This is accounted by the fact that storage operations have commenced and as June butter has the biggest demand for this purpose a keen demand will tend to steady the market and take up any surplus production.

WINNIPEG MARKETS

WINNIPEG, June 7.—The weakness in the butter market is more pronounced under a further decline. Cheese shows little change but weakness continues. Cooked meats are in strong position under recent advances. Smoked hams and bacon show a better movement at higher prices. Lard and shortening are steady. Fresh white fish and pickerel are in good demand at lower prices. The hog market, due to light receipts is maintaining a firmness. Eggs are arriving in good quantities but quotations are unchanged.

there is really being developed a kind of chain organization in which all of the advantages of the traditional department stores as such are retained, and in addition, advantages of studying chain store methods of operation, particularly as to the study of better methods of operation and in group purchasing.

"The way is open to all big chains to hire the best merchandising ability and to institute every possible economic device, but chain store organizers are no more infallible than other people, and in their efforts to introduce greater efficiency mistakes frequently occur.

"On the other hand, as concerns grow older their managers grow older; more conservative and less willing to try new things, with the result that new ideas are allowed to slip by, and aggressive competitors, either chain or independent gain the advantage. We have yet to see whether the second and third generation of chain store managers will do as well as their founders.

What Will Price Decline Do?

"What effect an era of generally falling prices will have on chain stores, should such an era lie before us, is yet to be seen. Up to 1920 the entire development of chain stores had taken place in a period of generally rising prices. With many individual exceptions, of course, quantity purchases suitable for considerable periods of use could be safely made during this period, since prices were almost certain to be higher at the end than at the beginning of the period. Assuming that we are to have a period of price declines now, will it be as easy for chain stores to make their profits as it has been in the past?

"Some chain organizations have adopted policies which are almost certain to reduce the fighting efficiency of their concerns. One of these is the practice of filling all executive positions from the ranks within the company. This is a policy that operates most excellently as a present incentive to the employees within the organization.

"It may even work so well for a time the employes will undertake work for an organization of that kind at less than market rate salaries, taking chances on getting promotion within in lieu of larger salaries elsewhere; but the ultimate effect as experience has repeatedly shown, is an inbreeding of ideas, a solid growth of conservatism and a more or less crystallized caste system within the organization, reducing its flexibility and preventing it from expanding and reducing its ability to take free advantage of opportunities presented to it under new conditions that arise. This is not an argument against promotions from within. It is rather an argument for filling positions of responsibility with the best possible men, no matter where they come from.

"The results of inbreeding work very gradually, however, and proper remedies may be applied in the concerns that follow these policies before the danger point is reached. Buying advantages are almost certain to be equalized between chain and independent retailers through the gradual development of associated efforts of the independent retailers themselves. Such co-operative associations grow slowly."

A Profit Maker Which Has Had No Upkeep Cost

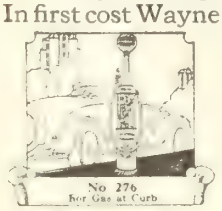
Back in the year when Theodore Roosevelt succeeded the martyred McKinley, A. G. Black & Son's Company installed a Wayne Pump in the Company's general store at Confluence, Pa.

For twenty years, nearly a quarter of a century, this pump has constantly sold gasoline at a profit for its owners. And in that time the pump has never cost a cent for upkeep or repairs. Only at the end of this time did a minor replacement have to be made.

What the A. G. Black & Son's Company has done, you can do, too. These Pennsylvania merchants have found the sale of gasoline profitable. And remember they started when automobiles were a novelty which people said could "never replace the horse".

Now, with the rich trade which automobiles have developed, think of your market for the sale of gasoline. Think how much greater your volume of this business will be today than it could have been in 1901.

A Wayne Pump, of course, will be your choice. In first cost Wayne Pumps may not be cheapest.



(Quality merchandise seldom is, as you know.) But where value is measured in terms of long and profitable service, Wayne Pumps are preferred by prudent buyers.

Personal Contact Gets More Trade

The best way you can make your business grow steadily is to meet and talk to passing motorists, and sell them on the service you can give them with a Bowser Chief Sentry. Then you can increase sales in your other departments.

The Chief Sentry not only saves time for the customer, but it enables you to handle more trade per hour.

The automatic features of the Chief Sentry, liberally advertised in the Saturday Evening Post and Literary Digest, reassure your trade that they will get full measure for their money. The sight glass on the discharge arm shows the customer that the measure is full. The tally bell announces the completion of each gallon of gasoline delivered. The Bowser centrifugal water separator insures as dry and pure gasoline as when first from the refinery. The recording meter acts as a perpetual sales register.

The Bowser Chief Sentry is high enough and big enough to make an impressive appearance and attract trade; it is low enough to go under any filling station canopy. It is unusually attractive in design. Bowser service, combined with your personality, will attract more motorists and bring them back. Ask for booklet C-11, which describes the Chief Sentry money-making possibilities.

FRENCH PRUNE CROP A FAILURE

Reports received from France state the crop of French prunes this year will be almost a total failure. Last year the production was over 15,000,000 pounds and this year, on account of the recent damage, they do not expect to have over 2,500,000 pounds.

OLIVE MARKET ADVANCING

The Spanish olive market continues to steadily advance. Seville has shown an upward trend for some weeks and the shortage of 1921 fruit of all kinds has caused many of the exporters to withdraw from the market. Why Springs Mean Absolute Accuracy

Because springs obey scientific laws, they have become the basic principle of the watch, the speedometer and countless other modern instruments of precision. Spring-regulated scales have replaced earlier and cruder forms of weighing apparatus which depended entirely upon the force of gravity for their operation. The embodies this established scientific principle. Scientifically constructed and tested springs enable the Dayton to respond with hairsbreadth precision to the tiniest fractions of weight. Weight and price computations are given instantly with unvarying accuracy. The Dayton Scale is the most durable made—no one has ever seen a Dayton wear out. As a time saver, profit protector and winner of your customers' confidence, every Dayton you install in your store will pay for itself many times over.

Sold on attractive monthly payments without interest; or discount for cash.

Sent in your answer to our great $1,000 Cash Prize Contest yet? Just answer the question: "What Reasons Would You Advance to Sell a Dayton Scale?" Answers must be in by June 30.

HAIL PROHIBITION!

Prohibition should be thanked for a real reform. A reform which has resulted in a vast increase in the amount of really good beer produced.

Beer, such as people are now making for themselves, is so good, and so much purer and better than the old commercial stuff, that millions who never cared for it before are now drinking it—greatly to their own benefit.

Formerly you had to walk a mile to get a really good glass of beer or ale.

Now you can have the very best in your own home. Home-brewed beer or ale is purer and more wholesome than anything that could be bought formerly. The dealer who gives his customers what they want and the best products obtainable is rewarded with a firmly established business and good profits.

If your customer asks for a pure, unadulterated, high-power malt, and fresh imported hops, sell him "Cream of Malt."

HOW MUCH ARE YOU WORTH?

In this country we reckon individual wealth in terms of a man's total assets. Jones is worth $5,000; Smith is worth $50,000; Brown is worth a million.

In France people estimate their wealth not by reckoning principal but by income—assured income. LeBlanc is worth 1,500 francs income a year; Garneau is worth 20,000 francs a year and Daudet is worth 250,000 francs a year.

The French can indeed teach us something. A man is worth only his absolutely safe yearly income, not the value of his securities, business and other assets that fluctuate in value.

Investments should not be reckoned in terms of their par value or even their market value but according to the income they bring. Investments have lost their value as such when they are not paying dividends or when interest is in default. The investments that will bring in the steady income are the ones you naturally seek. But how difficult it is to choose from among the array of tempting securities offered. So often securities that seemed so promising have proven utterly worthless.

THE FINANCIAL POST analyzes securities for investors. Whether you invest $500 a year, $5,000 a year or $50,000, you need its helpful weekly discussions on investment, business and finance. And you can profitably use its Service for Investors which gives individual advice on your own problems. You, as a subscriber, can ask as many questions as you like concerning your securities. They will be answered thoroughly and promptly.

Stamp Tax on Receipts is New Proposal

Hon. W. S. Fielding Makes a Number of Important Changes in His Original Budget—Tax on Soft Drinks, Cigarettes, Cigars, is Reduced, and on One, Five and Ten Cent Lines of Confectionery the Tax is Removed—Other Modifications

OTTAWA, June 12. (Special).—Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance in announcing certain modifications in taxation, as brought down in his budget of May 23, introduces a new tax, not heretofore in operation in Canada. It is proposed to tax all receipts for ten dollars and up two cents. All amounts under ten dollars are exempt. This is undoubtedly one of the most important changes in the original budget, as affecting the retail trade. The exact text of the government's intention in this regard, is not definitely known, but the new tax is evidently a similar one to that which has been in vogue in Great Britain for many years.

"The expression 'receipt,'" according to the resolution of the Hon. Mr. Fielding, "shall mean any note, memorandum or writing whereby any money amounting to $10 or upward, or any bill of exchange or promissory note for money amounting to $10 or upward, is acknowledged or expressed to have been received, deposited or repaid, or whereby any debt or demand of the amount of $10 or upward is acknowledged to have been settled, satisfied or discharged, or which signifies or imports any such acknowledgment, and whether the same is or is not signed with the name of person." No reference is made to cash slips given over the counter.

Does Not Apply to Cash Slips

A. E. McLean, sales manager of the National Cash Register Co., Toronto, in discussing the tax on receipts with Canadian Grocer expressed the opinion that it did not apply to cash sales over the counter. Thus the ordinary cash slips passed over the counter to the person paying cash would not have to carry a stamp. In Mr. McLean's opinion cash register slips will not be considered receipts according to this Act, although the resolution of the Finance Minister does not particularly say so. The British Act, it is pointed out, applies only to formal receipts bearing the words, "received from etc."

The British practice, apparently is to exempt from receipt tax any cash transaction over the counter, unless a formal receipt is issued, and to place the tax only on a formal receipt issued for two pounds or over. Mr. McLean believes the Canadian practice will be based on that of the British.

Grocery bills, if they come to $10 and over, when paid must bear a stamp, cancelled by the persons receiving the money. The manner of cancellation is for the person issuing the receipt to write his name in such a way that it crosses the stamp. Legally, the receipt will be worthless if it does not bear the stamp.

"It is evidently the intention of the Finance Minister to follow the British Act, but as he has not made public his regulations," added Mr. McLean, "we will have to wait for further announcements. However the ruling does not come into force until January first next."

Wants More Particulars

E. M. Trowern, Dominion Secretary of the R.M.A., when spoken to about the receipt tax, was not

MODIFICATIONS IN THE BUDGET

Tariff item No. 143, affecting cigarettes, is changed. On cigarettes the weight of the paper covering to be included in the weight for duty, the duty is $4.70 per pound and 25 per cent, as compared with $5.25 and 25 per cent. in the announcement of May 23.

The Inland Revenue Act is amended on cigarettes. The $9 per thousand in the May 23 Budget is reduced to $7.50 per thousand. On cigarettes made from raw leaf tobacco, weighing more than three pounds per thousand, the excise is $12.50 per thousand.

The former tax of 49 cents per hundred lbs. on beet sugar is now reduced to 24 cents per 100 lbs. Sugar, sugar drainings, melado, sugar concrete and molasses testing over 56 degrees, and not exceeding 75 degrees per 100 lbs., 12 cents. The former excise was 25 cents. For each degree over that amount of polarization the new tax is one half cent per hundred. Formerly it was one cent per hundred.

Confectionery, which may be classed as candy or a substitute for candy, other than 1 cent, 5 cent, and 10 cent lines, is still taxed 5 per cent.. The change as compared with the first announcement is in the exemption of the lines priced under 10 cents.

The tax on soft drinks is reduced from 10 cents per gallon to 5 cents. An ad valorem tax of 5 per cent. is applied to the soda fountain man. Ale, beer, porter and stout are reduced from 15 to 12½ cents per gallon.

Excise taxes on cigars are charged as follows:

(a) Valued at not more than $40 per thousand—per thousand, 50 cents.

(b) Valued at more than $40 per thousand, and not more than $110 per thousand—per thousand, $3.

(c) Valued at more than $110 per thousand and not more than $150 per thousand—per thousand, $7.

(d) Valued at more than $150 per thousand and not more than $200 per thousand—per thousand, $10.

(e) Valued at more than $200 per thousand—per thousand $16.

Stamp tax on cheques is changed. It is now two cents on every cheque or express order for $50 and units of $50, up to $5,000. In no case can the stamp exceed $2.

A new tax is the tax on receipts. Up to $10 receipts are to be exempt. On every receipt from $10 up a tax of two cents is charged. No matter what the size of the receipt above $10 the tax remains the same.

The tax on telegrams and cables is cut from five cents to three cents.

prepared to make any statement in regard to the same, until such time as Mr. Fielding makes it clearer as to just what form of receipt and transaction it applies.

Is This Basis Workable?

Regarding the change now made in the previous clause referring to the valuation of goods from countries of depreciated currency it is now proposed to have the value of the article determined by the standard of the English value. If two parcels come into Canada on the same day, one being from England and one from Germany, both of the same character, the value shall be determined by the value of the English article, if the articles are made in England of like value.

Where the articles are not made in England, and therefore the English standard of value will not serve the purpose the value in a neighboring country where the currency has no substantial depreciation is taken. It might be Holland or Switzerland, or some of those countries where there is no substantial depreciation. The standard is the English value. Whatever is the English value of the article is taken as the value of the foreign country, in any case in which there is a depreciation of currency.

C. B. Watt of Watt & Scott, importers, Toronto, in expressing his opinion of this change in the budget, declared that the basis of determining the value was very reasonable, that is, taking the English valuation of the article, but he does not believe it is workable, unless some provision is made for the determining of this value. One customs collector might say a thing is worth a certain price in England, and another collector reckoning the English value in a different way might arrive at an entirely different figure. Providing it is left to the collectors, Mr. Watt believed that it would not be workable.

This Tax Is Better

F. G. Riseborough of the Dominion Sugar Co., Toronto office, looked upon the reduction in the tax on beet sugar as an improvement. He believed that cutting the tax in half would not result in such hardship to the growers and to his company as the one first proposed. Instead of 49 cents per hundred the tax is now 24 cents.

The tax on cheques that caused a good deal of opposition at the first announcement has now been changed to read: "A stamp of two cents on every cheque for $50 and units of $50 up to $5,000. In no case can the stamp exceed a total of $2."

Soft Drink Makers in Montreal Say They Will Have to Absorb Tax

See Little Improvement in Changes in Budget As Far As Soft Drinks Are Concerned—Cigarette Manufacturers Say Consumption is Reduced Since Budget Announcement

MONTREAL.—Some of the local manufacturers express satisfaction in the compromise made by the government in the new taxation. Others feel that it is simply complicating matters. Manufacturers are not building their hopes too high on this until the government has made an official statement. In view of this the different manufacturers are reticent about saying anything in regard to their plans. Some of the manufacturers of soft drinks are still in Ottawa and those who could be reached by a Canadian Grocer representative stated that the 50 per cent. reduction in the tax on soft drinks did not improve the situation very much in view of the fact that it made it almost imperative that the manufacturers absorb the tax of 5 cents per gallon or 5 cents per dozen bottles of the small size, which as one manufacturer said "is a fair statement of the profits we now make on soft drinks." So far the feeling is, as the Finance Minister said in his speech to parliament, that the manufacturers will have to absorb the tax and continue selling their soft drinks at present prices. This they are not anxious to do since it cuts off a good part of their profits which they claim are already small in percentage. On the other hand they are not anxious to advance the price since they feel sure it will but increase the overhead cost of manufacture.

Cigarette Industry Hurt

Like the other manufacturers, the cigarette makers refuse to make any definite statement until they have discussed the matter among themselves. The representative of one firm said quite unofficially to a Canadian Grocer representative that already the sale of cigarettes had been cut down from 40 to 50 per cent. and that even at the higher rate of taxation the government was losing money by their recent increase in the excise tax. When asked if the government reduction of $1.50 per thousand of cigarettes taxation would make any change in the present advanced retail price on cigarettes, this gentleman, while claiming to know nothing officially of the plans of the cigarette makers, intimated that it might mean a reduction in the retail price. It is evident that the manufacturers of cigarettes are anxious to have the retail price brought back to the basis of sale prior to the announcement of Mr. Fielding's budget. Nothing will be known definitely of this prospect until the cigarette manufacturers have had a chance to discuss the matter among themselves. In the meantime it is impossible to get a statement from any one of them.

Confectioners Hold Meeting

Immediately on the announcement of the proposed reduction in taxation on the 5 and 10 cent confections, the confectionery manufacturers of Montreal held a meeting. Prior to the meeting each of the manufacturers refused to express their views but it is believed that they are partly satisfied with the adjustment made, which will allow the 5 and 10 cent confections to remain on the market and also safeguard the childrens' one cent treats.

Will Still Increase the Cost of Bottled Goods 10 Per Cent.

Toronto, June 14.—Bottlers of soft drinks express themselves as appreciating the change in the tax on soft drinks. The old tax on this line was 10 cents per gallon but under the amendment the tax is reduced to 5 cents. The new tax, however, will still have the effect of increasing the cost of bottled goods 10 per cent. One manufacturer points out that the small bottle which formerly cost the retailer 40 cents per dozen will now cost 45 cents per dozen. "This will mean that the retailer cannot sell it for five cents, as fifteen cents profit on a dozen is not great enough," said this manufacturer. "There is always a certain amount of loss in handling bottled drinks, so the retailer will have to advance the price to six or seven cents."

Still Do Not Like the Five Per Cent. Confectionery Tax

Toronto, June 14.—"We still do not like the idea of an excise tax of 5 per cent. on candy," C. J. Bodley, secretary of the biscuit, confectionery and chocolate industries of Canada, remarked to Canadian Grocer, in commenting on the modifications in the budget. The Toronto members of the association held a meeting on Tuesday of this week when the change was discussed. It is held that the five per cent. tax is a hardship at this time, and while the removal of the tax on the one, five and ten cent lines is fully appreciated, it is felt that the entire tax should have been removed.

Another meeting of the entire association is called for next Wednesday in Toronto when the matter will be further discussed and steps taken to urge the complete elimination of the tax.

Big Export Inquiry Strengthens Sugar

Heavy Shipments Both From Canadian and U.S. Refiners to European Sources Result in Higher Prices for Raws—Canadian Refiners Announce an Advance of From 50c to 60c Per Cwt., Making Price Montreal Basis $6.50

THE STRENGTH of the sugar market was again in evidence during the past week when all refiners announced an advance of 50 to 60c. per hundred, making the Montreal basis $6.50 for standard granulated.

This advance came as a result of the increasing cost of raws and the increase in the demand for export to European sources both from Canadian and U. S. refiners. The price of American refined sugar is advanced from $5.40 to $6 and the export price for the same sugar is advanced to $4.25 as against the former price of $3.70, net cash in New York.

The advance in the raw markets is attributed in the main to the heavy demand from the United Kingdom and practically the whole of Europe for both raws and refined sugars, and although there does not appear to be any check in this inquiry. A short time ago it was considered that Germany would have sufficient sugar to meet its requirements, but recently a demand has materialized from that quarter, indicating that sugar is needed. Russia has also become a factor in the situation.

Domestic Consumption Greater

Domestic consumption both in Canada and the U. S. has shown a rapid increase and with good fruit crops in prospect and the heavy consuming period at hand there is every reason to believe that the strong tone prevailing will become accentuated.

Another factor has been the heavy shipments of sugar from Cuba, totalling over 3,000,000 tons of both old and new crop combined, during the period from Jan. 1 to June 3. It is estimated that 1,823,345 tons of which amount about 300,000 tons have been sold, leaving an available balance for Canada, United States and Europe for the next six months of only 1,500,000 tons.

Exports Jan. 1 to June 3

The following table compiled by Willett & Gray, in regard to the situation of the Cuban crop, shows the exports from January 1 to June 3 and the estimated amount available for the next six months.:—

Old crop (1920-21) exports from Jan. 1 to June 3	1,146,772 tons
Exports of new crop for the same period	1,875,201 tons
Total exports Jan. 1 to June 3	3,021,973 tons
Cuban crop estimate	3,750,000 tons
Consumption	130,000 tons
	3,620,000 tons
Carry-over on Jan. 1, 1922 of old crop	1,225,318 tons
	4,845,318 tons
Deducting exports as above	3,021,973 tons
Balance supply available	1,823,345 tons

Out of the above balance, however, there must be deducted from 250,000 to 300,000 tons which have already been sold.

"As far as Porto Ricos are concerned," says Willett & Gray under date of June 9, "there are only 150,000 tons still to be shipped from that island, while the Louisiana crop is practically exhausted and there is only a comparatively small quantity of domestic beet granulated to be distributed. There are about 50,000 tons Philippines afloat and shipments from these islands will likely continue between 30,000 and 50,000 tons for the next few months."

NEW MANAGER OF THE NIAGARA FRUIT GROWERS

Ottawa, June 13.—Charles W. Baxter, Dominion Fruit Commissioner, has severed his connection with the Canadian Civil Service and enters immediately upon his new duties as manager of the Niagara Peninsula Fruit Growers, Limited.

Exports of Refined and Foreign Sugars From U.S. in April

IT WILL BE noted in this table that Canada is not included for the year 1922. The total imports of sugar for Canada for the twelve months ending March 31, 1922 were 883,283,112 tons as against 706,825,703 tons in 1921, an increase of 176,457,409 tons.

Will Not Injure The Family Grocer

Independent Grocers Must Meet the Competition of the "Chains" on the Basis of Service and Cleanliness—the "Chains" are here to Stay, Declares Montreal Wholesaler.

Third of series of articles on chain stores

MONTREAL.—Grocers here are asking themselves and each other, "How successful will the chain stores be in our city?" and "Will they hurt the legitimate grocery business?" The answers given by different grocers are interesting and vary considerably. The general opinion among the family grocers is that these chains will not hurt their business, but they do fear the price cutting. As Henry Russel, proprietor of Russel's Market, 847 St. Catherine St., west, Montreal, said to a Canadian Grocer representative, "These chain stores will never steal the trade of a grocer who gives good service, reasonable prices and quality. The man who may well fear is the one who has gained his transient trade though cut prices. For many years back grocers have built up a splendid business on the monthly credit plan and on delivery service. I do not think that any sensational offers of cut prices and novel systems will spoil that business."

Worthy of Thought

Many other grocers have expressed the same feeling but still that optimistic expression may be too assuring. The coming of the chain stores may well make the independent grocers think. There is little use of side tracking the question by saying that they will not succeed, for they are already growing rapidly in other centres and those who have studied the question say that the chain stores are here to stay. The point that the individual grocers must realize is that chain stores make a feature of lower prices and say little or nothing of service. In fact in some chains there is even no semblance of service.

What Wholesalers Think

"There is no doubt but that the chain stores have established themselves in this city for good," said Joseph Laporte, sales manager of Laporte Martin, wholesale grocers of Montreal, to Canadian Grocer representative. "There is no use in saying that they are only a fad. They are filling a place in the community but they certainly are not and will not take the place of the wide-awake grocer who is giving service to the public. I will grant that it will go hard with some but it will mean that the grocers must spruce up and put more energy and initiative behind their work."

How To Compete

When asked on what grounds the grocers can best meet the competition of the chain stores, Mr. Laporte replied, "By featuring service and cleanliness. There is room for great improvement in the cleanliness and general appearance of many grocery stores. There is no denying the fact that no matter how economical a certain class of customers may be, they all appreciate and demand service. If the grocery trade sets its thoughts towards featuring service and quality not only will the grocers hold their own with the chain stores, but they will greatly improve the status of the grocery business."

What the Chain Stores Say

In view of this it is interesting to know what the chain stores think of the competition they are offering the independent grocers. In a pamphlet distributed recently by the executive of a new chain of stores established in Quebec, the following paragraph appears:

"Actual tests of operation have proved that our stores undermine other chain grocery stores just as chain stores make inroads upon the neighboring grocery store business. This is true because we undersell other chain grocery stores just as chain stores undersell the corner grocery."

On the ground of cut prices they attract the public and "undermine" the "corner store." Little is said in the pamphlet about service. The word only appears once when it says "instead of customers waiting—— for a clerk to serve them 30 or 40 people can serve themselves at once." But this is not service. Perhaps the popular demand for service has been under estimated. Retail grocers claim that there is just as great if not greater demand for service than there ever was and on this ground the individual grocers may counteract the appeal of cut prices.

Room For All

"The chain stores are not taking the place of the independent grocers," said M. Zahler, general manager of the newly formed Pure Food Stores, Ltd., of Montreal, who are now operating sixteen stores in this city. "We do not hope to undermine the grocery business, but we want to build a place for ourselves and hope that our coming will be a benefit to the grocery business. As I see it our competition will bring more energy into the business, instead of frightening men out of the trade it will bring better men into it. We fill a place that in no way competes with the grocer who has a large family trade and who makes features of his service to his customers. His is a place in the community that is sound. It is built on the basis of popular demand. Yet, we hope too, that our place is also built on popular demand for in every city there are people who are willing to carry their own parcels and pay cash so that they may save on their purchases. We do not cut prices. We simply charge for the goods themselves and the comparatively small overhead that we have.

Credit and Delivery Costs

"No one can tell me that a merchant can give credit and delivery and not have it cost either himself or his customers something. Somebody must pay for it. There are two distinct classes of people in the city. Those who demand service and are willing to pay for it and those who are willing to sacrifice the service to save the expense. The chain cash and carry stores serve one class, and the family grocer the other. There are therefore two equally distinct classes of grocery stores and ample room for both to succeed and grow. One will not and cannot supplant the other. I grant, however, that the small grocer who has not in the past carried on his trade in a business like way, the one who has cut prices regardless of cost, merely to meet competition, will disappear. He lies between the two classes. He must ally himself with one or the other. For that reason I predict that the class of grocery stores will improve, the stamp of grocers will improve and the business itself will be on a healthier basis on account of the advent of the cash and carry chain stores."

Rochester Board of Trade Visits Montreal

Montreal.—During the week end of June 10th, 225 members of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce visited Montreal. They came from Rochester by boat, arriving here on Friday night. Saturday morning they were the guests of the harbor commission and were taken over the water front on the S. S. Three Rivers. At noon they were entertained by the Montreal Board of Trade at luncheon. The president of the Montreal chamber, Wm. Birks, addressed the gathering and Mayor Van Zandt of Rochester, replied. Some of the party attended the races on Saturday afternoon and all left Sunday morning for Cornwall where they took the boat for Rochester.

Can. Wholesale Grocers in Convention

Many Matters Affecting the Grocery Trade Generally Are Taken Up in the Annual Gathering of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association, Meeting in Niagara Falls This Week—Attendance is Large, With Many Manufacturing Concerns Represented

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (Staff Correspondence)—The feature event in connection with the fourth annual convention of the Canadian Wholesaler Grocers' Association held at the Clifton House this week was the session on Tuesday with the manufacturers. Many of the latter declared themselves on their attitude toward wholesalers. These statements resulted in many questions about maintaining list prices and selling direct, and the discussion became quite lively at times.

There was a large attendance. More than 100 wholesalers were present, nearly a hundred manufacturers and agents. Forty-eight ladies were here with their husbands.

The question of "Drop Shipments" came up and a resolution, not to try to stop them but to regulate them so that list prices would be maintained, was passed.

Addresses of welcome were given by Mayor Newman of Niagara Falls and John W. Charles of Marland Woolnough Co., and also president of the Chamber of Commerce of Niagara Falls. W. C. Cross of Hall & Fairweather, Limited, St. John, N.B., responded. The president then asked Zepherin Hebert of Montreal to respond for the ladies, which he did in very acceptable terms. Mr. Charles then announced the social programme arranged for the pleasure of the visitors.

President Chaput, in his address, said:

"My remarks will necessarily be brief as the secretary in his report will refer more particularly to the work of the Association during the past year.

"Four months of my period as your president, I was away from Canada, and was fortunate enough to have our worthy Honorary President Hugh Blain consent to have a directing hand over the Association affairs during my absence and I am sure you will agree with me that it could not be left in worthier hands.

"We, in the Wholesale Grocery Business have passed through a very trying period, which has required of us all a very close supervision of our businesses. Our lumbering, fishing, mining, agricultural industries have all experienced an extremely dull and unsatisfactory business depression, but I am pleased to say that almost a complete reversal is taking place at the present time and conditions in all these important Canadian industries have recently shown a marked improvement. Markets are looking better, even sugar is showing signs of life.

ARMAND CHAPUT

Who presided at the annual convention of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association in Niagara Falls this week.

"The nerves of business are steadying and I feel better over the outlook than I have for some months. The Wholesale Grocery business got it first, got it probably worse and had it longer than many others. They were the first to strike bed-rock and to rebound and I believe they will be the first to lead the procession back to prosperity.

"We have all been disappointed that the Court of Action brought against our Association has not yet been decided although over a year has elapsed since the hearing was concluded, the withholding of this decision which we all feel will fully uphold our rights should not however deter us in continuing to maintain the position that the most economical method of distributing a manufacturer's or producer's goods is through the Wholesale Grocery Channels, and I hope that during this Convention we can by conference with our manufacturing friends impress this point on them.

"If there were need for our Association among Wholesalers Grocers, the necessity is more pronounced now than ever before and this fact is admitted by the biggest men in the Wholesale Grocery business to-day.

"The consideration of social problems comprehends group action, and the wholesale grocer who labors under the impression that he individually can correct the things which are the cause of the present chaotic condition in the Wholesale Grocery business is making a big mistake.

"Your asociation as a whole has already taken action on the cheque tax and protested to the Government."

Mr. Hebert in referring to the president's address incidentally objected to the cheque tax stamp recently announced by the Finance Minister. He had suggested to a cabinet minister that it was class legislation as it burdened the larger firms and corporations and did not affect the smaller ones. He believed that some modification was to come. His proposal was a tax of two cents on cheques, etc., up to $100 and a straight five cents tax above that amount.

Secretary's Annual Report

Secretary A. C. Pyke reported the admission of six new members during the year, three in Quebec, two in Nova Scotia and one in Ontario.

"Our efforts," he said, "to have manufacturers arrange so the wholesale grocer would not have to lose the manufacturers' sales tax were continued during the year and we were successful in having a very large percentage of the manufacturers of proprietary lines meet our views in this respect. The increased tax to two and one-quarter per cent made it necessary to again approach the manufacturers and I am very pleased to report that already an extensive list of manufacturers have acceded to our request and are arranging so the wholesale grocer will not have to lose this new tax of two and one-quarter per cent.

"The arranging of this Sales Tax with manufacturers has meant a tremendous amount of correspondence as well as a great many personal interviews but it has been the means of saving many thousands of dollars to our members. We are still continuing our efforts and are very hopeful that we will soon have every manufacturer in line.

Breakfast Cereal Classification

"The proposed new Freight Classification No. 17 has engaged our attention for some time. This new classification proposes to change the classification on many grocery lines and also increase the minimum carload weights on numerous grocery items. We have had three sessions with the Freight Classification Committee in Montreal. At the first session the re-classification of breakfast cereals in packages was considered. They proposed changing classification on these items from eighth in cars and and fourth in L. C. L. to fifth in cars and third in L. C. L. We joined with the traffic men of several of the cereal manufacturers in opposing this change and are pleased to say we were successful.

"Rule 24 of Freight Classification No. 16 which went into effect in May, 1921, and has been enforced since that date raised the classification one class on all packages which weigh less than twenty pounds or measure less than thirty-six united inches. This meant an increase in freight paid on articles coming under this rule of from 20% to 50%. We strenuously objected to this rule and requested its suspension and after an argument of considerable length we succeeded in having them recommend its suspension which became effective in December.

"In March last another hearing was held in which we opposed any increasing of carload minimums.

"The whole grocery list is to be considered at another session of the classification committee to be held June 27 and 28, when this association will be heard and a grocery list will be submitted by us for adoption in the new classification. In this work we have been very ably assisted by Mr. Zeph Hebert of Montreal and Mr. St. Clair Balfour of Hamilton.

Labelling of Food Products

"At our instigation, over a year ago, the Department of Health of the Dominion Government postponed the enforcing of the various clauses of Food and Drug Act until January 1 of this year. This Act requires all sealed containers of food to have plainly marked on their labels the net weght of contents, as well as correct description of the contents. As they had not enforced the Act on manufacturers the wholesale grocer at the beginning of this year had large quantities of goods on hand which were liable to seizure if the Act was enforced as planned.

"We had several conferences with the various Government departments interested and finally secured from them a promise that as far as the wholesale grocer and retail grocer were concerned they would withhold taking any action until July 1, but would enforce the Act as far as the manufacturer was concerned.

"This was a concession which your association should appreciate and govern themselves accordingly.

"We joined with other associations and Boards of Trade in requesting that the Act passed at the last session of Parliament requiring all goods imported into Canada to be marked with the country of origin should be considerably modified. We were requested by the Government to submit suggested changes in this Act and am pleased to say that our suggestions were adopted by the late Government which removed any objections that we had against it. Since then, however, the enforcing of the Act has been suspended and the new tariff changes proposed by the present Minister of Finance practically cancels it.

"Several of our members having written me regarding the situation created by manufacturers' representatives calling on them and presenting orders from the retail trade to be filled through wholesalers and soliciting quantity orders from the wholesale grocer based on the retail orders submitted. In many cases the retailers have refused these goods when delivered by the wholesaler and he is thus left with a much larger stock than desired. Accordingly the association prepared a rubber stamp and supplied one to each of our members, which read as follows:

> This order is given subject to seller's guarantee that retail orders submitted are bona-fide and will be accepted by retailers, and if not in accordance with above, goods may be returned to manufacturer.

Ideas on Sales Tax

"As several changes had been suggested in the Sales Tax and the Government having been urged by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and others to amend the Act at the present session of Parliament by releasing the manufacturers from paying any Sales Tax and doubling the amount collected from the wholesaler it was deemed advisable and in our interests to arrange a conference with the Minister of Finance and Minister of Customs, when our views on the Sales Tax could be presented. Accordingly we met both the Minister of Finance and Minister of Customs in Ottawa on April 21st, and submitted our views which were as follows:

"That we heartily approve of the present Sales Tax and the method of collecting and administering same. We expressed the opinion that the present Act was being enforced fairly and working very smoothly and urged that it be continued as at present. If however, any change was contemplated we suggested that the tax be collected solely at the point of production, that is to say from manufacturer producing the finished article as it reaches the consumer and on imports through Customs. We also stated our strong objections to what is called a 'Turnover Tax.'

"The Minister of Finance stated that it was very refreshing to have such an influential and important association such as the Wholesale Grocers express their approval of the Act and not desiring any change, in fact he assured us that we were a very welcome deputation, and it is very pleasing to know that the Minister in his recent budget practically adopted the suggestions made by us and the wisdom of our efforts with the former government when the Sales Tax was first introduced two years ago to require manufacturers who sold to retail trade direct to pay the government an amount of sales tax double that charged to the wholesale grocer, can now be very fully appreciated as the Sales Tax at present shows a difference of two and one-quarter per cent. in favor of the wholesale grocer.

"The increase in the Stamp Tax on cheques, money and express orders as outlined in the new budget would mean a very large increase in the cost of doing business and we have accordingly protested to the Government against this proposal and have suggested a tax of two cents on cheques up to one hundred dollars and five cents on all cheques over that amount.

"May I suggest this motto for your consideration?

"I will run my business as I would like to see my competitors run theirs."

The treasurer, Thomas Kinnear, reported total receipts for the year of $7,412.92 and expenditures of $7,115.03, leaving balance of $297.09.

Desire To Hamper Trade

I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., counsel for the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association, in an address on Monday afternoon thought that the judgment in the last wholesale grocers' suit of the Ontario Attorney-General, had been too long delayed. He thought the judge, who was no doubt overworked, was perhaps making sure that his decision would be such that there would be no necessity of further litigation on the same subjects.

During this past session, he said, legislation was proposed making all resale price agreements void and of no value, but it has been withdrawn for at least another session.

"It is a pity that in this country," he said, "there is a desire on the part of some people always to hamper trade. If it were left to honorable bodies of business men to carry out agreements in respect of their own problems it would undoubtedly benefit consumers.

"Anyone can sell an article at any price he chooses so long as that price is reasonable. In Canada we have been allowed to fix the resale price up to the present time. It has been claimed by A. W. Roebuck, counsel for the Ontario Attorney-General that this method is conducive to higher prices to the consumer but this is a fallacy, as has been shown in other countries."

Mr. Hellmuth urged constant vigilance on the part of the association to watch every piece of legislation proposed in the Houses of Parliament. He did not think the term "Middleman" should be held in disrespect. Russia was the only country on earth where middlemen were done away with and look at its condition at the present time.

Percy Eby: "We have adopted the policy during the past year of getting the manufacturer to fix the resale price pending the judgment on our case and I would like to know from Mr. Hellmuth if that is the proper course."

Mr. Hellmuth replied that that was the big question that came up in connection with this case and his opinion was that such a contract is perfectly legal.

Manufacturers State Their Position

Representatives of Manufacturers of Foodstuffs and Kindred Lines Meet in Conference With the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association at the Annual Convention of the Latter in Niagara Falls This Week

By Staff Representative of Canadian Grocer

NIAGARA Falls, June 14.—Fred T. Smye (Balfour Smye Co.,) reported for the special committee dealing with manfacturers' relationships. He claimed that business conditions during the past two years had been unsatisfactory. This was partly due he claimed to the continued persecution of legitimate business interests on the part of the Ontario attorney general. This had caused considerable nervousness and uncertainty among wholesalers and manufacturers. There were springing up all sorts of chain stores, stores on wheels, etc. Severe losses were being experienced.

"There are some manufacturers," he maintained, "who were doing business on a fair legitimate basis but there are others who are not playing the game. There are manufacturers whose business has been built up through the jobbers and who have turned against them to supply goods direct to the retail trade. In many instances in the United States these retailers have developed to such an extent that they are now manufacturers themselves. There are wholesalers who are not doing right—wholesalers who continue to buy from manufacturers who are selling direct.

"Manufacturers should declare through what channels they are distributing their goods.

"Manufacturers too, selling through the jobber should allow the jobber a reasonable profit. The special committee also considered that the sugar refiners should meet the wholesale grocers at the earliest opportunity in Montreal and go thoroughly into the problems that have been existing and which have meant such a loss to everybody during the past year. He moved a resolution covering the above points.

R. J. Carson, (Kingston) stated that jobbers in Toronto and elsewhere were coming into Kingston and offering sugar at the Montreal price. His idea was that the manufacturers should state their prices and see that they are maintained.

H. G. Flint, (Shredded Wheat Co.,) stated the policy of his firm was to sell through the wholesaler with the exception of one or two accounts that were with them for many years. "We try to mildly insist upon the jobber taking the margin of profit that we provide. If at any time you find anything objectionable we want you to take it up with us."

Want Price Maintained

Geo. H. Millen, president of the E. B. Eddy Co., said his firm always sold through the wholesale trade and always intended to and to allow a fair margin. J. F. Taylor, also of E. B. Eddy Co., reaffirmed Mr. Millen's statement. "We expect every wholesaler to sell our matches at the list price, and we always endeavor to insist that this is done," he said.

Zeph. Hebert (Hudon Hebert) thought that jobbers who did not live up to their obligations should be cut off "even on circumstantial evidence."

John Miller, (Lever Bros.) stated their business is done through the jobber with a few exceptions that are approved by the wholesalers. "We discipline those," he said, "who do not live up to their obligations. But we think our relations and obligations should be on a 50-50 basis. There are travelers working on a profit commission basis who are passing out part of the jobber's margin in order to get business. This disorganizes trade and we maintain that the jobber should see that his salesmen live up to our terms."

H. G. Bauld, M. P. P, (Halifax) asked why soaps were being sold in the Maritime provinces through the retail trade. Mr. Miller replied that when his firm went to the Maritimes in the first place it was necessary to get a start through the retailer.

"I have no doubt," he added, "that if satisfactory arrangements can be made as far as wholesalers buying only from manufacturers who sell through the jobber is concerned and maintaining list prices, we would sell through the jobber same as we do in Ontario and Quebec."

A lively discussion then took place in regard to cutting of prices in the Maritimes. W. C. Cross (St. John) referred to some Montreal house coming in and cutting the price. Mr. Hebert claimed this was done because prices were already being cut by Maritime province firms. Mr. Miller stated that conditions of this kind were coming up from time to time and were being met with good success by careful analysis and co-operation.

Selling Soap To The Chains

Charles Parsons (Parsons Brown Co., Toronto,) asked why certain chain stores were being sold direct and who cut prices whereas some good retailers were cut off who had never been cutters.

Mr. Miller replied that they believed that the chain stores could be controlled better if sold direct than if sold through the jobbers.

Mr. McCulloch (Truro, N. S.) asked when a change would be made and soap would be sold through the jobbers. Mr. Miller replied that the soap firms would be glad to meet the maritime province firms and go thoroughly into the matter.

Opposed to Pooled Orders

J. T. Owen (Proctor & Gamble) said that their business was handled through the wholesale grocer. "We do not sell through brokers. There may be some jobbers we sell whom your association do not consider legitimate wholesalers but we will be glad to deal with any jobber who does not live up to his obligations on tangible evidence received." He did not think jobbers should solicit pooled orders from a group of retailers as that was the same as cutting prices. He referred to a certain Ontario town where most of the retailers were buying on the basis which made it difficult for the manufacturer to do business there. His firm, he said, would be glad to discuss the soap matter with the maritime province firms.

A. J. Major, (S. J. Major Ltd., Ottawa), asked if the soap companies are supplying bodies of retailers joined together as buying organzations. Mr. Owen said his firm was not selling such organizations.

Answering Fred T. Smye, he said that his firm was not selling any soap in car load quantities direct to retailers and billing direct.

A. D. Rettinger (Palmolive Co.)—"Our policy in Canada is to sell the retail grocer through the jobber. We do sell general stores and other stores direct but not if their grocery department is the predominating one."

President Chaput thought that many of the problems to be rectified could best be dealt with by individual firms or by local or provincial organizations.

Differences of Opinion Found

Geo. F. Benson, (president Canada Starch Co.,) declared their policy was to sell through the jobber to retailer. He thought there should be co-operation on the 50-50 basis between the jobbers and the manufacturers. He found a great many differences of opinion when traveling about among the trade and considered it very difficult to come to clear cut decisions particularly at present time.

John Dillon (London) urged that the making of individual contracts was the one method of correcting evils.

Mr. Benson was not sure that it would be legal for his firm to do this and he would not like to take any action until he was sure he was right.

Alex. Hutchison (St. Lawrence Starch Co., Port Credit, Ont.) did not think there were any firms that co-operated more with the wholesalers during the past 30 years than the starch companies. "The cutting that has been going on among many of the wholesalers has left us so that we do not know where we are at and until Justice Orde renders his decision we cannot move in the direction suggested by Mr. Dillon."

What is a Legitimate Margin?

R. K. McIntosh, (Canadian Postum Cereal Co.) stated that his firm did not sell to chain stores but only through the wholesale trade with the exception of a few larger retailers which policy has been approved of by the association. He did not think it was fair to cut the price of an article and keep up the price of a competitive article. Mr. McIntosh urged more frequent committee meetings between manufacturers and wholesalers. There was the point as to what a fair profit to the wholesaler was. He sometimes thought that some of the wholesalers considered 15 per cent. too much by the way they cut prices. The wholesalers should get together and see what a fair profit is. He felt that deciding on a fair profit, getting and maintaining the list price was the best method of removing many of the ills in the trade.

J. F. O'Brien (Kellogg Corn Flake Co., Battle Creek, Mich.): "We do not sell in Canada any retail stores or chain stores; we are working with the wholesaler and if we are doing anything in Canada displeasing to you, we hope you will let us know about it."

He deprecated the policy of some jobbers allowing travelers to cut prices by rebating. There was too much of that sort of thing and it was often the fault of the wholesaler if he did not get his proper margin of profit.

James Wagstaffe (Wagstaffe Limited) declared that his firm found that in some cases when his travelers took retail orders to the wholesaler, other goods were substituted. He did not think that was fair and if it continued he thought that his firm and the wholesaler would inevitably drift farther apart. He believed however that the wholesale channel was the most economical as it cut down losses in bad debts. Mr. Wagstaffe urged wholesalers to take special care in regard to quality of jams they sold as standards were about to be consistently enforced.

Should Reprimand Members

Frank Gordon (Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flake Co., London) also urged that more meetings should be held between wholesalers and manufacturers. "In our business," he said, "we have never sold direct nor through chain stores and we believe we are 100 per cent. perfect as far as the wholesale trade is concerned." Wholesalers' associations should, he thought, reprimand their own members if they do not maintain list prices. As a manufacturer his firm always endeavor to see that this trade kept the list price but without the strong arm of the associations, the best results could not be secured.

Wm. H. Dunn, (The Borden Co.) said that it was always the policy of his firm to sell through the wholesale trade. "We do not sell the chain stores nor the wholesaler who sells them," he stated. "We also see that our list prices are maintained. It is in our interests that the jobber's margin be maintained so that his interest may be retained in our goods."

In answer to some direct questions on the part of wholesalers, Mr. Dunn declared that if it were found any retailer were buying direct he did not know of it and would like to have the matter brought to his attention.

F. D. Bristley (Royal Baking Powder Co., New York) mentioned that in the United States they were scarcely permitted to discuss resale prices. After a great deal of research by some of the leading merchandisers in the United States, the conclusion was reached that most of the problems of the trade could be handled by the manufacturers and wholesalers as they came up and not by government commissions.

T. A. Wilson (Genesee Pure Food Co.) affirmed his belief that the most economical method of doing business was through the wholesaler. In answer to questions he said that there were certain competitions that have to be met. Answering a question of Mr. McCulloch (Truro, N. S.) in regard to selling direct and discounts allowed, Mr. Wilson said his was the only firm that made any pretence of selling jelly powder through the wholesale trade. More than 75 per cent. of their sales were made through the jobber.

J. W. Johnston (Canada Nut Co., Vancouver,) states that his firm had always sold through the wholesaler but that there were competing firms who went direct to the retailer and whose goods were being backed by certain wholesalers. He did not think that was fair.

Sask. Retailers Discuss Many Questions

Annual Convention in Regina Last Week is Representative Gathering, and is Marked by Much Interesting Discussion on Vital Subjects—T. H. Masterson, Regina, the New President

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

REGINA, June 8.—The 9th annual convention of the Saskatchewan Provincial Board of the Retail Merchants' Association opened in the City Hall Auditorium yesterday. Delegates from all parts of the province started to register at 9 o'clock, and for an hour the reception committee greeted them. Attendance numbers were up to expectations.

His Worship Mayor Grassick extended the welcome of the city to the delegates and in his address stated that the people of Regina knew what problems the retail trade have been up against during the past year and more. They appreciated the difficulties of the association and of its members. "I know I speak for them," he said, "when I say they are glad to see you gather together to discuss your problems, and I hope the convention will be successful in every way."

E. B. Gass, president Regina Chamber of Commerce, also welcomed the members of the R. M. A., and stated that the retailers were coming together to discuss business at a critical time. He had been engaged in trade in Western Canada a long time, and he remembered the time when such an organization as the retail merchants had now, would have been impossible.

"There was too much distrust in the old days, but the co-operation that the members have to-day is a splendid idea," he said.

He brought out this fact, that he would like to see the merchants take up the question of good roads in this Province, as they are very essential for the betterment of business. He also reminded the merchants of the association of the Boards of Trade of Saskatchewan and pressed for co-operation between the two organizations.

G. W. Stockton, retailer of Carlyle, replied to the address of welcome on behalf of the retailers and thanked the mayor and Mr. Gass. He believed, he said, that the business of retailing is second to none. It is necessary to have good retailers. He believes that the people of this country were coming more and more to realize the difficulties of the merchants, and the sooner they realized them, the problems of the association would greatly disappear. In speaking of the middleman, Mr. Stockton stated that he is performing a service that is necessary, and as the people demand it and are paying for the same there should be no kick coming. It is up to the retail merchants' association, however, to see that there were no more middlemen than the people want.

JACK WOOD
of Swift Current, Sask., who presided at the convention of Saskatchewan Retailers in Regina last week.

The President's Address

Jack Wood, of Swift Current, president of the association, referred to the financial difficulties of the past year or two. "We have been forced to study the strictest economy," he said, "in order to bring the association to the position in which it now stands. No doubt as many of you are aware, our financial conditions did not appear any too rosy last year, but through cutting down the different departments and overhead expense, we are glad to say we are in a strong position.

"The financial position of many of the merchants was still not as good as might be desired, but it was steadily improving, and the members of the organization might look to a brighter future." Speaking of the discontinuance of the collection department, which had been maintained by the association, he said it had been decided to drop it because it was costly and it had never given the service it was originally intended to give.

"The reason why this department did not pay," he continued, "is because the bills sent in by the members for collection were old debts on which every effort for recovery had been made before they were turned over to the department, and in many cases the majority of them were impossible to collect. Under this condition the association was not given a fair chance to make good. The cost was more than we could afford to pay for the service, and therefore it was discontinued, which had also resulted in the cutting down of the staff and further economy."

He referred to the amendments enacted at the last session of the Provincial Legislature to the Hawkers and Pedlars Act. They were partly satisfactory, but further representations must be made before the government in regard to this contentious law.

He referred briefly to the freight rate problem and said that the association was strongly represented on group dealing with this problem and the members might expect results.

Mr. Wood pointed out the cash and credit systems in vogue in the province, and stated that more retail merchants to-day than ever before were doing a strictly cash business. The members might emulate the systems adopted by the mail order houses of the country, and would do well in adopting their system. In conclusion Mr. Wood thanked the executive that worked with him during the year to make the work of the association so successful.

Unable To Be Present

J. A. Banfield, Winnipeg, president of the Dominion Board of the Association was to have spoken at the convention but a telegram was received from him stating it would be impossible for him to attend. He extended his congratulations to the assembled delegates and wished the convention success.

A telegram from the officers and board of the Ontario Provincial Association containing greetings to the Saskatchewan Convention was received and read to the audience by the chairman, J. Wood.

The exhibit of manufacturers and wholesaler producers in the basement of the city hall received many visitors not only among the delegates attending this convention but also among citizens.

Income Taxation Discussed

In his address on taxation P. McAra, federal inspector of taxation for Saskatchewan, outlined his work. He referred to the difficulties he has encountered in reaching all the taxpayers and finally went into technical details in regard to filling out of returns by merchants. The West is a difficult place to collect taxes with its population scattered over miles of country. It is relatively easy to collect taxes in an urban community but to go into the highways and byways of Saskatchewan was work for a large and highly efficient organization. In respect to the willingness of the people to comply with the act, the Province of Saskatchewan was up in the front rank of the Dominion. Mr. McAra gave figures of tax collection in this province for 1920, stating that in that year there was a gross income of $40,000,000 out of which no tax was collected because of the exemption provisioned in the act. About 100,000 families filed returns in that period and about 50,000 of them were not assessable. These figures were exclusive of the income derived from mercantile businesses. There were several classes of retailers doing business in the West and the worse ones were those who did not see the necessity for annual stock taking. The ones who did not worry about the wholesalers and the banks and the one who did not see why he should submit to the government a statement of his expenditure and revenue assets and liabilities. The speaker declared that the branch of the department in Saskatchewan was trying to make friends of the people. It was trying to make the merchant, the profesisonal man and the worker co-operate with it, for that is the only method by which it could be efficiently operated.

Dean Rutherford of the University of Saskatchewan in addressing the retail merchants of Saskatchewan remarked that the big problem of retailers, farmers and every citizen of the province was to strive to establish permanent homes, thus making for the progress and stability of Saskatchewan.

Say Banks Have Advantage

A question of importance was presented by the executive committee in regard to the Dominion Government Bank Act, section 88 which allows banking institutions to take liens on crops, threshed grains or seed grain in return for loans to the owners and does not make it necessary for these liens to be registered within a certain time limit as other instruments are required to be. It is explained that a lien taken by a bank is the first charge in all cases against the grain or chattels or stock of a farmer. It may be taken in secret, that is by agreement between the bank and the owner who is accepting a loan and is not registered and in reality gives the bank power of attorney.

Secretary F. E. Raymond read a letter which stated that he had confidential information from a bank clerk that arrangements were being made between the elevators and the banks under which all grain cheques issued during 1922 and 1923 would only be made payable to the persons to whom the cheques were issued. This would be a very serious matter to the retail merchants as it would mean that if this action was taken the grain cheques would have to be paid through the local banks, and when the latter were creditors, they would seize the money before the creditor merchant had a chance to get his share, even though it was the intention of the owner of the cheque to divide up the proceeds.

A. J. Humphries of Raymore, said that a farmer had told him that a bank manager had stated that all grain cheques must be cashed through the bank. While he characterized this as a bluff he expressed the opinion that it was a practice which should be discountenanced.

This was generally conceded to be an injustice to creditor retailers who are thus excluded from ascertaining prior claims to their own. A resolution was unanimously passed urging the federal government to amend the bank act requiring such encumbrances to be subject to registration.

Secretary's Report

Provincial secretary F. E. Raymond made his report in part as follows:

The year through which we have just passed has been one of re-adjustment for us as it has been for you who are actively engaged in commercial pursuits. You have felt the pinch of falling prices and have had to take your losses, in some cases serious in the extreme. Doubtless, there are those among you who protected against this loss by taking advantage of a rising market in previous years as you were quite justified in doing. Many did not do so, but rather gave to their customers full advantage of the price at which they were able to buy. As a result of this, there are some who found it extremely difficult to tide over these strenuous times, and have only been able to do so because of leniency shown them by their creditors. The situation has been accentuated by the conditions surrounding the 1921 crop from the time it was put into the ground until sold. As you all know the crop was sown and harvested under war prices and about the time it was ready for market the price dropped to practically a pre-war basis, with disastrous results to the agricultural interests. This reacted with almost equally serious effect upon the retail trade for two main reasons. First, that quite generally speaking, retail merchants were unable to collect their outstanding accounts. Secondly, because buying among those interested in agriculture was restricted to a very large extent. This condition still obtained, although perhaps not to the same degree because of the favorable prospects surrounding crop conditions at the present time, and because also of those who were able to hold grain for a time secured a better price for it, which allowed them something to the good on the year's operation. There is a lesson here which I think we can all take to heart to good purpose and that is the utter dependability of the commercial life of the country upon agriculture, and I feel that we should strive with all the forces at our command to assist agriculture to the very limit of our ability.

The conditions which I have very briefly outlined have, of course, had their effect upon the Association through falling membership and in other ways which will be dealt with in some detail later on in this report. However, I am pleased to say that owing to the vigilance of your Provincial Executive we have weathered the storm successfully and are now in an easier position financially than we have been for some time. We have not been able to do all that we would like to have done, by way of holding meetings in various parts of the Province. That the importance of this is appreciated is illustrated by the fact that we have been requested during the course of the year to arrange for meetings at which merchants from a number of towns would be brought together at some central point. We were compelled to forego them for financial reasons.

During the months of August and September we were privileged to have with us our Dominion President, J. A. Banfield of Winnipeg, and our Dominion Secretary, E. M. Trowern of Ottawa, who, following the close of the Dominion Convention at Winnipeg, addressed meetings at Regina, Moose Jaw, Swift Current, Prince Albert, North Battleford, Saskatoon and Yorkton, at all of which the attendance was good. In every case the merchants in the district surrounding the city where the meetings were held were circularized, which resulted in quite a number from outside points being present on one occasion. It is my hope during the coming year to arrange a number of meetings throughout the province and to have at each one a speaker of some note along commercial lines in addition to an Association representative.

Closes Collection Department

We found it necessary in January of this year to close our Collection Department in the Provincial Office in so far as the handling of accounts on a commission basis is concerned, owing to the loss incurred in its operation. Moreover, due to existing conditions the results being obtained were not satisfactory to ourselves, nor were they to those for whom we were handling the accounts.

Decrease in Membership

Our membership at the present time is somewhat less than it was at the beginning of January, 1921, but it has not decreased to the extent that one might think considering the trying times through which we have passed. Many of those who have not renewed their membership would have done so gladly had they considered that their financial position warranted them in doing so. Whether they were justified in taking this stand is an open question, but the fact remains that they could not see their way clear to pay out any more money for any purpose than was absolutely necessary. Our actual paid up membership on December 31, 1921, was 2,157. At the present time it is 1912. A decrease of 245 covering a period of seventeen months. This reflects a considerable amount of credit on our two organizers, Messrs. McQuarrie and Anderson, and also speaks well for the esteem in which the association is held.

T. H. MASTERSON, REGINA, IS ELECTED PRESIDENT

Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in T. H. Masterson, Regina, being elected president; G. G. Wray, Regina, 1st Vice-President; Ralph Miller, Prince Albert, 2nd Vice-President; A. J. Humphries, Raymore, 3rd Vice-President; S. E. Fawcett, Saskatoon, Treasurer, and F. E. Raymond, Saskatoon, Provincial Secretary.

J. Wood, of Swift Current, expressed the pleasure he had in his work as president and paid a warm tribute to the assistance rendered by the executive and the devotion of the staff of the provincial office.

T. G. Masterson, the newly elected president, in accepting office expressed appreciation of the services rendered by his predecessor, Jack Wood. The merchants endorsed the remarks by rising and singing "He is a Jolly Good Fellow." Three cheers and a tiger.

Retailer Holds The Strategic Position

"If it Were Not for the Work of the Retailer the Whole Economic Fabric Would Collapse," Declares Prof. Swanson of Saskatchewan University in Addressing R.M.A. Convention—Premier Dunning Urges Patience in Matter of Credits

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

REGINA, June 9.—Addressing the retail merchants of Saskatchewan at their annual convention, on the occasion of their banquet on the closing evening, Hon. C. A. Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan, was the chief speaker. The newly elected president, T. H. Masterson was in the chair. Other speakers on this occasion were W. W. Swanson, professor of economics at the University of Saskatchewan, and N. S. Jones of Hamilton, Ont.

In the course of his address the Premier enumerated some of the more important resources of the southern part of the province, dealing with their recent progress and the possibilities for future development on a large scale, instancing the clays, sodium sulphate deposits, epsom salts and lignite coal.

Premier Dunning, speaking on the problem of credits as related to existing conditions, declared there were three kinds of credits; merchants' credits, wholesalers' credits and bankers' credits. The trouble with all three classes of credits in the past had been that when credit was not needed badly it had been very free but when it became a vital necessity they had all got cold feet. Credit had always been either too free or non-existent. In the matter of credit they had been extremists.

Referring to the credits extended by merchants to their customers, the Premier said Province had not intended that one crop should pay for the debts of five years and he urged them to "be easy and if you cannot be easy, be as easy as you can." The province of Alberta, he said, had had to pass legislation to compel creditors to be easy. He did not want to see legislation of that kind enacted in Saskatchewan and he felt sure as the result of conferences the Government had had from time to time that such legislation would not be necessary here.

Unjustly Criticized

Prof. Swanson, in his address, remarked that retailers and wholesalers had been unjustly criticized on the ground that they stood between the producer and consumer, but people did not stop to consider the countless services they rendered between the production of the raw articles and its receipt by the consumer. If it were not for the work of the retailer and the middleman the whole economic fabric would collapse. The retailer held the strategic position in the realm of commerce and if he did not live up to his responsibility there was suffering all along the line.

It was decided to hold the 1923 convention in Prince Albert in June and a proposal to adopt the policy of pooling fares of delegates attending the convention in future as a measure for distributing the burden of traveling expenses equally among the delegates.

The speaker emphasized the necessity for proper preparation for the business of merchandising. Both farming and retailing were highly scientific industries and special preparation was necessary to ensure success and to render service. If the retailer prepared for his job he had one of the biggest opportunities and tasks in life. Some of the troubles of the present day were due to the fact that men had gone into the business in a haphazard way without making efficient preparation. It was not only necessary to prepare beforehand but after they were in business it was essential to be on the alert and to keep up-to-date.

In this province it was the first duty of the retailers, professional men, and everyone who made a livelihood here to understand the problems of others and particularly the problems of the agricultural classes. In this province above all else it was necessary they should be rural mnded. Their first obligation was to study the problem of the farmer, not in an academic way but by linking up with his organization and activities. They could not as a class achieve anything unless they linked themselves in close association with other classes of the communty.

Favors Cash Basis

Another necessity for the present day was to get down to a cash basis of doing business, or nearly as possible to a cash basis. People had been spending too much on things that counted little in life. Until people met their debts they had no right to the moving picture class of luxuries.

In his concluding remarks the speaker emphasized the importance of co-operation among the retailers to promote efficiency, co-operation with one another and co-operation with their employees in order that real service could be rendered. What was needed was the kind of co-operation that sank personal differences for the benefit of the community as a whole. They must get that kind of thing in the local community if they were going to have it the world over.

Sask. Grocers Discuss Question of Wholesalers Selling to Consumers

Grocers' Section of the R.M.A. Convention in Regina Debate Problems of Vital Interest to Their Own Trade—Unfair for Wholesalers to Sell Restaurants, Boarding Houses, etc.

REGINA, June 9 (Special).—Arrangements were made for a division into trade sessions of the annual convention of the Saskatchewan R. M. A. for the purpose of discussing their own problems. G. W. Stockton was appointed chairman of the Grocery Section. The meeting of the Grocers' Section opened with a consideration of a report of the work of the Dominion grocers' trade section committee represented by F. E. Raymond, secretary of the association. Although E. M. Trowern, Dominion secretary, has not called a meeting of the committee, the work is going ahead. Reference was here made to the conference to be held between wholesale grocers and retailers at the convention of the former in Niagara Falls. A number of matters of mutual interest, particularly the question of selling direct by the wholesalers to restaurants, hotels and boarding houses are to be discussed.

Unfair to Sell to Consumers

At the conference between Saskatchewan wholesalers and retailers in Regina, in April, 1921, certain policies were laid down, although it was pointed out, so far no agreements had been entered into. At this conference it was agreed that it was unfair to sell to consumers direct as well as to boarding houses, restaurants and hotels.

The grocers present endorsed these sentiments and several other phases of business relations between the two were discussed, one being the question of wholesalers selling direct to clubs, and municipal institutions. In this connection the problem of coming to an agreement was a very difficult one, as in this

Revision of the Budget

MODIFICATIONS in the Budget as announced this week by the Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, are important as far as the grocery trade is concerned, and an intimate knowledge of the same by the merchant is advisable. The retailer who is handling cigars, cigarettes, soft drinks and certain lines of confectionery, will view with approval the reductions that have been made in the excise taxes on these commodities, for after all, it is the merchant who in the final analysis has to collect these taxes from the consumer. He must advance his prices to meet this increased taxation, and undoubtedly had the former taxes ruled sales would have been affected. The fact that the burden has been made some easier, should not, as it was feared in some quarters it would, retard business.

The new feature in the revised Budget is the tax that has been placed on receipts tendered in payment of debts, etc. A stamp tax of two cents is to be placed on receipts for ten dollars and upward. This regulation does not come into force until January first of next year. Merchants who give receipts on payment of accounts will be faced with another expense, and like the stamp tax on cheques, the retailer must see to it that the cost of adhering to such a regulation must be figured in his overhead. The stamp tax on cheques is also subject to certain changes.

Other revisions in the Budget of May 23 apply to sugar made from beets, the former tax of 49 cents per hundred being reduced to 24 cents, and the clause relating to goods imported from countries of depreciated currency is completely altered in its original effect.

Will Enforce Jam Standards

JAM STANDARDS are to be more strictly enforced from now on than in the past. A number of jam manufacturers have been taking the matter up with the Government with a view to having the regulations enforced strongly and particularly to have a more definite understanding in regard to the regulations permitting the 10 per cent. apple juice.

Retailers who are particular about the quality of jam they sell will welcome this move. So many jams have been selling on a price basis that it has been difficult for merchants who have stuck to the high quality lines securing the business. As a matter of fact the sale of the poor quality jam has been having a detrimental effect on all jam sales and the sooner this condition of affairs is remedied the better for all concerned.

Improved Outlook in West

THE MEMBERS of the Retail Merchants' Association of the Province of Saskatchewan have just closed their annual convention, where many matters of vital interest to retailers generally and grocers in particular, were discussed. The president in his address referred to the difficulties of the retailers in the past year in this province, but expressed the opinion that while these were not yet entirely eradicated, the turn had been made towards better things. With the prospects very favorable for good crops in the West, the merchants were filled with optimism and were preparing for improved conditions.

While collections, it was pointed out, have been bad with a number of merchants, the president referred to the fact that more retailers in Saskatchewan to-day were doing a strictly cash business than ever before. He believed that many more might emulate their example.

While conditions in the West in the past year have greatly increased credits, and meeting payments as a result has been well nigh impossible, with a return to more prosperous days in the coming months, merchants generally and especially in the West will be well advised to maintain a close watch on collections, and endeavor to do business as much as possible for cash, or on such short terms of credit as to be practically as good as cash.

Stimulating Summer Trade

"THE ONLY man to suffer from a summer slump this year will be the man who thinks people spend all summer in a hammock."

The foregoing truth will be worth bearing in mind by all business men during the next few months. If this is done the wheels of industry will not slow down during the mid-summer months but keep business active and prepare the ground for better business in the latter part of the year.

A great deal of preaching has been done by business experts that the return of active business on a profitable basis can be assisted a great deal by aggressive merchandising action on the part of retailers. No doubt every retailer has been putting forth greater effort for business in the last year than for some months prior to that time, but in many cases there must be a lack of appreciation of the amount of energy which is required to stimulate business.

The result of this situation was clearly demonstrated recently when investigations among the trade revealed the fact that of the merchants called upon about thirty per cent. reported the turnover of merchandise for the past six weeks to be in advance of that of the best year in the past. In certain other cases where only the value of turnover was known it was reported that this was within fifteen or twenty per cent. of the value of turnover for the best equivalent period in the past. With the decline in prices it is therefore evident that the actual turnover of merchandise was probably as great as the best equivalent period.

In other cases merchants complained of poor business, of unemployment, of high prices, etc., and reported business to be in a very bad state. A closer investigation revealed the fact that the former merchants were turning such factors to good use and utilizing every possible selling help. This comparison was sufficiently extensive to prove that despite average local conditions business could be greatly stimulated providing the right methods were used. To avoid that "summer slump," thought should be given now to methods of stimulation.

The picnic season is now here, and it is the grocer's opportunity to make the most of his opportunities to push the sale of those lines that are particularly fancied for outings of this kind.

CURRENT NEWS OF THE WEEK

Canadian Grocer Will Appreciate Items of News From Readers for This Page

Quebec

Henri Jonas, president of the Henri Jonas Co., Ltd., St. Paul St., Montreal, returned this week from Paris and a visit to England.

A. Martin & Co., successors to Wm. Davies, retail provision stores are closing all their stores at one o'clock on Monday afternoons during the summer months.

J. F. Harries and H. H. Cromwell both of the Montreal staff of the Canada Starch Co. have opened a grocery brokerage business at 11 St. Sacrement St., Montreal, under the name of Harries & Cromwell.

Angus McIntosh, 11 St. Sacrement St., Montreal, has recently obtained the agency for Quebec and the Maritime Provinces for Gordon McDonald Co., of London, Eng., makers of Dirk brand soups. He is also the Quebec agent for Luden's cough drops of Reading, Pa., Wagstaffe's, Ltd., of Hamilton, Holbrook's, Ltd., Birmingham, Eng., and Sapon Soap of Canada.

The Piggly-Wiggly self-serve grocery stores officially opened their first two Montreal stores on Saturday, June 10. Each customer on leaving the store was given a carnation as a souvenir of the event. The novelty of the system appealed to the people and the stores were well filled all day. The Bishop St. store is large and bright and the arrangement of the goods is particularly attractive.

Ontario

The retail merchants of Midland are closing their stores every Wednesday afternoon during the months of June, July and August.

At a meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Stratford held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms recently, the following officers were elected: President, A. Knechtel; First Vice-President, A. W. Fisher; Secretary, A. L. White; Treasurer, W. J. McNully (grocer). An Executive Board was also formed, consisting of representatives of various lines of trade. Members of the board are: Drugs, E. A. Robertson; butchers, Gordon U. Belacker; hardware, A. W. Fisher; electric, W. Bennington; plumbers, H. J. Peters; boots and shoes, A. Knechtel; jewelers, N. F. Bab; confectionery, H. G. Ranuin; furniture, W. White; groceries, W. J. McNully; music, A. J. Flannigan; dry goods, D. C. Wilcox; books, J. H. Kenner.

Takes Over Old Established Grocery House in Hamilton

Hamilton, June 13. (Special).—The old established wholesale grocery business of James Turner & Co., in this city has been taken over by S. W. Somerville, owner and manager of the wholesale grocery business of Bristol & Somerville. These firms have been competitors for upwards of 60 years. The Turner firm was first established in 1844 by James and John Turner.

On the death of John Turner, Alexander Turner became a partner of James Turner, who later was appointed to the senate and who died about 40 years ago. At his death Alex. Turner became the head of the concern, and with him in the company were A. G. Osborne and Lloyd Mewburn. In 1903 the firm was merged with the Canada Grocers, Limited, but in 1905 it withdrew and resumed its individuality again. On the death of Alex. Turner, his son, Campbell Turner, became the president, and Samuel Vila and John A. Turner were taken into the company. Since the death of Campbell Turner, Mr. Osborne has been president and financial director, and Mr. Vila has been vice-president and general manager of the company.

The firm which the purchaser of the Turner company now controls is also one with a long record. It was established 62 years ago—in 1862—by J. J. Foster. Subsequently it was acquired by Lucas & Park, and later R. T. Steele and George E. Bristol became partners. It operated for many years under the name of Lucas, Steele & Bristol. In 1917 it became known as George E. Bristol & Co., and the following year the firm name became Bristol, Somerville & Co. Since that time Mr. Somerville has been the proprietor and active manager.

At a meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Kingston, W. Y. Mills was re-elected president unanimously The other officers elected are:—First vice-president, H. Moore; second vice-president, Bert Abernethy; third vice-president, E. Walsh; secretary, Gordon Smith; treasurer, Frank Kinnear. W. Y. Mills presided and introduced J. C. Campbell, Eastern Ontario secretary, Ottawa, who discussed the work of the Dominion Board and dealt with a number of matters of vital importance to the retailers.

On Monday night Sutton Osborne's grocery store in Newmarket was broken into by forcing the front door. A quantity of tobacco was stolen from this store, and it is reported that on the same night Cellar's store at Jackson's Point was entered and $1 stolen, also tobacco and cigars.

It is suspected that the thieves were travelling through the country in an automobile. Constable T. B. Kirk of Newmarket and Constable Chadwick of Sutton are working on the thefts.

A band of gipsies travelling in four automobiles stopped at Hales' store, McKay's Corners, Harwich township, not far from Chatham, the other evening about dusk. Some of the women entered the store and asked Mrs. Hales, who was alone in the store, to look at some goods. Suddenly one of the gipsies asked where the money was kept, and one woman then entered behind the counter while the others started helping themselves to articles in the store. Screams of Mrs. Hales frightened the visitors and before neighbors arrived the gipsies had disappeared.

Favor Civic By-law Closing Stores at Wednesday Noon

Ottawa, June 12 (Special).—A resolution favoring the adoption of a civic by-law calling for the closing of grocery stores on Wednesday afternoons during the summer months, was carried at a meeting of the grocers' section of the Ottawa branch of the Retail Merchants' Association. It was reported to the meeting that a number of merchants were closing Wednesday afternoons, and that the butchers were circulating petitions asking for the adoption of such a by-law in their trade. The meeting accordingly instructed Major R. W. Porteous to proceed with the circulating of such petitions on behalf of the grocers.

A. S. Moreland reported that the Ottawa Pure Food Show, held under the auspices of the grocers at the Central Canada Exhibition was showing progress. One Toronto broker had subscribed for nine stalls, and most of the others were taken.

Alex Phillips, member of the Dominion Advisory Board of the Retail Merchants' Association, was elected a delegate to the Wholesale Grocers' Association convention to be held at Niagara Falls.

SASK. GROCERS DISCUSS QUESTION OF WHOLESALERS

province wholesalers were barred from selling direct to such institutions, and purchases then would likely be made direct from wholesalers in the other provinces. An instance was cited of a hospital in Saskatchewan purchasing direct from a Winnipeg wholesaler.

At this conference at Regina, a suggestion was made, that the retailers furnish the wholesalers with a list of contractors who would be entitled to buy their supplies wholesale, though it was pointed out this would be a difficult matter to regulate, necessitating frequent revision of the lists. It was stated that a number of small contractors at Moose Jaw were securing their supplies at wholesale, although they are not entitled to it.

Up To Municipalities

The question of asking the Provincial Government for legislation requiring restaurants selling groceries to conform with the local early closing by-laws or else be forced to abandon the sale of groceries was debated for some time. F. E. Raymond pointed out that the Provincial Government adopted the attitude that the municipalities were empowered to adopt such by-laws and that it was entirely up to the local authorities.

T. G. Crosby of Broderick, said that the merchants in his district were of the opinion that restaurants and retail businesses should not be operated together, and he moved that a committee be appointed to interview wholesalers of this province to ascertain what they would be prepared to do in the way of refusing to sell to restaurants, hotels and boarding houses in the country towns.

H. G. Smith of the wholesale grocery firm of H. G. Smith Ltd., Regina, was prepared to give his word he would not sell direct to the Chinese or to any restaurant, hotel or boarding house. Another retailer suggested that wholesalers were trying to evade this question, and the yellow peril is creeping in and taking business away from the white man.

A resolution to appoint a committee to confer with the wholesalers was carried and T. G. Crosby of Broderick, W. B. Scott, Langham and G. W. Eisnor of Woodrow were appointed.

Approve of Changes

The Hawkers and Peddlers' Act came up for discussion. Mr. Raymond explained the effect of recent amendments to the act and they appeared to meet with the approval of the convention. It was pointed out that while the new legislation made it prohibitive for merchants in a village to solicit orders out in the country tributary to his place of business, without a license, a number of country merchants were now taking out a provincial license and soliciting business in the country within a radius of 15 or 20 miles of the town or village and were fighting the travelling salesmen with their own weapons.

During the year six executive meetings and two interviews with the Government were held. We were also represented by our president and two other members of the Executive at a joint conference called by the Government on November 11, to consider general conditions. With but one exception all members of the Executive were present at, and took an active part in the proceedings of our Dominion Convention held in Winnipeg last August.

At our first interview with the Government which took place on October 11 and which in addition to the Executive, was attended by representatives of the Music Dealers, Grocers and Butchers Trade Sections, the following legislation was proposed.

1. An amendment to the Hawkers and Peddlers Act, exempting piano and organ salesmen from the necessity of taking out a Provincial license, also to provide for more stringent regulations governing the sale of meat by farmers and others not regularly established in the business.

2. An amendment to the Attachment of Debts Act reducing the amount of the exemption from $75 to $50, also to provide that no exemption will be allowed in the case of accounts incurred for food and clothing in addition to board and lodging.

3. An amendment to the Egg Marketing Act to provide for compulsory marking on the part of the producer.

4. That in the case of the Government appointing a Municipal Tax Commission, retail merchants be allowed representation on the same.

5. An amendment to the Small Debts Act to provide for a Judgment Summons.

6. An amendment to the different Municipal Acts affected giving the right to assess as stock in trade such commodities as flour and feed, handled through grain elevators and sold in a retail way.

Our suggestion that the marking of eggs by the producer be made compulsory was also looked upon with greater favor than on former occasions, and while the Egg Marketing Act itself does not require this, regulations have been passed which provide that upon request, the producer shall be furnished with a stamp for that purpose. A meeting of retail merchants interested together with representatives from the department of Agriculture, the wholesalers and the transportation companies to discuss this whole matter has been arranged for during the course of this convention.

We were given no encouragement in connection with our request for a Judgment summons under the Small Debts Act and in spite of repeated efforts have not been successful in this respect. No particular objection was taken to our request that provision be made for assessing flour, feed, etc., sold in a retail way from grain elevators and we were promised that the matter would be given full consideration. Evidently, however, the Government could not see its way clear to grant this request as no amendment to the Act was passed.

S. F. Fawcett, treasurer of the Saskatchewan association presented a financial statement of a very healthy character showing a surplus on May 31, 1922 of $5,095.29.

Retailer is Quick to Lend Co-operation

Vancouver, B. C., June 12 (Special).—It is astonishing to note the number of retail windows that have been obtained to advertise a coming motion picture. Almost every third retail window along the main streets in Vancouver contains one of these cards pushed right up close to the glass.

Why have merchants that refuse to put in the ordinary advertising card, made space for this one? The reason is not far to seek. The genius who drafted the window card sensed the fact that there must be something in it for the dealer too—and there is.

The card features a certain precocious juvenile screen artist who will appear in "School Days." He's a red headed, freckled kid, and he is holding a large school slate. Below the slate is scrawled an invitation to "come and see me in School Days," but the slate is left for the dealer's own message and in every case the dealer has his own message written on the slate with chalk.

This looks as if the retailer is quick to co-operate with the advertiser who does not "want it all himself."

The cards most frequently seen in use in British Columbia grocery stores are the ones in which a generous portion of the card is left for the dealer's own message.

Death of Chief Magistrate of the City of Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Man., June 13.—Edward Parnell, Mayor of Winnipeg for the past eighteen months, died in Victoria, B.C., on Friday morning last after a long illness.

Edward Parnell spent the early years of his young manhood in London, where his father still resides. In that city Mr. Parnell established a large bakery business and made a reputation for business ability. He took a keen interest also in civic affairs and in one election was defeated for the mayoralty by Sir Adam Beck.

Mr. Parnell came to Winnipeg in 1909, and established the Spiers-Parnell Baking Company, Limited. He was a successful mayoralty candidate in the 1921 election, and was returned by acclamation for the present year. A couple of months ago failing health sent him to British Columbia in the hope of recovery, and reports from Victoria during the past few days had indicated that his condition was serious.

Travelers in the Prairie Provinces Elect Officers

Yorkton.—The 12th annual session of the United Commercial Travellers of the three prairie provinces has just been concluded.

Next year the grand council will meet at Saskatoon on the first and second of June. It was discovered at the session which just concluded that the finances of the jurisdiction were never in better shape than during the past year and although conditions have been very trying, the membership is quite as large as it was a year ago.

Thos. Fox, of Saskatoon, was elected grand counsellor and Bro. Osborne of Saskatoon, and Bro. Clark of Winnipeg, were made grand past counsellors and presented with a jewel by Fred J. C. Cox, past supreme counsellor of the U. C. T. of America, who also installed the officers for the coming year, who are as follows: T. Fox, grand counsellor; W. H. Lewis, grand junior counsellor; H. A. Knight, grand past counsellor; W. H. McCracken, grand treasurer; J. C. Dunlop, grand conductor; J. W. Lightbody, grand page; S. G. Caldwell, grand sentinel. Grand executive committee, J. E. McRobie, W. C. Swanson, R. Schuman and J. King. Representatives to supreme council, T. D. Osborne, W. E. Clarke, H. F. Moulden, H. A. Knight, G. H. Neill; alternates, F. Agnew, T. Fox and A. Colquhoun.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE outstanding feature in the market for general grocery commodities is the increasing strength in sugar. Refiners have advanced quotations 60c, making the Montreal basis $6.50.

Production of sugar in Cuba, up to date, has been heavy, causing the estimate of 3,500,000 tons to be increased to 3,750,000 tons. Exports from Cuba were also heavy which for the period from January 1 to June 3 amounted to over 3,000,000 tons of both old and new crop sugars, leaving an estimated balance available for the next six months of 1,500,000 tons.

The tone of the raw market continues very strong with buyers interested at 3c c. & f. New York, which figures to 4.61 duty paid. Sellers, however, appear indifferent, apparently anticipating an advance. Sales of 11,000 tons San Domingos is reported at 3c c. & f. to Halifax, N.S. Also 5,000 tons Cubas at 2.96c f.o.b. Cuba which is equal to approximately 3.11c c. & f. New York in bond. The European market holds very firm following a heavy advance.

The Cuban sugar campaign is closing very fast: 32 factories are now at work as against 53 during the same period last year and 37 in 1920.

Trading in spot teas has shown greater activity during the past week. The strength in the market is becoming more apparent and many buyers are now anxious to cover their requirements for the next three or four months.

Cereals are generally steady but more strength is noted on rolled oats with higher quotations. Dried fruits show little change but some interest is noted in the 1922 pack of prunes since the Oregon growers announced opening prices.

The new pack of lobsters is showing evidence of being a small one. Packers have cut deliveries 50 per cent and attribute this situation to the short catch and export demand. Canned vegetables continue firm under a good movement.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, June 15.—The feature of the grocery market is the advance in refined sugar to $6.50 per hundred lbs. with strength in the raw market backing it up. Cubas c. & f. New York are quoted at 3c this week. Molasses is also up 2c per gallon. Corn syrups are unchanged. Canned tomatoes 2½s, are advanced 10c per doz. with short supplies to carry over until the new pack. All attention is directed towards the new prices in this market and dealers are showing anxiety to unload some canned fruits. Another new price on compound jams, however, shows an advance over last year's prices. There are some more advances in package teas. It is definitely established that the first of the new crop Japan teas will be on this market in July at a reduction of about 20 per cent. on last year's prices. Lemons are advancing in price and the demand is heavy. More fresh fruits are quoted on the market with a good demand. Grape fruit is high in price. Local vegetables on the market show a big reduction in many lines. Cotton twines are higher in price. Rolled oats are advanced. Dried apples are scarce and higher in price. There are also higher prices on some sizes of prunes.

CANNED TOMATOES HIGHER

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS—The feature of the canned goods market is an advance of 5c per doz. on standard canned tomatoes which are now quoted at $1.70 per doz. The market in this line shows strength and available supplies are limited. Some brands of gallon apples show an advance and are quoted at $5.00 per crate of ½ doz. Raymonds compound jams, with apple, are advanced in price. All varieties packed in 12 oz. glass are advanced 10c to $1.80 per doz. Cases of 12 4-lb. tins are advanced to $6.25 per case and pails are advanced 1c per lb. to 11c. In other lines there is little change. Buying is limited to small lots for immediate requirements and the trade is looking forward to the new season's prices.

ROLLED OATS ADVANCE

Montreal.

CEREALS—The fature of the cereal market is an advance in the price of rolled oats. Prices have been cut in this market recently and this is now almost entirely done away with, with a general price of $3.35 per 90 lb. bag. Jute bags of 12¼ lbs. are advanced 5c to 55c. Other lines are steady with a limited movement on account of the summer season.

COFFEE PRICES STEADY

Montreal

COFFEE—The coffee market is simply marking time until the new crop is available. There is no indication as yet of the new level of prices. In the meantime there is a fair movement of stocks to cover immediate requirements and prices are steady.

DRIED APPLES SCARCE

Montreal

DRIED FRUITS—The feature of the dried fruit market is the advance in evaporated apples, as predicted in Canadian Grocer of the last two weeks. On 50-lb boxes the price is now 25c per lb. and in less quantities 26c per lb. The supplies are so limited, however, that many wholesalers have none to offer. Santa Clara California prunes 90 to 100 show an advance of ½c and are quoted at 12½c on this market, as a result of strength in New York and at the Coast. Reports state that supplies at the Coast are entirely cleaned up and that all available stocks are held in second hand.

MORE PACKAGE TEAS UP

Montreal.

PACKAGE GOODS—About the only changes of note in package goods come in teas. More package teas are up following recent advances in some brands. Primus brand teas are advanced ten cents a pound to 54c and Minto teas are advanced 4c to 59c a pound wholesale. Sal Hepatica is advanced slightly to cover increased sales tax. The price for the small size is now $3.65 and the medium size $9.30 a doz.

NEW JAPAN TEAS SOON

Montreal.

TEAS—There is little change in the tea market which maintains in every detail the strength it has been gathering. Primus Brand teas have been advanced 10c per lb. to 54c wholesale. The retail price will be 65c per lb. Some early Japan teas are expected in Montreal by the first of July. As stated before, the price is to be about 20 per cent. lower than last year's prices. The crop is about two weeks later than last year, according to recent reports, on account of cold weather but the quality and the quantity is good.

PIMENTOS ADVANCED

Montreal

SPICES—The New York market for spices reports a quiet state with interest lagging except in seeds. The exchange market in Sterling is steady at the recent advance and this has a direct influence on import values. This steadiness in exchange has slightly stiffened futures for pepper, but as far as local markets are concerned there is no change. Local wholesalers are, however, quoting a slight advance in little Pimentos, making the price 52c a lb. in 100 lb. lots and 60c per lb. in less quantities. This advance is backed up by reports of strength from the Carribbean. There is more activity in the wholesale market in prospect of an improved demand during the pickling season of August and September.

SUGAR PRICES UP

Montreal

SUGAR—Those who put aside the stocks of granulated sugar in the prospect of an advance have not been disappointed. All refined sugars are now quoted at $6.50 per 100 lbs., an advance of 50 cents per 100 over last week's prices. The market is firm at this level. The raw sugar market in New York, while showing a temporary weakness, is much stronger than a week ago with an advance to a price of 3 cents per lb. c & f. New York for Cuba's July shipments. The American market for refined sugar also shows an advance quoting $5.80 and $6.00 per 100 lbs. There is also some demand locally for light crystal raw sugar which is also advanced ½c a lb. to 5½c. This demand is limited but is sufficient to warrant local wholesalers carrying a supply.

MOLASSES ADVANCED

Montreal

SYRUPS—Some of the local wholesalers have advanced their quotations on Barbados molasses by two cents a gallon. This follows the general strength of the market which comes with the higher values on raw sugars. One branch of the cane sugar industry naturally follows the other. This makes the price for the island of Montreal 60 and 61 cents per gallon in puncheons. There is no change in corn syrups which have a fair movement at steady prices.

VEGETABLE PRICES DOWN

Montreal.

VEGETABLES—Local vegetables on the market have brought many reductions and many more are expected next week since local garden truck is rapidly maturing. Local beets, lettuce, spinach, turnips and carrots are quoted at a price much lower than the imported vegetables. Radishes are also lower. Egyptian onions are also lower in price. American washed celery is on the market quoted at $2.75 per doz.

STRAWBERRIES AND LEMONS HIGHER

Montreal

FRUIT—Fruit dealers are predicting an advance in lemons again this year. The price shows an advance of 50c a case this week. The demand for lemons is heavy in prospect of the advance and many dealers are laying aside some of the new crop. Oranges show a little easier trend on account of the falling off in the demand. California cherries and Georgia peaches are lower in price but local strawberries are higher, quoted at 30c per quart basket.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, June 14.—The feature of the market is the strengthening character of the sugar market under influence of a heavy export demand. Refiners announce an increase of 60c per cwt., making the Toronto basis $6.84. Canned vegetables continue firm while lobsters are scarce. Teas show greater activity with certain blends quoted at a higher price. Red Rose tea crimson label is advanced five cents per pound. Rolled oats are strong with quotations higher. There is little change in the spot situation on dried fruits other than an increase in the quotation on citron peel. New crop Brazil nuts have arrived on this market. Shelled walnuts and almonds are unchanged. Peanuts are strong and higher. Rice and spices are steady. Prospects for a good fruit crop look promising, with the exception of raspberries which are reported light. New potatoes are slightly higher but old potatoes show no change.

ROLLED OATS HOLD STRONG

Toronto

CEREALS.—Outside of the continuing strong position in rolled oats, cereals show practically no change. For sometime past rolled oats have been showing considerable strength, and although quotations have been steadily advancing a few cents at a time, manufacturers still claim that rolled oats cannot be milled for the price at which they are quoted to the retail trade. Some wholesalers have advanced rolled oats to $3.35 per 90-lb. bag. There are others offering at $3.25, but state that the latter figure will have to be advanced.

LOBSTER DELIVERIES CUT

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS.—Enquiries for tomatoes for second hand sale were again in evidence during the past week. Holders, however, are fairly firm in their ideas and it is generally considered that stocks will be cleaned up. Demand for canned fruits for local consumption is rather quiet but there appears to be good demand for shipment to summer resorts and camping outfits. There is every reason to believe that the volume of new pack canned lobsters available this season will be rather limited. Canners have cut deliveries 50 per cent. The reason for this is on account of the short pack and the big export demand, chiefly from France and the U. S. Brunswick sardines are reduced to $4.75 per case. Campbell's pork and beans are advanced to $1.70 per doz. Delmonte No. 10 yellow peaches are quoted at $14 per doz.

PRUNE PRICES NAMED

Toronto

DRIED FRUITS.—Some interest is manifest in prunes. The Oregon growers have announced opening prices which, on the average, are about 1½c per lb. lower than last year. It is said that some bookings have been made for the new crop but future buying is not large as many believe that the opening prices will not hold. Although prices for the new 1922 crop of California prunes have been named by some of the independent packers, the association have not yet named their prices but are expected to do so by the end of the month. Citron peel is advanced to 49c per lb.

TEA STOCKS REDUCED

Toronto

TEA.—The advance in package teas has had a stimulating effect and trading in general has been particularly active during the past week. Another factor is that the consumption of tea usually increases during the summer months and as markets abroad continue strong, many in the trade are becoming anxious to cover their requirements for the next three or four months. The stocks held in all parts of the world other than England are very light and practically the whole of the reserve stock is carried there, which is smaller than other years. The stock in bond in England at the end of April amounted to 215,000,000 pounds, in comparison with 233,000,000 pounds for the same period in 1921. Consumption in England since the reduction in the British tariff is showing signs of increasing, so that a rapid decline in stocks there can be expected, with the result that little stock will be on hand when the new crop arrives this fall. Some local wholesalers and importers have advanced quotations one to two cents. Quotations on Red Rose tea crimson label are advanced 5c per lb. One pound packages are now 49c and halves, 50c per lb.

NEW BRAZILS ARRIVE

Toronto

NUTS.—Shipments of new crop Brazils in the shell have arrived. These nuts, however, have not yet been cleared from the customs so that a defintie price is not quoted. The nuts are of good quality but a little smaller than last year and it is likely the price will be at least as low as a year ago. In shelled walnuts and almonds the market is quiet with no change in quotations to record. Shelled peanuts are stronger with quotations advanced to 11½c per lb.

SUGAR ADVANCES 60 CENTS

Toronto.

SUGAR.—Standard granulated sugar is advanced to the basis of $6.50 Montreal which figures $6.84 jobbers' price, Toronto. This is an increase of 50c to 60c over the quotations of a week ago, bringing all refiners to the same price level. Wholesalers generally are quoting list prices but there appears to be some price cutting among the retail trade for which there is no justification under the prevailing circumstances. The situation continues strong and with the heaviest consumer demand at hand there is a tendency for this to continue for some time.

NEW POTATOES HIGHER

Toronto

VEGETABLES.—New potatoes are slightly higher; Virginias No. 1 are quoted at $8.50 and No. 2 at $6 per barrel. Mississippi tomatoes are quoted lower at $2 to $2.25 per four basket crate. Beans are higher at $2.75 to $4.50 per large hamper while cucumbers are bringing $3.50 per hamper. There is little change in old potatoes; prices remain at 90c to $1 on track car lots, and $1.15 to $1.30 per bag to the retail trade.

LOCAL BERRIES ARRIVING

Toronto

FRUITS.—There is a good prospect generally for domestic fruit crops. Strawberries are reported fairly heavy while raspberries are reported light. Local strawberries are commencing to arrive quite freely and American berries have ceased for the season. Fruit dealers are now located at their summer quarters at the foot of Yonge St. Oranges and lemons continue in a strong position under advanced quotations. California cherries are quoted at a lower price of $4 to $5 per crate.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, June 14.—Business is rapidly improving and with prospects of a splendid crop in view merchants are optimistic about this year's business. The coffee market is firm and the demand for Santos is showing an improvement. Canned vegetables, fruits and fish continue to show a good movement at firm prices. There are indications that these lines will be practically cleaned up before the new pack arrives. Prunes on the primary market are showing a firmer tone and this has stimulated sales on the local market. Rolled oats have advanced with other bulk package cereals showing little change. Small shipments of new strawberry jam are on the market at approximately the same price as last year. The feature of the grocery market has been the advance in sugar and with New York raw and refined market showing a firmer tone further advance are expected. California big cherries are in good demand. The first shipment of Hood river strawberries have arrived and quoted at $7. Further shipments will probably be lower.

CANNED GOODS IN DEMAND

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—There is a good demand for all lines of canned goods. Fancy peas and fancy corn stocks are practically cleaned up and this also applies to some lines of canned fruit. Further supplies of these goods will not be available until the new pack arrives. Salmon continues normal. The higher prices on sockeye have curtailed the sale of this line. Pinks are in good demand as consumers are realizing the food value of this line as compared in price with other grades. Other lines of canned fish are meeting with seasonable sales.

STRONGER TONE TO PRUNES

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS.—There is little change in the dried fruit situation. Prunes continue to move freely at firmer prices. Peaches and raisins are also in good demand. Indications point to the fact that practically all lines of dried fruits will be cleaned up before the new pack arrives.

Retailers Object to Egg Marketing Act

Grocers Attending Annual Convention of the Saskatchewan R.M.A. Voice Strong Opposition to the Egg Marketing Act in That Province—Claim They Have to Assume the Responsibility for Bad Eggs

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

REGINA, June 9.—The effect of the egg marketing act on the retailer was subject to considerable discussion at the annual convention of the Saskatchewan R. M. A. here this week. The voice of the meeting was unanimous that the retailer had to assume responsibility for bad eggs. Practically all retailers stated that they handle eggs but are dissatisfied with the working of the act. Dissatisfaction was expressed at the methods of handling eggs by wholesalers and produce houses. The suggestion was made that the producers should be required by the act to stamp their eggs with their names and that the government should undertake the control of candling eggs.

W. C. Paynter of Tantallion, said that the act was ignored, and that he had been told frequently by traveling salesmen that only two merchants in a certain district were complying with the act and candling their eggs. This he contended was an unjust situation. He did not think the department was handling the act effectively when they asked the merchant to candle eggs upon receipt from the producer and then require them to be candled again by the wholesaler an additional cost. Mr. Paynter said that five years ago he inaugurated a system whereby he paid producers to stamp their eggs a premium of 2c. per dozen, and during the year and a half he had this system in operation he knew of only one instance of a farmer putting a stamp on a bad egg. The farmer is the man who knows the condition of the eggs he is marketing and he is responsible for their quality.

G. W. Stockton of Carlyle declared that the act was unworkable and that the egg marketing act was making a criminal of every merchant in the province.

If they carried out the provisions of the act they would be put out of business and they are forced to evade the act in some respects and the resulting tendency is to ignore the whole act.

A resolution asking for an amendment to the act shifting the responsibility for the marketing of fresh eggs from the retailers to those of the producers was passed and adopted by the general convention unanimously. The retailers will ask the government to amend the egg marketing act so as to require the producers to stamp their eggs to identify their origin, eliminate the necessity for the retailers handling eggs, and provide for the establishment of government candling stations in the large centres.

Market Commissioner Speaks

J. F. Booth, B. S. A. market commissioner for the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture, in discussing the question of marketing eggs in Saskatchewan before the convention, spoke in part as follows:—

"To-day Saskatchewan is one of the fairly large producing provinces, marketing annually many carloads on the larger markets of the east, west and south and large numbers of these ultimately reach the overseas markets. When our eggs began to arrive on these markets a few years ago, we began to experience difficulty. A demand for improved quality came and a similar demand from the producer under the old system of marketing straight receipts. There was no incentive to any producer to market a strictly fresh first-class quality egg. Good and bad eggs were paid for alike. It was realized therefore that a careful producer was suffering an injustice. These experiences therefore required that steps be taken to improve conditions.

"In order to meet these difficulties the Saskatchewan government in 1920 passed an act known as the Egg Marketing Act. Under this Act every producer of eggs for resale is required to candle them. All egg dealers must be licensed and must keep a record of their purchases together with the number of eggs found unfit for human food. The law provides a penalty for the purchasing of bad eggs. In other words the object is to eliminate the egg unfit for human consumption and to pay the producer for good eggs only.

"We have taken other means of bringing this legislation to the attention of the public. A motion picture has been produced which you have seen tonight. and which has been shown to audiences all over this province during the past year. During the winter months particularly, this film was on the go continuously and has been very favorably commented on, and I have no doubt has done a great deal of good among the audiences where it has been shown. A large number of bulletins and circulars have been distributed which have also given results. A considerable quantity of publicity has been circulated through the press to good effect and all inspections made whether personal or of receipts at central markets have been dealt with by personal letter accompanying the inspector's report, suggestions always being made as to how conditions may be improved. It would naturally be expected that this propaganda would have brought results, and I am very pleased to be able to say that such is the case. We have on file in the office letters from retail merchants and others stating that the number of bad eggs received have been reduced materially during the past two years. It has also been emphasized at various times by the wholesalers and produce dealers that the condition of egg receipts at their places of business has improved wonderfully. It has been said that conditions have become so much better in the past two years that the dealers to-day are able to use girls to candle eggs, where a few years ago the work was so unpleasant as to re-

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, June 14.—The feature of the produce and provision market is the strength displayed in butter and cheese through a more active export market, although in the case of creamery butter a much improved domestic market is evident. In some cases butter has advanced five cents but most wholesale prices only show an advance of two or three cents. Cheese is also strong although no change has occurred in the wholesale prices. The export market for cheese has brightened up with a good movement towards Europe and the United States. The egg market shows a decline through a big production which exceeds the domestic demand and there is little export. The drop amounts to one and two cents a dozen with further weakness evident. Cooked and smoked meats are unchanged. Smoked meats show a weakness due to the falling off in export demand and lower quotations on bacon in England. Cooked meats, however, have a good movement at firm prices. The hog market fluctuated during the past week and in many instances lost the strength it gained last week.

BUTTER PRICES ADVANCE

Montreal.

BUTTER.—A sharp advance came in the butter market towards the close of last week with an advance in some instances amounting to five cents. A good demand for export but more particularly the demand in the local market for June butter for storage is held responsible for the advance. Local wholesale prices have not all advanced to the full strength of the market but these quotations will doubtless be higher through the week.

CHEESE MARKET STRONGER

Montreal.

CHEESE.—There is a much stronger tone to the cheese market as a result of the keener cable demand and also a movement of Canadian cheese to the United States. Country boards show more activity and with keen bidding the prices show an advance of from one to two and a half cents during the week. Wholesale prices show no change but local dealers predict an advance, feeling that the present strength will hold.

Montreal.

EGGS.—Eggs are a little easier and prices are one and two cents lower than a week ago. The production is large and supplies are accumulating. There is little export demand and local receipts are much in excess of the requirements for this market. The situation is therefore weak.

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS.—The hog market showed a gain during the early part of last week but in most cases it was lost before the close of the market. The prices opened this week at $14.75 per 100 lbs. for lightweights, weighed off cars. This is an advance of 25c on the price of a week ago. There is, however, a weak feeling in the market and a slump would not be surprising. Fresh killed dressed hogs are steady in price at 1 c per lb. There is no change in the beef market.

BACON MARKET ADVANCES

Montreal.

SMOKED MEATS.—The trade in smoked meats has been fairly active, there being a steady demand from local and country buyers and as offerings are none too large a firm feeling prevails in the market. Bacon prices have advanced 2c in the last two weeks. The export market for Canadian bacon is not as bright as it has been. Cable advices state that there is no official change in prices in England but the undertone of the market is weak and a decline is expected.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, June 14.—Under influence of active buying, principally for storage purposes, the butter market developed a strong tone with prices advanced. Cheese is in practically the same position reflecting the condition in the butter market. As both butter and cheese of the June make is preferred for storage, the tendency is that these markets will remain with a strong undertone for the balance of the month at least. Eggs are in a weak position with prices dropping. Few eggs are now going into the coolers other than some of the surplus that is not required for present use. Some wastage is also noted and dealers are now grading eggs. Lard and shortening show no change. Cooked meats are active in a strong market. Smoked hams and bacon have also a strong undertone. Live hogs, during the week under review, had a weaker feeling with prices a shade lower. Poultry shows little change while the only change in fish is a slight reduction on fresh caught trout.

STRONG BUTTER MARKET

Toronto.

BUTTER.—The butter market under the influence of a keen demand principally for storage purposes has developed a decidedly strong tone with prices advanced 2c. per lb. over last week's quotations. The best grades of creamery prints are quoted at 35c. to 36c. and undergrades at 33c. to 34c.

CHEESE MARKET STRONGER

Toronto.

CHEESE.—Reflecting the condition of the butter market, cheese has also a stronger tone. June make of cheese is always in demand for storage which is chiefly the reason for the strength developing. Dealers' quotations to the trade are advanced one cent although country boards are three cents per pound higher than a week ago.

EGGS.—Evidence of further weakness in eggs is not wanting this week. Dealers have again sent out a lower price to country shippers and quotations to the retail trade are likewise reduced. Some spoilage is also noticeable and packers are now grading. Selects are quoted at 34c., No. 1, 31c. and selects in cartons, 36c. per doz.

quire men to handle it. This unpleasantness was due entirely to the condition of eggs received. Transportation companies advise us that their claims for breakage have reduced over 50 per cent. because of the candling of eggs and the better packing and stronger type of cases being used generally today.

"The most important evidence of all however, was given at the Dominion Produce Dealers' Convention at Winnipeg last January at which it was unanimously agreed by the eastern buyers that the quality of Saskatchewan eggs during the past two years has improved to such an extent that they now command an equal standing on the market with eggs from any part of the country. This endorsation of the Egg Marketing Act of this province demonstrates I think quite conclusively that the results have been very satisfactory indeed. We realize of course that the Act is not being carried out to a letter of the law in many cases. We also appreciate that it entails considerable work on the part of the retail merchants and others, but notwithstanding these facts the advantages which have accrued to the people of this province during the past two years have demonstrated beyond all question of doubt that this legislation is bringing results."

At the conclusion of Mr. Booth's address, G. W. Stockton of Carlyle asked Mr. Booth how he could reconcile his statements as to the improvement of eggs when the grocery merchants had declared that the candling of eggs had made no difference to retailers' receipts. Mr. Booth replied that this was evidently a charge against the wholesalers and suggested that they be asked to reply. "I do not see," he said, "how I can answer that question. From our records our opinion is that eggs are being candled as corectly as possible and retailers are paying in accordance with the quality of the eggs." He also stated that egg inspectors had been called upon to witness the receipt at the wholesalers of eggs which were kept over all winter in water-glass and lime water. A. Hagar, federal inspector of eggs for the Western Provinces stated that the Provincial Act has been a good thing and cautioned them to be very careful in considering making any changes, and out of 9,654 cases inspected recently only 450 had failed to pass the test. He also stated that in one case of 30 dozen eggs he inspected, they contained 20½ dozens with black rot and remaining 8½ dozens were not fit to fry.

Mr. Booth said that the marking of eggs was not a new thing. It has been tried out in a good many places and in the majority of cases it did not improve the quality of eggs and it was a very difficult matter for wholesalers and produce merchants to keep records of all eggs they receive. He stated that it was impossible to keep an inspector all the time at each of the wholesalers and packers' warehouses in the province but in every day or two inspectors called at these offices and all records were accessible to them, and wherever the inspectors found heavy losses reported they took the matter up with the shippers and in some cases candled them themselves. Several retailers wanted to know if the government was checking up the quantities of eggs received by the wholesalers and the quantities they shipped out to see if the incoming and outgoing figures agreed. There was considerable discussion as to whether the marking of eggs caused a deterioration.

How He Got His Man

A merchant in Montreal wanted a man to manage his store. He advertised in the daily papers and secured many replies. He also used an announcement in the Want Ad. page of CANADIAN GROCER and several replies were received. He chose his man from the latter. In fact, the only men who at all suited his purpose, were those who applied through this paper.

CANADIAN GROCER reaches business men in the trade. There are good men scattered all over Canada who read the CANADIAN GROCER and who are interested in such a proposition.

To get the man you want; to secure a position; a partner, to sell some used equipment; to buy second-hand equipment, use the Want Ad page of CANADIAN GROCER. It gets results.

"FLOWERDALE"

NEW CROP OREGON PRUNES MOVING

Oregon prune growers are better situated than those in California as regards the sale of their coming crop, according to reports. The crop in Oregon is estimated at not over 50,000,000 pounds. France, England, Holland, Germany and Scandanavia have been buying, it is said, and one packer is accredited with having sold 7,000,000 pounds to those countries. It is roughly estimated that about one-third of the crop has already been sold, the balance of the crop going to Canadian, American and other markets. Washington growers say that they have sold as much of their fruit as they care to offer on contract.

Stir Up Your Summer Biscuit Sales

During the summer season the sale of Soda Biscuits usually falls off but our records show that the sale of our Fancy Blue package continues as heavy during this season as through the rest of the year.

This indicates that most consumers like to buy biscuits in the sealed air-tight package and in small quantities during the summer, and proves the extreme popularity of our small package.

From now on is a good time to display this package freely and to push its sales.

By doing this you can greatly increase your summer turnover in our high quality popular Soda Biscuit.

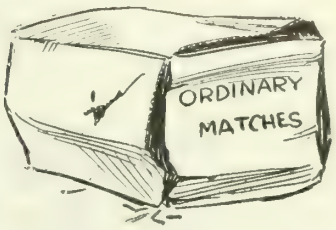
Which is Better for You?

WOODEN or FIBRE CASES



As you know, we have not stopped at giving you different and better Matches. We have seen to it that MAPLE LEAF MATCHES reach you in perfect condition because we pack them in solid tongue-and-grooved, dove-tailed WOODEN CASES that are glued and nailed, instead of shipping them in fibre cases.

Wooden cases are stronger, easier to handle, look better, pile better, and are far less liable to be damaged than fibre cases.

Wooden cases resist rain and dampness; while fibre cases soften and fall apart when subjected to wet.

Wooden cases are harder to puncture and much harder to rob. A knife blade will open a fibre case with a single slash.

Wooden cases stand up under jamming, rough handling and long travelling. Fibre cases are easily jammed—corners easily crushed—and contents broken or damaged.

Wooden cases have a re-sale value—can be easily repaired if broken in transit. Fibre cases are worthless after unpacked; are only in the way, and cannot be repaired without special material.

Now you understand why MAPLE LEAF MATCHES come to you in wooden cases and why the matches reach you in first-class condition.

Why Not Buy GOODWILL Ready-made?

Goodwill is the commercial value of a reputation. It consists of the times an article makes good with the user. So time is a big factor in Goodwill. Some grocers are wasting Time—their most valuable article in stock—in the vain attempt to build prestige for products that will not back them up.

Others are building solid by adding the Five Roses goodwill to their own. Think of the selling value back of a flour which has been consistently making good since 1887!

Look for the products with established reputations. These have time on their side. Harness their combined goodwill to your store. That's real salesmanship.

Tax on Receipts is an Added Expense

Grocers Declare That the Cost of Adhering to New Regulation Must Be Included in the Overhead—Ruling As to Whether It Applies to Sales Over the Counter Has Not Been Made Clear As Yet

A MORE lucid explanation of the working of the receipt tax law, as announced last week by the Hon. W. S. Fielding in his amendments to the Budget, has not been forthcoming, and merchants and business people generally are still very much "at sea" as to its correct application. However, as it does not come into force until the first of January next, plenty of time is provided to become acquainted with it in detail.

Will Involve Much Detail

Officials of the Retail Merchants' Association while declaring that they are very much in the dark as to this new tax, look upon it as an added burden to the merchant, and it will be up to every retailer to see to it that the upkeep of the same is accounted for in his cost of doing business. They describe the tax as impracticable, expressing the opinion that this tax on receipts is going to involve a lot of unnecessary intricate detail for the retail trade. It will involve additional overhead expense for the merchant. While a large number of sales made over the counter are under ten dollars, and consequently exempt, the additional tax on receipts over that amount is viewed as unfair for the reason that the merchant has already paid 4½ per cent. in sales tax, and in the case of imports 6 per cent. "If the proposed new tax on receipts is to be paid by the retailer, and there is nothing to convey the contrary," remarked one merchant, "it will lead to the partial abolition of sales receipts. Dealers will incline to discontinue the issuing of receipts with the exception of special instances."

"Tax regulations that add clerical work and involve uncertain methods of collection," remarked another merchant, "are very unsatisfactory. If revenue is the chief objective, I think this would have been achieved through a more simple ruling on the sales tax with a range of three per cent. to the wholesaler and six per cent. to the retailer, or two and one-half and five per cent., instead of the fractional percentages now prevailing. A receipt tax might have the effect of introducing the custom of asking for receipts where, in a great many instances, no such practice is in vogue at the present time."

An Added Expense

D. W. Clark, grocer on Avenue Road, Toronto, and president of the Ontario Retail Grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association, looked upon the proposed tax on receipts as absurd, and thought it would be rather a nuisance. While its real application in the matter of receipts for sales was still rather vague, he thought that it would mean an extra expense to the average retailer, that would have to be figured in the cost of doing business. "With my customers, business is largely on a credit basis," he said. "Accounts are paid weekly, fortnightly, and some monthly. Invariably they are for amounts over ten dollars, and receipts are always given when payment is made. Somebody will have to pay this tax, and the only way I can see to do it, is to figure it into the cost of doing business."

Always Sends Receipts

Donald McLean, another Toronto grocer who does a very large credit business, looks upon the tax as an added burden. "The sales tax is sufficiently burdensome," he said, "without having anything more put on us. Very frequently the sales tax comes out of the retailer's own pocket, as it is impossible to figure it in the cost of the goods. We have a large number of customers to whom we send out statements every month. Payments are nearly always made by cheque, but we return the statement properly receipted. If a receipt after January first next is not legal, unless it carries a stamp, then such a regulation will be fair, and the likelihood of one person adhering to the law of stamping receipts, and another one openly avoiding it will be offset. Everyone issuing receipts will have to comply wtih it, else the receipt will not be legal. The cost of these stamps to the grocer will have to be figured in the overhead."

It is pointed out that a similar tax that has been in operation in Great Britain for a number of years, does not apply to ordinary cash slips or bills which accompany purchases such as are issued by certain retail stores.

Not Clear in Regard to Counter Sales

According to advices given the Ottawa representatives of Canadian Grocer by officials of the Inland Revenue Department, the application of the tax to counter sales is a question which will likely go unanswered for the time being. Canadian Grocer put this up to a high official of the Department, who replied: "That is a question we cannot answer at present. It will probably be a few days before we can give you a definite answer. There are a number of points to be worked out in connection with this tax, and there is no immediate rush as it does not go into effect until next January."

Precisely the same answer was given to the assistant secretary of the Dominion Board Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, who was asked by a number of the leading retail merchants to get an accurate and definite ruling, if possible.

"How are the stamps to be cancelled?" was Canadian Grocer's next query.

"We don't know yet," was the answer.

"Can you say if the old machines are likely to be called back into play?"

Legislation Governing Jam Making

Manufacturers Operating on a Large Scale Are Subject to Rigid Inspection as to Sanitation and Proper Factory Conditions, But the "Little Fellow," Employing No One But Himself, Escapes Because He Does Not Have to Report

THE difficulty of properly enforcing laws of sanitation and inspection on a manufacturer of jams who is operating only in a small way, that is, the man who is carrying on in the cellar or in the kitchen of his house for instance, is readily understood when the jurisdiction of the respective authorities is explained. The jam manufacturer who is operating on a large scale is subject to all the laws governing jam making, but the "little fellow" can sell his product locally or even outside his own particular province without being subjected to the inspection of his product, or as to the sanitation of his place.

Should be Licensed

In the city of Toronto for example, there is no system whereby the Public Health Department can know the number of small manufacturers of jam that are operating there. Discussing this point with Dr. Richmond of the Public Health Department, Toronto, he pointed out that there should be some system of licensing these places where jams are being made for sale. With such a system, he pointed out, it would be an easy matter to make regular and consistent visits of inspection. At present there must be some of these places of which we know nothing," remarked Dr. Richmond. "Of course our jurisdiction in regard to them is only in the matter of sanitation, but where we see food being made that is unfit for human consumption, we report the matter to the Federal Department of Health. Quality and standardization of jams come under the Dominion government, and we inspect only as to sanitary conditions. We have not made any convictions against jam makers in Toronto for failing to live up to the laws of sanitation and health in their places of manufacture. I would like to see all such persons licensed and then we could have a closer vigilance on their places."

Provincial Regulations

Provincially there is no authority over the quality of the jam made within its borders. This comes under the Food and Drug Act of the Dominion. "We inspect factories under the Factory and Shop Act of the Province of Ontario," J. T. Burke, chief inspector of factories and shops for Ontario, told a representative of Canadian Grocer. "We inspect these factories as to sanitation, proper working conditions for employees, and employment of child labor. Wherever labor is employed, even if it is only one person, and machinery is used on any scale whatever, that factory must report to this department of the Ontario Government, and be subject to the inspection of our inspectors.

"If a man does not employ any one but himself in manufacturing any line, whether it be jam or anything else, he is not compelled to report. Jam factories where labor is employed even only to the extent of one person, are very rigidly inspected by our department during the jam making season. We see to it that these places are as clean as the cleanest kitchen, and we can say as far as this province is concerned, that we have had no convictions against jam factories that come under our inspection. From the standpoint of sanitation and cleanliness jam factories in this province are in good condition."

It is Up to the Retailer

"The retailer can do a great deal to safeguard the public against jams that are of inferior quality, and are made under improper conditions," H. J. Dager, chief food inspector for the Dominion Government told Canadian Grocer. "Merchants should demand that all jams they buy are up to standard," he said. "If they buy from reputable manufacturers, where products are made under the most modern and improved methods, there will be little danger of them getting an article below standard. The retailer too should see to it that all containers are properly labelled. People who are putting up jams, relishes, pickles, etc., in their own homes and selling them to the trade very often overlook this matter of labelling. In doing so they are breaking the law, and the retailer is liable for selling goods of this kind, that do not carry the proper label. According to the Act all sealed packages must be labelled, and providing the contents are not pure or genuine, the words "compound" or "mixture" must be used.

No Convictions in Two Years

"We have not had any convictions against manufacturers of jams for a period of over two years. I have not come across any jam that has not measured up to standard in that period. Our inspectors have the right to go into any store, and take any foodstuff for purposes of analysis, should they feel that the same is under suspicion as to quality, or about which there has been any complaint."

Jam Manufacturers Face New Season With More Confidence

Stocks Are Practically Cleaned Up—Makers Are Contracting for Fruit This Season Which Few Did Last Year

JAM MANUFACTURERS are facing the coming season with a great deal more optimism than they had a year ago. It will be remembered that last year jam manufacturers at the beginning of the packing season were faced with a very large carry-over of high-priced jams and were carrying a heavy financial burden through falling markets. The pack a year ago was therefore very small.

These stocks are now practically cleaned up and manufacturers and wholesalers will have a comparatively small carry-over, with some manufacturers being completely cleaned up of strawberry, raspberry and black currant jams.

The season at hand is being faced with more confidence and the pack will probably be a normal one and one hundred per cent. greater than last year. It is expected also by jam manufacturers that the new regulations which have been under discussion for some time, restricting the use of pectin to four per cent. instead of ten per cent. as formerly, will be effective for the new season's strawberry pack. This will no doubt result in a better quality jam than some which appeared on the market during the past year, and probably will be an influence in strengthening the market.

Are Contracting for Fruit

The majority of jam manufacturers are making contracts for fruit this season, something which few did last year, preferring to buy their small requirements on the open market. At what prices jams will open at, it is not definitely announced but the probable price will be between 85c and 90c for the four pound pail of strawberry and raspberry. In sections of Ontario and Quebec the strawberry and raspberry crops are estimated to be only 60 per cent. of normal while British Columbia is considered to have only a 50 per cent. crop, due principally to the vines and canes suffering from winter kill.

Good Buying & Service Beat "Chains"

This Merchant Does Not Look Upon the Competition of the Cash and Carry Store As Serious if the Independent Grocer Watches His Buying, Gives Service and High Quality Goods

Fourth of Series of Articles on Chain Stores

THE INDEPENDENT grocer who is going after business with real sales effort has little to fear from the competition of the "chains" according to the statement of a merchant in a small Ontario town. He has to compete with a cash and carry store, one of a big chain, farther down the street from his place of business, but as far as he is concerned, he declares that he does not know that it is there. He is the authority for stating that it has not interfered with the success of his business in any way. It has now been established for some months, but his sales have not declined in this period, nor has he met with any serious expression of dissatisfaction on the part of his customers, because of the alleged cheaper goods at the cash and carry store.

Still Want Service

"I give the service of both credit and delivery," he told a representative of Canadian Grocer recently. "I believe there is still a large percentage of people who like to deal at a store that gives this service, and are willing to pay a reasonable figure for the same. We do a big part of our trade on the telephone and the class of customers who form the greater portion of our clientele, give their orders in this way, and want them delivered. The cash and carry idea has no appeal for them. We believe that in establishing a reputation for quality and service, we are building business on a more permanent basis, and in a way that is going to insure continued patronage from our people."

His Advertising Plans

Business does not just come to this store. This grocer realizes like every other merchant who is making a success of his store that it is necessary to go after it. Advertising in the local paper coupled with attractive window and interior displays, as well as selling talks both on the telephone and over the counter, are all a part of this merchant's plans to increase his turnover. He uses regular space in the paper of his town, and believes that he is getting worth while results from it. One feature of this retailer's advertising is the fact that he seeks to impress on his readers the number of his telephone. He endeavors to fix in the mind of his public, his telephone number, so that when they find they want groceries, it is easily recalled, and they give him a ring. In this particular instance the telephone number is an easy one to remember, and the practice is always followed both by the proprietor and the staff, in answering the telephone, to say, "Five speaking."

School supplies are sold in this store, and on every scribbler that is disposed of, the cover carries the message "Buy your groceries at——, phone 5." Advertising of this nature too is worth while, this retailer declares, and he is of the opinion that direct results have been obtained from it.

Displays and Selling Talks

"We use our window for the purpose of displaying goods all the time," he added, "and we believe they sell goods for us. In taking orders too, we try to sell something more than what is merely asked for, suggesting to the customers lines that possibly will go well with the foodstuffs requested, or some specialty that perhaps is receiving some particular selling effort at the time.

"We are ready to use every legitimate idea that recommends itself, by way of boosting sales, and in stimulating sales in this way, we believe we have nothing to fear from the competition of the 'chains.'"

A great deal of attention is paid to the buying in this store. "Too often much of the profit on groceries is lost before they reach the store," he remarked in the course of a conversation. "I follow all market reports very closely. A careful study of markets is essential if a grocer is to succeed, and if the buying end of the game is not watched, losses are bound to accrue."

Another Attitude to "Chains"

In marked contrast to the attitude of this grocer in the same town, and upon whom the representative of Canadian Grocer also called. The latter complained of the competition of his cash and carry neighbor, and his inability to meet his prices. Business was bad, and getting worse. He represented the frame of mind that was ready to quit and to let the chain store have it all its own way. He wasn't making any effort to go after new business, nor to retain what he did have.

This attitude of course is not one to meet with any measure of success and sooner or later must encounter disaster.

TAX ON RECEIPTS IS ADDED EXPENSE

"I don't think that is likely to happen, but there is not much use in your asking any more questions, because nothing whatever has been decided upon in that connection. The announcement has only been made in the House and we have practically six months to work out those problems."

T. E. Simpson (West, Algoma) in the House on Tuesday of this week, wanted to know if cash register receipts or the receipt given by the grocer-boy after he had received money for a delivery of groceries would be included. Mr. Fielding said that the English Act was simply being applied to Canada, and, as it would not come into operation until January 1, 1923, all regulations and arrangements would be completed by that time. Mr. Simpson thought the amount of the exempted receipt should be raised to $25 so that ordinary household purchases would escape.

WHEN NEW TAXES ARE EFFECTIVE

Ottawa, June 21.—The items mentioned in Mr. Fielding's tariff changes and the date upon which the taxes become effective, are as follows: Cables and telegrams, July 1 next; shares and bonds, July 1; cheques and money orders, August 1; receipts, Jan. 1, 1923; automobiles, July 1; beverages, July 1; depreciated currency, May 24, 1922; general tariff, May 24, 1922; confectionery, cigars and cigarettes, July 1.

HOURS TO MINUTES

What are you doing in your firm, to reduce hours to minutes?

This is one of the vital questions that measures your efficiency. Nearly all profits and high wages and low costs depend upon reducing hours to minutes.

For instance, a typewriter with a quick typist writing sixty words a minuate, reduces an hour to twenty minutes.

A steam shovel reduces an hour to three minutes, as it does the work of twenty laborers.

A printing-press reduces an hour to perhaps one-fortieth of a second, as it would take forty men one hour to write one copy of a ten-page newspaper which a press prints in a second.

In these days of high cost it is the time element that makes you or breaks you.

Our one main hope of success is in reducing hours to minutes—in getting more work done in less time.—Efficiency Magazine.

Toronto Grocers' Picnic at Cobourg

Annual Event Held Last Week Proves One of the Greatest Successes Ever Conducted by the Grocers' Organization—Many Contests and Sporting Events Provide Exciting Entertainment—Committees in Charge

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

TORONTO, June 15.—The thirty-fifth annual outing of the retail grocers' section of the R. M. A. was held yesterday and goes down in history as one of the most successful ever held. The picnic was held at Cobourg, a four-hour journey by the steamer Corona up the north shore of Lake Ontario.

From the very beginning, when the Corona cleared its moorings with upwards of one thousand on board there was something doing every minute and many of the old time grocers of the city were noted among the crowd. It was apparent that they had lost none of the vim and vigor which they displayed in previous outings. Among the old timers was ex-Alderman Frank Johnson, a retail grocer of way back in 1889. In renewing old acquaintances, many happy reminiscences were recalled.

Games on Board

Many games were played on board during the trip over, the marble tossing being entered into with much gusto. The three-pound scale offered as the first prize by the Toronto Computing Scale Company, to the retail grocer who pitched the largest number of marbles into a barrel out of a possible five, was carried off, after a second try, by George Frost. In the same game of marble tossing Donald McLean took home the cheese cutter donated by the International Business Machines Company. Guessing contests were numerous and proved to be of much interest. Among these was the guessing as to who was the grocer masquerading as a lady, who upon unmasking turned out to be Harry McDonald. For those who enjoyed dancing, an orchestra was provided and fox trotting was kept up continuously in that section of the boat.

Winners At Cobourg

The steamer arrived at Cobourg about noon and as all had worked up a good appetite, the first thing was to satisfy the inner man. After lunch, athletic events were run off. There were prizes for all, from the smallest tot to the fat man and the older grocers. In the grocers' 100 yard dash, W. Whelpdale is the richer by a case of grape juice with W. J. Nichol taking second place and Harry McDonald third. The fat man's race was perhaps the event of the afternoon. It looked as though Wes. Williams would take home the case of toilet soap but Wes. had apparently feasted too heartily and when the line was crossed, Wes. was found to be slated for fourth place with E. H. Wand first and Harry McDonald, second.

The handicap race for grocers proved to be another feature. Jerry Burns, perhaps on account of his many years in looking after the welfare of similar picnics, or perhaps it might have been because he had a stand-in with the judges, was given a start of six yards. In spite of this advantage, Jerry was no match for John Pearson who easily passed him by several yards and consequently carried off first prize with Jerry second and Harry McDonald a close third.

After the races were over, the final event was participated in. This was a struggle between the travellers and the grocers to see who could the easiest remember their boyhood days, when they played ball on the corner lot. This ball game has always been an annual event, and will no doubt be the chief topic for conversation between the travellers and their customers until the next picnic is pulled off.

The grocers proved too much for the travellers from the very beginning and when the steamer's whistle gave the warning blast, the score stood 17 to 11 in favor of the grocers, and the nine grocers on the team will now be sporting a new hat in commemoration of the event.

Committees in Charge

The committees responsible for the success of the picnic were as follows:

Excursion Committee—David Bell, chairman; Donald Nicholson, secretary; Donald McLean, treasurer; D. W. Clark, W. J. Nichol, E. Bond, J. Oldham, John Davidson, E. Towler R. H. Stewart, D. Radcliffe, H. G. Macdonald, J. Hussey, N. Lyons, J. J. D'Arcy, F. H. Bible, W. R. McCaw, J. H. Crichton, T. Squirrell, C. Moon, John Whelpdale, J. D. Leonard, F. Durie, C. G. Blythe, John Richardson, John Fell, Chas. Harlock.

Games Committee.—D. W. Clark, Donald McLean, W. J. Nichol, H. G. Macdonald, John Oldham, E. Towler, Jerry Burns, J. J. D'Arcy, E. Bond.

Triplicate Sales Slips System Prevents Costly Errors

Many merchants have found that by installing a credit register, their bookkeeping has been greatly simplified and much labor has been saved. Other merchants have adopted the triplicate sales slip system in connection with the credit register and by so doing are lessening the chance for mistakes and costly errors. Ferguson's grocery, Queen St., East, Toronto, is one of the stores which has adopted the triplicate system. The method of using the triplicate slips is very similar to the dupficate with the exception that three copies are made at one writing. After the balance of the previous bill is carried forward and the bill totalled, one copy goes to the customer, another is filed under the customer's name in the register and the third, usually of another color is placed on a file and later in the day checked.

"Before we put in the triplicate system," stated Mr. Ferguson to a representative of Canadian Grocer, "we had many mistakes which did not materialize until the customer paid the bill and sometimes not at all. This meant that we were many dollars out of pocket each year simply because it was almost impossible to go over 250 separate accounts each day and check them up. With the triplicate system, it is very easy to check up each charge order every day. The third slip, which we have in a yellow color, is placed on a separate file. These slips are checked up each day and if any error is found, it is easily corrected. Then again it is so easy to keep a record of the daily sales. The cash register takes care of the cash sales and to get the amount of the credit sales we simply total the yellow slips and compare with the total charge sales registered on the cash register. Another advantage it has, is that it helps in the collection of C. O. D. orders. In sending out a C. O .D. order we insert the yellow slip in the order. The delivery man then knows that he must collect that amount or return the goods to the store. The amount of money we save in a year easily pays the extra cost of the triplicate slips."

"Probation Counter" At Front Entrance Serves To Introduce New Lines

J. A. Hewson, Montreal Grocer, Hits Upon Novel Plan, By Way of Boosting the Sale of Specialty Goods—Are First Placed in Showcase Just Inside the Door

MONTREAL. (Special)—A local grocer has hit upon a splendid plan for determining the situability of different specialty lines for his trade. This grocer told a Canadian Grocer representative that the greatest margin of profit to-day is offered the grocer in specialty lines and therefore it is to his advantage to adopt as many of these lines as he finds adaptable to his trade.

A Probation Counter

J. A. Hewson, proprietor of the Hewson Grocery at 871 St. Catherine Street, West, has in the front of his store what he calls a "Probation Counter." This is a glass front show case which is placed directly in front of the main entrance to the store. In fact it is the first thing that a customer sees upon entering the door. In it are arranged a number of specialty lines, mainly fancy goods, canned fruit and bottle goods. Mr. Hewson emphasizes the fact that an attractive and a neat arrangement of the goods is the main virtue of the display.

Giving a Fair Trial

"If a new line is offered to me," said Mr. Hewson to a Canadian Grocer representative, "and it looks good, I take a small order and then give the goods a fair trial in this display case. If they will not sell with a little talking and a display of them in this case I feel that they will not take at all with my trade. For this reason I call this case my probation counter. Many lines now in stock in the store have gone through this probation counter and have won a place for themselves in the store. The main point in giving the goods a fair trial is to feature the price, and a few words of recommendation on a show card in the case. I have found this scheme a success not only as an attraction but as a means of locating specialty lines which will offer an increased percentage of profit which will balance up the many lines which we have to sell in the store without yielding enough profit to cover the overhead cost on their selling."

Makes Cheques Accurate

Among the newer pieces of equipment to be seen in many grocery stores is a protectograph for writing cheques with safety. This machine is small but, according to several grocers serves an important place in the business of the store. It writes everything on the cheque, except the signature. It makes "raising" the cheque absolutely impossible by not only printing the words and the figures on the cheque in indelible ink but by impressing each letter and figure right into the paper.

J. A. Hewson of 871 St. Catherine St., remarked to Canadian Grocer representative, "It is worth twice the price I paid for it. In the first place it saves time and in the second place it is a great protection." When asked if he had ever had a cheque raised that he had written out by hand he said, "Yes, many of them and not only raised but I myself have made a mistake in writing figures that have cost me money. It is very easy for a man to write the date and then absentmindedly write the date again for the value of the cheque. Yes that kind of thing is often done and one will not notice the mistake until he notices the bank balance out. For instance a man may be writing a cheque for ten dollars on the twentieth of the month and without thinking make the cheque to read for twenty dollars. With this little machine he sees the numerals before him before the amount is printed. Yes, it is a great safeguard for a merchant who has many cheques to write and I guess the average grocer has his share."

Many Now In Use

There are many of these small machines now in use in grocery stores in the city and many grocers have expressed their satisfaction in the guarantee the apparatus affords. P. E. Dery, a grocer on Ontario St., Montreal, expressed the same pleasure over the part this cheque writer plays in his store. "No cheque is too small to be written out on this machine for safety. In fact the smaller the cheque to be written the more protection given by the machine. I count it as a necessary part of my grocery store equipment."

Small Production of Dried Apricots In Coming Season

Reports from California indicate that there will be a small production of dried apricots during the coming season. "Not only is the crop far below normal as a result of severe frosts just as the buds were beginning to appear on the trees, and the destruction caused by brown rot disease and other fruit pests, but canners have been offering exceptionally high prices for canning fruit," says the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association.

"Even at the high prices which the growers are receiving for their apricots, a large part of the crop will be disposed of in this way and only a limited amount will be dried. The situation existing in the dried apricot market this year is just the reverse of that prevailing at this time a year ago. Then canners were practically out of the market and the growers were planning on drying more than half of their crop. Today, the 1921 dried apricot crop production is entirely cleaned up and growers are counting on drying only a sma part of their crop which they cannot sell to the canners.

A Well Equipped Store is Profit Maker

A. Glover, Grocer at Kingston, Ont., Believes That Attention to Proper Equipment, Cleanliness and Sanitation Is Essential to Success of Any Merchant—Believes People Want Quality More Than Anything Else, and Proper Facilities for Giving it Must Be Provided

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

"IT IS impossible to have a clean sanitary store without proper bins, show-cases and equipment." stated A. Glover, Kingston, Ont. "If a merchant takes pride in his store and the goods he handles, aiming to build business on a sure foundation, it is quite necessary to have the surroundings in the best possible sanitary condition. Ninety per cent of the people go after quality. Their apreciation of quality is very Their appreciation of quailty is very is very sensitive, and on that point we attribute a great portion of our business, business which is coming from the same people day after day, year after year. I have found that the majority of people are only too anxious to show their appreciation. If the coffee they serve their guests is particularly pleasing or the chickens deliciously tender, they let their friends know just where they obtained them, and if the store is kept clean and looks attractive, they take keen delight in pointing out that store as 'our grocer'."

A Well Balanced Store

One has only to visit the Glover store to see that the assertion in the above paragraph is not mere theory but is carried out to the minutest detail. The floor is of a tile composition. This tile is brought up around the sides of the store, forming a baseboard, to a height of about eight inches, thus preventing rodents from gaining admittance to the store.

The fixtures are arranged in such a manner that the whole store has a well balanced appearance. This was done, not only to make it appear pleasing to the eye, but also to facilitate the service and incidentally make for attractive displays which unquestionably result in increased sales. The Glover store is situated on a corner. The entrance is on the corner with a display window facing each street, giving plenty of daylight and window display space.

On the right upon entering, is a wall case extending the full length of the store. This wall case is constructed of four rows of glass front bins. The bins work on a pivot arrangement and are so delicately balanced that a slight touch will close them absolutely air tight. They are also so constructed, as to be easily taken out for refilling or for cleaning purposes. The front of the bins, being of glass has a dummy back, thus allowing for display of the contents and giving the impression that the bin is full whether it is or not.

In speaking to a representative of Canadian Grocer, Mr. Glover said there is no possible chance of dust or foreign material getting into the bins, because they are always closed. He pointed out that the bins never get stuck, which so often happens with ordinary drawers. Furthermore, the bin arrangement is so compact that a large variety of goods can be carried in a small space. This tends to speed up the service. On the top of the four rows of bins, instead of the regulation open shelves, sliding glass door cases are arranged, thus making a splendid display of bottled and packaged goods and eliminating all chances of the goods becoming covered with dust. The regular counters are done away with, in the front part of the store, and in their place are four silent salesmen, set at an angle facing the customers as they enter.

Increases Turnover in Biscuits

On the left side of the store instead of a collection of various sizes of boxes piled up containing all manner of merchandise, is a large biscuit cabinet accommodating an assortment of sixty varieties of plain and fancy biscuits.

"We have a good trade in biscuits," remarked Mr. Glover. "There is no doubt the cabinet is largely responsible for it. Customers can see at a glance the various kinds, but the beauty of the cabinet is they cannot see how much the tin contains. It is a funny thing, people seem to have an objection to buy the last biscuits in a tin. They seem to think the last in the tin are stale, no matter if that tin of biscuits had only been opened that day. They simply will not take them and will pass up a tin which contains only a few biscuits. The cabinet does away with this objection and permits us to clean up. Bis-

"If a Store is Equipped to Give Good Service People Will Soon Find It Out."

"SOME writer has said, If a man makes a better mouse trap than his neighbor, no matter if he dwells in a forest, the world will soon make a beaten track to his door.' That to my mind is absolutely true in business. The location of a store does not make any difference. If the store is properly equipped to give good service, and gives that service, handles only quality goods, it will not take long for the people to find it out.

"Before I put in the bin system and had spent some money on making the store sanitary, the store was far from attractive. Loose boxes containing all kinds of articles were piled up everywhere. One day I noticed a peculiar odor emanating from one side of the store. Whew! I thought a rat or something had crawled under a box and died. After considerable searching, we got to the source of the trouble. It was simply some vegetables that had become lodged under some of the boxes. That gave me an idea.

"We cleaned out all those boxes and I installed new fixtures. A tile floor was put in and the place was made as sanitary as it was possible to make it. I then installed different accessories such as credit register, cash register, coffee grinder and meat slicer. These all helped to serve our customers better and although I have been told that I was very foolish to spend so much money on fixing up the store, I have never regretted it. Trade of the better class is being developed in increasing volume. We are little bothered with the price competition of the chain stores. With us and our customers it is quality that counts."—A. Glover, Kingston, Ont.

Note the absence of the regular counters to the right and the arrangement of the showcases which permits displays being made to the best advantage.

cuits require constant attention. It is so easy to allow them to overlap, that is, a line might not be selling very rapidly and unless it is made to sell, it becomes stale. There is no need for this, if attention is paid to them, because a few of that line can always be worked in with a pound of mixed biscuits."

Coffee Tones Trade

In the centre of the store and near the front is installed a large double coffee mill. The reason for this, Mr. Glover points out, is that good coffee will always attract a great number of customers to the store. The flavor of good coffee lingers long in the memory, and will bring people back to the store not only to buy more coffee but often become regular customer for many other articles.

"The idea of placing the mill near the front is to call customers' attention to the fact that the store is grinding coffee fresh every day and also to the fact that there is always something enticing and appetizing about the odor of fresh grinding coffee. A whiff through the street door will often bring a customer in to make a purchase," said Mr. Glover. "Coffee acts as a trade toner. It gives character and distinction to the store, and my experience has shown me that people will go a long way out of their way to buy some real coffee. There are two points to keep in mind in building a coffee trade. The first is to sell the best coffee obtainable and the second is to see that the coffee is properly ground and sent out immediately. I don't care how good the coffee was originally, if it has been ground a long time, it is bound to lose flavor. It pays, and pays well to invest some money in a real good coffee mill. Good coffee and a good mill go hand in hand in building a coffee business. You must have both."

Brings Back Customers

Toward the rear of the Glover store is the counter for serving customers with bacon and cooked meats. On one end of the counter is a large handsome meat slicer. The store sells only smoked bacon, hams and cooked meats, all of which are sliced on the meat slicer, the value of which is summed up in a few words by Mr. Glover as follows:

"No store can expect to get on without a meat slicer. It saves time and when you consider that you can get twenty-five or more slices of bacon to the pound as against twelve or so when sliced by hand, it stands to reason that people will go to the store for their bacon where the largest number of slices are obtained. Not only that, but people like the thin slices better. They have got away from the 'rasher' of thick uneven slice. But, of course, like the coffee, the bacon must have quality."

Paper Baler Keeps Store Tidy

Mr. Glover then conducted the Canadian Grocer representative to the warehouse. Here again system and cleanliness prevail. In one corner of the storeroom, is installed a steel paper baler. This is used not only as a baler of waste paper but as a receptacle for all scraps of paper and cardboard that are constantly accumulating.

"Do you find the paper baler profitable?" asked the interviewer.

"A couple of years ago, we were getting a big price for waste paper and I think we must have easily paid the cost of the baler out of a couple of months' waste paper. At present we get little for it. But if we did not have a baler, what would we do with all the paper and cardboard boxes that are continuously piling up? Without a baler the place would be in a regular litter. It is certainly profitable; not so much, perhaps, from the actual money received for the waste paper, but from the fact that it lessens the work in keeping the place tidy."

A Self Measuring Oil Tank

Another piece of equipment in the storeroom, is a self measuring oil tank. There is no smell of oil around the tank, simply because the tank itself is partially underground, with the pump and gauge in sight. It is air tight so that odor of the oil cannot escape. In selling the oil, the clerk, simply hangs the can on the spout, sets the gauge at the desired amount and turns the handle. In remarking upon the tank, Mr. Glover

Each emptying only once each week for 52 weeks will show the following profits on each machine and also the three.

	Cost to fill Bowl each time	Full Bowl sells out each time	Profit each time Bowl empties	Net Profit 1 machine, 52 weeks
HOT P-NUT MACHINE (8 lbs.)	$1.20	$4.40	$3.20	$166.40
KANDY KIST MACHINE (8 lbs.)	1.60	4.80	3.20	166.40
PELLET OR MINT MACHINE (8 lbs.)	1.60	4.80	3.20	166.40
NET PROFIT—3 MACHINES—52 WEEKS - - - -				$499.20

THE ABOVE ARE VERY CONSERVATIVE FIGURES, as we know of a number of machines that sell out two and three times each week. This only shows what a small investment will do. Suppose you put out 10 complete stands your profits would be $4,992.00 less what you would have to pay merchants for standing privilege of machine—10 to 20% on earnings.

TO THE MAN—FIRM—OR COMPANY THAT CAN finance 100 complete Stands, even though he puts out say 10 sets per month and keeps putting the profits back in more machines (100 complete Stands cost $17,000) the profit is $49,920.00 for one year—5 years, $249,600.00. Where can you beat it?—Every Nut or Candy Machine sells—You get your cash—No debts to worry you.

We sell our machines 25% cash with order, balance C.O.D.

Five Points of Superiority that Sell More Gasoline

The new Bowser Chief Sentry piston-type measuring pump has five outstanding points of superiority over any other gasoline pump, which enable you to give better service, increase your business and enlarge your profits.

(1) It is hand or air-power driven—easily convertible either way.
(2) It has large easy-to-read dial registers for both customer and operator which show the quantity of gasoline being served.
(3) It is equipped with the Bowser centrifugal water separator which positively separates all moisture and dirt from the gasoline, assures your customer of dry, clean, full-'o-pep gasoline and most miles per gasoline dollar.
(4) The sight glass, through which the customer sees that the measure is full, and sees the gasoline flowing from the discharge into the hose leading to his car. This means satisfied customers—steady trade.
(5) The tally bell which audibly announces the completion of each gallon measurement.

By our widespread national advertising motorists are being told to look for this pump and to demand Bowser Service. You will profit by giving this service. Write to-day for booklet C-11.

Wholesalers Hear Retailers' Complaints

Representatives of the Grocery Section of the Retail Merchants' Association Present Their Case Before the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association At Their Annual Convention in Niagara Falls Last Week

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

NIAGARA Falls, Ont.—(Staff Correspondence)—On the last day of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association Convention held here last week the retail grocers were heard. There was a small committee present consisting of E. M. Trowern, Dominion secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, Alex. Phillips of Ottawa and P. L. M. Eagan, St. Thomas and J. C. Campbell, district secretary Retail Merchants' Association for Eastern Ontario.

Mr. Trowern was the spokesman and represented a memorandum of subjects the majority of them being in the nature of complaints from retail grocers, for the consideration of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association.

The memorandum was as follows:

1. Consideration of complaint received from retail grocers in every province that wholesale grocers sell direct to the consumer.

2. Consideration of complaint received from retail grocers in every province that wholesale grocers sell to co-operative stores, farmers' clubs, co-operative buying concerns, civil service organizations, contractors, hotels, restaurants, boarding houses, hospitals, roller wagons and clubs.

3. Consideration of complaint received from retail grocers that wholesalers and jobbers sell various standard lines of grocery products at varied discounts, which results in price cutting, and lack of uniformity in prices of standardized lines.

4. Consideration of complaint received from retail grocers that notwithstanding invoice prices, secret rebates are made by travellers and through other mediums which results in price cutting.

5. Consideration of complaint received from retail grocers that cut-rate stores are able to buy soap and other commodities through the wholesale trade, or direct from the manufacturers, and sell at retail prices which are lower than the average retail merchant can buy the same at.

6. Consideration of complaint received from retail grocers that some manufacturers cut off retail grocers from their preferred list, but sell at preferred prices to departmental and chain stores.

7. Consideration of the following recommendation received from retail grocers:

That it would be much simpler and easier to all retail and wholesale grocers if everything were priced and catalogued by the hundred. Canned goods could be packed twenty to the case, instead of twenty-four; many lines could be packed fifty or one hundred to the case; many lines now bought in quantities of one dozen could be bought ten at a time, and if quoted by the price of one hundred the advantage, in our opinion, would be great.

8. Consideration of the following suggestion:

That the attention of manufacturers be called to the necessity of making provision on their labels for marking the price, so that all clerks will know where to look for it. Many labels are so dark in color that it is impossible to see a pencil mark on them, which makes it difficult to mark the price clearly.

9. Consideration of the following suggestion:

That if this joint meeting decides that certain specified classes are entitled to buy in a wholesale way, the wholesale trade should be furnished by the retail trade with a copy of such list, which would be subject to revision from time to time, and that all wholesale houses be requested to conform to such list.

10. Consideration of complaint received from retail grocers that wholesalers and manufacturers sell to concerns who conduct warehouses at given points, and who sell direct to consumers by means of travelling peddling salesmen.

11. Consideration of the following recommendation received from retail grocers:

That the retail grocery trade believes it would be in the best interest of trade generally if manufacturers would discontinue the practice of giving coupons and asking retail grocers to redeem the same, as the system is not only illegal but also annoying.

12. Consideration of the following recommendation:

That the retail grocery trade believes that it would be in the best interest of the retail grocery business of Canada if all retail grocers who ask for and accept credit from the wholesale trade, be requested to present to the wholesale trade an audited statement of their business at least once in six months and that wholesale grocers discourage the practice of giving credit and starting those in business who have no knowledge of the trade.

13. Consideration of the following recommendation:

This is a reproduction of photograph taken in front of Clifton House, Niagara Falls, Ont., of delegates to the annual factures' agents present. President Armand Chaput (re-elected for 1922) may be seen near the centre with Charles and J. S. Royer (Quebec) on the right. George Slate (Canadian Sha

That it is the opinion of the retail grocery trade that full responsibility for the quality of the product made and sold by the manufacturer should be placed upon the manufacturer.

14. Consideration of the following recommendation:

That it is the opinion of the retail grocery trade that Bill No. 207, introduced by the attorney-general into the Ontario Legislature, entitled: "An Act for the better prevention of certain commercial agreements," be strongly opposed by every branch of the united grocery trade.

15. Consideration of the following recommendation:

That a standing Dominion committee of the grocers' section, together with standing committees from the grocers' section in each province, and of the grocers' section in local districts of similar committees from the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association, to consider various matters that will come up from time to time, and that joint action be taken on the same for the purpose of improving the grocery trade of Canada.

16. Consideration of a recommendation passed at the recent convention of Ontario Retail Growers to the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association, when travellers are quoting prices to the retail trade and referring to the margins and percentages, that they be requested not to mislead the trade, and that they be requested to quote selling cost.

17. Consideration of complaint received from retail grocers that some travellers for wholesale houses and clerks are in the habit of buying their requirements from the said wholesale houses and supplying their family and friends, and we consider that this system should be stopped.

Mr. Trowern pointed out that the retail Merchants' Association had not passed on all these matters but they were complaints which he thought should receive the attention of the wholesalers. Later on a resolution was passed by the Wholesalers' Association providing for the submission of a memorandum to the executive committee for consideration.

Resolutions Passed By Wholesale Grocers On Concluding Day of the Convention

Manufacturers Doing Business Through Canadian Jobbers Should Declare Through What Channel They Are Selling Goods and Should Allow Legitimate Profit to the Jobber—Other Resolutions

NIAGARA Falls, Ont. (Staff Correspondence).—The question of the canned goods contract for this year was to have come up at the convention of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association here last week. W. R. Drynan, representing Dominion Canners, Limited, Hamilton, was present to take up the matter but as it was found that different provinces had different conditions to meet and wanted different arrangements, it was finally decided that each provincial association would take up the matter of the selling contracts on canned goods for itself.

William C. Cross (Hall and Fairweather, Ltd., St. John, N. B.), as chairman of the resolution committee introduced the various resolutions on the last day of the convention. A resolution embodying the above was carried.

A resolution to the effect that where a manufacturer has a selling price in a province such price shall be respected and observed by all members of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association selling in that particular province. This resolution was also carried.

One dealing with the point that the selling terms of the Wholesalers' Association should be uniform, net thirty days in all provinces, was debated briefly and referred to the executive committee.

Another was adopted to the effect that manufacturers doing business through the Canadian jobbers should declare through what channel they are selling their goods and should allow a legitimate profit to the jobber. Still another dealt with was the sugar question. The sugar refiners are requested to meet the representatives of the wholesalers early with a view to discussing refiners' terms, etc.

A resolution regretting the death during the past year of Harry C. Beckett, (W. H. Gillard and Company, Hamilton) was carried by a standing silent vote.

G. C. Cummins (The Canadian Match Company, Montreal), who was unable to be present the day before during the meeting with manufacturers was asked to address the convention in regard to the selling methods of his firm. Mr. Cummins pointed out that his firm sold through the wholesale grocery trade and in answer to a question by J. S. Royer (J. B. Renaud & Company, Quebec, P. Q.), he stated that where a jobber insists on cutting prices his firm would withdraw the retail prices and, if he persists in cutting, his name would be taken off their selling list.

Visitors Well Entertained

The entertainment provided for the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association, their wives and guests was an elaborate one. John W. Charles (Marland, Woolnough Company, Niagara Falls, Ont.), who was referred to as the president, vice-president, secretary, and committee of the Niagara Falls Wholesale Grocers' Association, was of course, responsible for it. Nothing appeared to be a trouble for him so that everybody enjoyed themselves. On Tuesday night the Shredded Wheat Company gave a banquet to everybody in attendance at the Clifton House which was a brilliant affair. President Armand Chaput (Chaput, Fils & Cie, Montreal), presided and during the evening there was presented to Hugh Blain his portrait in oils. Eulogistic remarks were made the Canadian Wholesale Grocers Association. In addition to wholesalers there are manufacturers and manu-Zepherin Hebert, Sir Hormisdas Laporte and George H. Millen, (E. B. Eddy Co.) on the left, and John W. o.) is sitting in front of Mr. Charles. How many of the others can you name?

Discuss Methods of Paying Salesmen

Which is the Best, Paying a Travelling Salesman On a Straight Salary Basis, on the Salary and Commission Basis or on Straight Commission?—Wholesale Grocers Discuss Question at Convention

By Staff Correspondent Canadian Grocer

NIAGARA Falls, Ont. (Staff Correspondence).—Which is the best method for the wholesaler—paying a travelling salesman a straight salary basis, on the salary and commission basis or on straight commission?

This is certainly a controversial subject as was evidenced at the annual convention of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association held here last week.

In an address by J. Frank Grimes, whose business it is to assist merchants in their financial and business problems, he stated that he was sold "100% plus" on the commission plan of paying salesmen. After explaining his reasons there was a lively discussion among wholesalers as to whether this was the correct method or not. Joseph Laporte (Laporte Martin, Montreal), considered that he got more out of his salesmen by adopting the salary and commission basis. Zeph. Hebert (Hudon Hebert, Ltd.), Montreal, was a strong advocate of the principle of paying on the salary basis. Percy Eby (Eby, Blain, Ltd.), Toronto, favored the commission basis as Mr. Grimes outlined.

A great many questions were asked and it is safe to say that there is no one method that will satisfy every wholesale grocer in Canada. Each continues to have its advocates.

Commission On Profits

Mr. Grimes maintained that with a travelling salesmen on salary it makes no difference whether he starts out on his Monday morning trip on a 6 o'clock or a 10.30 train. If he is tired he misses the 6 o'clock and thus wastes half a day. Very often he comes back early on Friday. His expense accounts are checked over and O. K.'d just the same as if he spent the full week on his field. It makes no difference to him whether he sells $3,000 or $4,000 of goods during the week—he gets his salary just the same. He made the point that the salesman's income should be based on his own work and energy and that he should be paid a commission on the gross profits that his sales earn for him. He maintains that the salesman on the commission basis digs up more prospective customers. In answer to a question from Hugh Blain, (Eby Blain Ltd.), Toronto, he said that the commission on the profit basis was superior to that on sales because the salesman on the latter basis is inclined to sell on easy lines and cut prices in order to bring in a big volume of sales. Then on close-in territories where sales were easy the salesman had an advantage over the one in the outlying territory where distances were greater.

He also favored the "quota plan," that is, the assigning to the salesmen in each territory a certain quota of business to be secured, based on the sales for a number of years back. This system introduces friendly rivalry among the salesmen and secured best results in his opinion. He knew of a case where one salesman selling $35,000 worth of goods a month was making only half the profit of another whose sales averaged $18,000. He did not think it was fair to pay the former more than the latter.

Salary and Commission

Joseph Laporte, of Montreal, thought that the commission basis alone gave salesmen too much chance to run his territory to his own liking rather than have the house control the territory. Salary basis alone gave the house control of the territory, but also the salesman a chance to stop at certain volume when he thinks he has earned his salary. His firm has adopted the salary and commission basis. The salesmen are paid a definite salary per year and when their sales reach a certain volume they get a percentage of the gross profits.

Believer in Straight Salary

Zeph. Hebert, Montreal, was just as strong an advocate of the straight salary system. He maintained that if a house looked after its salesmen and their territories closely enough it would know exactly the time these men were spending on their territories. He said that if a traveller did more business than a certain amount he was paid accordingly. No commission, however, was given on the selling of straight groceries but a commission was paid on the sales of specialities. He claimed that the commission basis was conducive to a a traveller having more goods sent to the retailer than he actually ordered. If for instance, the retailer orders a case the salesman is tempted to put it down as three. This means considerable expense returning the goods and in freight.

Percy Eby asked Mr. Grimes—"How do you deal with market fluctuations; how can you get a salesman to push an article at a loss?"

Mr. Grimes:—"The salesman should make a profit on every sale even if the market price declines. The new price should be taken as a basis for the profit. The house then must take the loss but it makes it up as prices advance."

Fred T. Smye, Hamilton, considered that the commission basis was not conducive to honest business. It was a temptation for travellers to rebate.

John Charles (Marland Woolnough), Niagara Falls, Ont., thought that the commission basis was simply opening the gates to demoralizing conditions. It made brokers out of travellers. They come in to the wholesaler's warehouse and make an offer in an endeavor to make a sale.

Opening New Territory

A. Simpson (Simpson Wholesale Grocery Co.), Guelph, Ont.:—"How does a traveller on commission pioneer a new territory?"

Mr. Grimes:—"He should be given a drawing account to open up this territory and as the business develops this

Correct Margins In Staple Groceries

Margins on Staples Are Limited Not Merely by Competition, But by Economic Law—Merchants Send in Insufficient Data in Inquiry Letters—What Compensation Ratio for Manager?

By HENRY JOHNSON, Jr.

HERE is a man who puts a question to me which I now submit to you.

March 1st, 1922.

Dear Sir:—I have a question to ask: I bought a stock two years ago Jan. 15 when values were at highest and paid $4,500. Since then we had a wonderful decline, but during this decline in the two years on Jan. 1st, we invoiced our stock at market values of to-day. We have increased stock $4,000, made a living out of store, paid taxes of $152 each year, insurance $72, clerk hire $500 per year and other expenses of $100 and extra help $200. I want to know what per cent. my profit is?

To try to get something to work on, I write March 15 asking: what sales had been each year, what purchases, if record thereof kept, whether building owned or rented—if rented, what rent paid; what salary paid himself and partner. I asked for detailed expense list of each year, just as kept with any additions he might think of not yet included; what was total investment in beginning. How much had at end of first year in stock, fixtures and accounts; how all these stood second year. I told him I thought he was doing well but would gladly go into details when he gave me figures requested.

Not hearing, I wrote again April 12, I am still waiting. Maybe my suggestion that he was doing well satisfied him. But I submit that it would be somewhat difficult to answer his question accurately on the data submitted. Do you agree?

Margins on Staple Groceries

Letter from Western Canada:

May 14, 1922.

Being a retail grocer in a small way and comparatively new to the game I would appreciate it very much if you would give me your idea of what is the proper margin to figure on the selling prices of the following: sugar, flour, soap, smoked meats, lard and provisions, butter, eggs, and cheese. I aim to average 20 per cent. on sales all round.

Margins on staples are limited not merely by competition but by economic law. I mean that we must not think that margins which we deem insufficient are always made so by the sheer cussedness of human nature for the fact is that the cost of handling most heavy staples is far below the average cost of operation. Hence, margins are properly lower than such average cost.

Sugar is sold—properly and also profitably—on around ten per cent. In this correspondent's region is a grocer who operates with about 6 per cent. gross on sugar and feels satisfied. He is a well posted, experienced merchant. Flour is handled on about the same ratio.

Soaps are heavy staples, often used for leaders at cut prices. But the aim should be to be able to realize 16% to 20% on them. Smoked meats are subject to local conditions, being used as leaders continually and habitually in some places and not in others. They should pay as much as possible, for they are a very uncertain quantity. The aim should be for 20 per cent. with the most liberal allowance possible for shrinkage. It must realized that such goods are exporting weight every hour you own them.

Lard should yield around 20 per cent. It should be handled with thoughtful care, for remember, you have weighing to contend with. There is the question how many pounds you can actually weigh out of a 60 lb. tub, plus cost of plates, wax paper, other paper and twine. Then there is labor and time. It is not well to follow too closely on the heels of anybody who cuts lard. Better cleave to high grade and pack in good packages, and build on such goods plus service than on price.

Butter in bricks is handled at from seven to twelve per cent. On either basis it is profitable. Bulk butter is handled at around four cents the pound, regardless of percentage, and there is room to doubt whether anybody ever handled any of it at a profit. Eggs move at around seven per cent. but packages should first be figured in. On a basis of seven per cent. or so, above all costs including packages, eggs are profitable, I believe.

Cheese Can be a Profit Maker

Cheese is a staple that can be made very profitable if you study it and devote yourself to building trade on it. The possibilities are about as broad as you make them. Cheese should be bought with great care—for special character, not for price. Then it should be displayed under a glass bell which should be polished with sawdust every morning. It should be kept on wood—maple is the thing—which also must be kept scrupulously clean. The whole cheese works should be cleaned up thoroughly every morning. Display should be prominent. In humid, hot weather, it should be kept in the refrigerator. Better to sacrifice display for that time than impair quality.

Have one cheese cut to begin with. Have that old or new, depending on the prepondernace of demand in your district. But study to develop trade on old, mellow, well developed cheese. Lead your customers to cheese. Teach them, by sampling, talks, hints and demonstrations to like fine smooth-grain, rich cheese. Keep it up!

Such work will lift your cheese department out of the rut of price-comparisons and competition. You may stay in business forty years and every year develop new angles to your cheese business. And it will pay. Such, after all, is the attitude you should cultivate toward your business: to learn the how of wider variety, better foods, greater "choiceness," nicer discrimination. Get to be known as a master tradesman. Money will follow such reputation anywhere.

Here is a letter I have held long because of the danger I felt might attend its publication:

Middle West.——

Dear Mr. Johnson:—I am manager of grocery department in a department store. Have held job for about six months after over twenty years previous experience—e even years clerking for one firm, balance running store of my own which I sold two years ago. By this time, I should know something of the business. I came here on invitation to help out grocery department. Getting $175 a month. Management would like to have me stay. I like it. The grocery end always has been big, but for some years had not paid. Agreement was that if I produced results, my salary was to be increased to orrect figure. Up to now nothing has been said about that. General manager told me this week that grocery department was now paying. I knew it had been paying for past four months. Selling about $225,000 a year in groceries; sometimes more, sometimes less; but about that average. The principal complaint when I came was that we were not selling our quota of fruits and vegetables. For some time we have not only increased this division, but have made it the biggest of its kind in several surrounding counties. Our actual profits in this department for past four months have been over $1,600. Freight and all spoilage has been deducted, so profit stated was net. All spoiled goods, so found on arrival, have been charged back to houses from whom bought. Our grocery, flour, feed has been developed same way. Of fifteen brands of coffee handled—which is away too much, but we sell them—we have one brand of which we sell fifteen cases

Re-Classification of Freights

AT THE meeting of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association in Niagara Falls last week, the proposed new Freight Classification Number 17, covering groceries, was very strongly condemned.

All articles under the heading of groceries in Canadian Freight Classification Number 16 are now permitted to be shipped in mixed carloads to points in Western Canada at the highest carload rating and highest minimum weight. Most of the items are rated 5th class. The minimum weight does not exceed 24,000 lbs. Under the proposed re-classification there is no grocery list. The articles are alphabetically arranged throughout the classification which would prevent the shipment in mixed carloads to points in Western Canada. In addition to this some changes have been made in carload ratings and minimum weights are proposed ranging from 30,000 to 40,000 pounds.

The Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association passed a resolution condemning the changes and urging upon as many members as possible to visit Montreal on June 27 when the matter will be taken up before the Special Classification Committee in the offices of the Canadian Freight Association.

Every member of the trade is interested in this—retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers. It has been calculated that if the new classification goes through, it will mean an advance in freight rates from 25 to 50 per cent. There is considerable talk about lowering freight rates at the present time, but if the proposed changes materialize, it will be a round-about way of putting up rates again.

Speeding Up Turnover

RECENTLY the writer was visiting a fair-sized town in Ontario. In this town there are about a dozen retail grocery stores, all of whom are apparently enjoying their share of the trade of the townspeople and the surrounding country. The most striking thing that impressed the writer was the fact that the stores getting the most of the business were the ones that were the most pleasing in appearance. But there was one store that did not appear to be getting even a fair share of business, and the only reason that a casual observer would attribute this condition was the fact that the appearance of the store was anything but inviting. Partly filled boxes of all manner of merchandise were strewn about. Sections of the plaster on the ceiling were hanging, ready to drop at any moment. The fixtures were of the roughest character and dust and last year's fly specks covered the old-fashioned showcases, so that they had become useless as salesmen. Was there not good reason why the store was not getting its share of the trade?

The day of the untidy store is past. People will not trade at a store that is littered and dingy, if there is a better one within reach. They base their estimate of the store and the quality of the goods upon the first impression of the attractiveness and the facilities for handling foodstuffs in a clean, sanitary manner and the equipment for giving an efficient service.

Fortunately there are few merchants to-day of the above class and the vast majority now see the benefit of business-building equipment such as dust-proof bins, meat slicers, coffee grinders and cheese cutters. Labor and time-saving devices, as for instance the telephone, cash and credit registers and adding machines, have been found to be good investments and highly profitable, making it possible to cut down the cost of doing business and speed up the turnover by proper displays.

The Age of Canned Goods

WHEN Captain Ronald Amundsen, the great Polar explorer, left Seattle early this month on a new attempt to reach the North Pole he took with him in his ship "Maud" large quantities of canned goods, both fruit and vegetables. The introduction of vegetables and fruit in tins some years ago has made it possible to reach the goal in a great many expeditions that otherwise could not have been successful. Canned goods have lightened the burdens and the worries of thousands of prospectors, explorers, woodsmen, as well as women in the homes. These goods are undoubtedly one of the wonders of the age when it is considered the service they are performing for humanity.

And not so very long ago they were unknown on this continent. To-day they are among the every-day requirements of millions of consumers, handy, reasonable in price, and carrying in them practically the same food values that are to be found in the raw material from which they are made.

Value of Advertising

THE action brought by a retail grocer against the daily newspaper of a town in the Western States, for failure to print his advertisement, alleging loss of sales to the extent of $1,000, is indicative of the value he places on advertising as a means of stimulating business.

In his statement of complaint he declares that he does depend very largely on advertising for business, and on account of the non-appearance of his advertisement his sales were $500 less than they would have been had the advertisement appeared. He asserts that on the Saturday preceding, and on which day a similar advertisement appeared, the sales made by the plaintiff amounted to $650, and that while on the following Saturday, the day on which the advertisement was not run in the paper, although furnished and requested to be run by the plaintiff, the sales were $350. On this day business was generally better, due to Labor Day following on Monday, and on account of the failure to insert the advertisement, the plaintiff claims he was damaged in the sum of $1,000.

The outcome of the suit is not yet known, but it is interesting to note the definite turnover that this merchant credits as directly due to his advertising. The use of newspaper space as a means of stimulating sales and keeping the name of a merchant before the public cannot be underestimated, and when coupled with display of the proper sort and effective selling talks, is always productive of results.

It does a grocer good to get out of the store, visit other cities and other stores and study methods of retailing generally. A holiday in the summer pays in more ways than one often realizes.

of Evansville, Ind., who will represent Certified Grocers of United Kingdom at big convention of grocers in Cleveland.

Will Represent the Certified Grocers of United Kingdom

Cleveland, June 19—Never in the history of the retail grocers has as much interest been shown as in the twenty-fifth convention of the National Retail Grocers' Association to be held June 26-29. The Hotel Winton will house members and convention.

Fraternal greetings from the Institute of Certified Grocers of Great Britain will be given by Charles A. Elliott, F. G. I., Evansville, Ind. The Institute has forwarded lantern slides showing men in the movement for better grocers connected with the institute, also pictures of different classes and graduates, pictures of prizes, certificates and winners of the prizes at the national examinations.

The president, the Right Hon. Sir Henry Craits, K. C. B., M. P. for the University of St. Andrews and Secretary of Education for Scotland, John Williams, proprietor of a chain of thirty stores, Sir Jeremiah Colman, head of the Mustard House, Angus Watson, proprietor of Skipper Canned Fish, Geo. Cadbury, head of the great cocoa firm, Lord Leverhulme, head of Lever Bros., soap manufacturers, W. N. Watson, director Leibig's United Kingdom interest, W. Powell Bowman of Yorkshire Relish fame, Sir Harold R. Pinks, J. P., mayor of Portsmouth, J. A. Sharwood, head of the leading chutney house in Great Britain, G. F. Nicholas, member of the corporation of the city of London and many more have been interested in the institute from its beginning.

The National Retail Grocers' Association is greatly interested in the work of the institute and have for some time been in "touch" with the Secretary of the London Institute.

Mr. Elliott being the originator of the first class for grocers in this country at the Y. M. C. A., New York, was requested by the London Institute to represent the Certified Grocers of the United Kingdom.

Member of London Wholesale Grocery Firm Passes Away

London, Ont., June 21.—Leigh Garvey, of John Garvey & Sons, wholesale grocers, King street, died at St. Joseph's Hospital most unexpectedly, late on Monday night of this week, following an operation that had been decided upon only a few hours previously. Mr. Garvey had complained on Saturday of feeling unwell, but nothing of a serious nature manifested itself. Sunday he was much improved, but on Monday there was a return of the trouble, and several prominent surgeons who were called in advised an operation. He was born in Lindsay 39 years ago, and came with his parents to this city when a small child. He was educated in a private school, the separate schools and the collegiate institute, after which he entered the business established by his father. Mr. Garvey was a member of the London Hunt and Country Club. He is survived by his father and three brothers, John P. and Clement of this city, and Charles of Toronto, and one sister, who lives at home.

Amendments Are Made in Meat and Canned Foods Act

Ottawa, June 19—A bill amending the Meat and Canned Foods Act, with special application to the canning of shellfish, has been given second reading in the House of Commons. It provides among other things, that fish and shellfish packed in cans shall be subject to inspection during the whole course of preparation and packing, and at any time thereafter at the cannery or at the warehouse of the first purchaser, and shall be labelled with the name and address of the packer, or the first dealer obtaining it from the packer. Another provision gives to the inspector the power to close any cannery immediately if he should discover that sanitary conditions are being neglected.

Competition In Sugar From Germany And Austria Not Likely

Montreal—So far, the grocery trade has suffered little injury from German and Austrian competition. Many have asked if Germany is regaining her power in the sugar industry which if she did would menace that industry in this country. At the present time there is considerable exportation of refined sugar to Europe but if Germany could lay sugar in England at anywhere near the price at which it was marketed prior to the war neither Canada nor the United States would be able to compete.

Only 30 Per Cent. Production

According to the United States Commerce report the production of raw sugar in Austria during the season of 1921-22 amounted to 16,322 metric tons or about 30 per cent. of the pre-war output. This sugar was produced by seven factories. The principal causes for so small an output were the low price for beets established by the Government and the high wages which had to be paid to seasonal workers in Czecho Crowns. Therefore, it is more profitable for the Austrian farmers to grow grain and potatoes than sugar beets.

A Big Demand

Austria's yearly requirements of sugar amount to 110,000 metric tons. The whole production in 1921 and 1922 was hardly 15 per cent. of this and the rest was imported. Consumption of imported sugar varies in accordance with the price which in turn is largely controlled by the rate of exchange. Since Germany is closely allied with Austria in the sugar beet industry it can be seen that neither of these countries are in a position to menace the refined sugar industry abroad. At the best they are barely producing enough for their own requirements.

COMMITTEE DISCUSSES THE POTATO-GRADING ACT

Ottawa, June 19—In the Agriculture Committee discussion of the Potato Grading Act, objection was taken to the confiscation provision in the case of wrong packing and grading. Under the Act an inspector might confiscate a whole shipment for misrepresentation.

This provision was withdrawn, it being shown that there was sufficient protection and penalties already provided in the Act.

The time under which sale of new potatoes without grading may be made under the act was extended from September 15 to September 30.

The bill was also amended to become applicable to imported potatoes and onions as well as to Canadian products.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY GROCERS

by Mr. Chaput, Zeph. Hebert of Montreal, Fred T. Smye, of Hamilton, and A. J .Major (S. J. Major and Company, Ottawa). Mr. Blain replied in a happy after-dinner speech.

H. G. Flint, general sales manager Shredded Wheat Biscuit Company, extended a welcome to everybody and George Slate, Toronto, also of the Shredded Wheat Company, superintended the Shredded Wheat Pipers' Band which livened up the proceedings during the dinner. Joseph Laporte (Laporte Martin, Limited), Montreal, espoused the cause of the ladies in his usual entertaining way.

There was a good song and story from J. E. Charrier, Ottawa (J. Rattray & Co.); a solo by Miss Newman and piano recital by a blind muscian.

During the afternoon of the second day, the plant of the Shredded Wheat Company, Niagara Falls, New York, was visited by the delegates and guests. On another evening all were guests of the Park Commission at luncheon in Queen Victoria Park, where a picnic-style lunch was served. Then there was a ball game between the players from Lower and Upper Canada. Even Secretary Pyke, who is supposed to know all about the facts and figures connected with the wholesalers, wouldn't vouch for the final score. On Wednesday afternoon the immense Chippawa work was investigated so that altogether the time spent even between sessions was profitable and entertaining.

"Drop Shipments" Resolution

John W. Charles (Marland Woolnough Co., Niagara Falls,) introduced the "Drop Shipment" discussion. He was strongly opposed to it because there was so much abuse creeping in. Unless the full profit is taken by a jobber in drop shipments that jobber should be reprimanded severely by the manufacturer, he maintained. The situation in his opinion was a menace to the trade, morally and from a profit standpoint. He moved a resolution to the effect that a wholesaler be denied the privilege of the drop shipment for a period of at least 60 days by the manufacturer and that the association recommend this system of reprimand to manufacturers. The resolution was seconded by Archie Foster, National Grocers Ltd., North Bay.

Considerable opposition developed to this motion.

Zepherin Hebert, (Hudon Hebert and Co., Montreal) claimed that if this manufacturer saw to it that the jobber maintained the list prices then the resolution was superfluous.

Mr. Foster declared that most of the cutting was due to the Drop Shipments plan. He did not think wholesalers in the larger sections had any right to come into the outside districts and cut prices on drop shipments.

John Dillon (London) strongly opposed the resolution.

A. J. Major (Ottawa) did not think the association should ask manufacturers to stop price cutting on drop shipments only. Mr. Charles replied that the cutting was not on one and two case lots but on the 5 and 10 case lots.

The motion was then put to a vote and carried by a majority of 7 or 8.

Freight Classifications

St. Clair Balfour (Balfour Smye Co.) urged as strong a deputation of wholesalers as possible to go to Montreal on June 27 and 28 to oppose with the Railway Board and railway officials any increases in Freight Classification No. 17 and to favor correcting some of the present ratings as outlined by secretary Pyke. Zeph. Hebert (Montreal) claimed that the railways were taking a round about way to get higher freights by their classification proposals. Mr. Balfour moved the following resolution which was carried:—"The Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association in Annual Session at Niagara Falls unanimously approve of the grocery list for adoption in the proposed classification No. 17 prepared by the Association to be submitted to the Classification Committee of the Canadian Freight Assotion and that we are opposed to any increase in Classification; are opposed to raising carload minimums and also approved of rectifying certain irregularities that exist at present."

Hugh Blain (Eby-Blain Ltd., Toronto) pointed out that the reclassification proposals would advance the freights on food products by 25 to 50 per cent.

DISCUSSING METHODS OF PAYING SALESMEN

is gradually charged against profits. If the territory is a poor one at the end of a period, the house may consider wiping off the deficit."

Mr. Simpson:—"Under the commission basis, what do you say about travellers taking advantage of the retailer and supplying more goods than ordered?"

Mr. Grimes:—"You can't put anything over the retailer more than once or twice and get away with it. I think a reflection is cast upon the intelligent retailer by claiming that this can be done."

W. C. Cross, St. John:—"What about letter orders, telephone orders, etc.?"

Mr. Grimes:—"The traveller gets the full commission."

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Grimes for his address.

WESTERN NEWS

W. B. Ashenhurst has taken over the management of the H. P. Pennock & Co.'s office at Regina.

J. C. Ryan has joined the specialty sales staff of the W. L. MacKenzie Company, calling on the trade in Southern Saskatchewan.

The trade offers its sympathy to W. D. Mair, manager of the MacDonald Crawford Company, wholesale grocers of Regina, in the loss of his wife.

George Bailley, formerly of the Swift Current Grocery has joined the sales staff of the W. L. MacKenzie Company, as specialty salesman and will cover the City and Island of Vancouver in the interests of his firm.

F. E. Sheridan, of Canadian Canners, Limited, spent a few days in Winnipeg with the firm's representative, Donald H. Bain Company, before returning to Toronto.

H. C. Fortier of the W. C. McDonald Reg. Inc., Montreal, spent last week in Winnipeg on a business trip. Mr. Fortier intends to cover the trade from Winnipeg to the coast in the interest of his firm.

Groceries to the value of $350 and an adding machine worth $150 were stolen from the C. C. I. grocery store at 930 Twelfth avenue west, Calgary, recently. Entrance was gained by chopping a hole through the rear door and the thief then pulled back the bolt holding the door. The stolen goods consisted of a great variety of merchandise including a large quantity of canned goods.

Mrs. E. L. Drewry, wife of E. L. Drewry, Winnipeg, died Sunday, June 11th, after a long illness. The late Mrs. Drewry has been identified with many educational and social undertakings throughout her residence in this city. She was an active worker in the Women's Hospital Aid Society, Children's Home, the Convalescent Home, Canadian Women's Hostel, The Margaret Scott Nursing Home and was on the advisory board of the Rupert's Land Ladies' College. She is survived by her husband, four daughters and three sons, Mrs. A. Code, Mrs. Machray, Mrs. R. W. Patterson, Mrs. W. D. Love, C. E. Drewry, W. S. Drewry and H. A. Drewry.

CORRECT MARGINS ON STAPLE GROCERIES

every two weeks. That makes us a profit of around sixty dollars a month. We discount all bills. A great proportion of groceries are sold even before the ten day limit is up. I believe we are making money on everything. Most profits are small but turnover is big. We have ten clerks in grocery department. One special delivery man for the store generally. A city delivery system takes care of our regular deliveries. Our phone orders are very large. Our clerks get fair wages the best one, who has been with the firm over twenty years, gets $100 per month. We are charged for store space. Since I took hold, this department is now paying big, but it looks as if we had to stand for some of the deficits of the other departments. I know there, there is much room yet for improvement—like in any grocery store. Management wants me to stay and make this my home; but after showing them that I have put across what they wanted, they have not increased my salary—neither have I asked for an increase. I can get a great deal more in another line, but I like this work. The company is strong financially. With your experience, about what do you think I am worth? I feel sometimes that the general manager, who is a heavy stockholder and is getting to be much like a brother to me, feels a little timid about approaching me on salary. Sooner or later we shall have to have an understanding.

Yours .....

What Compensation Ratio for Manager?

To reply on the direct question, I wrote this man that I thought a salary of 1½ per cent. would be right. On business of $225,000 that would figure $3,375 a year. Therefore, a salary of $3,000 to $3,500 would be equitable.

This letter is published for many reasons—mostly without comment. I feel it is a snappy communication that reflects an up-to-the-minute, hustling, intelligent, worthwhile employee. It touches many things which should be given careful thought and diligent attention by many a store owner. If his statements are to be acepted at par, he certainly has made a wonderfully fine record.

On a small scale, this may be compared with the history of another dept. store, a store distinctly in the doldrums where a new manager took charge. Given some liberty of action, he showed what he could do. Then he was advanced promptly to general manager; and I think I know enough about the concern to know that he never had to undergo the embarrassment of asking for advanced compensation—also that the owners never "felt timid" about approaching him on the question.

This is an important point, for all over the country merchants are losing valuable employes through being too tight about paying them fairly. Merchants habitually employ men on promise of advancement "as the work justifies it." Then when the work is accomplished, they forget the promise. Often they feel that they want to get something back first. More often they forget the investment they themselves have put into the man. So because they do not pay him fairly, they lose him—lose his good work—lose their investment in him—disrupt their business—and many times are just overwhelmingly sorry, after it is too late!

Better handle such things on the percentage basis—and pay the just percentage. I have indicated it. It will run about thus:

$ 60 000	3%	$1800
100 000	2¾%	2750
150 000	2%	3000
200 000	1¾%	3500
250 000	1½%	3750

But then individual merit wil count in all such things—only get a fair seale and do not try to squeeze it too much. The honest laborer is worthy of his hire—and if you do not pay it, somebody else will!

COFFEE CROP IN AFRICA THIS YEAR PROMISES TO BE BIG

Montreal—Weather conditions for coffee in the colony of Kenya has been ideal this year, according to reports from the United States Department of Commerce. There is promise of the largest crop ever harvested. There are 33,800 acres of coffee, according to returns made for January, 1922, to the Agricultural Department. Of this area 17,000 acres are within a radius of 30 miles of Nairobi. This is a small state on the East coast of Africa which was re-named after the war. It was originally British East Africa. Nairobi is the seaport town from which the shipments of coffee are made.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR SUGAR IN NICARAGUA

Montreal—There are now 10,000 or 12,000 acres of land in Nicaragua planted with sugar cane. This land produces about 17 tons of cane and 1.5 tons of refined sugar to the acre. The output could be increased 50 or 75 per cent. with more scientific methods. There is no export tax on sugar but that sold in the country pays a sales tax of 50c per 100 lbs., the proceeds going to the schools.

Owing to the drop in price such mills as are able to do so are now making only the best grade of white sugar. Formerly there was a considerably higher production of brown sugar and secondary grades. With annual interest rates of from 12 to 18 per cent., the manufacture of sugar in this country is not profitable at present prices. Railway rates are also high and too much money has been invested in expensive machinery when prices were at their height. Nevertheless, it is believed, that the larger production will be able to hold together the industry and that the drop in price will result in more intensive cultivation and scientific manufacture.

The development of the sugar industry in this country depends largely upon the sugar market of the world. There is no doubt that if this sugar can find a ready market near at hand the industry will be developed and a larger production will be shown with the result that the world supply of sugar will be greatly increased and the likelihood of high prices on refined sugar will be less.

WEEKLY GROCERY MARKET REPORTS

Statements from Buying Centres.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

EARLIER in the week the raw sugar market developed an easier tone, which was not surprising after such heavy business transpiring during the previous week, and the price on Cubas reacted from 3 1-16c c. & f. to 2 7-8c c. & f. New York. Later in the week the market made a direct recovery with sales at 3 1-8c. The demand from the United Kingdom continues good and a higher market is quoted over there.

The Cuban campaign is steadily coming to an end, there being six factories closing during the week making now 26 in operation as against 33 during the same period last year and 29 in 1920. Higher prices prevail on export refined, quotations range from $4.20 to $4.25 after a fairly heavy business at $4.15, net cash in bond f.a.s. New York.

In Canadian refined, the situation continues strong, with Canada and Acadia advancing early in the week to the Montreal basis of $6.75, while the Acadia made a further advance later in the week to the basis of $7. The Atlantic has withdrawn from the domestic market while the St. Lawrence still maintains the list price of $6.50 Montreal but it is understood are not free sellers. The consumptive demand continues good but all refiners appear to be about two weeks behind in shipments.

Another feature in the markets is the continued strength in tea. Primary conditions are still strong and trading on spot has been fairly active. Wholesalers and importers have again advanced quotations on certain grades.

Rolled oats are firm under a particularly active demand for this season of the year. Quotations generally stand as listed a week ago but in some quarters a shade higher price is noted.

Norwegian sardines are in a stronger position and the new pack is likely to come on the market at a higher price owing to the late pack and short production. Canned vegetables and fruits show no change.

The prune situation is marking time, apparently awaiting the announcement of opening price on the 1922 crop, by the California Association. Raisins are fairly easy while dates are firm with one brand of packages showing an advance. Spices are steady while rices are quiet.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, June 21.—Sugar is in the limelight with another advance and the prospect of a still further advance. Molasses is steady but some changes have been made in the quotations made by wholesalers on syrups. The manufacturers show no advance although the market is strong with a good movement. New prices have been issued on some jams and preserved fruits which show some changes. The spice market is more active with a lower price on cream of tartar but a better feeling in most lines on account of the approaching pickling season. On account of the lower value of the franc, walnuts are being bought freely for fall delivery. The nut market otherwise is quiet. Candied peels show an easy trend for lemon and orange but a higher price on citron. One package line of peels shows a slight reduction. Cotton ropes are three cents higher in price. Teas are steady with a lower price on Japans in the offing. The coffee market is marking time till the new crop. Local vegetables on the market have caused lower prices in almost every line. Lemons are slightly higher. Strawberries are now lower than they were last year.

ROLLED OATS STEADY

Montreal.

CEREALS.—There is no change in the cereal market. Prices are steady with a fair demand after the recent advance in rolled oats. The rolled oats market shows a steady tone although the demand is limited.

SUGAR STILL ADVANCING

Montreal.

SUGAR.—The sugar market is again in a prominent position and retailers, for the first time in many months, talk of a fair margin of profit on this line. Those who put sugar aside during the last month are very well pleased with results. The price now stands at $6.80 per cwt., an advance of 30c during the past week, and two of the refiners have advanced to $7 with every prospect of the other following before the end of the week. At the time of going to press wholesalers were stlil quoting $6.80 but expect to advance at any hour. The raw market is strong and backs up the advance in refined sugar.

SUGAR—

WALNUTS A GOOD BUY

Montreal.

NUTS.—The feature of the nut market is walnuts, on account of the weakness in the franc. This makes walnuts a good buy for import since it is the feeling in the trade that it is only a temporary drop in the value of the franc and it must go back. Large orders have been placed for walnuts for fall delivery. Local wholesalers are quoting an advance of 1c on Marbot walnuts, making the price 26c.

NOTE—Jobbers sometimes make an added charge to above prices for broken lots.

CITRON PEEL HIGHER

Montreal

DRIED FRUITS.—Evaporated apples show another advance of 1c per lb. making the price 26c in 50 lb. boxes and 27c in 25 lb. boxes. The supply is limited. As the crop of citrons is poor the prices on citron peel show an advance of 7c over the quotations of last year. Orange and lemon peels are easier. Saxonia brands mixed cut peel in cartons shows a decline of 10c per doz. on the half lb. cartons, making the price $2 per doz. The advance in the citron price partly balances up with lower prices on orange and lemon peels and so in mixed peels a little easier price is noted. Currants are stronger and show ¼c advance in primary markets.

TEA MARKET STEADY

Montreal.

TEAS.—There is no change in the tea market. There is a weakness in Japan teas following the advices of lower prices on the new crop which is expected here next month. Black teas are strong in price and most wholesalers are quoting black teas on a firm basis.

NEW JAM PRICES

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS.—The feature of the canned goods market is the new prices quoted on jams. Gordon and Dilworth's jam in 1 lb. glass jars are reduced to $6.25 a case for all lines including red currant. Others are quoted at $5.50, a reduction of 25c. Marmalade in 10 oz. glass jars is $4.25 and the 5 lb. pails are reduced to $1.50. The same make of preserved fruit in 16 oz. glass jars from strawberry to blackberry is reduced to $7.25. Fresh pineapple sliced in quart jars is quoted at $17.50 per doz., a reduction of 50c. At the same time the Dominion Preserving Co. quote an advance in strawberry jam. The 12 oz. glass jars are advanced to $3.10 per doz. and the 16 oz. glass jars are quoted at $3.70 per doz. The 4 lb. tins are now $11.50 per doz. Other lines of canned goods, of the old pack are unchanged in price although there is much cutting in order to unload stocks before the new pack is on the market. Canned tomatoes are strong and available stocks are light.

SYRUP PRICES APPEAR HIGHER

Montreal.

SYRUPS.—The wholesale grocers of this city show this week an advance in their prices on corn syrups, but this is not in reality an advance. For some time back there has been cutting in this line and now the prices are being brought in line with the list prices of the manufacturers. The corn syrup market is steady with a good movement. Molasses prices remain unchanged but are stronger, in keeping with the strength of the raw sugar market.

COTTON ROPE ADVANCED

Montreal.

COTTON ROPE.—Following the advance in cotton twine comes an advance in cotton rope. Prices are three cents higher on all lines. 3/16 are now 42c. and ¼ in. 41c.; 5/16 and ⅜ 41c.

STRAWBERRY PRICES LOWER

Montreal

FRUIT.—Strawberries are now cheaper than they were all last year. Indications are for a still lower price. The quality of the Canadian berries is good. Melons are a little easier and the prospect for Montreal melons is also good although the recent cooler weather has set them back. Lemons show signs of an advance and some prices are up 50c. this week. Next week more California fruit are expected. Canadian cherries should be on the market shortly. The prospects are good for all domestic lines so far.

ADJUSTMENT IN STARCH PRICES

Montreal.

PACKAGE GOODS.—While there is no change in starch prices, according to manufacturers, most of the wholesalers lists shows an advance since they are now readjusting their prices after the recent cut. They are now adhering to list prices which make celluloid starch $3.80 per case and enamel laundry starch $3 per case. Canada laundry starch is quoted at 7c. per lb. in bulk. Benson's corn starch in 40 lb. boxes is quoted at 9c. per lb. Kellogg's toasted corn flakes, both the waxtite and the green package, are now quoted at $3.45 per case. There is a good demand for prepared package cereals and the market is strong. In reality there is no change in quotations on package goods this week.

CREAM OF TARTAR LOWER

Montreal

SPICES.—The feature of the spice market is a slight decline in the price of pure cream of tarter. This quoted in 5, 10 and 20 lb. boxes is 42c. per lb. a reduction of 3c. and pails of 75 lbs. are quoted at 41c. per lb. The spice market is more active due to the natural increase in the seasonal demand. Buying shows some improvement in the wholesale trade.

LOCAL VEGETABLES PLENTIFUL

Montreal.

VEGETABLES.—Local vegetables coming on the market in good quantities have resulted in most prices dropping considerably. Beets and peas are lower. Local cabbages have cut the import price practically in half. Local lettuce both curly and Boston has shut out the imported stock and prices are lower. New potatoes are also down in price. Mississippi tomatoes are down to $2.25 for crates running from 16 to 18 lbs. Local cucumbers are also on the market.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, June 21.—The outstanding feature in general grocery commodities, is the continued strength in the sugar market. Three refiners announce another advance while one other has withdrawn from the market and another, although still quoting at the old basis is not a free seller. Rolled oats are in a strong position under a heavy demand. Canned vegetables and fruits show little change while Norwegian sardines for the new pack have a strong tone with a likelihood for an advance. One brand of package dates are quoted at a higher price. There is some change in the price of cornflakes while rices are firm under a light enquiry. Trading in nuts continues quiet with the market developing no particular item of interest during the week. Teas maintain a strong tone with local quotations revised upward. New potatoes are easier while domestic vegetables and fruits are commencing to make an appearance. Flour and millfeeds are quoted lower.

CEREALS QUIET AND STEADY

Toronto

CEREALS.—The market for bulk cereals with the exception of oats, continues steady. The demand for this class of cereals is quiet at this season with buying of a hand-to-mouth character. Rolled oats remain strong under an active demand with quotations generally at $3.35, although some wholesalers continue to quote at $3.25 apparently anxious to clear out stocks purchased at the lower basis.

NEW SARDINES LIKELY HIGHER

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS.—Vegetables and fruits show no change as compared with a week ago. New pack of strawberry jam is now being booked, but a definite price is not yet announced. The price will probably be around 90c for fours. There are indications that the new pack of Norwegian sardines will open at slightly higher figures than now being quoted on last season's goods. This is attributed to the late pack and the fact that production is not materializing as at first expected.

Toronto

DRIED FRUITS.—Advices from California are to the effect that the 1922 crop of prunes will be smaller than at first estimated, in fact, not more than 70 per cent. of normal. Opening prices on the new crop which have been quoted by some of the independent packers are firmly held and some are of the opinion that these prices will be advanced. The association has not yet named opening prices but are expected to do so about the first of next month. The local situation on prunes shows no change, but the demand still continues good. Other dried fruit quotations show no change with the exception of Excelsior dates, which are advanced to $4 per case.

READJUSTMENT IN CORNFLAKES

Toronto

PACKAGE GOODS.—The demand for breakfast foods of a cooked character continues active while the heavier cereals appear quiet. FURTHER ADVANCE IN SUGAR

Toronto.

SUGAR.—Refined sugar continues in a strong unsettled position. Two refineries announced advances since we went to press a week ago. On the 14th the Canada and Acadia advanced to the basis of $6.75 Montreal or $7.09 delivered Toronto. On the 17th, Acadia announced a further advance of 25c, making the Montreal basis $7 and jobbers' prices Toronto $7.34. The Atlantic has withdrawn from the market while the St. Lawrence, although still quoting on the Montreal basis of $6.50, it is understood that they are not free sellers. The consumptive enquiry continues active but all refiners appear to be two weeks behind in shipments. The Dominion is quoting at $7.03.

STRONG TEA MARKET

Toronto

TEAS.—The market as a whole continues to indicate a strong position. Advices from Colombo indicate a rising market but the quality has considerably improved. The Japan market which opened at about four cents over last year, is now showing evidence of a shortage, especially in the lower and medium grades. In the spot market, a higher range of prices is noted.

LOCAL FRUITS ARRIVING

Toronto

FRUITS.—The strawberry season is now in full blast. Shipments have been fairly heavy but by the end of the week they will be considerably larger. The crop is a good one and consequently with the heavier arrivals prices have been dropping. As we go to press, strawberries are selling around 12c to 15c per box, but some of a poorer quality were sold at 11c per box. Green gooseberries and red cherries are also commencing to make an appearance. Oranges are firm while lemons are steady at the higher price of $6 per case. A shipment of Florida pineapples have arrived and are quoted at $7.50 per case for 24s and 30s. California cantaloupes are offered at $9.50 for standards and $3.50 for flats.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, June 21.—The feature of the grocery market has been the advance on sugar following the stronger tone prevailing in the raw markets, and the tendencies are for higher prices in the near future. The tea and coffee markets continue to show strength, with some brands of package teas advanced. Cereals show little change other than a continued firmness in bulk rolled oats. Rices are unchanged under a quiet demand but primary markets continue with a firm undertone. Canned goods are in good demand and the new pack will be arriving on a comparatively bare market. Prunes are in good demand with quotations well maintained. Vegetables are moving freely under easier prices.

COFFEE PRICES UPWARD

Winnipeg.

COFFEE.—Prices on coffee have advanced from ¼c to ⅜c, and there is an improved demand in sympathy with the general situation. Supplies of Brazilian coffee are rapidly cleaning up. Grinders continue to buy in small quantities.

CANNED GOODS STEADY

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS.—There is little change in the canned goods situation. Salmon is finding fair sale and as spot stocks are getting low higher prices on the new pack sockeye and pinks are expected. Summer pack lobsters are expected shortly. Sardines both domestic and imported are in good demand at unchanged prices. Canned vegetables are in good demand and several lines such as fancy peas and fancy corn are practically unobtainable. This condition also applies to several lines of canned fruit.

PRUNES IN DEMAND

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS.—Prunes are the feature of the dried fruit situation. The general idea is that prices are too high and in consequence little interest is shown. Prunes on the local market are in good demand due to the strengthening of the California market. Peaches and apricots are offered by packers at higher levels but no real buying for future has taken place. Raisins show no improvement and continue weak. Indications point that all old crop will be cleaned up before new pack is available.

ROLLED OATS FIRM

Winnipeg.

CEREALS.—Bulk rolled oats continue to rule firm and some wholesalers who have sufficient quantities on hand are giving the trade the benefit of purchasing same at lower quotations than the millers are asking. Just as soon as these are cleaned up millers' prices of $2.95 will go into effect. No changes have occurred on package cereals.

WELL EQUIPPED STORE

said that they would not be able to handle coal oil if they did not have such an apparatus, on account of the class of trade. It might seem remarkable perhaps that there is still considerable coal oil being sold in cities. Mr. Glover says that their sale of oil is on a fairly big scale and especially during the summer months, as a great deal of it is bought by campers.

In the warehouse there is also a full size water tank with gas heater attached for the purpose of giving the store plenty of hot water at all times, for which there is always a great use around a grocery store. It is a fine asset.

A large portion of the Glover business is conducted over the telephone, thus making a great many credit customers. To handle upwards of 250 accounts meant the adoption of a book-keeping system that would not only be speedy but accurate as well. A credit register was therefore installed. The system is the duplicate system. The balance of the account is carried forward every time a purchase is made and as one copy goes to the register and the other to the customer, the latter knows each time a purchase is made, the amount of the account.

"The credit register system certainly shortens our labor by many hours," remarked Mr. Glover. "The account is always ready, and when the end of the month arrives, all we have to do is to render a statement showing the total amount of the account only. This work probably takes about three hours whereas the old system of rendering a detailed statement, would require several days. Then again we have less dissatisfied customers because they see every day, what they owe. It also has a tendency for customers to pay more promptly."

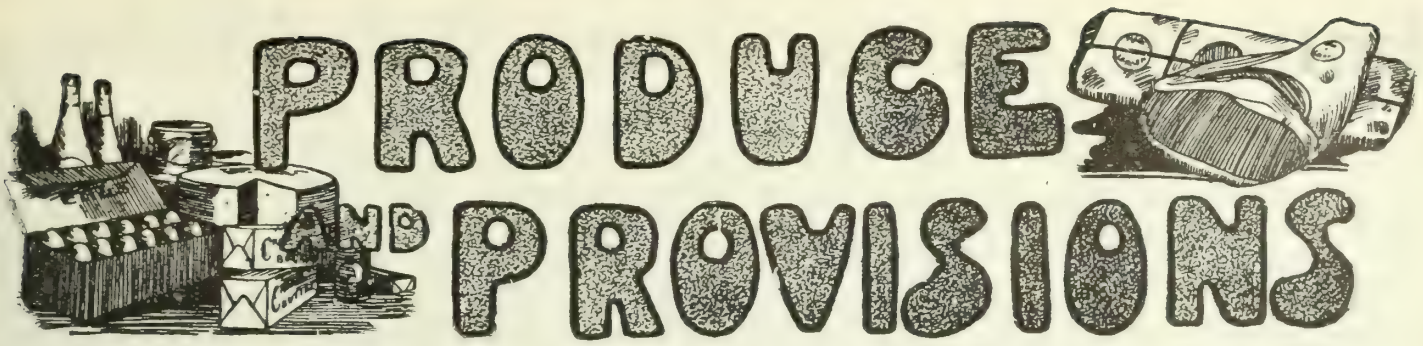
"How do the customers like the system? Do any of them object to it?" inquired the Canadian Grocer Representative.

"At first we did have complaints from some customers. They said they did not like the maids to know their business. I explained to them that the reason I was using the system was to lessen our labor and now these same customers are the ones who like the system the best."

Unique Refrigeration

The system of refrigeration is also worthy of mention. Although the Glover store only handles smoked and cooked meats, a large quantity of butter, fresh vegetables and fruits are handled which are all more or less perishable and call for a certain amount of refrigeration. At the rear of the store is a large square refrigerator, ice cooled in summer but by an ingenious system of out-door cooling during the cold weather. For the latter purpose, there is a tile about six inches in diameter, running from the bottom of the refrigerator and extending through the wall of the building to the outside. The top of the cooling box is connected in a like manner, but leading to a chimney. The chimney acting as a draft, draws the cold outside air, through the bottom pipe, up through the refrigerator and thus a current of fresh cold air is constantly circulating. This idea has meant the saving of many dollars in ice bills.

Another refrigerator is located, immediately to the left, upon entering near the front entrance. This refrigerator has an all glass front, and extends from the floor nearly to the ceiling. The interior is fitted with shelves made of open wire work and enamelled a white color. It is ued entirely for displaying poultry and fruits and vegetables of a perishable nature.



Display of These Lines Essential

Glass Enclosed Counters Maintained At An Even Temperature Permit of Tempting Displays of Foodstuffs in Decker's Delicatessen on Bloor Street W., Toronto—"Success Depends on Proper Display and Keeping Stuff in Proper Condition"

"THE WHOLE secret of the success of a place of this kind is proper display, and keeping stuff in proper condition."

That is the way R. W. Decker, proprietor of Decker's Delicatessen, Bloor Street, W., Toronto, spoke in referring to his business, the character of which is comparatively new in the city of Toronto. Mr. Decker has only been established in Toronto since the first of the year, but considering the idea is somewhat new in the Queen City, it has taken very well, and Mr. Decker is more than pleased with the increasing volume of sales.

Good Equipment Essential

"Equipment of the right kind is essential to the carrying on of this business," Mr. Decker continued. "We have to display our delicacies to the very best possible advantage. It is in presenting them in the most attractive way that we can build up our sales." As one enters this store the first impression is that of extreme cleanliness and order. On either side, almost the entire length of the store are glass-enclosed refrigerator counters. A tempting array of the choicest of edibles is shown under glass. "The refrigeration of these showcases is maintained at an even temperature all the time," Mr. Decker remarked. "From a refrigerating plant at the rear, pipes are connected with the counters, and our foodstuffs can always be kept in first-class condition."

"We carry only foods of the very first quality. We demand high prices for our lines, but we find that people realizing the quality do not object to the price. Cooked meats, salads, pastry, sausages of many varieties, delicacies representing a wide range to suit the discriminating tastes of the connoisseur in foods, are all to be had in this delicatessen. Many of the lines carried are prepared on the premises, a Belgian baker and Swiss chef being constantly employed in the preparation of foods. Kitchen equipment is complete to render the best possible service in this regard.

Care in Selling Bacon

"Our sales of bacon have been running 300 pounds a week," Mr. Decker told Canadian Grocer, in discussing the sale of the same. "Great care is taken in preparing bacon for sale," he added. "We get a good price for the same, higher perhaps, than in the majority of instances, but our patrons know it is the best that can be bought. We always have it displayed as you see it here, and that is a big factor in its sale. The rind is removed from it, and it is all sliced at an even thickness. Our slicing machine, is, as you see, right up at the front of the store, at one side. We think this is the proper location in the store for it. It is convenient to the showcase where the bacon is shown, and customers can see for themselves the care we take in slicing and preparing bacon for sale. We handle only the one brand, and our sales are mostly in half pound lots. The ends of the sides are never offered for sale, but are used in baked beans."

Going After Coffee Trade

Mr. Decker is paying a good deal of attention to his coffee trade, and is endeavoring to build up a reputation for coffee, that he declares will mean a Display is important in the conduct of a delicatessen, and it is evident from this illustration that effective displays are made the most of.

Decker's Delicatessen, on Bloor Street, West, Toronto, has been in operation for the past seven months, during which time business has shown a steady increase.

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, June 21.—The feature of the provision market is the higher prices quoted on butter, as a result of an improved export market. Wholesale prices show an advance of two and three cents a pound. The cheese market is also strong but there is no advance as yet. Eggs show further weakness and the prospect of still lower prices. The production is keeping up well. The hog market has fluctuated during the past week but prices are about at the level of one week ago with a little firmer tone. Fresh killed hogs remain steady and no change is expected. The bacon market has been more quiet and until the weather warms up little activity may be expected. Prices are in a firm position and an increase in the demand will likely cause an advance in price. Cooked meats are quiet with a steady tone. The lard market is quiet without any change in price. Fish prices show no change with a good seasonable demand for halibut and salmon.

BUTTER PRICES ADVANCE

Montreal.

BUTTER.—During the week there has been considerable activity and some excitement in the butter market, which was brought about by the demand that developed from English importers for supplies of Canadian creamery butter. This has created a keen competition between buyers and prices scored a sharp advance with sales of round lots of best grade made 7c per lb. higher than a week ago. Towards the close of the week, however, prices eased off and prices now stand at an advance of to 2 and 3c. Creamery prints are now selling at 37c and 38c per lb. and solid at 37c. Even dairy butter has advanced 2c per lb. and dairy prints are now quoted at 30c.

CHEESE SHOWS STRENGTH

Montreal.

CHEESE.—The feature of the cheese market during the past week has been a more pronounced strength with a better export demand, particularly towards the English market. The offerings here continue small as compared with last year and there is keen competition between exporters with prices showing a slight advance. There is no change in wholesale prices, however, but a strong feeling marks the market.

EGG PRICES LOWER

Montreal.

EGGS.—There is further weakness in the egg market with a decline of 1c per doz. throughout. Production is still large and big supplies are going into storage despite the fact that there is still a good demand for domestic trade. Local offerings are good and produce dealers predict even a lower price. Last year at this date selected fresh eggs were selling at 40c per doz. and new laid at 38c. Prices went even higher in the two weeks following. Specials are now selling at 34c and 35c and selects at 33c, with a weak tone to the market.

LIVE HOGS FIRM

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS.—The feature of the hog market has been a weaker feeling that prevailed during the latter part of last week and continues this week with a decline of 25c per 100 lbs. on selected lightweights. The market, in the early part of last week, showed strength with an advance equal to the present decline so that prices now stand at the same level as the opening price of last week. There is a fair demand for lightweight hogs and quotations on fresh killed stand at from 21 to 22c per lb.

LOBSTER FISHERMEN LOSE HEAVILY IN FIRE

St. John's, Nfd., June 19—All the supplies for the lobster fishermen along the coast for two hundred miles, and fifty-eight wooden buildings, were destroyed by fire which swept Woody Point, Bonne Bay, last week-end, according to word reaching here. Fishing supplies are being rushed to the west coast from St. John's. Eight dwelling houses were burned but no destitute cases have been reported.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, June 21.—Butter holds firm under higher quotations with a keen demand for storage still a factor in the situation. Cheese under a good storage demand and some export enquiry is firm with prices a shade higher. The only demand for eggs at the present time is of a consumer character, consequently the position is easy and although the production is slightly decreased it is not sufficient to strengthen the market. Lard is steady while shortening has a shade firmer undertone. Cooked meats under an increased demand are practically all advanced. Live hogs are steady at a higher basis of values. Fresh pork cuts are up one cent while smoked meats show no change in quotations in a steady to firm position. Poultry is easy and lower. Lower quotations are noted on whitefish but other varieties show no change.

BUTTER PRICES HIGHER

Toronto

BUTTER—The market continues strong with quotations again marked higher. Production is fairly heavy but storage operations are in full swing, taking care of any surplus and tending to hold the market in a strong position. The best grades of creamery prints are quoted at 37c to 38c per lb. while some of the special grades are bringing a slightly higher price.

STEADY HOG MARKET

Toronto.

FRESH MEATS—As we went to press a week ago the hog market was 25c down. This drop, however, was later recovered and continued for the balance of the week making the fed and watered basis $14.25 per cwt. There is a good demand at this price and the market as we go to press looks steady. On the other hand, cattle developed a weak tone attributed to heavy shipments of poor grass cattle and also to the fact that the consumer demand for fresh meats has somewhat fallen off.

WINNIPEG MARKETS

WINNIPEG, June 21.—The feature of the produce market has been the advance in the price of butter. Cheese has also shown a firmer tone and prices have advanced. Eggs are arriving in good quantities with prices unchanged. Cooked meats are in good demand with quotations higher. Smoked ham and bacon are in a strong position reflecting the condition of the live hog market. In the fish market there is little change other than a slightly lower price on fresh salmon. Hogs are ruling steady with no change in quotations.

BUTTER ADVANCES

Winnipeg.

BUTTER.—The butter market is showing a steadier tone and an advance has been noted. Light supplies are arriving from the country and which with the improvement in the demand, tends to steady the market. However this is thought to be only temporary. Best table creamery is quoted at 37c per lb.

BUTTER—
Creamery, best table grade		0 37
Creamery, solids		0 31
Margarine	0 22	0 25

CHEESE PRICES FIRM

Winnipeg.

CHEESE.—With the better demand for export the tone of the cheese market is firmer, and local prices have advanced. Ontario large is quoted at 17c per lb.

Ont., large, lb.	0 17
Ont., twins, lb.	0 16½
Ont., triplets, lb.	0 18

EGGS ARRIVING FREELY

Winnipeg.

EGGS.—There is no change in the egg market. Prices are fairly steady with a firm tone and a good demand for new laid eggs. The production is keeping up and heavy supplies are arriving. New laid in cartons are quoted at 34c per doz. and No. 1 candled at 22c.

LARD FIRM

Winnipeg.

LARD.—The market holds firm in sympathy with the hog market. Quotations are unchanged.

HOG PRICES STEADY

Winnipeg.

FRESH MEATS.—There is no change in prices on live hogs. Selects are quoted at $12.25 to $12.50 per cwt. The cattle market is slightly easier as with heavier receipts and a lighter demand buying is not brisk. The calf market continues dull and weak. A few spring lambs have arrived and are quoted at $12.50 to $14 with mutton sheep ranging from $6 to $7.

SMOKED MEATS STEADY

Winnipeg.

PROVISIONS.—Smoked hams and bacon are in a strong position reflecting the condition prevailing in the live hog market. Quotations on hams range from 28c to 39c per lb. and bacon from 26 to 45c according to quality.

good deal in a permanent and continued demand for it. He has an electric coffee grinder, and grinds the coffee for the customer as she asks for it. Only one grade of coffee is being handled, and an effort is being made to maintain a consistency in the blend, of which the customer is always sure. A good deal of coffee too is being sold in the whole bean, but chiefly to customers who have come from foreign countries.

Light Lunches Served

At the rear of the store, a soda fountain and lunch counter caters to a large number of people every day. Business men attend here for lunch every day, and in the evening a great many are served, who drop in for a cool drink or a light lunch.

During the summer months, Mr. Decker is serving picnic parties, and to this end, he is advertising 99 different varieties of sandwiches. Roast chickens especially prepared have a big sale in this store, and turnover of the same runs up as high as 250 chickens on a Saturday.

"There are people who want the best," remarked Mr. Decker, "if they know where to get it. We are endeavoring to provide the place."

The Tobacco with a heart

The Tobacco with a Heart of Gold

The retailer who stocks Macdonald's finds gold at the heart of his tobacco business. More money in Macdonald's is not only a phrase but a fact.

Extra profits and a rapid turnover make Macdonald's the best-paying line in this country to-day. Did you know that more Macdonald's is being sold than any other tobacco in Canada? And the demand is growing every day. It's worth-while to give a little prominence to "the tobacco with a heart."

NORWEGIAN SARDINES LOOK HIGHER

Indications are that the new pack of Norwegian sardines will be quoted at a higher price than the present price on last season's pack. The packing season opened this year about one month later than usual and the production is not panning out as large as at first anticipated. The situation in Norway is also vastly different to that of a year ago when stocks held there were large, resulting in lower prices and a more or less depression in the market. This year the season opens with no carry over of stocks and with the short packs canners have higher ideas.

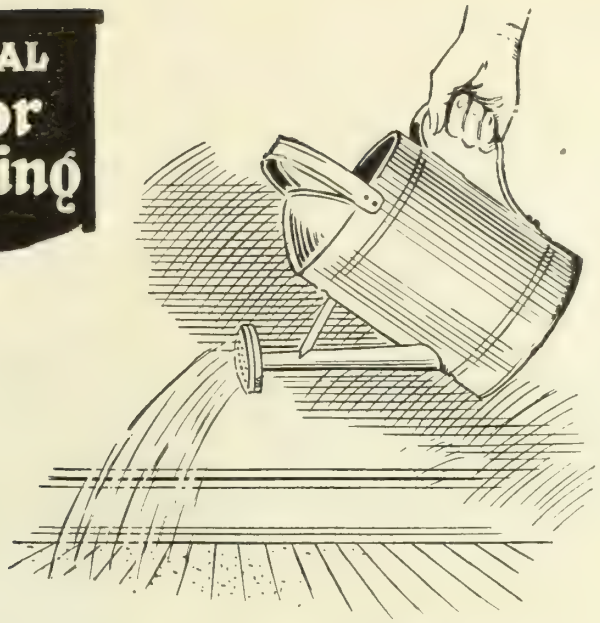
IMPERIAL Floor Dressing



There's a Better Way-

At best the sprinkling can only lays dust temporarily. If you would get rid of at least 90% of it permanently, use Imperial Floor Dressing. It catches and holds the dust on the floor, and regular sweeping with a stiff broom removes practically all of it, leaving your store clean, tidy and dust-free.

Imperial Floor Dressing cleans and preserves floors, whether of wood, linoleum or oil-cloth. It is non-evaporating and non-gumming, and spreads easily and evenly. One gallon will treat 500 to 700 square feet of floor surface, and one application will keep down dust for weeks.

Churches, schools, hospitals and public buildings, all require Imperial Floor Dressing. With your own floors as a silent salesman backing up a prominent display of the attractive containers, you can develop a large, profitable business in your territory. Let the Imperial Oil Salesman tell you more about it.

MACDONALD'S

When MacDonald's First was Known

There weren't so many brands of tobacco in Canada as there are to-day—not by a long way. Yet, in spite of all the various names that have come and gone in the past sixty years, the grand old name MACDONALD'S has always stood for the "best value in the best tobacco" in the minds of Canadian tobacco-users. So that to-day more men are buying MACDONALD'S than any other tobacco on the market.

There you have the reason why more dealers are making more money on MACDONALD'S than on any other tobacco. Wider margin of profit—extra profits from extra plugs in every 10 lb. caddy—these help, but the real profit on MACDONALD'S lies in the rapid turnover and the enormous demand for "the tobacco with a heart."

Borden's
MILK PRODUCTS

NOTICE—The Sales Tax is removed from Condensed Milk and Evaporated Milk. This will increase your turnover of these products.

Place a picnic hamper in your window filled with suggestions for picnickers, including an assortment of Borden's Celebrated St. Charles, the Milk "with the cream left in," Eagle Brand Condensed Milk, and Reindeer Coffee and Cocoa. Hundreds of grocers have found this plan not only increased their sales of Borden's high Standard Milk Products but also brought larger sales of other suitable picnic lines. Be sure your picnic hamper display contains a card suggesting the convenience and deliciousness of Borden's Products—they solve the milk question.

READ HOW THIS MONTREAL GROCER BOOSTED HIS PROFITS AND SALES WITH A UNIQUE DISPLAY OF

ROYAL
Salad Dressing

A short time ago the Walter Paul, Cash and Carry Grocery of St. Catherine St., Montreal, held a display and demonstration which lasted a week. Customers were invited to sample dainty tomato sandwiches and a number of vegetable salads prepared with Royal Salad Dressing. The result was that most every customer who sampled, bought a trial bottle of either Royal Mayonnaise or Royal Salad Dressing, and throughout the week sales reached a surprising total. Not only did this method handsomely repay these aggressive merchants for their extra trouble during this display week but ever since the demand for this popular summer seller has been exceptionally brisk.

Why not get some of these extra profits yourself, Mr. Grocer, by putting in an attractive "ROYAL" window. You, too, will find it well worth any extra efforts. Your wholesale will supply you.

Quaker Talks

No. 1—Selling Package Rolled Oats in Summer

THIS is the season when Grocers who specialize in Quaker Rolled Oats, Tillson's Rolled Oats and Tillson's Aluminum Oats are many dollars ahead of those who take chances on uncertain bulk goods; and there can be no comparison in the satisfaction these package rolled oats give to the grocers' customers.

There is steady profit on these Quaker Quality Cereals, packaged at the mills—

—no loss in "down-weight"

—no loss of time in weighing and parceling as in bulk goods

—no loss in expensive wrapping paper, bags and string

—no loss as is always the case with the last few pounds at the bottom of a barrel which are unsaleable.

—no loss in unfilled orders.

Quaker and Tillson's Oats are especially effective in warm weather

—because of their superior keeping qualities

—because their goodness is sealed in

—because they come to you clean, fresh, uniform, milled and packed with proper care in the largest cereal mill in the British Empire and the most modern mill in the world —because they are backed by the reputation of the greatest cereal company in the world

—because they give you a quick, reliable turn-over

You can sell cereals in summer if you have the right cereals—Quaker Oats, Tillson's Rolled Oats and Aluminum Oats—and other Quaker Cereals like Puffed Rice, Puffed Wheat and Quaker Corn Flakes.

Any wholesaler in Canada, from coast to coast, will give you immediate delivery of Quaker Quality Cereals, at a price that will give you a good profit.

No Power to Institute Civil Action

Mr. Justice Orde in Rendering His Decision in the Case of the Attorney-General of Ontario Against the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association, and Certain Manufacturers, Dismisses the Action—"Unfortunate That Judgment is Not Given on Merits of Case," Says A. W. Roebuck, Counsel for Attorney-General

TORONTO, June 26.—Judgment has been delivered by Mr. Justice Orde in the civil action brought by the Attorney-General of Ontario against the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association, and against the defendants, E. W. Gillett Co., W. C. Macdonald Regd., Inc., St. Lawrence Starch Co., and the Canada Starch Co., Ltd. In brief His Lordship declares that the Attorney-General has no power to institute such an action. Therefore he dismisses it with the plaintiff having to pay costs. The action was heard on February 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18, and on April 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 of last year.

The Plaintiff's Claim

The statement of claim on the part of the Attorney-General in his action, that all or some or certain groups of these defendants have done certain things or have agreed or conspired among themselves or with others to do certain things which it is alleged constitute an unlawful trade combination or agreement, and have also entered into certain alleged unlawful agreements as to prices of certain articles. The plaintiff seeks a declaration that the defendants or some of them have entered into such an unlawful trade combination to the injury of His Majesty's subjects, and that this alleged trade combination should be dissolved. He asked for an injunction restraining the defendants from continuing to act in pursuance of such trade combinations. He also sought a declaration that the alleged price agreements are unlawful, a dissolution thereof and an injunction from continuing to act in accordance therewith.

Counsel for the Attorney-General based his contention that the alleged acts were unlawful largely because they were of a criminal nature, and he also claimed that they were unlawful at common law, and that the Attorney-General could on behalf of the public obtain the relief sought here in a civil action because of the illegality of the defendants' acts on both or either of the grounds alleged.

Cases Are Different

His Lordship in delivering his judgment, in part stated:

"In determining the right of the Attorney-General to bring this action, no real assistance is afforded that I can see, by citing cases in which a private individual has obtained an injunction because in every such case, the individual private rights must have been injured or threatened before an injunction should be granted.

In addition to the class of cases quoted, many cases were also cited in which the Attorney-General on behalf of the public obtained relief by injunction, but when examined they will be found to fall within certain well defined principles. They are either actions to restrain public nuisances or against corporate bodies to compel them to comply with the terms of their charters.

In all cases of public nuisance an individual who is specially damnified can recover damages quite apart from the right of the Attorney-General to restrain the nuisance on behalf of the public. But in the present case there is no wrong done either to an individual or to the public beyond the fact that the acts or contemplated acts of the defendants, otherwise lawful as contended by the Attorney-General, are declared to be criminal. The mere fact that no action of a precisely criminal nature has been brought before, either here or in England is no ground for holding that no such action will lie. But I cannot see on what principle the court can grant an injunction to restrain what is alleged to be a contemplated crime where no public or private right existing independently of the provisions of the criminal code is invaded or threatened.

Board of Commerce Ultra Vires

The defences of res judicate by reason of the proceedings before the Board of Commerce, and by reason of the effect of the Board of Commerce Act, and of the Combinations a Fair Prices Act of 1919 have been very fully argued. Apart from the fact that my judgment as to the right of the Attorney-General to bring this action renders it unnecessary to deal with this branch of the case at all, there is the effect of the judgment of the Judicial committee in the Board of Commerce Act 1919, 1921 1 A. C. 191, holding that the jurisdiction intended to be conferred upon the Board of Commerce was ultra vires. This would seem to dispose effectively of that defence. All parties were anxious that nothwithstanding any decision against the status of the Attorney-General in this action, I should declare a judgment upon the merits, declaring whether or not the acts complained of were in contravention of the provisions of section 498 of the criminal code.

Can Have No Civil Action

It is of course apparent that if they do not infringe section 498, the plaintiff fails in any event. I have consulted some of my brother judges as to the expediency of determining in a civil action whether or not the acts complained of constitute a crime and they agree that it would not be proper for me, no matter how much the parties may desire it, to make a finding on the question, which is a mixed question of law and facts. I am clearly of the opinion that no civil action lies at the suit of the Attorney-General. Any such finding would tend to embarrass any other court in case criminal proceedings are instituted. In view of this expression of opinion I feel that I ought not to express any opinion upon the question of the criminality at all.

Being of the opinion, therefore, that no such action as this lies at the suit of the Attorney-General, the action will be dismissed with costs.

Decision on a Technicality

"Attorney-General Raney is out of the city at the present time, and it will be the beginning of next week before I can consult with him," A. W. Roebuck, counsel for the Attorney-General told a representative of Canadian Grocer. "However, I am preparing a memorandum for him on his return."

"Have you anything to say in regard to the judgment?" Mr. Roebuck was asked.

"I think it is very unfortunate the decision has been rendered on a technicality, rather than on the merits of the case which cannot be avoided. His Lordship declares that the Attorney-General has no power to institute a civil action of this kind, and therefore does not express any opinion on any point brought up. I can't say just now whether we will appeal or not, until I consult with the Attorney-General. It is the first decision and we are not discouraged. It took a period of twenty years to make the Sherman Act in the U. S. A. effective. The judge intimates that the only recourse is to prosecute individuals under the criminal code, but this we did not wish to do. We preferred to get a decision in the Civil Court. It is very regrettable that no expression of opinion has been given on these questions, since they are of such very great importance, and all parties were anxious to have it. We will have some announcement to make as to our next course, when the Attorney-General returns."

Some of the members of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association when interviewed did not care to express any opinion on the judgment preferring that any such statement should come from their own solicitor, L. F. Hellmuth, K. C. who, when Canadian Grocer interviewed him, stated that he had not gone into the judgment as yet, but would carefully consider it in the next few days.

Are Protesting Changes In Freight Classifications and Minimum Car Weights

Wholesale Grocers Oppose Any Change That Will Make It More Expensive to Ship Grocery Lines—Representatives of Wholesale Grocers Now Conferring With Canadian Freight Association

MONTREAL (Special).—On Tuesday morning of this week representatives of the wholesale grocers of Canada met the special committee of transportation of the Canadian Freight Association to protest against an advance in the minimum car weights on grocery lines. Such an advance would virtually increase the cost of freight service for the grocery trade, so the wholesale grocers pointed out.

Introduces Deputation

Armand Chaput, president of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association introduced the deputation by saying that already the wholesale grocers found it difficult to make up car lots so as to take advantage of the present minimum car weight of 24,000 pounds. "To take advantage of these rates at the present time it means making shipments on consignment and over ordering which is very dangerous on account of the present strained financial conditions. We are opposed to any change in the present classification which will make it more expensive to ship grocery lines. The grocery business cannot stand it just now and we ask that the Freight Association deal fairly with our proposition and try to understand our position."

Many Manufacturers Present

Many representatives of Canadian and United States manufacturers were present and prior to the introduction of the wholesale grocers they had a conference with the committee of the Freight Association which was headed by the secretary G. C. Ransom. Sinclair Balfour, of Balfour, Smye Co., Hamilton, Ont., and Thomas Kinnear of T. Kinnear Co., Toronto, represented the western wholesale grocers. A. C. Pyke, secretary of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association of Canada was down from Toronto with facts and figures to lay before the committee.

To Make Grocery List

During the morning session it was decided that the wholesale grocers would make up a list of all the commodities handled by the grocery trade and submit the same to the committee for study so that an understanding could be come to in connection with a classified grocery list. At the time of going to press nothing definite in either side of the question had been decided and the conference is expected to carry on for the next day or so.

Makes Clearer Jam Regulations That Already Exist

In an article appearing in last week's issue on the jam situation it was stated: "It is expected that the new regulations which have been under discussion for some time, restricting the use of pectin to four per cent. instead of ten per cent. as formerly, will be effective for the new season's pack of strawberry jam."

The statement in regards to "new regulations' 'is not correct. The government has put forward no new regulations, but rather have been endeavoring to make clearer the definition of the regulations that do exist. The standards have always allowed the use without declaration in "pure jam" of fruit juice up to ten per cent. but this was such an indefinite wording that manufacturers did not appear to know just what it meant. The regulations did not permit the use of ten per cent. "pectin" in pure jam without declaration on the label.

The government has now defined the amount of "fruit juice" which may be used on the basis of "75 per cent. of added pectin" in the finished jam and give a method for determining this amount of pectin. This standard is worked out and based on pectin, which allows the use of four pounds of pectin in one hundred pounds of jam or its equivalent in "crude apple juice." In fact, there is absolutely no change over what formerly existed but merely a defining of an indefinte wording of the former regulations.

Foodstuffs in Cold Storage Plants During Month of June

Ottawa, June 26.—A report on the cold storage holdings for the month of June, 1922, issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, is as follows:

The butter in storage amounts to 2,802,073 pounds of creamery, and 107,622 pounds of dairy. Comparative figures show this to be a decrease of 1.33 per cent. in each case of creamery and 64.066 per cent. for dairy as compared with the corresponding month last year.

Oleomargarine stocks are now 121,739 pounds, a decrease of 53.24 per cent. from last year.

Cheese in storage amounts to 5,907,979 pounds, an increase of 112.27 per cent. from last June.

From last June, cured beef decreased 38.09 per cent. from last year; in process of cure increased 39.41 per cent. from last year.

Stocks of mutton and lamb are 757,659 pounds of frozen and 34,088 pounds not frozen. Comparative figures show frozen stocks to have decreased 74.98 per cent. from last year, not frozen stocks decreased 35.50 per cent. from previous year.

Fish stocks show 8,571,068 pounds in cold storage and 820,991 pounds other than cold storage. The total of 9,392,059 pounds is a decrease of 46.04 per cent. from last year's holdings.

Milk stocks show 1,284,640 pounds of condensed milk, 4,172,252 pounds of evaporated milk, 25,122 pounds of whole milk powder, and 1,439,588 pounds of skim-milk powder.

Apples in storage show 1,102 barrels

Should be Selling for the Future Too

This Clerk Believes That in Dealing With a Customer His Idea Should Not Be Just to Sell Her To-day, But to Secure Her Patronage Permanently for the Store—Let the Clerks Know Costs of Merchandise—Increases Their Interest In It

"MY IDEA is to make people feel as much at home in this store as I possibly can." That is the way a clerk of many years' experience in the grocery trade, and now employed in the store of A. G. Bain, King Street, Hamilton, expressed himself, when a representative of Canadian Grocer asked him about his ideas of selling customers. "It isn't just what we are going to sell a person to-day," he added, "but we must also have the idea in mind of selling for the future. For instance if a customer asks for a certain line, and you do not happen to have just that particular article requested, the natural tendency is to suggest something else that perhaps you are convinced is just as good as the one specified. Observance of the customer is essential at this stage. It may be evident that her mind is not on the article you are suggesting, and apparently she does not wish to take anything but the one asked for, feeling that the one offered in its place is just not the thing she desires.

A Time To Stop Talking

"There is a time for the clerk to stop talking and it is just here. Make the customer feel you have her interests at at heart at all times, but being over zealous in an effort to make her buy something she does not want, sometimes antagonizes her and turns her from the store. In most instances, in my experience, the average customer will take the clerk's word that such an article is just as fine as the one asked for, but the point is, that there are occasions when a clerk anxious to make a sale makes it appear to the customer that he is overruling her judgment, and consequently she does not like it. In endeavoring to make a sale of this kind, the salesman or saleswoman must be convincing but in a tactful, advisory sort of way.

"In this store clerks have their own particular customers, whose wants they specially look after. When they come into the store they go to the clerk who always attends to their wants. When they call on the telephone they are given their usual salesman. I think this system gives the clerk a better opportunity to study the customer. We know the little things that particularly please certain people. Just this morning we received a shipment of fowl. I know a lady who always likes to get chickens when we have them, and I telephoned her, with the result that a sale not only of these chickens was made, but also of other lines. The customer appreciates service of this kind, and the fact that a clerk interests himself in his clientele to this extent, establishes a confidence between his buying public and himself that means much to the permanent patronage of the store.

"Knowing your customers is a great advantage in the way of introducing new lines. We are constantly selling goods that we have not previously carried, and I might say, with a good deal of success. For the past few days we have been 'pushing' the sale of a certain beverage that has only recently come on the market. The past couple of days have seen our first sales of it, and we have sold about ten people. This is a very good beginning and we expect that during the warm weather it will enjoy a very brisk demand.

"We suggest these new goods to our customers both at the counter and on the telephone. Here is another line that we are just beginning to sell," he added, as he held up a bottle of a certain preparation. "We have sold three cases of it in the past two days. During the noon hour to-day I have sold twelve bottles. It is going to be a big seller during the summer months."

Another clerk in this store expressed the opinion that an important thing for the clerk to give some thought to, is that of a proper approach to a customer. His manner of greeting her should be such as to indicate an evident desire at once to look after her needs as courteously as possible.

Co-Operation Like This Valuable

A grocer very often gets encouraging assistance from his clerks, H. Denny, Brackendale, Toronto, told Canadian Grocer recently. "People are constantly looking for something new," he added. "Replenishing stock from time to time is only made possible by selling and by inspiring the clerks with the idea of getting rid of the stock, they work faster and harder to make sales. They too become tired of seeing the same stock on the shelves and feel they must get rid of it.

"Recently a firm in filling an order for me, sent me a case of a certain sauce that I had not asked for. I felt a little annoyed about it, but one of the clerks suggested that we get busy and sell it. It was actually sold in three hours, and we have more than doubled our order for this one line. Co-operation such as this is very valuable in building business."

Let Clerks Know Costs

Discussing the question as to whether a merchant should let his clerks know the cost of his goods, with George F. McVittie, general merchant at Wheatley, Ontario, who has also served as a clerk, he stated that knowing the invoice cost of merchandise increased the clerk's interest in the same. "A knowledge of the cost also prompted him to learn more about its original production, country of origin, etc.," he said. "He should know sales tax, freight charges, and overhead costs. In this way he understands why a certain 'mark-up' is necessary to success, and encourages them to sell at what they know are fair prices. Of course this does not apply to inexperienced or temporary salespeople."

Direct Service Now From Montreal to the West Indies

Montreal.—A new development in the transportation field, which should interest manufacturers who are shipping goods to the West Indies and Central and South America, is the recent formation of Canadian Industries, Limited, a company organized for the purpose of distributing Canadian products in the American West Indies, Colombia, Venezuela, Panama, Central America and Mexico. The company will not only act as export agents but will carry on their line of steamships any goods which may be consigned to ports in the territories mentioned. They have appointed agents in all these countries to look after the sale and distribution of Canadian goods.

Weekly sailings from Montreal have been scheduled for June and will probably continue throughout the season. The first sailing was made on June 4th by the S. S. Berlin which cleared with a full cargo consisting of cement, carbide, wheat, paints, barbed wire, galvanized nails, wrapping paper, and fish. The ship also carried a considerable number of samples. It will unload at Porto Rico and Colombian ports taking on a cargo of coffee and sugar for the return trip.

The company is well pleased with the early result of their venture. Their first boat was more than booked up. The opportunity afforded Canadian manufacturers of shipping via Montreal, thus avoiding the cost of rail haul to New York, is important and might well be taken into consideration by the producers of products which find a market in the West Indies and South America.

History of Trade Marks Begins in China

Such Value Was Placed On a Trade Mark By the Chinese That Any Infringement or Piracy Was Punished With Severity, an in Some Cases Even Death—Trade Marks Now Have Legal Protection

JUST at what date trade marks originated, history is not quite clear. One is inclined, however, to believe that they have been handed down from a time when few people could read or write, and usually marked their place of business with some distinguishing sign by a representation of a boar's head, white swan or a blue goose or some such signs such as are familiar to most of us to-day, as the three golden balls of the pawnbroker and red, white and blue poles of the barber.

About the earliest mention of them comes from China, in times of great antiquity. Such value was placed upon a trade mark by the Chinese in those days that any infringement or piracy were punished with severity, and in some cases even the death penalty was inflicted on persons found guilty of anything of the sort.

Now Has Legal Protection

It is therefore quite evident that from the very earliest times of which there is any record, it has been the custom of merchants to distinguish the goods of their own manufacture from those of their competitors by affixing to them some special symbol or device, by way of a trade mark. It is only since a comparatively recent date that an exclusive right to a particular trade mark has come to be recognized by the courts as property capable of being legally protected against infringement, and it is really only within the past fifty years that this right has obtained statutory recognition and the use of trade marks has been made the subject of legislative enactment.

About the earliest authentic instance of a successful attempt to restrain trade mark piracy was the case of Sykes vs. Sykes in 1824. Fraud was made the basis of the action. Deceit and fraudulent misrepresentation were causes of action well known to the common law. This was presumably the form of action most nearly suited to the form of circumstances of the case. If the merchant, despoiled of his trade mark, could not bring his grievance under the head of fraud, there was no other form of action available at common law.

A case which definitely established the principle that a trader has a good right of action against any person who wrongfully assumes his trade mark, even in the absence of proof of fraudulent intent, was that of Millington vs. Fox, decided in 1834. The decision in this case signalized the full recognition, at least in Chancery courts, of trade marks as property capable of legal protection.

In the Court of Equity in 1838, Lord Cottenham granted an injunction to restrain a defendant from infringement even though he had acted without fraudulent intent. But at the same date common law still held proof of fraud to be an essential for the action to be successful.

Trade Mark Registration Act

All of this goes to show that the question was receiving serious attention from the authorities, but the most important step in determining a real policy was not taken till 1875, when the Trade Marks and Registration Act was passed. The principles which it formulated have in the main been adhered to up to the present day. It was designed to afford protection to the trader on the one hand, and to the public on the other, against the abuse of trade mark rights.

A register of trade marks was established and placed under the control of the Commissioner, afterwards Comptroller, of Patents. Registration was not obligatory, but it was made a condition precedent to the bringing of an action for infringement of trade mark. After five years, registration was treated as conclusive evidence of the registered owner's title to his trade mark. In the interest of the public, on the other hand the Act required the publication of all registered trade marks and their definite appropriation to certain classes of goods, so that any member of the public might know, by inspecting the register, the precise features and scope of any particular trade mark for which an exclusive right of use was claimed. The Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act of 1883 expressly barred the use of geographical names and words describing or commending the quality of goods. "Bovril" was allowed to pass muster, but a word such as "Triticumina," as applied to wheat-meal bread and biscuits, was rejected as descriptive.

By the Trades Marks Act of 1905 a trade mark was defined by statute of the British Parliament as: "A mark used or proposed to be used upon or in connection with goods for the purpose of indicating that they are the goods of the proprietor of such trade mark by virtue of manufacture, selection, certification, dealing with or offering for sale."

Says There Will Be No Reduction In Raisin Prices Before Aug. 1

Present Holdover From 1921 Crop is 43,440 Tons, Which Is Less Than It Was At This Time Last Year by 12,308 Tons

FRESNO, June 27 (Special).—That there will be no reduction in the present price of raisins before August 1, the time for naming the new prices despite the fact that there is at the present a holdover of 43,440 tons from the 1921 crop, was the statement given out by Wylie M. Giffen, president of the Sun Maid Raisin Growers' to-day. Mr. Giffen pointed out that the holdover now is less than it was at this time last year.

In making his statement, the head of the Growers said in part:

"There have been numerous rumors to the effect that we will lower the price of raisins in the immediate future. These rumors have caused a great deal of misunderstanding and in order to clear up the situation we wish to make it clear that we will not lower the prices before August 1.

"An analysis of the figures shows that we have 12,308 tons less holdover now than we had at this time last year. There seems to be some uneasiness over the situation, and while it is not desirable, at the same time, it must be admitted that it is better than in 1921.

"From present indications, the market will probably absorb about 25,000 tons of this turnover before the new prices are announced, which will mean that we will enter the new season with a holdover of approximately 20,000 tons. This situation, while not a desirable one, gives no cause for alarm."

and 11,248 boxes, a decrease of 54.03 per cent. in number of barrels and 59.32 per cent. in number of boxes.

Lard stocks show 2,571,135 pounds, a decrease of 17.10 per cent. from last year.

Beef stocks amount to 9,501,886 pounds of fresh frozen, 3,301,007 pounds of fresh not frozen, 197,890 pounds of cured and 204,882 pounds in process of cure. Comparative figures show the following:

Fresh beef decreased 13 50 per cent. from last year. not frozen beef increased 14.45 per cent.

How These Trade Marks Started

Some of Them Just Happened, Some Are Composed of Letters or Words Taken From the Firm Name, While Nearly All Have a Little Story of Human Interest That Makes Their Derivation Interesting

ALTHOUGH the whole of the business world is surrounded with trade marks, with trade marks staring at the citizens in the street cars and the traveller inside the railway coach from the landscape without, with the merchant handling hundreds of trade marked articles during the course of a business day, with the little trivial designs on a package of scouring soap and breakfast cereals worth more to the manufacturer than the plant and machinery which produced them, little is realized to what extent the ingenuity of the manufacturer has been taxed to find the "one big idea" for a selling name. The majority of merchants take them for granted and little is known of the source from which they sprung, and their strange beginnings.

Some trade marks apparently just happened, some are composed of letters or words taken from the firm name, while others were not discovered quite so easily. All, however, have a little story of human interest, the telling of which to a prospective buyer goes a long way to link the buyer and the seller.

Naming a Toilet Soap

The art of soap making can lay claim to great antiquity. From the remotest time of which there is any record, the art of softening water, and of using with it some substance for the purpose of washing and cleansing appears to have been known and employed. However, a cleanser, corresponding in form to modern soaps, is not mentioned by any writer previous to the Christian Era.

The Elder Pliny, who died in the year 79 A. D. gives the earliest account of soap as having first been manufactured by the Gauls. They used it in both solid and liquid form. The first soap was a mixture of oils and wood ashes. Even at this late day, in the interior of Algiers, a soap is brought to market closely resembling descriptions of the ancient product. It is made from olive oil and lye, with a small content of water.

Although the Palmolive Company has been in the soap manufacturing business since 1865, it was not until 1898 that Palmolive was put on the market. It is a combination containing palm and olive oils and so is known to the trade as Palmolive.

The Colors in the Sunset

The manufacturers of "Sunset" soap dyes decided on this name because of the varied colors in the western sky as the sun is going down. The originator of it had in mind the rainbow but the rainbow has, correctly speaking, but three colors, red, yellow and blue these being the primary colors upon which all coloring is based. Searching from this incorrect simile, he began to wonder what had all colors, primary and tertiary shades, tints and hues, etc. Hence came the name "Sunset" soap dyes. This brand name is owned by the North American Dye Corporation.

Creamola — A Happy Thought

"Creamola" is the trade mark selected by a Scots firm for their products—custard powders, jelly powders, blanc mange, etc. Their Canadian representative, Donald F. Porter, when asked for the derivation of the term "Creamola," replied that it was "just a happy thought." It was chosen first for the custard powder. The Creamola Food Products Co. found it such a successful name they decided to use it for the brand name on all their products.

CREAMOLA

How O'Cedar Came

The Channell Company, when first organized was manufacturing a floor oil for large institutions. On experimenting in their laboratories they found that oil of cedar, if added to their oil preparations, acted as a disinfectant. After this addition, the natural name for their product was "Cedar Oil." After certain other experiments in their laboratories the Channell Company discovered the present O-Cedar polish. During a sales conference one of the Channell Company's representatives who was a bit of a wag, on being asked why certain customers were falling off, quoted as an instance of his difficulties, a merchant who stuttered very bady and who, when asked for an order, could not get any farther than O-O-O-Cedar. The salesman, after making several attempts to get his customer farther than O-O-O Cedar, had given him up as a waste of time. This explanation was regarded as quite a joke and the salesman was ragged about this O-O-O-Cedar customer for some time, until it suddenly struck the publicity manager of the Channell Company that the attachment of the letter "O" to the word "Cedar" not only added distinction to the name, but was exceedingly catchy and enabled them to register the present O-Cedar trade mark.

The Why of "Certo"

The Douglas Packing Co., Cobourg, Ont., make a product for assisting housewives in their jam, jelly and marmalade operations. It is named "Certo" and is fruit juice that makes certain that jams, jellies, etc. will jell without changing their flavor. The company state that the name really "just happened." The nearest English to "Certo" is "certain" from which word their trade mark was derived.

Wayagamack Trade Mark

The picture of an Indian maiden surrounded by the words "Wayagamack Pure Kraft" was suggested as a trade mark by the Indian word "Wayagamack" which, being interpreted, means "Round Lake." The original timber limits of Wayagamack Pulp and Paper Company are situated in the vicinity of this lake, hence the name "Wayagamack." "Kraft" is the Scandinavian word for strength. It has been used for many years in connection with this grade of paper.

Kolacafe a Combination

In the Soudan and other parts of Africa, the Kola Nut is largely used by the natives. They chew the nut when on long journeys. The Kolacafe trade mark is therefore derived from the ingredients, being a combination of coffee and chicory blended with the Kola Nut.

Name Derived from a Crest

Many trade marks have found their origin in heraldry or in the crest of the family of the founder of the firm. Few crests however are more authentic in origin than that of the Chase family from which the "Seal Brand" trade mark of Chase and Sanborn Co. Ltd., of Montreal has been taken.

This crest appears in a book of heraldry published by one of the colleges of heraldry in 1913. The story of how Caleb Chase, a descendant of the Chase family that came to the new world to seek their fortune and settled down in Virginia, reads like a romance. When a mere boy he moved north to Massachusetts and with a wagon and cart peddled seeds to the country stores in the district around Boston. Later he carried coffee.

At the same time in Boston a young man was peddling tea to the grocery stores. He was J. S. Sanborn. His business was on the same small scale as that of Caleb Chase but when the two accidentally met they determined to throw their fortunes and their energy together in one business. In that year, 1864, the firm of Chase and Sanborn was founded in Boston.

The Chase family crest seemed suitable for a trade mark and was adopted, with just a few changes so as to make it simpler. The wording under the creast is still carried, "Ne Sed Malis,"—yield not to misfortune—although on the trade mark the more modern spelling is "Ne Cede Malis." At one time the firm of Chase and Sanborn refused four million dollars for their trade mark.

Situated between Lakes

The "Interlake Trade Mark," was chosen because the factory is stationed on the point between Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. The trade mark consists of a conventional map showing the position of Merritton, by means of an arrow.

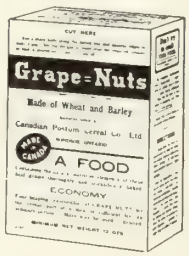
Nu-Jell

"Nu-Jell" is the trade mark selected by the Harry Horne Co. for their jelly powder. The manufacturers point out that when they decided to place this jelly powder on the market some three years ago, they naturally wanted a name for it. There were of course several brands offering at the time. This, therefore, was a "new" one. So it was decided that "Jell" would represent this jelly powder and by a happy thought the word "new" was condensed to "Nu", and "Jell" was added, making "Nu-Jell" which was registered at the time.

Som-Mor Biscuits

The origin of the trade name "Som-Mor," owned by the North-West Biscuit Co., of Edmonton, Alberta, is explained as follows: The management of the company who were the original promoters were selling a biscuit product previous to engaging in the manufacturing business themselves, the trade name of which was valued from an advertising standpoint by the company at one million dollars per letter. With six letters this made the total value six million dollars. Selling a product to which such a high value was given to the trade name, impressed itself very forcibly upon the salesmen, and these same men in organizing a new company feeling that no better asset could be built up than a similar trade name—catchy and to the point—used the name "Som-Mor Biscuit." It was taken from the word "Sumatra."

Origin of Grape-Nuts



Merchants generally are fairly familiar with the composition of Grape-Nuts but just how this product came to be called by that name is interesting. Grape-Nuts is made from a mixture of wheat, malted barley, salt and water. The mixture is raised by yeast, baked in loaves, then sliced, further baked, and finally crushed into granules. This long baking brings about the conversion of the carbohydrate elements, developing dextrine, maltose and dextrose or "grape sugar." The word "Grape" was therefore derived from grape-sugar. The word "Nuts" is purely fanciful and was chosen because the product has a nut-like appearance and flavor.

Sees the Advantage of Keeping Books Systematically

Vancouver, June 5—Present conditions are bringing out merchandisers of the very highest order, and business building schemes well worthy of emulation. The occasional "store keeper" whose cash book is his bank pass book, and his accounts receivable a myriad of fluttering slips hanging on an imposing array of nails, only provides contrast, as it were, for the large percentage of real food merchandisers at retail, who keep exhaustive and analytical records of their entire business from day to day.

"At one time, my argument against systematic book-keeping might have been that the cost would have been too great in proportion to the benefits to be derived," remarked a Vancouver merchant the other day to a Canadian Grocer representative. "I am now convinced in my own mind that the small expenditure of time and money, that it takes to keep books in the readily understood condition that they have this last few years, has been proved to be the best expenditure shown on my expense accounts.

"Is it not a fact that we hesitate to dig up the vital facts of our businesses some times, because we 'feel in our bones' that things are not just what they ought to be and we dread to face the facts? Facts are such stubborn things, but I am a firm believer in facing them, be they bitter or sweet.

"I think that consciously or unconsciously, that fear of facing an unpleasant truth is back of most of our reluctance to the installation of a more complete accounting system. Yet, as we all know, following the line of least resistance is what makes all rivers, and some men—crooked.

"For my part I have ceased to wonder why such and such a department does not produce results. Now I know absolutely! The satisfaction of knowing absolutely, and accurately just what you are doing—yes, and this is sometimes more important—what you are not doing, is well worth the trouble and expense involved in getting at the truth.

"By the use of the chart I find it quite easy to compare the percentages of the various factors that enter in between a gross mark-up and a net profit. If a man knows what his expenses of selling groceries have amounted to this month, over the same charge in the same month a year ago, he is better for knowing, even though he does not see what can be done about it. Many of the most serious leaks will be found to be disclosed by checking and comparison, and a leak found is well on the way to being plugged."

Eastern Ont. Retail Merchants Will Confer

Brockville, June 27 (Special).—Plans are under way for an important conference of Eastern Ontario retail merchants in Brockville on Wednesday and Thursday, July 19 and 20. The object of the meeting is to discuss a number of matters of vital interest to the retail trade.

James Lamb, representative for Bishop and Pringle, Owen Sound, suffered a stroke of paralysis, while on business in Port Hope the other day.

Are Not Fighting the Individual Grocer

President of Loblaw Groceterias, Limited, Toronto, Believes There is Plenty of Room for Both the Service Grocer and the Cash and Carry Man—Handle 60 Customers Every Hour on an Average Saturday in This Groceteria

Fifth of Series of Articles on Chain Stores

"THE INDIVIDUAL retail grocer has certainly got the wrong impression when he thinks that our idea is to put him out of business," stated T. P. Loblaw, president and general manager of the Loblaw Groceterias, Limited, Toronto, to a representative of Canadian Grocer. "When we first commenced the groceteria style of operating a retail grocery store, a certain class of the public appeared to want cheaper groceries and in order to get them at a lower price they were willing to sacrifice the service they were getting from the regular grocer. They had the cash to pay and were willing to carry the goods home. Our business has developed along that line. We buy in such quantities that will turn in a certain period, in the best market in which they can be obtained and as we do not give any credit or have delivery expense, we can certainly sell at a lower price than the store which has that part of the overhead to take care of.

Plenty of Room for Both

"No! We certainly are not fighting the individual grocer. There is plenty of room for both the store that gives all kinds of privileges in the way of credit, delivery and pleasant clerks to serve the customers, and also for the store of the cash and carry character. A certain class of people come to us, but on the other hand there is other class who demand more service than we can give and are willing to pay for it. In my long years of experience in the retail grocery business, I have found that one of the things individual grocers pay too much attention to, is that old adage "goods well bought are half sold.' There was never a more erroneous statement. Buying goods is easy, but it takes a real merchant to sell goods. I would say that the individual grocer should pay more attention to selling goods. Have a clean store with the goods nicely displayed. Give good service. Sell only dependable lines and at a fair price. Another thing is the matter of buying in quantities. There is no use in buying a quantity of any line, to save a litttle extra discount, unless that line can be moved off within a certain time. If it is not turned over quickly, that discount will be more than eaten up. The longer any line is kept on the shelves, the greater the cost of that line becomes. It is far better to take a smaller percentage of profit and turn the stock oftener, or buy in smaller quantities according to turnover. My opinion is that a merchant should not only be a good salesman, a good buyer, but also a good price setter."

The Groceteria System

The Loblaw Groceterias first commenced operations in Toronto about two years ago. The first store was located in the western part of the city. The system is what is generally known as the turnstile system. Customers emerge through the front door into what is styled a waiting room, where baby carriages, shopping bags, etc., can be "parked." The customer goes through a turnstile, picks up a basket and virtually waits upon herself. Every article is kept in a certain section and all goods are plainly marked with a price ticket. There are large signs directing customers to the various sections, so that if a customer wishes to purchase, say a can of tomatoes, she simply looks for the canned vegetable department. After making the purchase, the customer passes through another turnstile on the other side of the store, past the checker, who totals up the amount of the purchase and places it in a bag. All the stores are on the same plan and are very similar in appearance, both the interior and exterior being painted a white color giving them an attractive sanitary appearance. Bulk goods are parcelled and everything convenient and handy to get at, even to butter and cheese which are kept under glass in a refrigerator case.

87 People Every Five Minutes

As stated by Mr. Loblaw in the above paragraph, turnover is one of the important items in the operation of any store as well as the groceterias. It is interesting to note that the Danforth Avenue store passes through its turnstile 87 people every five minutes during a Saturday. There are five checking desks in this store and each desk has a checker who totals up the amount of the purchase and takes the money. There is also at each desk another man who receives the goods as checked from the checker and places the purchase in a bag. Each of these checking desks handles 120 customers every hour or a total of 600 customers for the five checkers, on an average Saturday. For one month, or practically speaking, 26 days, this one store totalled 34,833 cus-

Practise "Pay-as-you-go" Good Advice

Beginner in the Grocery Business Seeks Counsel—Limited Buying With Quick Turnovers Will Make Money Faster Than Starting on a Big Scale, Involving Credits and Heavy Expenses

By HENRY JOHNSON, Jr.

THIS letter deserves your careful study:

Pacific Coast, April 29, 1922.

Dear Sir:—I feel that "Dear Sir" is entirely too formal for you; for I have been reading your articles in Canadian Grocer for some time, and feel that I almost know you personally. And that isn't "guff." I am going to put my problem up to you, and if you have time and are willing to oblige, I would mightily appreciate an answer. I want to start in the grocery business, and intend to do so. My capital amounts to just $1,000. What I intend to do is start in some small town with a self-serve store. One reason is, I need less help in this kind of store. Another, because I would be able to sell goods at a lower cost than a regular service store could. I intend to handle package goods almost entirely at first, and only well-known, advertised lines. I would not be able to afford any fancy fixtures at first with my lonely thousand, but believe they would be an advertising asset. Later I would make my store efficient in every possible way. I have been a student of grocery merchandising for a long time and am really interested in it. I intend to follow your advice and know my business. I know how to keep my records straight, and how to figure margins, etc. I believe in small stocks and rapid turnover. Now if you had but one thousand dollars to your name and had worked hard to save it, would you start in this business?

No letter I have ever received has given me more pleasure or made me more conscious of responsibility than this one.

"Is it then a minor thing to be as a lamp to one man's feet?" No; to be a worthy lamp is high honor, and knowing that my answer was to be filed among the vital things of this man's life, I wrote with a diffidence not always felt when I handle some other letters that reach me.

The Value of A Thousand Saved Dollars

With full consciousness, therefore, of the tremendous value of a thousand dollars earned and saved—the accumulations of self restraint and self denial—I wrote promptly thus:

Mighty glad to know that any of my stuff has been useful to you. Under separate cover I am sending you two booklets which may prove helpful. Please do not get the idea that to answer any such letter can ever be anything but a pleasure and privilege. Capital of $1,000 is ample with which to start the kind of grocery store you have in mind. The first store in which I had any vital interest was started with $730 and in eight years the net resources were some $30,000. I know of no business in which a man can start with limited capital and make money so fast and so certainly as the grocery business, provided he knows his business, works inside the rules, works hard and intelligently and exercises ordinary common sense. Be careful of the town in which you start. Be sure you know about it and its possibilities before you start. Study your location very carefully. Make one of the shelves about thirty inches from the floor along each side of the store. You can put cases of goods under the shelves and by taking the tops off the cases, you can have a display of goods on top of the shelves above the cases, reserve stock under the shelves, and the whole business on display at the same time. Then you can feel your way along, adding one convenience after another as you find you have actual use for such things. I should open an account with a bank, put my money all in there and pay everything by check. Talk with the banker fully, tell him what you are going to do, give him a full account of your resources and expectations, and otherwise establish a standing.

Always Pay As You Go—Now and Forever

I believe you should limit pourself to a primary investment of not more than $400 to start with, and probably $350 would be sufficient. Pay your rent for a month and pay cash for everything, taking all discounts. Make it a rule never to buy anything for which you cannot pay spot cash—to get every discount. Never depart from that rule. I want to emphasize that word never. Later on you may expand into a large business and you may extend credit. Make your rule now, that if there is going to be any owing it must be what people owe you—never what you owe people. I have the feeling that any man who has "just $1,000 to his name and worked hard to save it" will very rapidly develop judgment in goods, sources of supply and values. I see nothing to criticise in your plans and my suggestions are made only as a supplement thereto. Write to me any time. Let me know how you get on. Put your problems to me whenever they may seem too puzzling and I shall always be glad to do the best I can to help you solve them.

Best To Go Slow On Stock And Fixtures

A few points I wish to emphasize further.

Men should be more careful where they open stores. Location should be studied from many angles both as to town and place therein. A man who is not loose and therefore free to locate in one place or another as he likes, should exercise great care to locate in a promising environment. He should not rent a store just because he finds it for rent. Probably that is a fine reason why you should not rent it—though that need not necessarily follow.

The pay-as-you-go plan is one any merchant can work on to advantage. Grocers everywhere are found who began business on sums varying from $10 upward. And this notable fact is prominent in every experience where the man begins at the bottom and succeeds at all. That he makes money faster the first year than ever again in his experience. Why?

Because during that first year his capital is so limited that he is compelled to buy everything in small quantity and pay cash for it. Having no resources, he is without credit. Having small capital, he must spread it thin. So he buys and sells, buys and sells, and over and over again, turning his capital rapidly, making a small net profit on each turn. He is constantly reminded of his costs by his frequent purchases, so is not apt to cut prices. Result is he makes money very fast.

Only when he has accumulated a surplus and begins to feel that he is headed toward Easy Street does he begin to swell up with the notion that now he is a "quantity buyer," and need no longer "fuss with small lots;" and just at that minute does he enter the danger zone in which he is mightily liable to meet disaster. In fact, new-fledged merchants and babies have one thing in common: it is mighty hard to get either through the second summer.

Be Old-fashioned; Go Slow

If you want to get the right slant on pay-as-you-go, reflect that business may be dull, times may be bad, the atmosphere may be blue. Your customers may all seem to be drifting to the cash-and-carry and collections seem "impossible;" you may be conscious that de-

Biscuits Bring More Trade to the Store

James Gammon of A. H. Gammon & Sons, Sarnia, Declares That a Good Assortment of Biscuits Properly Displayed Will Help Sales Generally Better Than Anything He Knows Of—Cabinets Provide Best Means of Display

"BISCUITS are certainly a splendid line to get behind," stated James Gammon of the firm of A. H. Gammon & Sons, Sarnia, and manager of the branch store, to a representative of Canadian Grocer. "A good assortment will bring more trade to the store than anything else that I know of. Biscuits constitute a line that is usually bought as an after thought, and if they are nicely displayed, customers are almost sure to take some home. If the biscuits are kept in proper condition and a good make is handled, people will come back for more and invariably buy something else. Then again there is a class of people who use biscuits regularly and they get to know when a biscuit is first class. They have a discriminating taste and are very particular about the biscuit they buy. This class of people, apart from being regular buyers of biscuits are also big entertainers. When they intend to entertain at their homes, I have noticed that they are more than ever particular about the biscuits. They want the biscuits of a certain size and flavor. Consequently to be in a position to meet the tastes of all classes of people, I find it necessary to carry a good assortment.

Illustrating the interior of the branch store of A. H. Gammon & Sons, Sarnia, Ont.

Display in Cabinets The Best Way

"The best way to display biscuits," continued Mr. Gammon, "is in a properly constructed cabinet. A cabinet with a false display front is the best. Customers see the style of biscuit without seeing the actual contents of the tin. A partly filled tin to my mind, certainly does not look appealing. A tin with only a few biscuits in it, gives the impression that those biscuits are stale and customers object to buying them. With the cabinet, this point is overcome. Another advantage is that it makes selling easier. A customer will pick out the kind of biscuits she likes. It is then a simple matter to pull out each compartment, take a bag and lift out the required amount.

"After the sale is made, the compartments are put back in place ready for the next customer. This plan sems better than the old system of piling tins one upon the other and the trouble of lifting them down to get at the bottom tin and the trouble and time spent looking for the particular biscuit that is wanted. Another thing about the cabinet is that there is less chance of losing track of a biscuit and of them becoming stale. The full assortment is right before the eye and it is just as easy to get at one line as it is another."

In the Gammon store there are two large biscuit cabinets. One is a wall case and the other a counter style. These cabinets are so placed that the customer upon entering cannot fail to be attracted to them. Biscuits are also often featured in the window display. Sometimes a complete window display of all biscuits and again at other times a combination of biscuit and fresh fruits. Sales of biscuits in the Gammon store are fairly regular. Some seasons of course, sales will probably be heavier than others but it is the aim of Gammon & Sons to keep up the sales and if they are found to be dragging a little extra effort is made to spur up the line.

ARE NOT FIGHTING INDEPENDENT GROCERS

tomers who had made purchases. During the same period, there were parcelled and sold 56,245 packages of various kinds of bulk goods. These packages were parcelled and put on the shelves ready for the customers at a cost of only 66-100 per cent. for each package.

It was mentioned above that 87 people pass in and out of the store every five minutes. This, however, does not mean that everyone of this number makes a purchase as it must be remembered that often two will go into the store but only one will make a purchase. Upon closely checking up this item it was found that out of every 1 000 people entering the store, 441 did not make a purchase.

Every Loblaw store is planned on a system, that is, so many square feet of floor space will take care of a certain number of customers consequently to give a fast service, a certain number of checkers are required. When the Danforth Ave. store was opened there were only four checkers. It was soon found, however, that the service was not fast enough. Customers were required to wait too long before they could check out To speed up the service another checker was added, but it was found necessary to sacrifice 25 square feet of shelving, this giving the store 3,000 square feet of floor space and five checkers.

There are at present nine stores in operation. Another store is in course of construction which will be opened about the end of July. Locations are also secured for three more, so that by the end of the year it is expected that the chain will be composed of thirteen stores.

Metcalfe Mills At Portage, Man., Burned

Portage la Prairie, Man., June 26—(Special)—The rolled oats mill of the Metcalfe Milling Company here, was totally destroyed by fire last week, and while no estimate is given out as to the loss, it will be considerable, as there was no insurance on the building or contents.

The fire was discovered shortly before 1 o'clock and as the flames burst out at the east end it is thought that it was the result of spontaneous combustion in the drying room.

The mill was built about 32 years ago by Johnson & Bartley, and manufactured rolled oats and mill feed

Why Not Permanently?

ACCORDING to an amendment to the Oleomargarine Act, brought before the House by the Hon. W. R. Motherwell Minister of Agriculture and passed upon, the importation and sale of oleomargarine will again be permitted for the term of one year dated from August 31. To the ordinary layman this seems rather a strange order when it is taken into consideration that when the oleomargarine question was discussed and voted upon a few weeks ago, the majority of the members voted to make the manufacture of oleomargarine permanent in this country.

Oleomargarine is a healthy article of food. It is manufactured strictly within the Pure Food Regulations and is demanded by the citizens of the Dominion. Then why should this one article of food be singled out and legislated against? And why did the Minister of Agriculture go over the heads of his colleagues—who by a stiff majority had voted to have oleomargarine made permanent—and bring in an amendment which simply permits citizens to use it for another year?

Not only is oleomargarine a food wanted by the people of Canada but the greater portion of the ingredients which go into its manufacture are products of the Canadian farms and it does not seem reasonable that the government should treat the question of its permanent manufacture indifferently.

Co-Operate With Clerks

DISCUSSING the subject of efficiency among clerks, a grocer who served many years as a clerk, before going into business for himself, declares that too many men behind the counters in grocery stores, show a dangerous independence. Sales people of this class rarely take time to study their customers, he says, and too often underestimate their intelligence. Then again, very frequently, in a burst of enthusiasm to make sales, they put forward selling arguments that are utterly ridiculous.

It is up to employers to take the proper interest in their staff, and salespeople of this kind, often possessing energy ideas and appearance that make them very valuable, should be taken in hand and properly trained. It is up to the employer to guide the development of his clerks, and see to it that they are given the insight into the business that will increase their interest and retain them in the service. He should be taught to give a little more time to each customer, even though it is the busiest hour of the day.

In another article in this issue one of the staff of a large store tells how a close study of the customer's needs is an important part of selling, and how he, by giving particular attention to individual customers, greatly increases sales.

Co-operation with the clerks, on the part of employers, inspiring an interest in the business, will get results in the way of greater turnover, that will be well worth while.

Will Increase Freights

THE PROPOSED re-classification in freight rates for grocery commodities will simply mean an advance in freights, in spite of the fact that merchants, manufacturers and the general public is demanding a lower freight rate, claiming that the principal reason prices to the consumer are not as low as they should be and as low as the cost of the raw material apparently warrants, is due to the high cost of freights.

Freight rates on grocery commodities at present are based on what is known as classification No. 16. The proposed classification is No. 17. On a car of canned goods the minimum weight allowed on classification No. 16 is 24,000 pounds but under the new it is 36,000 pounds, and although on car lots the rate remains the same, the merchant would be required to purchase a third more or approximately 200 cases extra in order to get the same rate as previously. The old rate on less than car lots was figured at the third-class basis, which on a distance of thirty miles from shipping point is 31½ cents per hundred. Under classification No. 17, the rate is named as 1st, 2nd and 3rd, depending upon the condition of packing, or in dollars and cents on a thirty mile distance, 40½ cents, 35½ cents and 31½ cents per hundred.

It is practically the same on the whole list. To get the same rate on sugar, the merchant would be required to purchase about one hundred bags extra or otherwise he would be required to pay the less than car lot rate.

No Postage Stamps on Cheques

WHATEVER the final decision of the Minister of Finance on the details of the stamp tax on cheques, it is essential that a regulation be incorporated in the Act prohibiting the use of ordinary postage stamps on cheques, as has been the custom since the tax of two cents was originated. Up to the present there has been no means of determining how much this special tax brought in. It is a safe guess that the majority of stamps used are ordinary postage stamps and that the revenue from their sale has gone into the receipts of the Post Office Department.

Now when there is a widespread protest sincerely raised by financial and other organizations that the new tax as proposed is unjust in its accumulative volume, there are no records to determine what the returns of the previous stamp tax of two cents has been, that might serve as a comparison for the Minister in determining what volume of revenue this new tax might fairly be called on to contribute. Whatever way it is settled the subject will continue to be controversial, and in the interests of those called on to bear the heaviest part of this burden it is only fair that a special stamp be used that will make the proceeds of the tax definitely known.

Editorials in Brief

"Cater to the best class of trade," of course, but don't let that keep you from catering also to all the other classes.

Don't hurry one customer because you see a better dressed one waiting for you.

Factors in increasing sales are knowing what is in stock, keeping track of new merchandise for the department, knowing when it will be in and listing the articles that are called for but are either out of stock or not carried. These are all important.

Richard Bray of Thornton and Co., Malaga, Spain, was in Montreal last week calling on the local representatives of the firm, St. Arnaud, Fils & Cie.

The Match Company Limited of Montreal and Berthierville, Quebec, entertained the wholesale grocers and the travelers of the firm to dinner in the Oak Room of the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, on Tuesday night of this week.

The out of town representatives of the firm of John T. McBride and company were in Montreal this week attending a conference of the firm. Among those from out of the city were W. H. Huxley of Winnipeg, R. G. Schoefield of St. Johns, James Kidd of Ottawa and Harry Pyke of Halifax.

Ontario

The 16th annual picnic of the Sarnia Retail Grocers will be held on Wednesday July 19 at Lake Huron Park.

A. G. Bain, grocer, King Street, Hamilton, is enjoying a motor trip to New York and Washington.

George Eady of Petrolia, has purchased a grocery and provision store in Sarnia.

A "Made-in-Stratford" exhibition was held last week when over sixty manufacturers had exhibits, 24,000 feet of floor space being utilized.

The death occurred in Kingston, last week of E. C. Gildersleeve, a former manager of the Kingston Milling Co. The late Mr. Gildersleeve was fifty years of age.

The retail clerks of Renfrew met recently, in support of the bylaw making Wednesday afternoon a half holiday in that town. W. C. Carruth was elected chairman, and W. A. Robertson secretary.

Mead, Johnson & Company, of Evansville, Indiana, have leased part of the old Toronto Furniture Company's building on Dufferin Street, Toronto, and expect to start manufacturing a line of infant diet materials, such as arrowroot flour, barley flour, etc., this month.

In connection with the half holiday observance in Peterborough, the suggestion was made that one grocer remain open ever yweek, in turn, as it was claimed that the country general stores were getting the business, that otherwise would come to the city. The idea was not looked upon with favor, it being felt that either all should close or all stay open.

Danforth Business Men Hold Monster Parade This Week

Toronto (Special).—The merchants in the Danforth Ave. district are great advertisers. The Business Mens' Association there has accomplished much in the way of increasing business by their slogan "Shop on Danforth for Less," which they have widely advertised.

Robert Dowson, a retail grocer of this district is on the committee of this business mens' association as well as vice-president of the Monarch Park Ratepayers Association. He is, too, secretary of the committee that had on hand the working out of the monster parade on Tuesday night which still further advertised the district. In connection with this event, the merchants are holding week of special sales, one feature being the boosting of "Made-in-Canada" products. The chief endeavor of the association is of course to get the people of the district to "shop at home." Their activity extends to several other fields. They want another viaduct across the ravine farther north from Bloor Street, a new railway station at Little York, an athletic field, etc.

Think British Trade Should Have Better Representation

Toronto, June 27.—The Federation of British Industries, with a membership of 20,000, and a combined capitalization of five hundred million pounds sterling, has interested itself in the erection of a British or British Empire building at the Canadian National Exhibition.

G. H. Locock, assistant director of the Federation and J. M. Mackenzie, head of the Empire section, were guests of managing director John G. Kent in an inspection of the grounds and buildings at the Great Fair recently, and later expressed strong views on the inadequate representation which British trade has had at the Exhibition.

They were particularly impressed with the show possibilities of the Arena, and thought the possibilities were bright for a large display there pending the time when the British building becomes a reality.

Must Have Advice on Parcels in Print

Sealed parcels of merchandise will now be accepted at parcel post rates within Canada, the Postoffice Department advises, provided the senders place thereon printed labels stating in a general way the nature of the contents. The label may, if desired, be combined with the address label, the label to be wholly in print other than the name and address of the addressee, and have printed thereon the contents, such as "merchandise, this parcel may be opened for postal inspection, if necessary." The endorsement of these words in writing or by means of a hand stamp will not meet the postal requirements. When desired, these words may be printed on with gum paper tape, which is sometimes used for sealing parcels.

The public is cautioned against placing unauthorized enclosures in sealed parcels mailed at parcel post rate of postage. Violation in this respect will not only lead to withdrawal of privilege of sending sealed parcels, but will result in the sender being fined for infraction of the postal regulations.

NEW GOODS

A New Concentrated Syrup

The White Swan Spices & Cereals Ltd., Toronto, are placing on the market a concentrated syrup of orangeade and lemonade. These are put up in eight ounce square bottles, each bottle will make about twenty glasses. It is packed four dozen to a case.

A New Ammonia Powder

Swans Down ammonia powder is a new brand on the market. It is put up in one pound packages, blue and white in color, and packed three dozen to the case. Manufactured by the White Cross Manufacturing Co., Toronto.

Table Cream in Tins

Keepsweet Table Cream is a new product recently placed on the market. It is put up in two size tins and distributed through wholesale trade. It is manufactured by the Dominion Milk Corporation Ltd., Toronto.

Sensational D
for New

The response by the buying public to the introduction of Keepsweet Table Cream has been nothing short of sensational. Introduced first by the grocers of Toronto and backed by a strong campaign of advertising, initial supplies were cleaned out in a few days. Repeat orders came in so fast that warehouse reserves were used up, and the factory was taxed to its utmost to sustain production.

The fame of Keepsweet Cream spread, and four weeks from the date of its first appearance in Toronto, Keepsweet Cream was being sold all over Ontario. Some merchants have already repeated as many as six times.

Powerful Advertising Creates Many Inquiries

Keepsweet Cream was launched to the accompaniment of a campaign of very powerful, large-size advertisements. This is now being followed up by full page and half page advertisements in the big daily newspapers throughout the Province.

A Daily Repeater That Swells Profit

Retail merchants are eagerly booking Keepsweet Cream because it is proving such a profitable line to handle. Turnover is rapid, the demand is big and growing bigger. Grocers who handle it claim it is the best repeat proposition that has been introduced in recent years. It is an everyday proposition for grocers and wherever stocked it always sells.

Uses Mail List to Interest Customers; Increasing Turnover Through Folder

Bicknell Store in Dunnville, Ont., Reports Sales Away Ahead of Last Year Because of Success of This Scheme—Conducts Business Absolutely on a Cash Basis

DUNNVILLE, Ont. (Special).—The Bicknell store here has been in existence a good many years. During the past few years it has been operated on the cash and carry basis. One of the features adopted for securing business is a four leaf folder advertising the goods on sale which is sent out to a list of about 1,200 to 1,500 homes.

A. L. Bicknell in referring to this method of interesting customers stated that their store had secured a great deal of business in this way from both Dunnville and the surrounding country. This year sales are away ahead of last and he attributes this particularly to this folder. They also do some local advertising in the Dunnville paper which to a certain extent assists the folder in bringing in new business.

"All our business is done absolutely on the cash basis," he stated to a Canadian Grocer representative.

How Mailing List is Made Up

"How do you secure your mailing list?" he was asked.

"We find out the number of mail boxes through the rural districts on each rural route. We do not have any list of names but simply sent out one of our folders or catalogues to each householder. The mail man drops one in each mail box on each route. The farmers either bring in the money for the goods or produce to the proper value."

Mr. Bicknell pointed out that they have gone completely out of the dairy butter business and handle only creamery butter. They could not depend on the dairy butter and lost money on it. They allow the farmer the regular market price for his eggs and this goes to balance the purchases made in the Bicknell store.

Cost of Folder

"This folder does not cost us very much because we have arranged with a number of manufacturers to use space in it and they pay about half the cost monthly," he said. "The total cost is approximately $20 so that it really only costs us $10 per month for this type of advertising. So many people refer to the articles mentioned in the catalogue that we know it is getting us business. It seems to me that people in the country particularly like to purchase from a catalogue or at least many of them do so far as our experience goes. We find too that the cash and carry plan is more satisfactory than the old credit and delivery method. It has enabled us to reduce our costs and therefore we are in a position to take less for our goods because our overhead is less.

"Under cash and carry basis we are able to sell about five cases of oranges per week instead of one case as formerly. Our turnover is therefore so much greater that we make several profits on the oranges."

Mr. Bicknell is making plans to put in a new store front with receding windows from the pavement to the door in the centre, thereby giving much more window display space in the front than formerly.

Extends Time for Manufacture of Oleo for One Year

Ottawa, June 27—(Special)—Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, has brought down a bill in the house which will permit the manufacture and importation of oleomargarine until August 31, 1923, and the "offering for sale, the sale, and the having in possession for sale" of oleomargarine, until March 1, 1924.

This is an extension of one year.

Effect of Emergency Tariff on Canadian Exports During May

Ottawa, June 27 (Special).—For the month of May, 1922, the value of Canadian exports to the United States affected by the Emergency Tariff was $5,657,936, as against $7,864,824 in the corresponding month of 1921, and for the twelve months ended May, 1922, was $42,602,964, as against $172,722,747 in the twelve months ended May, 1921.

The following are among the commodities affected by the Emergency Tariff which show decreases for the twelve-month period ended May, 1922, as compared with the corresponding period in 1921:—Butter and substitutes, 2,987,114 lbs. as against 5,192,785 lbs.; corn or maize, 7,809 bushels as against 17,953 bushels; fresh or frozen beef, veal, mutton, lamb and pork, 28,395,800 pounds, as against 38,637,400 lbs.; meats of all kinds prepared or preserved, n. o. p., 1,466,111 lbs. as against 3,182,582 lbs.; milk, fresh, 1,268,721 gallons, as against 1,530,468 gallons; milk, preserved or condensed or sterilized, 1,256,170 lbs., as against 16,815,304 lbs.; potatoes, 1,779,769 bushels. as against 2,693,699 bushels; cattle, 148,589 head, as against 309,892 head; sheep 98 097 head, as against 184,750 head.

Among the commodities which show increases in exports from Canada are: Cheese and substitutes, 3,233,274 lbs., as against 583,171 lbs; flax seed, 3,201,265 bushels, as against 2,259,508 bushels; apples, 486,276 barrels, as against 25,527 barrels; cream, 1,722,664 gallons, as against 1,331,028 gallons.

Favorable Prospects For a Good Grape Crop in Niagara

The prospects for a good grape crop in the Niagara district are very favorable at the present time and it is expected that the total crop of all varieties will be a 100 per cent. one.

"Of course anything can happen during the next couple of months, but the chances for damage are very small," stated R. J. Montgomery, manager of the Niagara District Grape Growers, Limited, to Canadian Grocer. "We believe the worst that can happen the grape crop from now on is the grape leaf hopper, which is a very serious menace unless properly taken care of at the proper time. The season of 1921 saw practically the first appearance of this hopper to any great extent and this season it is worse than ever. In fact many vineyards are infested by millions of them. These insects suck the vitality out of the grapes."

The Niagara District Grape Growers, Limited, practically control 4,200 acres or approximately 90 per cent. of the entire grape acreage in the Niagara Peninsula. This means that with a full crop they will ship about 1,500 carloads of grapes.

AMENDMENT GIVES LARGER EXEMPTION UNDER INCOME TAX

Ottawa, June 27.—Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, this afternoon introduced a bill amending the income tax as to increase the exemption for each child from $200 to $300; revising present provisions in regard to commercial travelers' expenses, and imposing a tax on Americans working in Canada similar to that imposed on Canadians working in the United States. This last amendment is to come into effect by proclamation.

COLLEGE STREET MERCHANTS TORONTO HOLD MEETING

Merchants on College Street, Toronto, held a well-attended meeting in the Garrett Club, College Street, the other evening, with the president, George Garrett, in the chair.

E. B. Westwood, of the Queen Street West Association, spoke on the work of the T. B. M. A. Publicity Board and the advantages of well-balanced advertising and publicity. George Robb was appointed secretary to the Publicity Board. Several new members were enrolled.

WESTERN CANADA NEWS

R. H. Coldridge is covering the Brandon territory in the interest of W. H. Escott Co., calling on the wholesale and retail trade.

W. G. Lumbers accompanied by Mrs. Lumbers, spent a few hours in Winnipeg on their return from Alaska before returning to Toronto.

The Winnipeg Caterers' Association is holding its 35th annual picnic on Wednesday July 19th at Grand Beach, Manitoba. The association comprises both wholesale and retail grocers, butchers, bakers and confectioners in Winnipeg and the surrounding district. A good program of sports has been arranged and all of the trade should make it a point to be present.

Albert Smale of the staff of Donald H. Bain Company, Winnipeg, was married Wednesday, June 14th in Westminster Church to Miss B. Upham of Grafton, N. D. They are spending their honeymoon on a motor trip to Minneapolis and various other cities. Mr. and Mrs. Smale were presented with a silver tea service and a cut glass berry set by the staff of the firm.

The Pacific Starch Company, Limited, has decided to build at New Westminster, B. C., and has secured a site of three and one half acres. The plant, it is stated, will cost around $40,000 and will handle 750 tons of potatoes per month.

New Brokerage Firm is Formed in Winnipeg

Winnipeg, June 26.—The announcement is made of the formation of a new brokerage firm trading under the name of Mackenzie, Richardson Co. The new firm is succeeding Richardson, Green Limited and will be affiliated with the house of W. L. Mackenzie & Co., Limited.

Mackenzie, Richardson Co., will take over all accounts controlled by Richardson, Green Ltd., as well as all competitive brokerage accounts now controlled by W. L. Mackenzie & Co., Limited. They will operate branches in Fort William, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver, with head office at 141 Bannatyne Ave., Winnipeg. Geo. Cameron is president and Ross Richardson is vice-president and general manager.

Robt. Kelly, Wholesale Grocer at the Coast, Dies Very Suddenly

Vancouver, B. C., June 26—(Special)—Robert Kelly, head of the Kelly Douglas Wholesale Grocery Company and interested in many other enterprises, died suddenly on Thursday of last week of acute jaundice and liver trouble.

He was 57 years old.

Twenty-five years ago he went into business for himself after being a traveller for some years for Winnipeg and Vancouver firms.

The late Mr. Robert Kelly, is a brother of A. E. Kelly, president of the Grocers' section of the Ottawa branch of the Retail Merchants' Association. The late Mr. Robert Kelly will be remembered in Ottawa by many of the older citizens. He was born in the village of Russell, Ont., and carried on business there and also in Finch. Throughout his residence in the west he took a keen interest in both British Columbia and Dominion politics.

Manitoba R.M.A. Holds Its Annual Session In Winnipeg

Winnipeg, June 26—(Special)—T. A. Connell, Winnipeg, was elected president and H. M. Dunham, Portage la Prairie, vice-president of the Manitoba board of the Retail Merchants of Canada, at the ninth annual meeting of the board held last week.

Other officers elected for the ensuing year were: W. J. Creelman, Brandon; 2nd vice-president, R. J. McLean, Winnipeg; 3rd vice-president; J. W. Kelly, Winnipeg, treasurer, the executive to appoint a secretary. Delegates from Manitoba to the meeting of the Dominion board to be held in Halifax, Aug. 8 to 11, will be: J. A. Banfield, T. A. Connell, H. M. Dunham, W. E. Humphries and C. F. Rannard.

The establishment of a school of commerce in connection with the university and the introduction of a merchandising course in Manitoba schools will be sought by the association.

More rigid enforcement of the Lord's Day Act was recommended and guessing contests condemned in other resolutions. Action was deferred in the matter of the stamp tax on cheques, pending its consideration by the Dominion executive council of the association.

Other resolutions dealt with taxes on personal property, community development, lectures on salesmanship, courses for retail salesman, new sales tax, school of commerce, business ethics, greater interest in municipal and provincial affairs on the part of business men, necessity for persons taking orders direct from consumers to have a license, recommending that municipalities refrain from entering the business field in competition with taxpaying concerns and similar subjects.

PRACTISE "PAY-AS-YOU-GO" IS GOOD ADVICE

preciation has hit your stocks so hard that values are down forty per cent.—or worse. In fact, the outlook may be all that is discouraging. Yet, if you owe nobody; if you can feel that despite all this, it is nobody's funeral but yours, and nobody has a right to question seeing you owe nobody—don't you see how you are fixed?

You are independent. Nobody can back you off the boards. Better than that; the man who pays as he goes is not so apt to get into any such business doldrums as overstocks and slow credits connote. For the man who pays as he goes, collects as he goes. He also buys conservatively. You do not find him overloaded with stocks. Instead, you do find his bank account in good shape. He is always in a position to cash in on any special opportunities that are offered. And note, too, that he is the one who knows the real opportunities from the spurious.

Credit is an excellent thing. It is the thing, in fact, on which modern commerce rests and flourishes. Without it, we should be back in the stone age of barter. But like other good things, its abuse is the curse of the abuser, and too many of us, especially while inexperienced, abuse it.

The green merchant, flushed with his first spurt of success, is a prime sinner against the laws of credit. That is why he so frequently goes broke just as he has got well started. That is why he should practise pay-as-you-go persistently. Some day he will use credit—maybe to finance a building on a splendid location he has bought at a real bargain out of his savings As his banker gets to know him, he may have other offerings, on credit, which it will be to his advantage to take.

But those things are developments from good habits. Where so developed, the laws are learned and scrupulously observed. And such a man does not go broke. He progresses to the top round of prosperity and local high standing.

Weekly Grocery Market Reports

Statements From Buying Centres

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE raw sugar market continues firm at the higher quotation of 3¼c c. & f. New York for Cubas. Considerable business transpired during the week among which was 320 tons of Colombian at 3 1-8c c. i. f. New York to Canadian refiners and 8,000 bags San Domingos at 3¼c c. i. f. St. John. Another sale was confirmed of 19,500 bags Cubas to operators at 3 5-16c c. & f., for second half July shipment.

In Canadian refined sugar the situation remains strong. Two refiners, the Atlantic and St. Lawrence, are still withdrawn while the Canada advanced their quotation to the basis of $7 Montreal. The domestic consumptive demand continues active and with the heaviest demand yet to come there is reason to believe, in view of the condition existing in the raw market, that some further advances will be made.

The tea market continues with a strong tone. Advices from London indicate strength and it is anticipated that it will continue for the next two or three months. Colombo reports an advance of ½d to 1d in a strong market. There is little change in the spot situation but there is considerable evidence of stocks, bought at the lower basis of values, being pretty well cleaned up.

Canned vegetables and fruits show little change other than a good steady movement which is closely cleaning up supplies. Jams are in a strong position with new pack strawberry expected early in the next month.

Cereals are steady with rolled oats continuing strong under an active demand. Prunes show little change while currants at primary points indicate a firmness. Raisins are steadier. Opening prices on the 1922 crop of apricots and peaches are announced, which are on a higher level than last year.

Butter and cheese under export movement and a keen demand for storage, have advanced. Eggs are also in a firmer position.

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, June 28.—Sugar is steadily advancing in price. The quotation is now $7 per cwt. with every prospect of another advance. One refinery has withdrawn from the market. Molasses is advanced three cents a gallon. There is no change in corn syrups. Price cutting continues in canned fruits, for the purpose of unloading stocks. This has given a weak feeling to this market. Little by little, however, price cutting in other lines is dying out. Wholesalers are now conforming to list prices on condensed and evaporated milk. Lower prices on Bordeaux walnuts are noted as a result of drop in value of the franc. Currants look strong and prunes are advancing. There is no change in the coffee or tea market. Oranges are advancing but fresh fruits are dropping, with a big supply of strawberries on the market and prices lower than for several years. The cereal market is quiet with no change. There is a little more activity in spices. The rice market shows no change with only a limited demand.

COFFEE MARKET STEADY

Montreal.

COFFEE—There is no change in the coffee market. Prices are steady with a fair demand. This market is still uncertain about the developments in the new crop. Some reports differ, but the general opinion is that prices will be a little easier when the new crop is on this market.

CANNED FRUITS CUT

Montreal.

CANNED GOODS—Local wholesalers are cutting on many lines of canned fruits and a few vegetables. Apricots, pears, peaches and plums come under the cut with a reduction of from 10c to 20c per doz. This is not a true indication of the market condition but nevertheless lends a weak tone to the new pack. Merchants look for lower prices on the new goods. In some instances canned peas are cut but tomatoes are firm.

WALNUTS EASIER

Montreal

NUTS—The feature of the nut market is the easier prices on Bordeaux walnuts as a result of the drop in exchange on francs. This has lowered the import cost temporarily but market values are holding. Importers are taking advantge of the present price to stock for the fall. Shell peanuts are strong and there is a better demand for this nut than there has been in some years.

STRONG PRUNE MARKET

Montreal.

DRIED FRUITS—The feature of the dried fruit market is the strength noted in prunes. There has been a heavy export demand for England and France and this has cleaned up practically all available stocks in second hand. It is evident that this market is due for an advance since supplies available will not meet the present demand until the new crop is on the market. Some wholesalers have advanced their prices on prunes slightly but others are standing firm. The general opinion, however is that a sharp advance must come since the demand for prunes promises to be heavier in August and September. Early reports on the new crop of currants indicate a strong tone and importers are placing orders now for delivery in Oct., expecting a higher market. Dates have been well cleaned up in Canada by New York interests and higher prices are assured.

STRONG MARKET FOR SUGAR

Montreal.

SUGAR—A peculiar situation has developed in the sugar market. Prices have advanced rapidly in the last two weeks and now stand at $7. per cwt. All sugar refineries with one exception are firm at this basis. The Atlantic Sugar Refineries have withdrawn from the market. Although they declined to make any statement in connection with this stand it is understood locally that this firm is so over sold for export that they have nothing to offer for the domestic market. If this is the case it promises a very strong market for sugar. Local grocers are still buying heavily in expectation of higher prices. This year there promises to be a particularly heavy demand for sugar for preserving as fruit prices are lower than they have been in the past few years.

Montreal.

TEAS—No change has occurred in the tea market. Prices are firm with just a little easier trend to Japan teas in view of the lower prices expected on shipments due here next month. Black teas show a fair demand for small lots to meet immediate requirements and the activity developed in the market a month ago to a great extent has disappeared.

Montreal.

VEGETABLES— Domestic vegetables on the market have upset many quotations and prices show a marked drop. Lettuce is plentiful. New potatoes are down and Mississippi tomatoes are plentiful and lower at $1.50 a 4 basket carrier. Local green peas are also down in price. STRAWBERRIES

Montreal

FRUIT—Lower prices on strawberries feature the fruit market. The weather has been favorable for a big crop this year with prices much below that or recent years. From day to day they vary considerably. Wholesale prices run from 14 to 19c with the prospect of slightly lower prices through the week. Fresh apricots, peaches, cherries, melons and even new harvest apples are on the market. Prices are changing so rapidly and vary so much that a quotation can hardly be made. The fruit season promises to be good. Oranges and grapefruit are advanced about $1 per case.

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, June 28.—The sugar market continues in a strong position. Two refiners are still off the market while one other has advanced quotations, making the price $7.34. Rolled oats continue firm while other cereals are steady. Canned tomatoes, corn and peas are firmly held with stocks steadily cleaning up. Jams look stronger in view of the strength in the sugar market. Shelled almonds and walnuts are quiet but peanuts are active and higher. There is little change in the dried fruit situation. Spices are in fair demand for present use with no change in the market. Molasses is firm. New potatoes and other vegetables tend lower. Strawberries are nearly over for this season while cherries are arriving freely in a weak market.

STEADY CEREAL MARKET

Toronto

CEREALS.—A good steady market continues for rolled oats with quotations generally firmly held at $3.35 per 90 lb. bag. Other cereals are fairly quiet with market conditions steady and unchanged.

STIFF JAM SITUATION

Toronto.

CANNED GOODS.—Vegetables continue active. Tomatoes, peas and corn are firmly held with stocks generally low and a close clean up likely by the time new packs are available. Tomatoes are especially firm and the better known brands are strongly held at $1.80 per doz. Nothing definite has yet been announced in regards to the new pack of strawberry jam. The situation, in view of the recent strength in the sugar market, is considered strong and it has been intimated that the new pack of strawberries will be quoted around 90c. In some quarters, too, where low prices have been quoted on last year's make, a firmer position is noted and a higher price asked. Niagara Falls pineapple, sliced, 2½s is quoted at $3.65 per doz., and cubes at $3.25 per doz. Norse Crown sardines are quoted higher at $11 per case.

PRUNES MARKING TIME

Toronto.

DRIED FRUITS.—Although some of the independent packers of California prunes have named opening prices there does not appear to be a great deal of activity in the market. Buyers are apparently awaiting the opening prices of the Association which practically control 95 per cent. of the crop in California. Opening prices, however, have been named on the 1922 pack of apricots and peaches which are some higher than last year. Although the carryover of raisins will be larger than for several years advices from the Coast indicate that no reduction will be made in quotations and that packers are not worrying over the situation. In the local market there is no change in the dried fruit situation. Prunes are fairly well cleaned up and outside of some small stocks in wholesalers' hands there are few obtainable. A half pound package of soda bleached seedless raisins is the market and quoted at 12c. per package.

PEANUTS STRONGER

Toronto

NUTS.—The market continues quiet. Trading generally, is mostly in quantities for immediate requirements. Primary markets are fairly steady and there are indications that when the demand bcomes brisker in the early part of the fall, that a stronger market will develop. Practically the only variety that is showing any movement at the present time is shelled peanuts. This line has been strong for several weeks and prices have advanced during that time about three cents per lb.

UPWARD TREND TO SUGAR

Toronto

SUGAR.—The market continues with a strong tone with indications for further advances. Wholesalers are firmly maintaining the price and there is some talk of a shortage. Two refineries, the Atlantic and the St. Lawrence, are still withdrawn from the market while the Canada advanced to $7 Montreal basis, since going to press a week ago, making the Toronto basis $7.34.

STRONG TEA MARKETS

Toronto

TEAS.—All advices received from London during the past week indicated a strong tone and although no noticeable changes in prices occurred, a strong market is anticipated for the next two or three months. Cables from Colombo stated advances of ½d to 1d per lb. In the local situation there is no perceptible change, but stocks which were brought at the low point are now pretty well cleared up and wholesalers are firmer in their ideas.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, June 28.—The feature of the market is the strengthening character of sugar under the influence of a heavy export demand and an advance of 25c per cwt. makes the Winnipeg basis $8. Higher prices are expected. Canned vegetables continue firm while canned lobsters are scarce and high. Rolled oats are slightly easier. Flour has declined 10c per bag. New pack apricots are expected on the market around the middle of August and indications are that prices will be higher. Good quantities of fresh fruits are arriving under a heavy demand.

COFFEE PRICES STEADY

CANNED LOBSTERS SCARCE

Winnipeg.

CANNED GOODS—Shipments of new pack canned lobsters are arriving and canners have advised that there is a shortage on account of the heavy export demand. The demand for canned salmon, especially pinks and cohoes is good, but sales of sockeye are light. Sardines and pilchards are in fair demand. High grade peas are practically off the market until the new pack arrives. All lines of vegetables are meeting with ready sales and if the demand continues new arrivals will be coming on a bare market. Canadian canned fruits of many lines, such as cherries, strawberries and raspberries are practically cleaned up and there will be none available until the new pack arrives around the month of August. Indications are for slightly lower prices.

NEW APRICOTS HIGHER

Winnipeg.

DRIED FRUITS—Stocks of dried fruits are reported light by wholesalers and indications are that the old crop will be absorbed before the new pack arrives. New apricots are expected on the market about the middle of August and prices will be higher than last year. Peaches and prunes are expected to be higher.

ROLLED OATS EASIER

Winnipeg.

CEREALS—Bulk rolled oats are showing an easier tendency and have declined to the basis of $2.80 per 80 lb. bag. Ontario and Michigan beans are practically off the Western market and the only supplies available are small quantities of Kotenashis. Split peas are reported scarce. Package cereals are in good demand at unchanged quotations.

JAM SITUATION UNSETTLED

Winnipeg.

JAMS—The jam market seems to be in an unsettled condition. Jam manufacturers claim they cannot reduce their prices any lower than last year's and wholesalers are buying in small quantities except on snap offers. Indications are that the market will not become stabilized until manufacturers have named their prices. There is no change in blended jams except the advance due to the increased sales tax.

Winnipeg.

NUTS—French Bordeaux walnuts are firmer and indications are that present prices will be well maintained. The shelled almond market is in an unsettled condition due to the American tariff and the policy of buying from hand to mouth. Indications are that prices will be slightly lower on this line. Spanish shelled peanuts are firmer. Pecans are easier. Brazils are slightly firmer and buyers continue to place orders to meet the necessary requirements.

"CONFIDENCE IS MOST VALUABLE ASSET A MERCHANT CAN BUILD"

VICTORIA, B. C., June 12—"The most valuable asset that a merchant can build up," said Mr. Bayliss, of the Hollywood Grocery, Victoria, "is confidence. Anything that will build confidence is good business, and any action that jeopardizes that confidence is bad business.

"I am a firm believer in the personal recommendation in the grocery business. A customer, if she has confidence in her grocer expects him to be something of an authority on food matters, and to have a well-founded, a well-considered opinion on every line he sells. If he has a personal knowledge about every item he sells he is in a position to speak authoritatively about it, as a customer likes him to. If he knows an article to be good, from personal experience, he can recommend it and his recommendation carries great weight, and often is the deciding factor in the sale. If his judgment is found to be good, his prestige is enhanced, and his customer's confidence in him is increased—all of which is good business, and a real asset to a merchant.

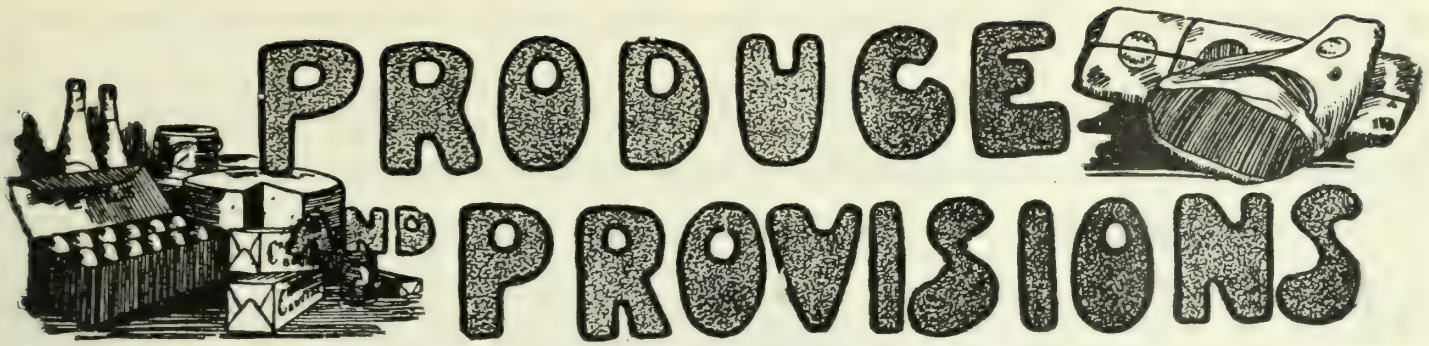
"Therefore, I would seriously warn any grocer against making an easy sale, by warmly recommending any item with which he is not sufficiently familiar to warrant the recommendation. 'Once bitten—twice shy,' has lived too long as an expression, not to have a strong element of truth in it. Any recommended article that falls short of the claims made for it, results in a quick loss of confidence in the grocer."

Mr. Bayliss also states that in his store the policy that the "customer is always right" is not merely a motto on the wall but it is an actual reality. "If there is an argument," says this merchant, "the retailer will always come off second best. Even if he gains the point, he likely loses the customer. We never argue. The customer is right. We aim to sell not only groceries, but satisfaction and if the customer is not satisfied she hasn't got the whole of her order."

Suggests Time of Making Cheese Be Put On Each One

J. M. Adams, 125 Queen St., Chatham, Ont., suggests that the time of making a cheese should be shown on the article. At the present time there appears to be only June and September but what becomes of the cheese manufactured during other months of the year, he asks. He thinks this would also help the grocer in buying and selling. "Why not the cheesemaker put the name of his brand on the same as the butter maker?" he inquires. "The name of the firm selling it does not amount to shucks. If a woman comes in a store and says she wants some cheese like she bought a month ago how does a man know what to give her? All cheese sold by one man is not made for him by the same man. Now if when this customer came in, she said she wanted such and such a brand you would know what to give her, and if you didn't have that brand you would use your own judgment in advising her."

Two butchers in Toronto were recently fined $25 and costs on a charge of adulterating and misbranding under the Food and Drug Act. It arose out of a sale to Food Inspector Dager who claimed that he ordered sausage and was sold a substitute.



Amendments Dealing with Canned Fish

Section of Meat and Canned Foods Act Dealing Particularly With Canning and Packing of Fish is Amended. With Application Particularly to the Export Market—Will Not Inconvenience Packers

MONTREAL, June 26 (Special).—During the present session of parliament the Hon. E. Lapointe, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, brought a bill before the House of Commons which deals with the canning, packing, marking and shipping of canned fish, in particular, which comes under the Meat and Canned Foods Act. According to his resolution it provides for an amendment to chapter 27 of the Statutes of 1907 of the said Act, with application particularly to the export market. The important extracts from the amendment appear herewith.

Resolved, that it is expedient to amend The Meat and Canned Foods Act, chapter twenty-seven of the statutes of 1907, and amending Acts, and to provide:—

1. (a) That "shell fish" may be included among the products prepared for food for export or stored for export in an establishment as defined in section one of chapter 31 of the statutes of 1918;

(b) That "dry lobster meat" or "dry meat" shall mean drained meat, that is, the meat remaining after a can which has been processed and allowed to cool thoroughly is opened and upturned so as to permit free drainage of the liquid therefrom for not less than one minute and not more than one and a half minutes; and,

(c) That "can" and "canned fish or shellfish" shall include any hermetically sealed fish or shellfish processed or preserved in the usual way packed in such can, bottle, package or container.

2. That section 12A, as enacted by chapter 33 of the statutes of 1917, be amended to provide that fish and shellfish packed in cans shall be subject to inspection such as may be provided by the regulations during the whole course of preparation and packing, and at any time thereafter at the cannery or at the warehouse of the first purchaser at his request, and shall be labelled with the particulars as prescribed therein, with the name and address of the packer or of the first dealer obtaining it direct from the packer.

Exemption From Labelling

3. That subsection 4 of the said section 12A be amended to provide that exemption from labelling of the cans of fish or shellfish may be allowed, if such labelling hinders the sale of the same in markets outside of Canada.

4. That section 12C of the said Act be amended to provide that all canned fish and shellfish shall be sound, wholesome and fit for human food, and any unsound canned fish or shellfish found during the process of preparing and packing or at any time thereafter, at the cannery or the warehouse of the first purchaser, may be seized and confiscated on view by any inspecting officer and dealt with as provided by the regulations, and the inspector may take samples for inspection.

5. That section 12D of the said Act as enacted by chapter 22 of the statutes of 1919 (second session) be amended to provide that there shall be five sizes of cans for canning lobsters. These shall be of the sizes commonly known as three, six, nine, twelve and sixteen ounce cans. The cans of each size in the order named shall each contain not less than three ounces avoirdupois, six ounces avoirdupois, nine ounces avoirdupois, twelve ounces avoirdupois, and sixteen ounces avoirdupois of drained lobster meat. No other size of can shall be used for packing lobsters without first obtaining the written permission of the minister. Such written permission shall state the minimum amount of drained lobster meat each size of can so authorized shall contain. All cans that do not contain the weight specified for each of the sizes herein named, or that may be hereafter named may be seized and held by any inspecting officer and disposed of as provided by the regulations.

Designate B. C. Salmon

6. That section 12E of the said Act as enacted by chapter 33 of the statutes of 1917 be amended to provide that for the purposes of the Act, the varieties of British Columbia salmon shall be designated, and, provided the need for such is established to the satisfaction of the Governor in Council, graded as provided in the regulations.

7. That section 12F of the said Act as enacted by the said chapter be amended to provide that in the event of the provisions of the Act or of any regulations made thereunder or the lawful instructions of inspecting officers not being complied with in any fish or shellfish cannery, the minister may order the fish or shellfish cannery to be closed; provided, however, that any cannery in which the sanitary conditions are being neglected may be immediately closed by the inspecting officer until the defects are remedied.

Will Not Inconvenience Packers

According to the fish canners of Eastern Canada this Act makes little difference to the industry and as far as can be seen, if it becomes law, it will not inconvenience the packers to any degree. A. H. Britton, general manager of the Maritime Fish Corporation, said to a Canadian Grocer representative: 'This amendment applies particularly to the export market with a view to standardizing our pack of canned fish so that it can compete with other canned fish in foreign markets. As far as I can see it applies particularly to canned lobster. Personally I think it is a good move and will be of advantage to the packers of fish. At the present time the net weight of the contents of a tin are only required in the stamping of the labels and in the case of lobsters there may be only 4 oz. of meat in 12 oz. of net contents. In fact the food contents of the tin may vary considerably. I do not see that this is any intimation that Canadian packers of lobsters are acting unfairly but it puts competition on a fair basis. Lobsters are all packed in water and it is only

Produce, Provision and Fish Markets

QUEBEC MARKETS

MONTREAL, June 28.—The feature of the provision market is the advancing price of butter. Local prices show an advance of two and three cents with the likelihood of a further advance. The export demand has made the market particularly active. Cheese has also advanced for the same reason. The egg market remains firm and there are signs of strength on account of a lighter production. The hog market shows no change although the market is not so active. Beef is easing up on account of the warmer weather. The lard market is easy with a drop of one cent in some quarters. The smoked meat market has been dull on account of the unseasonable weather but shows signs of improvement. Prices are steady. The same applies to cooked meats. The lower prices on Gaspe salmon feature the fish market.

BUTTER PRICES HIGHER

Montreal.

BUTTER—The strength that has characterized the butter market for the past month still continues. Prices during the past week have scored advances amounting to 3½c per lb. which was attributed to the strong cable enquiries and a good export demand for Canadian creamery coupled with keen competition from local buyers. Creamery prints are now quoted at 39c and 40c per lb. and solids at 38c. Dairy butter has also advanced in price and is quoted at 30c and 31c per lb. in solids and 32c and 33c in prints. The butter market is strong at the present advanced price and the wholesalers are looking for a further advance.

CHEESE PRICES ADVANCE

Montreal.

CHEESE—An active trade is being done in cheese for export and a steady increasing demand for supplies for shipment to Europe has developed a stronger market here with advanced prices. Local wholesalers have advanced their prices on new large cheese and twins to 18 and 20c per lb. The general price now quoted is 20 cents per pound but quotations vary with a minimum price of 18c. The market is in a strong position and at all country boards prices show a marked advance. The highest figure paid for western white cheese last week at the cheese board was 18 15/16c and 18 7/8c per lb. for colored. If this price holds it is evident that wholesale prices must advance still further.

EGGS UNCHANGED

Montreal.

EGGS—There has been practically no change of any importance in the egg situation during the past week. Advices from country points state that receipts continue to show a decrease which is usual at this period of the year but the supply coming forward is quite sufficient to meet immediate demand and prices show no change.

HOG MARKET STEADY

Montreal.

FRESH MEATS—The market for hogs shows no change and is generally firm. The demand for bacon hogs is fair and sufficiently steady to hold prices as they have been for the past two weeks. The local market stands at $14.75 per cwt. for selected light weight hogs, weighed off cars, with rougher lots quoted at $14.00 to $14.50 per cwt. Dressed hogs are unchanged although the market shows signs of weakness due to the change in the weather. Packers by their anxiety to keep operations up seem to be forcing the market although a falling off in demand is only natural.

SMOKED MEATS STEADY

Montreal.

SMOKED MEATS—The trade in smoked and cured meats has been fairly active but the volume of business is not as large as was expected for this season of the year, owing to the fact that the consumption has been curtailed to some extent by the unfavorable weather prevailing. A firm feeling is noted in the market for bacon and smoked ham. rices hold unchanged.

GASPE SALMON LOWER

Montreal

FRESH FISH—The feature of the fish market is the lower prices quoted on Gaspe salmon owing to the good supply that is coming forward. Early in the week Gaspe salmon was quoted at 15 and 16c per lb. but some dealers expect a little easier price through the week. Halibut is scarce both at the Pacific and the Atlantic coasts and prices have advanced. Haddock and cod are in good supply and prices are easy. Mackerel is not so plentiful and prices are a shade higher. Lake trout and whitefish are coming to the market in good supply but pickerel and doree are beginning to get scarce. There is a fairly good demand for fresh fish at this season. Salmon in particular is popular.

WEAKNESS IN LARD

ONTARIO MARKETS

TORONTO, June 28.—An upward tendency is quite apparent in both butter and cheese. There appears to be a heavy demand for these lines for both domestic and storage purposes. Some export business has also transpired. Butter and cheese are both quoted at a higher range of values. Eggs have developed a firmer tone due to the decrease in production. The live hog market holds fairly steady. Bacon, lard and shortening are steady and unchanged, while cooked meats are firm. Fresh caught halibut and whitefish are quoted higher, while poultry is fairly easy under some lower prices.

STRONG BUTTER MARKET

Toronto.

BUTTER.—An upward tendency continues in the market for butter. A good demand is noted both for domestic consumption and for storage purposes. Some export business has also transpired. Quotations to the retail trade are advanced to 39c. and 40c. for best grades of creamery prints with second grades bringing 36c. to 38c.

HIGHER CHEESE PRICES

Toronto

CHEESE.—A stronger situation prevails in the cheese market, reflecting somewhat the condition in butter. Quotations on new make are advanced to 19c. and 20c. per lb. September make is becoming scarce and in most places it is firmly held at a higher price of 24c. although in some quarters it is still offered at 21c.

STEADY HOG MARKET

Toronto

FRESH MEATS.—The live hog market remained fairly steady during the week. At the beginning of the week, the market opened at $14.25 on the fed and watered basis, later there was an easier feeling with values dropping 25c. but as we go to press the decline was recovered. Under moderate receipts, the cattle market was stronger while calves and lambs continue easy under a break in prices.

WINNIPEG MARKETS

WINNIPEG, June 28.—The feature of the produce and provision market is the strength displayed in butter and cheese, due to the active export demand. Eggs are arriving freely but the quality is not up to the standard due largely to the hot weather, therefore causing prices of eggs to show a decline. Cooked meats are active in a strong market. Smoked hams and bacon have also a strong tone. Live hogs are showing a slightly easier tendency and prices are a shade lower.

BUTTER MARKET STRONG

Winnipeg.

BUTTER—The butter market under the influence of a keen demand principally for storage purposes continues to maintain a strong tone. Best grades of creamery prints are quoted at 35c to 37c and undergrades at 30c to 33c.

FRESH MEATS—Live hogs are a shade easier and a decline of 25c is noted. Live selected hogs are quoted at $12.25 per cwt. The calf market is showing a firmer tone and choice vealers are selling from $8 to $8.50 with medium quality from $5 to $7. The sheep and lamb market maintains a firm tone. Best quality spring lambs are quoted at $14 to $15 with the remainder from $11.75 to $12.50.

fair that the weight of the meat contents be stamped instead of the net weight of the contents of the tin."

Canada Has Big Export in Lobsters

When asked where Canada marketed the pack of lobsters Mr. Britton said, "Canada finds her biggest market for canned lobsters in France. In fact there are very few competitors with Canada in this market. Most of the shipments of canned lobsters to France go unlabelled but at the present time the law demands that the name 'Canada' be embossed on the tin. When they get to France they are labelled with a private brand and resold."

Does Not Affect Haddies

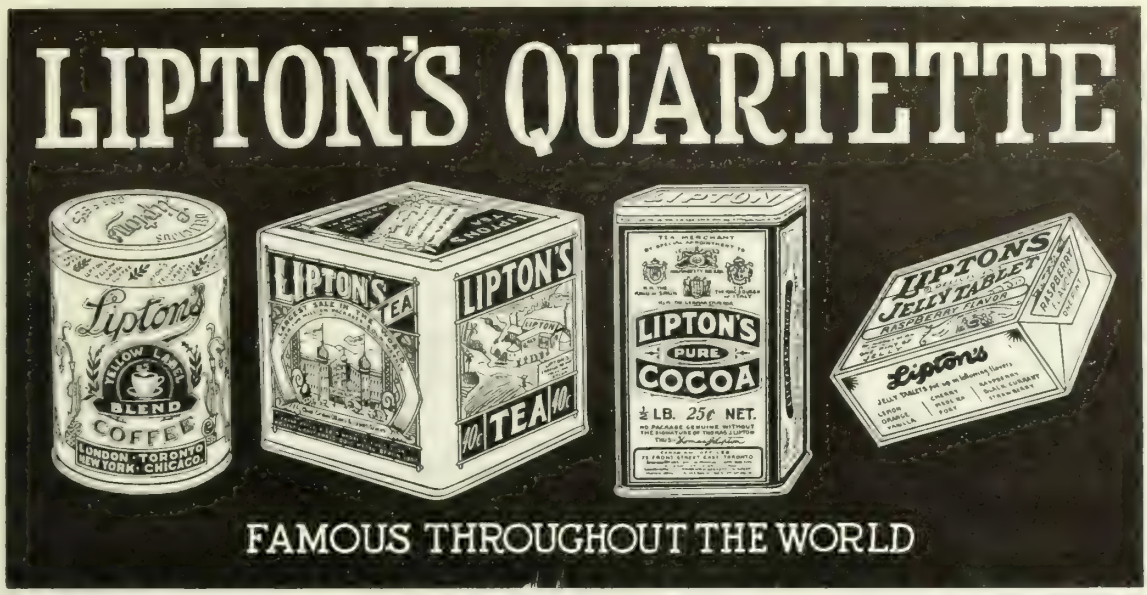
Mr. Britton also claimed that the new amendment to the Act does not affect the pack of haddies since this fish was dry packed and there is no liquid in the tin. He claims to be very well pleased with the proposal of the Minister of Marine & Fisheries. D. J. Byrne, representing Conners Bros., Limited, of Black's Harbor, N. B., in speaking to a Canadian Grocer representative said that the amendment to the Act would not affect his firm since they already stamped the net weight of salad meat on each tin. In the case of clams, which they pack, the net weight of solids and net weight of contents of tin are both stamped on the label. This had been done to meet export regulations for other countries. He also approved of the amendment and said that it would help Canada's export trade in canned fish, particularly the lines which are packed in liquid. He intimated that it might affect sardines and salmon but at the time he was not prepared to say to what degree it would inconvenience the packers.

A Change in Salmon

While Mr. Britton was not absolutely sure he expressed the opinion that it would affect the salmon packing industry since the salmon contains a certain amount of loose fluid and the new regulations would require a new system of weighing the meat before it is packed.

WANTED

GENERAL MANAGER WANTED FOR LARGE Canadian chain grocery organization. Must have executive ability and successful record. Apply in strict confidence, giving particulars as to age, character, experience, etc., to Box 218 Canadian Grocer, 153 University Ave., Toronto.



The constantly growing demand for our Tea, Coffee, Cocoa, and Jelly Tablets indicate that consumers are becoming more appreciative of the fact that they are unable to get just that grade of quality recognized the world over with the Lipton products by purchasing inferior brands.

How He Got His Man

A merchant in Montreal wanted a man to manage his store. He advertised in the daily papers and secured many replies. He also used an announcement in the Want Ad. page of CANADIAN GROCER and several replies were received. He chose his man from the latter. In fact, the only men who at all suited his purpose, were those who applied through this paper.

CANADIAN GROCER reaches business men in the trade. There are good men scattered all over Canada who read the CANADIAN GROCER and who are interested in such a proposition.

To get the man you want; to secure a position; a partner, to sell some used equipment; to buy second-hand equipment, use the Want Ad page of CANADIAN GROCER. It gets results.

Kingston Grocer attributes his increased turnover in Biscuits to . . . . . .

CHRISTIE'S
Patented Biscuit Cabinets

ONE OF OUR SPECIALLY DESIGNED DISPLAY CABINETS (56 Sections)
Height 4 feet 10 inches Length 14 feet 6 inches, with mirror. Ash or Oak Trim, Light or Dark Finish

"Our increased biscuit turnover is largely due to the Christie Cabinet we have installed," says Mr. A. Glover, progressive, Kingston, Ont., grocer.

"We have good trade in biscuits and our large attractive biscuit cabinet accommodates an assortment of sixty plain and fancy varieties. This cabinet enables customers to see at a glance the various kinds we stock and permits indexing and convenient time-saving arrangements of similar biscuits."

"Some people refuse to buy the last biscuit in the tin even though they have been opened the same day. The Christie cabinet arrangement does away with this objection and enables us to clean up these lines before they grow stale." (See cut of Mr. Glover's store and cabinet in editorial columns, last week's Grocer.)

If you want to increase your biscuit turnover, Mr. Grocer, you can easily do so with one of these sales-creating Christie cabinets filled with Christie's famous biscuits. Cabinets are furnished you at cost in any size.

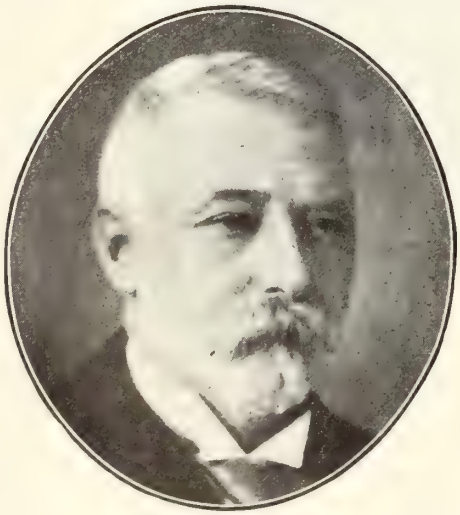
Mills at Merritton.



Ottawa, June 18.—The day is saved for the "home brewer." Item No. 10 in the budget resolutions, which would have prohibited the brewing of beer by anyone except by a regularly licensed brewer, was struck out Saturday night at the request of Hon. W. S. Fielding, who said that although there had been abuses in the past in connection with the "home brew industry," he had come to the conclusion that the proposed remedy would perhaps be worse than the disease it was meant to cure.

Mr. Fielding said there had been many protests since it was proposed to cut off the permits for the manufacture of beer in private homes.

The item was struck out and the committee reported progress on the budget resolutions.

Fielding Says—

Profits!

The most important thing in a business like yours

That goes without saying. Next in importance are those things which decide what your profits shall be.

First, the way you decide prices and, second, seeing that you get this price. And mistakes must come out of your net profits. After you have decided on the right margin—how are you making sure that you always get the profit you expect from the price you charge? What guarantee have you that you are not cheating yourself?

Weighing is positively the most important transaction in your store. Its accuracy decides whether you will lose customers or profits.

Your scales are the one part of your store equipment in which all your customers have a direct financial interest.

$25.00

For a Practical Name

From the beginning of time, new products appear on the market, do not worry, more will appear.

Verse 1, 15th Chapter

Gentlemen:—

We are all coming to you for help, but not financially, read the following clearly:

We are looking for a name. WHY? For our purgative water, which we are launching on the market because we believe that by the adoption of a good name we can sell our article more readily than without any name at all. What do you think?

Therefore we are Offering $25.00 to the person who suggests the most practical name, comprised of one, two or three syllables, providing it can easily be pronounced in French or English.

This water sells at 25 cents, but will cost you only 15 cents.

So as to allow an equal chance to everybody, there will be no special price for quantities:

1 case of 12 bottles, $1.80.

As soon as we secure the name of the product, we will have to advertise it, so as to create a demand and for this reason we appointed Mr. Jutras and asked him to direct our campaign.

After many efforts on our part we finally obtained his consent, as his perfumery demands his constant attention.

He finally agreed to give us one hour a day of his time and we readily accepted.

Intimately knowing Mr. Jutras, who created the well-known perfumes, "Faites-Moi Rever" and "Boule de Neige," and knowing of the success he attained with his enterprise we sincerely believe his advice will be a big advantage in introducing this purgative water and this well-conducted publicity will be most advantageous to you.

The large profits which you will make by the sale of this purgative water known by the name of ..... will be a harvest to you.

This contest opens the 15th of June and closes the 15th of July.

Send us immediately your suggestion for a name and we will recognize you as a contestant.

Thanking you very much for your attention in this offer, we remain for the moment as in the future,

The Purgative Water Company

1739 Papineau Ave., MONTREAL

CALIFORNIA PEAR CROP LARGE

The Bartlett pear crop in California will exceed one hundred thousand tons this year as compared with 78,000 tons last year, the California Pear Growers Association has announced. The 1922 price for No. 1 Bartletts is $75 a ton as compared with $65 last year and for No. 2 Bartletts is $40 as compared with $35 last year. From the price on No. 1 Bartletts is deducted $3.75 a ton which goes to the association for advertising and other expenses, leaving $38 net to the grower.
